The Government Lot Should Be Enlarged For Beauty

A Washington dispatch says $20,000 of the $80,000 appropriated for a federal building at Quincy is now available, so that work may be begun immediately.

It is good news that Quincy is to have a government building, but we hope our townspeople will not be so pleased over it that they will put up with the present small location. The place is not objectionable but the lot is much too small.

In the first place Washington street should be widened from Temple street to Revere road, and the street railway tracks placed in the middle of the street. Maple street is narrower than it should be, however that is done and too late to remedy.

The lot for the building should extend back further into Maple street and to the corner of Temple street. The building should not be a square box set down on a lot flush with the sidewalk, but should have good grass plots same as the City Hall at Cambridge, the Town Hall at Revere, and other attractive buildings.

The government building now in process of erection at Marblehead is very unattractive, being on too small a lot and looks crowded, as the perspective is poor.

With the Public Library and its beautiful lawn; the Y. M. C. A. building, which we hope some day will own the whole corner; Sthe tone church and the proposed government building, it should make an imposing group of public buildings, provided care is taken in the matter of a larger lot for the government building.

Quincy should now build for the future and look well ahead, having an eye to convenience, at the same time not forgetting the artistic and the beautiful. When we see what the Crane family has done and is doing for Quincy, we wonder how the citizens can be content to drift along. It should arouse their interest to make the city more attractive.

Perhaps the appropriation of $80,000 just made by Congress is large enough to permit of the expenditure of $10,000 or $20,000 for enlargement. If not, cannot the city buy more land, or citizens subscribe.

Will not our Board of Trade, the Citizens' Association and clubs have a discussion on the subject and see what is best. Won't others also express their opinion through the press, that we may give the matter careful investigation before the building is started.

Sports at Picnic Of Christ Church

Two hundred and eighty-seven men, women, and children joined in the annual picnic of Christ's Church Sunday School, held at Randolph Grove Friday, June 29.

The day opened with a base ball game between two boys teams, the Reds winning from the Blues with a score of 6 to 4.

In the field sports, first and second prizes were given as follows:

100 yd. dash,—James Smith, and John Reynold.

50 yd. dash,—for girls Cora Barnicoat and Hazel Carlin.

100 yd. dash for boys over 13 years,—Percy Fox and John Moyle.

Running Jump,—Chester Brown and Clifford Bean.

Throwing the base ball (open to all girls),—Olive Smith and Mildred Smith.

Relay race which concluded the events was won by the Reds.

Whiskey Seized.

Chief of Police Burrell and Lieut. McKay, with officers Bradley and Phillips raided the premises of Charles Hewitt on Pierce lane Saturday night, and seized a small quantity of whiskey. Hewitt was arrested.

Street Railway Improvements

The street railway company are about to make a number of changes for the betterment of the Quincy street car service. The changes as outlined include a double track from City Square over Hancock and Quincy avenue to the Scammell turnout, and a single track on Water street between Quincy avenue and Franklin street.

This will enable the company to establish fifteen minute service on the West Quincy line which they are unable to do under the present trackage.

It is also proposed to extend the tracks to the Fore River yard giving the workmen there better service.

Another change proposed will be the extending of the Graham turnout on Washington street so as to enable the company to run fifteen minute cars on the Washington street line.

These improvements will be made in the immediate future probably before the end of the present year if permission is given by the City Council.

A Challenge.

The local fire laddies will have the chance of their lives to show their prowess when the Fire and Flame spectacle fire companies, which accompany the Colonel Cummins Greater Wild West comes to town. The Colonel Cummins fire lads are all tried veterans and they have issued a challenge to the local company to meet them in a race from the center of town to the show grounds. The race will take place immediately after the parade in the morning on July 9.

—Rev. and Mrs. Henry C. Alvord of South Weymouth will be given a reception this evening, Mr. Alvord having completed 20 years as pastor of the Old South Congregational church.

Axle Snapped As Fire Apparatus Was Responding To $1,000 Blaze

The alarm from Box 69 at 10.48 this morning called the department to a lively blaze in a house at Montclair near the golf links, owned and occupied by William Goodwin.

There was no one at home at the time and the cause of the fire is a mystery, as there was no fire in the stoves. The fire evidently started between the floors of the first and second stories, and was burning briskly when the department arrived.

The firemen soon had it under control although the interior of the house was considerably damaged. The loss is estimated at $1,000.

Hose 2 of Wollaston met with an accident on Farrington street while responding to the alarm, but fortunately no one was injured. James Dinegan was driving, and had reached the bottom of the hill from Beale street when the front axle snapped in the centre. The horse was stopped immediately before any further damage was done. The axle was a new one.

Verdict Against Street Railway

In the Superior court at Dedham last week a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $600 was given in the case of Julia Foley of Cambridge against the Old Colony street railway, and a verdict for the defendant in the case of Julia Foley against the City of Quincy.

The plaintiff sued for $12,000 for personal injuries received Feb. 12, 1904, while travelling along Hancock street in a sleigh. When near the corner of Beach street the sleigh ran against a pile of snow and ice and the plaintiff was thrown out.

Both cases were tried together, Bond, Whipple, Sears, Odgen and Sheehan for the plaintiff; Asa P. French, W. R. Thomas and Foster and Turner for the defendants.

It was the last case this term.

—At South Weymouth on Saturday evening, Miss Anna Stetson and Representative George L. Barnes, botb of Weymouth, were united in marriage by Rev. H. C. Alvord. An informal reception followed.

Street Railway In Two Divisions

Under a new order which goes into effect July 1, the Old Colony street railway system is to be divided into two divisions. One division comprises the Taunton, Newport and Fall River systems, and the other division comprises the Brockton, Quincy, Hyde Park and South Shore systems.

The dividing of the Old Colony System carries with it the promotion of John T. Conway from the office of assistant general superintendent to superintendent.

The Taunton, Newport and Fall River systems will be under the superintendency of George F. Seibel, and the other divisions which includes Brockton, Quincy, Hyde Park and the south shore will be under the superintendency of Mr. Conway.

Bigelows Win.

The Bigelows won an uphill game on Saturday in the last inning. The Webster A. C. obtained the lead in the third inning, but the Bigelows made it a tie in the fifth and in the ninth scored two runs while the visitors could get but one.

The Bigelows excelled at the bat and in the field. The score by innings:

Inning	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Bigelow	2	0	2	0	2	0	0	0	2	—8
Webster A. C.	0	2	4	0	0	0	0	0	1	—7

Batteries, Fallon, Saunders and Sullivan; Grace and Haley.

Braintrees Win.

The South Quincys met defeat on Saturday at Braintree when the Braintrees took them into camp to the tune of 7 to 2. Cullen and Drake were the battery for the Braintrees, and South Quincy had Marion and Forbes.

The score by innings.

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Braintree,	0	1	0	2	2	1	0	1	0	—7

Other Games.

In a twelve-inning game at Atlantic on Saturday the Sacred Hearts of Atlantic defeated the Sacred Hearts of Cambridge 5 to 4.

The Deweys of Weymouth were defeated by the Boston Unions 4 to 3.

Mosquito Fleet Race.

Class D of the open regatta of the Mosquito Fleet Yacht club on Saturday, was made up wholly of Quincy boats. The order at finish both by actual time and corrected time was: Iris, Marvel, Hustler, Arrawk, Josephine, Stranger and Dollu II.

In Class B, the Goblin, owned by R. Lothrop of the Wollaston club finished second, being outsailed by the Vexer. The Sea Gull was further down the list.

In the special class the Zoe of the Squantum club was second, and the I. X. L. of the Quincy club fourth.

The Odd Fellows are to repeat their excursion of last year on Wednesday July 25, when they will visit Canobie lake park in Salem, N. H. Committees have been appointed by Mt. Wollaston lodge of Quincy, John Hancock lodge of Wollaston, Puritan lodge of Braintree and Neponset lodge of Neponset. The Rebekahs are also invited.

—Rev. Luther W. Attwood preached an anniversary sermon at the Second Universalist church at South Weymouth on Sunday, having completed fifteen years of his pastorate.

THAW'S MILLIONS

Jerome Realizes That They Will Be Used For Defense

WILL PUSH MURDER CASE

Accused Man's Counsel Says Mrs Thaw's Story Will Open Eyes of World- Girls Were Weighted With Gold at Nocturnal Revels

New York, July 2.—Important developments in the Thaw murder case are expected this week. District Attorney Jerome has returned from a fishing trip to Cape Breton especially to direct the work of preparing the prosecution's case against Thaw and, acting under his orders, all the circumstances surrounding the killing of Stanford White will be gone into thoroughly.

Realizing that the attorneys for Thaw are plentifully supplied with funds to bring out all evidence favorable to the defense, the district attorney's office is working rapidly to get all reliable evidence bearing on the events of the several weeks before the shooting. As there are 18 murder cases ahead of Thaw's, the Thaw trial probably will not be reached before October.

"Mrs. Thaw will be the principal witness in her husband's defense. She will tell a thrilling and tremendous story. I can't make the details public now, but her testimony will open the eyes of New Yorkers and people all over the world."

Former Judge Olcott, counsel for Harry K. Thaw, made the above statement at his office. Olcott further declared that a prominent New Yorker, one of the companions of Stanford White, had already sailed for Europe, and that a man who had arranged all the supper parties for White had disappeared.

Seven subpoenas have been issued from the district attorney's office for men said to be high in mercantile, professional and banking life to give their versions of stories told in the last four days by several young women. Instances have been told of how $10 and $20 gold pieces were slipped down the necks of young women at several of these nocturnal revels, and it is said that one young woman, well known to the public, was at one time so weighted down with gold eagles she could scarcely walk.

Cropping up unexpectedly in the district attorney's investigation of the murder, these revelations are not only to have an important bearing on the trial of Thaw, but are to be the object of a second inquiry in John Doe proceedings.

Richard M. White, brother of Stanford White, has arrived in New York from his home in Seattle, and it is understood he will take an active part in assisting the prosecution of the case against Thaw. White is said to be a man of wealth. He said he had no statement to make in connection with the murder of his brother.

Beam in Americans' Eye

St. Petersburg, July 2.—The Novoe Vremya, discussing the resolution adopted by the United States congress relative to the Bialystok massacre, calls attention to American treatment of Jews, affirming that they are excluded from the service of the state and that they are as rare as Chinese in the universities. The article further alleges that the United States immigration restrictions based on diseases of the eye and scalp are designed with the intention to bar Hebrews from America.

Zionism a Political Movement

Rannersville, N. Y., July 2.—That the Zionist movement buoys up the Jewish people and saves them from the hopeless despair that would otherwise result from the frequency of massacres, was the declaration made by President Friedenwald in his message to the ninth annual convention of the Federation of American Zionists here. The convention adopted a declaration emphasizing the fact that Zionism is a political movement.

Anarchistic Conditions Prevail

Batoum, July 2.—The ferment of mutinous artillerists here continues. Many armed men are at large, though the period within which they were ordered to return to their barracks under extreme penalty expired yesterday. Business here is paralyzed in consequence of the strike in the shipping industry, which has lasted five weeks. Robbery and murder in the streets are of daily occurrence.

Numerous Deaths by Drowning

Frank Waldron, 9 years old, was drowned in Scott's pond, Lincoln, R. I. The boy was bathing and waded beyond his depth.

While walking along the breakwater in the Saco river at Biddeford, Me., Andrew Wilson, aged 21, slipped into the water and was drowned.

William Huntenford, aged 17, was drowned in the Charles river at Dedham, Mass., by the overturning of a canoe. Hunterford was unable to swim.

A canoe in which Howard Pinkham and Wilbur Perkins, each aged 17, were paddling on Flax pond, Lynn, Mass., upset and Pinkham was drowned. Perkins clung to the bottom of the canoe and was rescued. Neither boy could swim.

While playing on Wiley's wharf, Boston, Patrick F. Kelter, 12 years old, fell into the Mystic river and was drowned.

Died Beside Father's Corpse

New York, July 2.—John Linstrow of Brooklyn, a Hebrew, died, and in accordance with the rites of the Jews, the room in which his body lay was draped. The widow, her two sons and neighbors were sitting beside the casket when a gust of wind blew the draperies against a lighted chandelier. The cloth caught fire and all of the mourners except Frank Linstrow ran to the street. When the firemen arrived the room was all ablaze and young Linstrow was dead. His body and that of his father were recovered after the fire.

New Village on Vesuvius

Naples, July 2.—The Duke and Duchess of Aosta and the local officials ascended Mount Vesuvius yesterday to lay the cornerstone of the new village of Ottajano. The weather was unfavorable, there being a heavy rainstorm, with lightning and thunder, and the heat being oppressive. The cornerstone is composed of cement and cinders.

Hanged and Burned For Assault

Chickasaw, I. T., July 2.—A negro who committed a criminal assault on the 16-year-old daughter of Ira Robertson near Womack was captured and, after being taken to the scene of the crime, was hanged and burned. He confessed his guilt and offered no resistance to the mob.

Won't Keep Governor's Job

St. Petersburg, July 2.—Vice Admiral Doubassoff, whose wounds from the explosion of a bomb thrown at him May 6 have not healed, has gone abroad for three months. When he returns he will not resume his post of governor general of Moscow.

$25,000 Damage by Wind Storm

Trenton, July 2.—A terrific windstorm caused about $25,000 worth of damage to the buildings at the Interstate fair grounds. Some of the smaller buildings were lifted from the ground and carried 15 or 20 feet.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Manuel Garcia, professor of singing and inventor of the laryngoscope, died at London. He was born in 1805.

The statue to Major General Fitz John Porter, erected through the efforts of the Grand Army and presented to the city of Portsmouth, N. H., was dedicated in Haven park on the anniversary of the battle of Malvern hill, in which Porter distinguished himself.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson, Liberal member of parliament, died at London, aged 77. He had been ill for some time.

The 25th anniversary of the Mt. Herman boys' school at Northfield, Mass., was observed with special religious services.

English Train Carrying Americans Is Badly Wrecked

TWENTY-SEVEN KILLED

Man Who Occupied Compartment Given Up by Mayor of New York Among the Dead, as Is a Man on Wedding Trip

London, July 2.—The American line special from Plymouth, carrying 47 passengers who had debarked Saturday night from the steamer New York, from New York, was wrecked at Salisbury, 83 miles from London, at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Twenty-three passengers and four trainmen were killed and seven were injured.

The train had passed the Salisbury station platform at very high speed. At a sharp curve just outside the station the locomotive jumped the track, and, plowing up the rails, crashed into a west-bound freight train. The engine mounted the girders of the railway bridge over the River Avon and turned turtle.

There were three passenger coaches in the train. The first of these shot past the locomotive and crashed into the railway bridge and was smashed into splinters, portions of the wreck being hurled completely over the bridge. The second and third passenger cars were toppled over on the line and completely destroyed. The conductor's van, containing a cook's kitchen, was saved by the conductor, who promptly applied the brakes.

Rescue parties set at work instantly but to little purpose, and the injured were forced to remain buried in the debris a long time. As the bodies of the dead were extricated they were laid in rows on the station platform awaiting identification.

It was necessary to saw parts of the compartments of the railway coaches in order to release the survivors and to secure the bodies of the dead. In one compartment all of the passengers except two were killed, and the rescue of the survivors was exceedingly difficult.

By the merest chance Mayor McClellan of New York was not on the wrecked train. He had an appointment to keep in London yesterday, and, although the steamer was late in arriving at Plymouth, he decided to come direct to London instead of going to Cherbourg with Mrs. McClellan, who was booked through to Paris. His hand baggage had been transferred to the tender to land at Plymouth, and he was going on board the tender when an officer of the steamer whom Mrs. McClellan had been asking to urge her husband to accompany her to Cherbourg told the mayor he could still reach London in time to keep his appointment if he went on to Cherbourg and thence to Southampton. Just before the tender left the ship's side McClellan changed his mind, and the ship's steward threw his baggage back on board the New York as the tender was casting off her lines.

John E. McDonald, the New York horseman, best known as "Jack" McDonald, who is among the dead, was given the compartment on the special train which had been reserved for McClellan and so the mayor's escape was indeed the narrowest. McClellan will remain in London a week and then will join his family in Paris.

"I have been accustomed," said George A. Strachan of Boston, who, with his aunt, Mrs. J. H. Whiton, was on the wrecked special, "on the broad guage railroad lines of America to speedy traveling and know what is a good swinging pace; but it seemed to me as we sped along last night that the old country could go us one better after all. I cannot remember ever having been carried along at such a rate before. The oscillation and vibration were very noticeable. I remarked that it must be good rolling stock and a first rate permanent way that could stand the strain. Just then the smash came. Mrs. Whiton and I were jerked into a corner of the carriage, then the car went over, and we were penned in quite a long time. Through the window, which was above us, we saw the reflection of flame, and we feared the carriage was afire and that we were cornered, but as we waited relief came, and when we were extricated I saw the flames were being vomited from engines and that water was being thrown on the carriages as a precaution."

The death of Frederick H. Cossitt of New York was perhaps the most pathetic feature of the disaster. He and his bride, who is the daughter of former Judge Dugro of New York, were on their wedding tour, having been married on June 18, and, after visiting the principal points of interest in Europe, expected to return to New York in October. They traveled in company with friends, who on the arrival of the New York at Plymouth did their best to persuade the young couple not to leave the ship at such a late hour, but to proceed to Southampton. Cossitt, being a bad sailor, insisted on landing. Mrs. Cossailor, insisted on landing. Mrs. Cossitt escaped without injury.

Perhaps Due to Speed Competition

London, July 2.—The London morning newspaper editorially express deep sympathy with the relatives of the victims of the Salisbury railway disaster, especially deploring the fact that such a calamity should have overtaken visitors. The newspapers demand the strictest investigation into the causes of the accident and the reports that it was due to speed competition.

ACCEPT FIVE PERCENT

Spinners and Carders at New Bedford Satisfied With Raise

New Bedford, Mass., July 2.—The spinners and carders voted at meetings of their respective unions to accept the offer of the manufacturers of an increase of 5 percent in wages. By accepting the offer these unions abandon the demand presented a short time ago by the Textile union for a general advance of 10 percent.

The action of the spinners and carders leaves the weavers as the only body of workers not yet on record in relation to the wage question. The weavers have asked for the adoption of a standard list of prices for weaving instead of making any demand for a flat increase in wages.

After a long discussion over the report of the conference between the delegates of the Weavers' union and the manufacturers, the union adjourned until tomorrow evening without taking any action on their demand for a standard list to control weaving prices. There was considerable sentiment expressed at the meeting in favor of a strike.

Fourth of July Restrictions

Boston, July 2.—Police Commissioner O'Meara has issued instructions to the members of the Boston police force to enforce rigidly the laws governing the celebration of the Fourth of July. He calls attention to the fact that it is a violation of the law to use fireworks of any kind in private yards or similar enclosures or to throw them from windows. Fireworks can be used only in the public streets, grounds and squares of the city between 4 a. m. and midnight on July 4. In previous years the setting off of fireworks on private grounds has not been interfered with.

Senator to Face Grand Jury

Boston, July 2.—United States Senator Lodge has been served with a subpoena commanding his presence before the Suffolk county grand jury in Boston tomorrow. It is believed that the summoning of Lodge is the outcome of the trial and conviction of Robert Proctor, the senator's private secretary, on the charge of embezzling $225. It is further believed that Lodge's testimony is desired to throw some light upon the method of collecting and recording campaign contributions by the Massachusetts Republican state committee.

Tyro's Wonderful Performance

Marblehead, Mass., July 2.—Notwithstanding existing weather conditions which were bad enough to cause hardened mariners to moor their crafts at safe anchorage in sheltered harbors, the Corinthian Yacht club's third ocean yacht race from Marblehead to Isles of Shoals and return, 75 miles, was started and successfully sailed, the Tyro winning the honors. The Tyro made a record for the course, beating the time of Sally VII, last year's record maker, by 2:27:58.

Lumbermen Awed by Burglars

Oldtown, Me., July 2.—The office of Charles M. White, who sorts and rafts all the logs for the Penobscot Lumber company, at Argyle, was entered by four burglars, the safe blown open and robbed of about $900 in money. In addition several watches and a quantity of jewelry were carried away. The explosion awakened the few men who were in Argyle, but the burglars easily cowed them with revolvers and made their escape in a team.

Accidentally Shot and Killed

Springfield, Mass., July 2.—Elder Brunelle, 13 years old, was accidentally shot and killed last evening by Charles F. Barcome, 17 years old, who was trying a new revolver. The shooting took place at Indian Orchard, a suburb of Springfield, near the Brunelle boy's home. Barcome thought he had only blank cartridges. Barcome is in a hysterical condition as a result of the accident.

Failure of Shoe Company

Brockton, Mass., July 2.—The White-Dunham Shoe company, boot and shoe manufacturers of this city, with salesrooms at Boston, has made an assignment. The liabilities are estimated at about $400,000 and the assets slightly over $300,000. The failure is attributed to unreliable bookkeeping and to small profit on sales.

Three Bullets In Youth's Body

Worcester, Mass., July 2.—Joseph Sieron, aged 18, was taken to a hospital last night in a critical condition with three bullets in his body. He was shot by Stanislaus Wrubel at Gilbertville. Sieron's lower limbs are paralyzed. Wrubel has been arrested. He claims that Sieron struck his (Wrubel's) younger brother.

Nothing to Say About Betting

Salem, N. H., July 2.—The management of the Salem race track announces that a decision has been reached to continue racing at the track until the end of the scheduled season. No statement is made as to the betting privileges in connection with the announcement that the track program will be carried out.

President Woolley's Father Dead

Holyoke, Mass., July 2.—Rev. Joseph J. Woolley, who came here two weeks ago to visit his daughter, President Mary E. Woolley of Mt. Holyoke college, died Sunday after an operation for appendicitis, which was performed last Thursday. He was 73 years old and a resident of Pawtucket, R. I.

Westerners Get Big Contract

Providence, July 2.—A contract for the construction of a tunnel, at an estimated expense of $2,000,000, through College hill to the east side of the city for the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, has been awarded to McCabe & Biehler of Tacoma, Wash.

the best results can be obtained only when the paint is Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil mixed with the requirements of the particular job in view.

Be wary of the man who suggests the use of paint already prepared. He cannot know the ingredients of such mixtures.

First-class painting can only be had by the use of paint which contains nothing but Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil, colored to the desired shade. Specify mixed with Pure Linseed Oil, and see that your painter uses it. It spreads easily and uniformly, forming an elastic coat that immediately becomes a part of the wood itself. It will not crack or peel as do adulterated paints. This means attractive appearance and perfect protection through all the long years of its life.

When it does wear, it wears away uniformly, and when the painter is called upon again, he finds the surface all ready for him without recourse to scraping and "burning off." Remember the name, Salem Pure White Lead.

Send for a booklet containing several handsome reproductions of actual houses, offering valuable suggestions for a color scheme in painting your house. A test for paint purity is also given.

Roosevelt Lauds the Work of Congress Just Closed

CANNON PAYS A TRIBUTE

Says the Verdict of History Will Be That It Was the Best Session In Thirty Years--No Frantic Rush In Closing Hours

Washington, July 2.—President Roosevelt, on the adjournment of congress, dictated a statement concerning the work accomplished during the session just concluded.

He says that the present congress has done more substantive work along the lines of "real, constructive statesmanship" than has been accomplished at any session of congress with which he is familiar. He says that men of genuine patriotism have a right to feel "a profound satisfaction in the entire course of this congress."

For the first time in the history of the government congress adjourned on the day which closed the fiscal year. The formal end finally came in both houses at 10 p. m., when there was less than a quorum in either house, as many senators and representatives, relying on the belief that adjournment would come early in the day, made their arrangements to leave in the afternoon and did not remain for the closing scenes.

Speaker Cannon rigidly carried out his intention of keeping back the adjournment resolution until the bills were all passed and signed, and the hour for the end was not known until a short time before the gavels fell with the announcement by Vice President Fairbanks in the senate and the speaker in the house that the first session of the 59th congress stood adjourned without day.

Both senate and house met early, but a long recess was necessary in the afternoon to enable the enrolling clerks to catch up the bills that had been passed.

The closing scenes in the senate were formal and without interest. In the house there were the usual hilarious performances, consisting of amusing speeches and songs.

No business of importance aside from completing the pending legislation was transacted in either house during the day. In closing the session in the house Speaker Cannon said:

"I desire to return my thanks to each and all of the membership of the house for the uniform courtesy extended to myself as speaker.

"It is proper for me to say that in 30 years' service in the house of representatives its membership has never been more able, more industrious or more devoted to the performance of its duties for the best interests of the country, than during the session about to close. The differences at times have been sharp and decisive, but I take pleasure in saying that at all times in our deliberations courtesy has abounded, and that our differences have been sincere from the individual and from the party standpoint.

"No session of congress has, in my judgment, for 30 years accomplished so much that is valuable in legislation for the best interests of all the people as has been enacted during the present session. I believe that this will be the verdict of history.

"I trust that during the vacation you may remain in health and return to your duties in December next with renewed strength."

The gavel came down with a whack, and amid cheers and the waving of tiny flags, the first session of the 59th congress was at an end.

Some notable works of the 59th congress are:

Passed railroad rate bill; provided for extension of government inspection of meat products; passed denatured alcohol bill; passed pure food bill; decided on lock type for Panama canal; put consular service on merit basis; defined immunity of witnesses before government tribunals; passed naturalization bill; passed bill to save Niagara Falls; passed employers' liability bill; added Oklahoma and Indian Territory to list of states; total appropriations, $880,183,301; voted $25,000,000 in public building bill, including $900,000 for new appraisers' stores in Boston.

Compliment to Beveridge

Washington, July 2.—President Roosevelt has sent the following letter to Senator Beveridge of Indiana: "I send you herewith the pen with which I signed the agricultural bill, containing the meat inspection clauses. You were the man who first called my attention to the abuses in the packing houses. You were the legislator who drafted the bill which in its substance now appears in the amendment to the agricultural bill and which will enable us to put a complete stop to the wrongdoing complained of. The pen is worth nothing in itself, but I am glad to send it to you as the expression of my acknowledgment of your services.

Effort to Locate Big Error

Washington, July 2.—Public Printer Stillings has directed an investigation of the public printing office to ascertain the cause of the delay in returning the omnibus public building bill to the senate and whether the public printing office could be held responsible for the retention in the sundry civil bill of the item appropriating $3,000,000 for the purchase of land in Washington for executive buildings after both houses had voted not to include it.

FIRE AND BRIMSTONE

Prediction That It Will Soon Descend Upon Wicked Boston

Boston, July 2.—"Boston is the worst city in the world," said Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon yesterday at the Ruggles Street Baptist church. "In the midst of the wickedness of the people here, Christ will in person descend soon and destroy them. Then will come the millennium. Everybody will be happy. Christ will reign for 1000 years unhampered.

"Fire and brimstone will come some day upon Boston, the Scriptures say. San Francisco has felt the hand of God's wrath. It is Boston's turn soon.

"The recent murder in New York city has shown that Sodom and Gomorrah could take lessons in wickedness. New York's destruction is due soon. The irreligious must suffer. They have scoffed at God; their punishment is at hand."

Famous Yacht-Racing Skipper Dead

Islip, L. I., July 2.—Captain Hank Haff, the veteran yacht master, died at his home here. He suffered from a complication of diseases and had been failing ever since the death of his wife, about a year ago. Haff was one of the most famous yacht handlers in this country. He sailed the Volunteer and Defender in the international races for the America's cup and was master of the Vigilant when she went to the other side. He was also captain of the Independence and handled many other yachts. Captain Haff was in his 69th year.

Sample of Russian "Loyalty"

St. Petersburg, July 2.—The depositions of various officers and sailors of the torpedo boat destroyer Bedovy, forming the documents in the court martial of Admiral Rojestvensky and other naval officials, who surrendered to the Japanese in the battle of the Sea of Japan, indicates that the admiral's party boarded the Bedovy with the full intention of surrendering to the first Japanese ship they should encounter. Rojestvensky enters a manly plea of guilty because he took no measures to prevent the surrender.

Confesses to Killing Sister

Nebraska City, Neb., July 2.—Miss Lucy Lloyd, aged 34, confessed that she choked her sister, Della, aged 37, to death last night at their home on a farm. Della was losing her mind and, brooding over this and the separation that would result, Lucy stepped up behind her sister as they were preparing for bed and choked her to death and remained beside the corpse all night. The two women lived alone.

Sunday Lid Down Tight

Kansas City, July 2.—For the first time all saloons in this city and Kansas City, Kan., were closed yesterday. Since the Sunday closing law has been in effect on the Missouri side thousands of persons have gone to the Kansas side for liquor, but yesterday interstate drinking was impossible. Assistant Attorney General Trickett of Kansas had padlocks placed on the doors of all saloons.

Polar Party at Spitzbergen

Tromsoe, Norway, July 2.—The Wellman-Chicago Record-Herald Arctic steamer Frithjof arrived here yesterday from Spitzbergen, where she left Major Hersey and 18 others, comprising the first section of the expedition. The supplies were safely landed at Danes island. An immediate start will be made with the erection of the airship shed. Wellman will start for Spitzbergen July 4.

Spain to Seek Foreign Trade

Madrid, July 2.—Senor Caballero, the new foreign minister, has decided upon an active foreign policy in order to establish Spain's position among the powers. Commercial treaties with European nations, the minister says, are undergoing rearrangement, and several important diplomatic changes probably will be made soon.

Panama Has Quiet Election

Colon, July 2.—The election for deputies passed off very quietly at Colon. The government won by a majority of 200 votes.

Panama, July 2.—The elections here passed off quietly. The compromise ticket was elected. The exact results in the provinces will not be known for two or three days.

Roosevelt In Summer Quarters

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 2.—President Roosevelt is at Sagamore Hill for the summer. The executive offices over Moore's grocery and provision store have been fitted up for work and the necessary executive business begun there today.

Plea For Cheaper Postage

HOW PROFESSOR HAMOND MET HIS WIFE

[Original.]

It was lecture day at the Woman's club. A gentleman—gentlemen were invited for the lecture—sat in the reading room by a table passing the time glancing over periodicals. Two ladies entered and seated themselves in easy chairs by a window. The one was fat, gray haired and self contained, the other angular and with sharp eyes.

"Who is this Professor Hamond, Lucy, who is to lecture today?" asked the elder.

"All I can tell you is that he is a Ph. D. of some German university; that he studied for the ministry, but prefers to lecture."

"Have you heard him?"

"No, but Clara Stewart has. She says the lecture he is to give today on 'The Family' is very touching."

"Humph! If what I hear is correct he'd better lecture to himself on that subject."

A lady of refined appearance strolled into the room in time to hear the remark. Going to a newspaper rack, she took down a file of papers and proceeded to look for some item. The ladies at the window glanced at her and lowered their tones, but, becoming interested in what they were saying, soon forgot both her and the gentleman at the table.

"What have you heard?"

The elderly lady leaned forward and whispered something in her companion's ear.

"You don't mean it, Mrs. Gunby!"

"Fact."

"What does the lecture committee mean by inviting such a man to speak to this club?"

"His wife's almost broken hearted about it."

"And think of the poor children!"

"I'll cut the lecture."

"I wouldn't miss it for anything. I like to see those human vampires and hear them talk, knowing how corrupt they are."

The lady looking through the newspapers stepped toward the conversationalists.

"I beg your pardon, ladies," she said, "but if you are discussing Professor Hamond, who is to lecture to us today, you do him a great wrong."

"Do you know him?" asked Mrs. Gunby, drawing down the corners of her mouth ominously.

"Only through a course of lectures he has published. The man who wrote them must be pure at heart."

"We are perfectly willing," said Mrs. Gunby, "that you should have your opinion, and we propose to have ours."

She punched the floor with her parasol handle with such vehemence that the gentleman at the table looked up.

"Pardon me, ladies," he said. "Not being a member of your club, I perceive it is proper that I should retire while you are engaged in personal remarks, but before going I would like to say that I am personally acquainted with Professor Hamond, and so far from neglecting his family he has no family. He is a bachelor."

Mrs. Gunby and her companion arose from their seats and, with very red faces, stalked out of the room, leaving the gentleman and the other lady together.

"Permit me to thank you," he said, "for defending one of my sex who, whatever his shortcomings, has no blame for maltreating an imaginary family. Is such criticism allowable in your clubhouse?"

"Certainly not. I shall report it. Will you give me your name that I may refer to you in the matter?"

"I beg that in this instance you will not do so. It would be very unpleasant for me."

"I see. Such gossip is beneath your interference, and you are wise not to permit yourself to be mixed up in it. We haven't another such woman as Mrs. Gunby in the club. How she got in I can't imagine."

"Why, professor," exclaimed the president of the club, hurrying in, "I didn't know you had arrived. Let us go to the auditorium."

"First, I must beg an introduction to this lady whom I have met casually."

"Certainly. Miss Lee, Professor Hamond. Miss Lee is one of our board of governors."

Miss Lee stood looking at Professor Hamond in astonishment, a slight blush rising to her cheeks—a blush she did not need to make her beautiful.

There was a clapping of hands as the president escorted the lecturer to the rostrum. A fat woman in one of the front rows made a commotion in trying to get out from an interior seat and waddled through the aisle toward the door.

"What's the matter with Mrs. Gunby?" asked one of the ladies in the audience of another. "Her face is red as a turkey cock."

At this point the lecturer began his address, charming his hearers with the beauty of his ideas, the tact that guided their expression and the heart there was within them. The defense of Professor Hamond by one who judged him simply by his written words comprised the closing sentence of the lecture. Quoting an eminent man, he said, "One who can give forth such sentiments must be pure at heart."

This acknowledgment of the lecturer's appreciation, intended for but one of his audience, was lost, as such, upon the rest. Miss Lee at the moment put her handkerchief to her face, but no one noticed.

Two years later the members of the Woman's club received cards to the wedding of Professor Hamond and Miss Lee. Mrs. Gunby was not taken to task for her ill timed gossip, but she found it more pleasant to resign from the club. CORA ASHWORTH.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Sidelinger and son Karl arrived home on Saturday from a two weeks' sojourn at Nobleboro, Maine.

G. S. Grueby with his young bride has taken up his abode in Atlantic, at the foot of Webster street, next to the boulevard.

Mrs. Charles Cherrington of Clive street has planned a picnic supper for the Bridge club on July 4th. A jolly time is anticipated.

Miss Beatrice Tisdale of Hancock street leaves today to join her mother at Somersworth, N. H., where they will rusticate for the summer.

Mrs. Richard Newcomb and little grandson Richard of Newcomb street has been the guest of her daughter Florence at North Adams the past week.

Miss Julia E. Underwood has gone to West Lynn where she will be the guest of her sister and family for two months.

Mrs. E. E. Field returned to her home on Grant street last week, after a three weeks visit quietly spent with her daughter, Louise, at Peaks Island, Maine.

D. Vinton Pierce, wife and five children of Wilton, N. H., who have been the guest of relatives in this city the past few days, return to their home today.

Miss Ella Farrer, after spending the month of June at her cottage at Houghs Neck, returned to her home in Brockton on Saturday, having rented her cottage for the month of July.

Miss Mabel Newcomb of Newport avenue, after seven years' faithful service, has severed her connections with the Mellen Bray Co. of Wollaston, and will take a few weeks' rest, before entering upon new duties.

Miss Laura Coles of Faxon road gave a linen shower on Saturday from 3 to 6, in compliment of her sister Miss Grace. There were twelve friends present, all of whom contributed toward the "matrimonial trunk" of the guest of honor. Refreshments were served during the afternoon followed by ices.

Friends of Mrs. George F. Choate Jr., of East Milton will be pained to hear of her death on Sunday. She was Miss Mabelle Marion MacLeod of Wollaston, was graduated from the Woodward Institute in the class of 1904, and later attended the Quincy Mansion school. On the 28th of June last year she was a happy bride. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Ex-Councilman Charles H. Hardwick and his aunt, Mrs. William E. Alden of Chestnut street, accompanied the Appalachian club on its week's trip to New Hampshire, including Mt. Willard, Mt. Webster, Mt. Jackson, Mt. Clinton, Mt. Washington, Mt. Avalon, Mt. Field, Mt. Willey, Mt. Carrigan, the Twin Mountains, Crawford Notch and Jefferson. They will remain on Mt. Washington the night before the Fourth.

TROPHIES OF JAP WAR

Spoils Captured From Russians Shown In a Tokyo Park.

FIELD GUNS BY THE HUNDREDS

Greatest Collection of the Kind In the World, Says E. W. Clement—Rifles and Swords by the Thousands. List of Curious Articles Captured on Many Battlefields.

Tokyo now has the largest collection of war trophies to be found in the world, says E. W. Clement, the special correspondent of the Chicago News at Tokyo. Not even that in the square of the kremlin at Moscow, dating from the invasion of Russia by Napoleon, can compare with it either in size or interest. The place where the spoils captured in the war with Russia are kept is a large park just below the imperial palace and outside the Nijubashi and Sakashita gate. The ground has been turned into a gigantic field of trophies, consisting of guns of large and small caliber, rifles by the thousands, shot cases, ammunition trains and various other kinds of military supplies. The sight as one enters by the new Hibiya boulevard is thus described in one of the local papers by a Japanese writer:

"Within the stone faced embankment of the moat the sight is at once warlike. On the right is a park of eighty-five three-inch quick firing field guns, with 8,000 stands of rifles at the rear. On the left is another row of twenty-four cannon of seventeen centimeter caliber, with shoals of rifle chests for the background. Then come fifty-seven eighteen-centimeter heavy field guns on the right and seventy-seven forty-seven-millimeter guns. So on down the broad way and through the crossways and all round the borders of the extensive plots of ground it is all a grand concourse of death dealing weapons interspersed by intelligence wagons, telegraphic apparatus and even a captured balloon. The place of honor is given to the seven stands of twenty-three centimeter cannon mounted in a row just outside the Nijubashi, and across the road in front of them lie in awful silence thirteen monsters—eleven fifteen-centimeter, one twelve-centimeter and one twenty-four centimeter cannon—while behind the seven cannon first mentioned is a veritable bazaar of swords and lances.

"To sum up, one may see distributed and carefully arranged over seven sections of the open space and a side stand 85 lances, 70,000 small arms, 281 field guns captured in the field engagements commencing with the battle of Yalu and ending with that of Mukden, 8 fortress guns found at the batteries of Port Arthur, 30 fifteen-centimeter cannon and mortars secured also in the different fortresses of Port Arthur, 140 guns below twelve centimeter caliber, including 11 machine guns, found principally in the landward fortresses at Port Arthur; 41 Maxims, 1,538 ammunition wagons, 624 wagons of other descriptions, 11,612 gun cartridges and a balloon captured at Port Arthur. Of course these are not all the trophies of war secured during the late campaign, as the great guns and other exhibits at Kudan and other places show. But partial as they are it may not be too much to say that such a display of captured arms in one place as a souvenir of one war will not be easily found elsewhere in the world, and we believe it is a sight worth seeing for anybody."

It is now possible to give accurate statistics of the spoils of war that fell into the hands of the Japanese in the war with Russia. As will be seen, not all the material is exhibited in the park in Tokyo. The figures are as follows:

Swords	6,292
Lances	163
Rifles	110,548
Rifle ammunition, rounds	24,713,766
Field pieces	369
Garrison artillery—
Twenty-three centimeter	50
Fifteen centimeter	94
Twelve centimeter, etc.	308
Machine guns	79
Wagons and carts	4,800
Heavy gun ammunition, rounds	17,987
Light gun ammunition, rounds	242,618
Balloons	2
Typewriters	4
Bugles	432
Drums	71
Pistols	398
Fuses of sorts	7,119,666
Telephones	51
Portable telephones	3

In addition to the above there are great quantities of intrenching tools, pouches, signal rockets, copper and iron wire and numerous other articles.

Sea Water Cure.

Two eminent French experimenters, says Grand Magazine, assure us that sea water will cure or at least alleviate many cases of lunacy. The explanation is: "Man, like all other animals, descends from a marine ancestor. To place the human organism modified by disease in its original surroundings should therefore prove advantageous to it." Starting from these premises, the French doctors have given subcutaneous injections of sea water to a number of insane persons with, they declare, the most beneficial results. A great number of other diseases—consumption, diabetes and stomach disorders—have also been treated successfully by internal doses of sea water not only in France, but also in Sweden. Bread has even been made with sea water and is strongly recommended by those who have benefited by it—not for its flavor, but for its effects.

Artificial Ice For Paris.

The Paris police have ordered that cafe keepers must use only artificial ice in the future, says the New York Times, some natural ice used in the cafes having been found to be contaminated with sewage.

THE FIRST BALLOON.

Result of the Experiments of the Montgolfier Brothers.

Proceeding on the principle that heated air expands and so becomes lighter, bulk for bulk, than air at the ordinary temperature, the brothers Stephen and Joseph Montgolfier filled a paper bag with heated air, which rose to the ceiling of the room. This preliminary success was rapidly followed up, and they gradually increased the size of the balloons experimented with until they were so satisfied with their progress that in 1783 they gave a public exhibition, sending up a linen balloon 105 feet in circumference, which was inflated over a fire supplied with small bundles of chopped straw. The balloon succeeded beyond their utmost expectation, and after rising to a height of over 6,000 feet it descended ten minutes after in a field a mile and a half away. The next balloon carried a car, in which were a sheep, a cock and a duck.

The success of this further experiment induced M. Pilatre de Rozier and the Marquis d'Arlandes to risk their lives by making the first ascent in the new and wonderful machine. Their balloon, which was forty-five feet in diameter and seventy-five feet high and was inflated with hot air, passed over Paris to the great astonishment of the people, attaining an altitude of half a mile. Ballast was then for the first time employed in regulating the ascending power of the balloon. The first venture was followed by others, and De Rozier, the first to ascend, was also the first to meet his death in this manner, having been killed, with a companion, by the burning of his balloon near Boulogne.

BACKBONE.

The Self Reliant Man Is the One Who Is In Demand.

Haven't you depended upon clothes, upon appearances, upon introductions, upon recommendations about long enough? Haven't you leaned about long enough on other things? Isn't it about time for you to call a halt, to tear off all masks, to discard everything you have been leaning on outside of yourself, and depend upon your own worth?

Haven't you been in doubt about yourself long enough? Haven't you had enough unfortunate experiences depending upon superficial, artificial, outside things to drive you home to the real power in yourself? Aren't you tired of leaning and borrowing and depending upon this thing and that thing which have failed you?

The man who learns to seek power within himself, who learns to rely upon himself, is never disappointed, but he always will be disappointed when he depends upon any outside help. There is one person in the world that will never fail you if you depend upon him and are honest with him, and that is yourself. It is the self reliant man that is in demand everywhere.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

Tobacco Smoke.

The composition of tobacco smoke is complex. Analysis gives nicotine, pyridic bases, formic aldehyde, ammonia, methylamin, pyrrol, sulphuretted hydrogen, prussic acid, butyric acid, carbonic acid, oxide of carbon, the steam of water, an etherized empyreumatic oil, and tarry or resinous products, among which we detect small quantities of phenol. Of all the products of tobacco the most venomous are nicotine, pyridic and methylamin bases, prussic acid, sulphuretted hydrogen, oxide of carbon and empyreumatic oil, and all that we draw into our lungs with more or less satisfaction.—Harper's Weekly.

Under the Rose.

The expression "under the rose," or sub rosa, to indicate secrecy, originates in the Greek mythological story that Cupid gave Harpocrates, the god of silence, a golden rose, desiring him at the same time not to betray the amour of Venus. According to another account, the traitors against the Greek states during the invasion of Xerxes held their meetings in an Athenian arbor formed of rose bushes. At Greek and Roman banquets the guests were always crowned with roses, and a cluster of these hung above the banqueting table was a sign that what was said in that place should not be repeated elsewhere.

Decline of the Bath.

One strange feature in the advance of civilization has been the decline of the bath. Washing in the golden age of Greece and Rome was a fine art, and baths were built with as much care as temples. There has been a revival in this century of public baths, but from an aesthetic point of view they cannot compare with those of a barbarous age. This is not an age of washers.—London Lady.

Should Have Said Shoes.

"Miss Backbay,' said Mr. O'Bull, who had been strolling along the country road with the lady from Boston, "I suppose your feet are very dusty. Permit me"—

"Sir!" cried the precise young woman witheringly. "How dare you!"—Philadelphia Press.

Unreasonable Freddy.

Tommy—Ma, Freddy's crying 'cause I'm eating my cake and won't give him any. Mother—Is his own cake finished? Tommy—Yes, ma; and he cried when I was eating that too.

Fourth of July Fire Protection

Chief Engineer Litchfield has arranged his fire fighting force for tonight so that all parts of the city will be covered at all times.

The Central station apparatus will not respond on first alarms from boxes outside of 41 and 123. It will go to Wollaston and Atlantic on general alarms only.

Steamer No. 2 will be located at Houghs Neck.

The Central station apparatus will go to West Quincy on second alarms.

Wollaston will go to Atlantic on second alarms and Atlantic will go to Wollaston on second alarms.

The central station steamer will not leave the station except on a general alarm.

The idea is so that the apparatus in each section of the city shall look after the fires in its own seclion or ward and it will not go out of the ward except in case of a large fire.

Holiday Games.

The Copelands will play two games on the West Quincy grounds on the Fourth. The morning game will be at 9.30 with the Quincys. The afternoon game will be at 3 o'clock with the South Quincys.

Important Business Before City Council

$61,000 Voted

For a New Schoolhouse To Be Located At Atlantic

An important meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. The meeting was a lengthy one and before adjournment was reached a great deal of the business before the Council had been cleared up. One of the important matters disposed of was the passage of an order appropriating $61,000 for a twelve-room school building at Atlantic.

There was a spirited debate over the granting of permits to transport liquor. There was also considerable new business presented, including order granting approval for operating a trolley freight.

Councilman Cannon and Hull were absent.

A TRANSFER.

A communication was received from the Mayor with inclosure from the Chief Engineer asking for a transfer of $800 from the appropriation for hose to the appropriation for miscellaneous fire department. Laid on the table until later.

SPECIAL POLICE.

The Mayor forwarded the appointment of a number of special police for duty on the Fourth. Confirmed. The men appointed were:

William H. Murray, Daniel [illegible] ald, George A. Newhall, Walter B. Burrell, John Robertson, John Avery, Charles F. Veazie, Daniel J. [illegible]

Trolley Freight

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Harbor and Land Commission giving notice of a hearing on the petition to build a wharf at Adams shore. Referred to Committee on Legislative matters.

A communication was received from the executors of the will of George W. Taylor asking for assessment of damages to estate by reason of raising of Arlington and Brook streets. Referred to Finance Committee.

MORE SEWERS.

A communication was received from the Board of Health setting forth the necessity of building sewers on Union street, Beacon street and Roselin avenue, Kidder street, lower end of Beach street, Arnold street, Glencoe place, Adams street between Alleyne and Bridge streets. Referred to Committee on Sewers.

A communication was received from the Board of Health relative to amending the Sewer ordinance so as to make connections compulsory. Laid on the table until later.

Must Enter

New Ordinance Requiring All To Connect With Sewer

BROADWAY.

At 7.45 a public hearing was held on the acceptance of Broadway.

J. W. Pratt appeared in favor and spoke at length.

Councilman Donovan moved and it was voted that all in the audience in favor be requested to stand.

About fifty stood up when requested.

The hearing then closed and the order was recommitted.

PETITIONS.

Councilman McGilvray presented a petition for an appropriation of $350 to grade Hall place. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Stone presented a petition for a night patrolmen in the Elm street district. Referred to Committee on Police.

Councilman Gilson presented a petition of George H. Brown for a sewer on Spear street.

Several petitions were received for minor licenses.

Those for fireworks licenses and that of the Quincy Yacht club to keep and sell gasoline were laid on the table until later when they were granted.

EXPRESS LICENSES.

Petitions were received from the following parties for permits to transport intoxicating liquor, which were referred to the joint Committee on Licenses and the Special Committee: E. Fisher, C. P. Gardiner & Co., S. F. Barker, Scribner & Campbell, George E. Fogg.

CONDUITS.

The New England Telephone Co. petitioned to enlarge underground conduit on Hancock street from Neponset bridge to Squantum street, to lay underground conduits on School and Franklin streets, and for a location for poles on Willard and Hamilton streets. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A public hearing was held at 8 o'clock on the acceptance of Stewart street. No one appeared for or against, and the hearing closed. The order was recommitted.

At 8.10 a public hearing was held on the acceptance of Smith street.

Ex-Councilmen Peter T. Fallon and R. J. Teasdale spoke at length in favor of the petition.

No one appeared against and the hearing closed. The order was recommitted.

A public hearing was held at 8.20 on the petition to accept Charles street. E. C. Davis and Mr. French appeared in favor.

No one appeared against and the hearing closed. The order was recommitted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order granting a number of minor licenses. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the petitions of Gusseppe Nobiletti, and William H. Keefe for permit to transport liquors into Quincy. Accepted.

The Committee on Ordinance reported correctly engrossed on the following orders which were passed to be ordained:

Appropriating $2,500 for plumbing the Massachusetts Fields school and connecting with the sewer.

Appropriating $225 for paved gutters on Grand View avenue.

Appropriating $300 for a bulkhead and sink at the Gridley Bryant school.

Appropriating $275 for automatic whistle at Quincy Point.

The Committee on Fire Department and Police reported ought not to pass on the order for a police signal box at the corner of Squantum and Atlantic streets.

The Committee on Fire Department reported a substitute order for $1,000 for fire alarm boxes on Manet avenue, Rock Island, Sea street and Bay View avenue, Great Hill, and corner Hancock street and Billings road. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the New England Telephone company permission to attach its wires to poles of other companies. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the Q. E. L. & P. Co. a location for poles on Bigelow street. Ordered to a second reading.

The Committee on Finance reported a substitute order for the order appropriating $63,400 for a school building at Atlantic, making the amount $61,000 Rules suspended and order passed to be ordained.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the order authorizing the expenditure of the street railway excise tax. Rules suspended and order passed to be ordained.

TROLLEY FREIGHT.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the Street Railway company approval to operate a trolley freight on all routes except between Braintree and Neponset.

Councilman Nichol said there was a great deal of detail in this matter that he desired to study. He moved that the order be laid on the table and the clerk transmit a copy of the order to all councilmen. Voted.

The Committee on Streets also reported an order granting the street railway approval of operating a trolley freight from the Braintree line to Neponset.

Councilman Nichols moved the order be laid on the table and the clerk transmit a copy of the order to all Councilmen.

Councilman Chase—The subject matter in this order is the same as the first order, excepting the street. He moved

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The act to establish the Boston, Brockton and New York canal, provides that it shall be built without $1 of expense to the state of Massachusetts. So far so good.

If the Texans can make it convenient to happen along some time next month, to visit the stockyards, Chicago will try to give them the kind of weather that they "have always used."

The valuation of Newport, R. I., is over $8,000,000 less this year than last year. Should the assessed valuation of Quincy take a drop some year, the tax rate would soar.

When we read that five men were injured at the launching of the battleship New Hampshire at Camden, we are again reminded that the Fore River launchings have been very free from accidents.

Ward Six is to be congratulated upon the appropriation of $61,000 by the City Council for a new schoolhouse, but before the Mayor affixes his signature he should be satisfied that there is leeway within the debt limit to make the appropriation. Our enlarged High schoolhouse will be useless in September unless an appropriation is made for furnishings, and there are large assessments for the Fore River bridge and the Hancock street railroad bridge which are weekly expected. There must also be a safe margin within the debt limit for emergencies, like the $80,000 needed a few years ago because of unpaid taxes.

The proposed amendment to the Sewer ordinance, requiring all estates abutting a sewer to enter within one year, will do more to increase the water receipts of the city than the recent action of the City Council in favor of water meters. At the same time it will cause owners of houses a big expense, which to many will be a burden. The health and appearance of the city will undoubtedly be improved, but is not one year too limited a time? The year a sewer is constructed in a street there is an assessment upon the land, and the added expense of making connection is almost too much, especially upon old estates which net but a small income.

Many estates now have but one water faucet, at an expense of $6 per year, but when connected with the sewer their water bills will jump to $11, $15 or $18, and extra if a sill cock is added. Yet many wonder why rents advance, and there is so little building.

Local Brevities About the City

George Richardson of Botolph street is the owner of a new De Dion-Bonton touring car.

The assets of the Quincy Savings bank are now in excess of $4,000,000. The deposits amount to $3,806,518.46.

Frank Boyd of Centre street, left Monday for Ontario, Canada. He will spend the summer in Camp Keewaydin, Lake Temagami.

The Wollaston Unitarian church closed Sunday for the summer months. Rev. Ernest W. Hunt and family go shortly to Littleton, N. H., for the summer.

Miss Giles, principal of Speiman Seminary, Atlantic, Ga., and Miss Upton Dean of the same institution, are spending their vacation with the Misses Palmer, Grand View avenue, Wollaston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Glidden of Hartford, Connecticut, formerly of Quincy, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, born Thursday, June 21.

THAW CASE WAITS

Trial Will Not Be Advanced on the Court Calendar

SLAYER'S VALET IS DEAD

Had Made Statement to District Attorney's Office That Employer Was Not Addicted to Drug Using--Detectives Examined

New York, July 3.—That there is no prospect of a speedy trial for Harry K. Thaw was announced by District Attorney Jerome, who returned to town for two days to devote his personal attention to the case. Owing to the fact that during the summer there are only two parts of the court of general sessions in session, and that the trial would probably last two or three weeks, Jerome decided that it would be unfair to other prisoners who are awaiting trial to advance the Thaw case on the calendar. For this reason it is hardly probable that Thaw will be arraigned before October.

The death yesterday of Thaw's valet, William Bedford, in the Presbyterian hospital, from complications following an operation for appendicitis, removed an important witness from the case. Assistant District Attorney Garvan gave out the substance of the last statement made to him by Bedford.

From Bedford Garvan said he learned that Thaw was not addicted to any drug. Bedford declared that he had not acted as the "go-between" for White, to get notes to Mrs. Thaw. He had seen no notes passed, he alleged. The Thaws, he said, never quarreled. As to the revolver, the valet supplemented his previous statement that Thaw had carried a revolver for three or four months by stating that Thaw had carried a weapon for about two years. In connection with the European trip of Thaw and Miss Nesbit, he said he had accompanied Thaw and that Thaw and Miss Nesbit had occupied adjoining, connecting rooms. The only marriage he had heard of, he said, was that one that had taken place at Pittsburg. White, he said, never called upon Mrs. Thaw to his knowledge.

Mr. Garvan examined yesterday P. L. Bergoff, a private detective, who says that for many months he was employed with three assistants by White to guard him and to keep watch on a corps of detectives employed by Thaw. Three detectives employed by Thaw to watch White for about six months were also examined. They were J. W. Rorke, William McDonald and Harry Raleight. According to Garvan, they had been instructed by Thaw to follow White to a steamship pier and to engage men to pick quarrels with him at the pier in order to annoy the architect.

Former Judge Olcott, of counsel for Thaw, spent nearly all yesterday afternoon in the prison in consultation with his client. Much of the time was spent in going over letters which have been received by Thaw since his imprisonment. His mail is increasing in size daily and many of the writers declare themselves ready to disclose certain information concerning Thaw's victim which they think may be of use to the defense.

Icemen's Attorneys In Contempt

Toledo, July 3.—Judge Kinkade sentenced Clarence Brown and T. H. Tracy, attorneys for the icemen, to 10 days each in jail for contempt of court in filing a motion charging the judge with misconduct. Alexander Smith, another attorney, was sentenced to pay a fine of $250 for contempt of court in filing a motion charging the judge with misconduct in the trial of the icemen. The sentence was suspended until Thursday to give the attorneys an opportunity to show to the circuit court that their charges against Kinkade are true.

Muriatic Acid In Candy

New York, July 3.—Eight children were poisoned in Brooklyn by eating lemon candy supposed to have contained muriatic acid. The candy was given to the five children of the Meiner family by the grandfather, Lawrence Lynn. Three children with whom the Meniers had shared their candy were also taken sick. Lynn was unable to remember where he had bought the candy, but the police are searching for the place. All the children will probably recover.

Meat Inspectors' Examination

Washington, July 3.—To carry into effect the meat inspection law recently enacted by congress, the civil service commission announces an examination of inspectors to be held on July 21. The inspectors must, from experience, be qualified to determine whether or not meat is sound, wholesome and fit for human food. The entrance salary is $1000 per annum.

Six Hundred Killed In One Fight

Durban, Natal, July 3.—The Natal revolt continues to be serious. A heavy engagement occurred Sunday outside Noodsberg, a force of Natal volunteers being in a difficult position and disaster being averted only by the timely arrival of the main body of the volunteers. The rebels were finally dispersed, with a loss of 600 killed.

Oil Men Alleged Conspirators

Toledo, July 3.—In the probate court of Hancock county has begun the fight against the Manhattan Oil company and the Buckeye Pipe Line company, purchasing and pipe line companies of the Standard Oil company. The charge is conspiracy in restrain of trade.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1885

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Slow Process of Probing Disaster on British Railroad

TRAIN'S RECKLESS SPEED

An Attempt to Lower Record of Competing Line the Probable Cause of Sending Passengers to Death--A Fireman's Pluck

Salisbury, Eng., July 3.—The embalmers have been busy and the majority of the bodies of the score of Americans who lost their lives in the wreck of the Plymouth express have been prepared for their return for burial in the land they so recently left.

The inquest was a prolonged and tedious formality which utterly failed to give any idea of the cause of the accident. No questions on that point were asked and the subject seemed to be avoided—a strange proceeding to the many Americans present, but it is thought to be due to the queer formalism that seems characteristic of such cases in this country. The proceedings were solemn, sad and monotonous, so much so that spectators surprised a juror by asking what necessity there was to adjourn the inquest for a fortnight. No answer was given. The delay is believed to be due to the declared intention of the board of trade to institute an independent investigation.

It seems strange to Americans that, while the population of Salisbury is shocked by the disaster, practically no emotion is displayed. It would seem as if such accidents were an every day occurrence, and yet nothing even remotely approximating it has heretofore disturbed the peace of this slumberous city. There is sorrow, no doubt; but beyond the formal official expression, it has not yet been translated into action.

One of the most interesting cases at the infirmary is that of Robert S. Critchell of Chicago. He has been practically unconscious since the accident, with occasional evidence of semi-consciousness in which he expresses a chivalrous desire to help someone whom he thinks in danger. This very chivalry adds to the sympathetic interest in the case by the doctors, who have not yet abandoned hope of his recovery.

The latest information makes the cause of the disaster the result of reckless running in an attempt to make a new record against a competing road. There has been competition for the last two years between the Great Western and London and Southwestern on the time to Plymouth. The Great Western last week took a party of German editors from London to Plymouth, 246 miles, in about 4½ hours, establishing a new record. The Southwestern attempted to beat this, with the resulting death roll.

The distance run from the start to the place of the accident, 146 miles, occupied 147 minutes. The first part of the journey, from Plymouth to Exeter, is over heavy grades, where the speed was necessarily lower. There is a straight run of 12 miles before Salisbury is reached, and this was taken at a flying pace. There is a long but not sharp curve at the station, and it was in the middle of this that the train jumped the track. It is clear that the speed was not reduced and the comparatively light English engine and cars could not stand the strain.

Some of the railroad officials at Salisbury, in conversation with a prominent Englishman who went there to identify a friend among the dead, estimated that the speed of the train at the time of the accident was 74 miles an hour.

A fine story of pluck is told of Chick, the fireman of the stationary engine, into which the express dashed. Terribly scalded as he was when he was brought out of the wreckage, Chick refused to be carried on a stretcher to the infirmary. The doctors had just arrived with a few stretchers, but the fireman said: "Look to the others, who are worse hurt than me—I can walk." Deceived by his fortitude, the doctors allowed him to go, and the plucky fellow actually walked to the infirmary, where he collapsed at once. When he recovered he asked immediately after the injured. He died at 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Gave Detectives a Long Chase

New York, July 3.—David Hobbs, the former customs inspector at Montreal, arrested here as a fugitive from justice on a charge of perjury, was arraigned before Commissioner Alexander and remanded to prison, pending the arrival of extradition papers from the secretary of state. Hobbs was arrested in New York after having led detectives a chase of thousands of miles over Europe.

Roosevelt Has a Real Rest

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 3.—President Roosevelt has had his first day's rest and complete relaxation from official cares since congress assembled last December. All work was barred at Sagamore Hill yesterday. The routine of official business was conducted at the executive offices in Oyster Bay by Secretary Loeb without the aid of his chief.

Lies and Forgery In Court Martial

Paris, July 3.—At the Dreyfus hearing Procurator Baudouin characterized the greater part of the evidence at the Rennes court martial as a tissue of falsehoods for which the witnesses received payment. Emperor William's alleged letter incriminating Dreyfus was also denounced as a forgery.

CANNON THE STAR

To Visit New England and Later Tour the Country

PLANNING FOR CAMPAIGN

List of Doubtful Districts Not Made Up by Either Party--Tariff League Promises to Be a Disturbing Factor

Washington, July 3.—"The next thing on the program is the election of a Republican house of representatives," said Speaker Cannon to some of his lieutenants yesterday. Some of the members of congress will jump from their legislative duties into the thick of battle for re-election. The campaigns are already on up in Maine and Vermont.

Within the next three weeks each of the congressional campaign committees will open headquarters and get down to work. The Republican committee will occupy its old headquarters in the St. James building in New York, while the Democrats will maintain headquarters here, and possibly a branch office in New York or Chicago.

Speaker Cannon is to be the head and front from here up into Maine and Vermont, and then after a rest during August, he will climb on a special car and make a tour of the doubtful districts of the country. The tentative program is that he shall be "on the road" during the months of September and October.

The Republican campaign committee proposes to see that its speakers make much of the enactment of a rate bill, a pure food law, a meat inspection law, and a law removing the tax from denaturized alcohol. After having held the pure food bill back for four months the Republican leaders in the house discovered that the people wanted the legislation, and now these same leaders propose to go into the campaign and tell the people how they (the house leaders) saw to it that this pure food law was put on the statute books. Likewise in proclaiming the virtues of the meat inspection law the leaders will fail to tell how stubbornly the passage of such a law was resisted until the president "took the bull by the horns" and forced the house to act.

The Republican campaign committee is pleased over the sidetracking of the immigration bill. Speaker Cannon gets the credit for "turning the trick" on this bill. In the estimation of members of the congressional campaign committee the holdup of the bill will save 10 or 15 close congressional districts to the Republicans.

Neither of the campaign committees has yet made up a list of the so-called doubtful districts—the districts in which the real fights are to be conducted. As soon as this list is prepared the "literary bureau" of each organization will begin sending out campaign "literature." The legislation to make it unlawful to use franks of members of congress in sending this campaign matter through the mails failed, and so arrangements are being made to burden the mails with tons of political speeches made in the house of representatives. Realizing that the tariff issues will have to be met, the committee has arranged to make a specialty of "stand pat" speeches.

The Republican congressional committee would be happier if it knew just what the American Reciprocal Tariff league, with headquarters at Chicago, is accomplishing. It is convinced that this organization will have to be reckoned with in the campaign. From all accounts the farmers and stock men of a good many central west congressional districts who, heretofore, were always in line with the "stand-patters" are disposed to support candidates for congress who will pledge themselves to work for and vote for tariff revision. Within the last few months the Reciprocal Tariff league has been as active as the "stand pat" organization in New York, known as the "American Protective league."

Says Congress Stole Policies

Washington, July 3.—John S. Williams, the Democratic floor leader, says the only notable things the last congress did was to appropriate the Democratic policy of railroad rate regulation and the Democratic policy of admitting Oklahoma into the Union. One of the things congress failed to enact was a measure "to check the collection of vast and corrupting campaign funds." Congress, says Williams, passed a very good naturalization bill after several good amendments offered by the Democrats had been adopted. It refused to pass any immigration bill.

In Nature of a Contract

Buffalo, July 3.—An important decision governing the question of raising the rates in the Catholic Mutual Benefit association was handed down by Justice White in the supreme court, who held that the high rates imposed upon the members of the C. M. B. A. at the 1903 convention are null and void on the ground that the certificate of insurance is a contract and that the rates announced in the certificate cannot be increased. An appeal will be taken.

Perkins Leaves New York Life

New York, July 3.—The resignation of George W. Perkins as trustee of the New York Life Insurance company was accepted at a special meeting of the board. The trustees had previously declined to accept it, but Perkins insisted upon its acceptance.

Gentlemen: By the use of your Elixir I was relieved of a tape worm between seventy-seven and eighty-five feet in length. For eighteen years I had been doctoring for Liver, Kidney and Heart trouble and Indigestion, all of which disappeared when that worm was slaughtered by True's Elixir. There is not a medicine before the public to-day that can do the work of your Elixir. The expenditure of $2.50 for this medicine did for me what many dollars and years spent in search of relief through other sources failed to do.

"CRUEL MONOPOLY"

Gotham Aldermen Take Steps Toward Prosecuting Icemen

New York, July 3.—The board of aldermen adopted a resolution requesting the district attorney to begin criminal proceedings against the officers of the American Ice company for criminal conspiracy to advance the price of ice.

The resolution, which was introduced by Alderman Peters of Brooklyn, characterizes the company as "the most cruel and heartless monopoly in America" and recites the facts relating to the conviction of certain officials of ice companies in Toledo. It contains the report of the committee before which ice experts appeared recently and testified that ice could be manufactured at a cost of 87 cents a ton.

The American Ice company now charges $12 a ton for its product, which, the resolution declares, is exorbitant. It is further declared that the high price of ice is responsible for the death of many persons in the congested districts where ice is needed, but which the poor cannot afford to buy. The resolution will go to District Attorney Jerome.

White House Needs New Roofs

Washington, July 3.—It has developed that extensive repairs will have to made to the White House before President Roosevelt and his family return to it next autumn. It is a curious circumstance that the discovery of the necessity for the repairs on the White House was made almost coincidentally with the murder of Stanford White, one of the firm of architects which directed the remodeling of the White House. Some of the work done on the White House at that time has failed. It has been found necessary to replace the roofs on both the east and the west terraces.

Tried to Exterminate Family

Luceda, Miss., July 3.—Charles Brewer shot and killed his wife and his mother-in-law, wounded his wife's grandmother and his infant child and then shot and killed himself. Brewer's wife left his home a few days ago, alleging that he was treating her badly. She went to her mother's home, where Brewer called last night and asked her to return home. He became angry when his wife refused to leave her mother's house and used his revolver until he thought every one of the family was dead. He then fired a bullet into his own temple.

Dance and Dinner In Bathing Suits

Newport, R. I., July 3.—Not since the famed monkey dinner originated and executed by the fertile brain of Harry S. Lehr, has Newport been given such a bit of spicy anticipation as in the announcement that Harry Lehr has been engaged by Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish to direct a Fourth of July dinner and dance at the opening of her "short season" at the Crossways. It is to be a "bathing suit" costume affair. All the guests will be attired in bathing suits. These costumes, and none other, are to be worn at the dance.

Havoc by Soda Tank Explosion

New York, July 3.—An explosion of an overcharged carbonic acid gas tank in a drug store at Coney Island last night frightened thousands of pleasure seekers, badly injured three persons, wrecked the drug store and building and temporarily disabled the telephone service on the island. Charles Fletcher, a drug clerk, who was connecting the tank when it exploded, was so badly injured that there is little hope of his recovery.

Harvard Grad In Elopement

Boston, July 3.—Considered the most beautiful girl in Boston, Miss Helen A. Maxwell of Roxbury has startled her friends by eloping. She was married to Paul L. Beckwith, son of a Bangor, Me., clergyman, at Providence. He was graduated from Harvard last week with the degree of A. B., after a four years' course, during which he distinguished himself in athletics as well as in his studies.

Substantial Surplus In Treasury

Washington, July 3.—A surplus of $20,024,772 is shown by the comparative statement of the government receipts and expenditures for the month of June, 1906, as compared with June of last year, and a surplus of $26,187,150 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906. During June the total receipts of the government were $55,367,081; the total expenditures $35,342,309.

Terrible Fate of Miners

Bluefields, W. Va., July 3.—As a result of a gas explosion from a lighted lamp which occurred in the Keystone Coal and Coke company's mines at Keystone, Mine Boss Meadows and John Jackson and William Green, miners, were literally torn to fragments, Hilary Hall sustained a fractured skull and will not recover.

No Word of the America

New York, July 3.—No word has yet been received of the overdue steamer America of the Fabre line, which sailed from Marseilles and Naples, with 110 passengers and a cargo of freight for New York. She is now 11 days overdue.

Chinese Rebels Capture a City

Shanghai, July 3.—The secret societies are taking advantage of the continued disorders caused by the dearness of rice and are working actively in the province of Chekiang. Rebels have captured the city of Hsinchenghsien.

PROCTOR SENTENCED

Ten Months In Prison For Larceny of Campaign Funds

Boston, July 3.—Robert G. Proctor, for some time Senator Lodge's secretary, was sentenced to serve 10 months in the house of correction for the larceny of $225 from John S. Bestgen of Quincy, which the latter alleged to have placed in Proctor's hands as a contribution to the Republican state campaign fund two years ago.

Proctor was convicted in the superior court last week, and after Judge De Courcey of that court had denied him a new trial yesterday he pronounced sentence, but permitted the defendant to remain at liberty until a bill of exceptions might be filed in his behalf, on the ground that the verdict was against the evidence. It is believed that the case will be carried to the supreme court.

In further connection with the investigation of campaign contributions, Senator Lodge was before District Attorney Moran and the Suffolk grand jury in answer to a summons. After having been in the grand jury chamber about 40 minutes, Lodge departed, telling the reporters that the subject on which he had been examined was one of which he could not give any information.

Alleged Misuse of Fund

Newburyport, Mass., July 3.—Specific acts of dishonesty and organized "graft" in the management of the city's poor department were charged in the report of a special city investigating committee made public last night, at a meeting of the city council. The report alleges that L. W. Sargent, B. F. Walker and E. M. Dow, overseers of the poor, are alleged to have expended the Atwood Dexter fund for unauthorized purposes, and it is recommended that legal proceedings be brought against these men to show in what manner this money was spent.

Mayor's Impeachment Asked

Central Falls, R. I., July 3.—Recommendation that action be taken to impeach Mayor McNally was made by Alderman Smith at a meeting of the board of aldermen last night. Smith charged that the mayor had granted permits for prize fights and hotel and victual house licenses after the board had refused to act. He further charged that liquor dealers who paid for protection were not raided, while those who did not pay were raided. The aldermen will consider the charges at the next meeting.

Milk Dealers Must Obey Law

Boston, July 3.—Small milk dealers are in a panic over the stringent laws recently passed by the legislature, requiring every licensed milk dealer to have his name stamped or otherwise impressed on the bottles or cans in which he dispenses milk for the market. The law went into effect July 1. There has been considerable protesting and threats to defy the law, but Inspector Jordan expects to have the 4000 people who sell milk in Boston all in line as soon as he can reach them.

Hunting Law to Fit Merger Case

Boston, July 3.—Governor Guild and Attorney General Malone have been in conference upon a new development in the fight to give Massachusetts the control of her own trolley systems—the impossibility of action on the part of the railroad commissioners until the latter part of this month. As a result of that conference Attorney General Malone is consulting the statutes with the intention of taking up the matter without waiting for formal notification on the part of the board.

Injunction Against Weavers

Boston, July 3.—A temporary injunction was granted in the superior court against the officers and members of Tapestry Weavers' union No. 520 of Dedham, restraining them from patrolling near the factory of the Cochrane Manufacturing company and from disturbing in any way the employes of the company. It was found that the defendants had conspired to prevent the company from filling the places of weavers on strike.

Famous Divine Very Sick

Boston, July 3.—Suffering from bronchial trouble, Rev. Dr. E. Morgan Dix, rector of the Trinity Episcopal church of New York and a foremost clergyman of this country, is at the Hotel Somerset, seriously ill. Owing to the age of Dix, physicians are closely watching the house of the illness, but it is stated that no fears need be felt regarding his ultimate recovery.

Corona Wins Big Race

Marblehead, Mass., July 3.—Of the nine boats that started from New London in the Eastern Yacht club's race to Marblehead, only three finished the 180-mile course. The schooner Corona crossed the finish line a winner by nearly five hours over the Constellation. The third boat to finish was the schooner Emerald, in the special class for schooners.

Crushed by Machinery

Franklin, Mass., July 3.—Lugi Brunelli, an employe in the American Felt mills, climbed into the inside of a "pulling" machine and was engaged in oiling it when another employe, unaware of the fact that there was a human being in the machine, set the machinery in motion. A heavy metal arm descended on Brunelli and inflicted injuries from which he died.

Brothers Held For Murder

New Haven, July 3.—On the charge of murder in causing the death of Daniel Guckin in a saloon last week, Walter G. Dorman and Burton Dorman, brothers, were held in $3000 each for the superior court after waiving a hearing in the local court.

The caddies of the Wollaston Golf club will have a tournament for prizes on Thursday.

Henry P. Furnald and family of Newcomb street are now located at camp Elizabeth, Houghs Neck, for the summer.

Lyndon Gurney has returned from Shirley Hill, N. H., where he has left his wife and two children for a few weeks' stay.

Miss Florence Hill of Walker street and Miss Adelia Barber of Botolph street started Monday for a two weeks' vacation to Kearsarge, N. H.

Miss Helen Rhines of Miller Stile road will sojourn at the Crawford house, White Mountains, for the months of July and August.

The Fourth of July noon temperature in Quincy since 1895 has ranged between 65 in 1896 and 99 in 1898. Last year it was 86, and 82 was the lowest in the past four years.

George W. Hinkley has rented the part of his double house on Newbury avenue made vacant by tenant removing to Popes Hill, to S. J. Ripley of Roxbury.

Councilman Sawyer's Eleanor, while leading Class A in the inter-club race at City Point, split her mainsail in an extra hard squall and thus lost the race which she undoubtedly would have won.

The many relatives and friends in this city of Mrs. Wm. Cavert (nee Furnald) of Appleton, Wis., extend their sympathy to her and her family in the loss of her second son, Charles, aged 12 whose sudden death occurred on June 25, by drowning while playing with toy boats with other playmates.

Mr. B. J. Loring of East Braintree has been reappointed a special district police officer by his excellency, Curtis Guild Jr., governor, for the term of three years from June 23d, 1906. Mr. Loring has been in continuous service as a police officer since March, 1872. He is still in the employ of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children with headquarters at 43 Mt. Vernon street, Boston.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade of Atlantic has been busy the past month in the west giving home science and cooking lectures. She had a large class at Muscatine, Iowa, at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association. The local paper says that even the pretty good cooks learned many new things from her practical hints on economy and cooking for health.

Death of Swedish Pastor

Rev. Victor Witting, the founder of the Swedish Methodist church in America, passed away Monday at his home on Glendale road aged 82 years.

Rev. Mr. Witting has been in poor health for some time and his death was due to old age and a complication of diseases.

The celebration of his 80th birthday in March last year was a notable occasion, when he was given a reception at Faxon hall by the people of St. Paul's Swedish Methodist church. The address then was by Rev. S. L. Carlender, D. D.

Rev. Mr. Witting was born in Malmo, Sweden, March 7, 1825. He received his early education in the schools of his native town and at the Malmo Latin school from which he was graduated in 1842. Leaving school he obtained employment in a drug store. Later he shipped as a seaman on a vessel sailing to foreign ports.

In 1847 he came to America landing in New York. From that city he went to Chicago, where he was employed as a druggist.

From Chicago he went in 1848 to Bishops Hill, Ill., one of the first Swedish settlements in that state. During the following two years he was employed days in the druggist business and devoted his nights to fitting himself for the ministry.

In 1850 he went to California and spent two years in the gold fields. He then went to victoria, Ill., where he formed the Peoria, now central Illinois conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

He then went to Victoria, Ill., and organized the first church of that denomination in this country. He labored there until 1855 when he went to Peoria, Ill., and organized a church there, remaining three years. From then until 1867 he filled pastorates at Andover and Rockford, Ill., organizing churches at each place.

In 1867 he visited Sweden, as Superintendent of Missions in that country. Soon after arriving he organized the first M. E. church in that country. He remained in Sweden eight years and organized seventy churches.

He returned to America in 1876, and became pastor of a Chicago church, where he remained until 1880. The next two years he spent in Texas organizing new churches.

In 1882 he started the first Swedish religious paper in this country, known as Sandebeedent, of which he was editor until 1889. That year he became pastor of a church in Quissigamand, Mass., and in 1894 he came to Quincy as pastor of St. Pauls church.

In 1897 he again visited his native country where he remained two years, lecturing. He returned to Quincy in 1899 where he has since resided.

He suffered a paralytic shock in 1900 and was confined to his home for two years. During this time he wrote a book giving a history of his life and the results he had accomplished. During his ministry he was instrumental in organizing nearly 300 churches.

He was married Sept. 12, 1849, and observed his golden wedding in 1899. Nine children have been born, five sons and four daughters, all of whom are living.

Mrs. Whitting died Sept. 12, 1901.

City Council

to amend motion striking out the clause to have the clerk forward copies to Councilmen.

Amendment lost, seven voting in favor and 12 against.

The motion of Councilman Nichols prevailed.

The Committee on Streets also reported an order granting approval to operate trolley freight on Randolph avenue. Laid on the table.

Councilman Crane said the committee had held a number of conferences with the street railway, and read two communication received in which the company told of its plans to improve passenger service. He moved these also be sent to the Councilmen.

Councilman Nichols opposed. He could see no reason for this.

The motion of Councilman Crane was lost.

The Committee on Finance reported an order appropriating $321.23 from receipts to pay bill of the City Hospital for services rendered to persons having no settlement in Quincy. Ordered to a second reading.

EXPRESS LICENSES.

The Committee on Licenses and the Special Committee reported an order granting permits to transport intoxicating liquor to the following parties: Nazzarene Di Panfilo, Peter Hynes, Clements Express Co., Frank C. Jacobs, Tony Patt, Boston & Houghs Neck Steamboat Co., John J. Maloney, David J. Evans, John Cislaghi, W. B. Gerry, John Callahan, Boston & Quincy Express Co., John T. Fitzsimmons, James P. Flanagan.

Councilman Chase moved to strike out the names of John T. Fitzsimmons, John Callahan, W. B. Gerry, John Cislaghi, Tony Patt and Nazzareno Di Panfilo.

Councilman Chase said the city expends a great deal of money on its Police department. The general law does not discriminate in the transportation of liquor. The present law was passed because of complaints against transportation of liquor. Quincy's vote on license leaves no doubt as to its stand on the liquor traffic. The idea is to give all legitimate expressmen a permit, but not peddlers. While a majority of the committee has reported in favor of all he did not think all should be granted. The names he moved to strike out are not recognized as expressmen.

Councilman Hobbs moved to amend the amendment so as to allow the name of W. B. Gerry to remain in the order. He was the only expressman at Atlantic. He knew Mr. Gerry to be an honest man who would live up to the law.

Councilman Donovan spoke in favor of John Callahan. He had known him 15 years. He handled butter, produce and liquor. He had never been convicted. He was a taxpayer.

Councilman Stone believed legitimate expressmen should have a license. If we give a license to one peddler give it to them all.

Councilman Beal said Gerry was not a peddler. He has been in the provision business but is now in the express business.

Councilman Nichols had no knowledge of names to be stricken out. Permits should not be given to irresponsible persons. It would seem wise to restrict permits to expressmen.

Councilman Moir spoke in favor of granting a permit to Gerry. He was fully equipped to do express business.

The amendment of Councilman Hobbs prevailed.

Councilman Donovan moved to amend by having the name of John Callahan remain in the order.

Councilman Spargo favored. He knew wants to be honest. He does an express business.

Councilman Bass moved the report be recommitted.

After hearing the investigation made by the committee of the applicants he withdrew his motion.

Councilman Stone opposed granting permits to peddlers.

Councilman Ferguson favored granting Callahan a permit. He thought it showed favoritism in cutting his name off.

The amendment of Councilman Donovan was adopted 11 voting in favor and 9 against.

The motion of Councilman Chase stricking out the names of Di Panfilo, Patt, Cislaghi and Fitzsimons was then voted.

The amended order was adopted.

Upon motion of Councilman Chase the names striken from the order were given leave to withdraw.

SEWER ORDER.

Councilman Moir offered an order for $14,000 for a sewer on Webster, Appleton and Bayfield streets. To Committee on Sewers and Drains.

Councilman Hobbs moved and it was voted that all petitions and orders for street lights before the Committee on Streets be referred to the Executive department.

SEWER ORDINANCES.

Councilman Spargo offered an amendment to the Sewer ordinance, which provides that houses abutting the sewer shall be connected within a year. To Committee on Ordinances.

Councilman Stone nominated Frank E. Burrell, Daniel R. McKay, Alfred W. Goodhue, David J. Barry, Michael Donovan, Charles Olson as field drivers, and William J. Vaughn as pound keeper. They were elected.

Councilman Polk offered an order for $800 to pay bill of the Combination Ladder Co. To Finance Committee.

FIRE ORDERS.

Councilman Stone offered an order transferring $800 from the appropriation for hose of the Fire Department to the appropriation for miscellaneous of Fire Department. Referred to the Committee on Finance.

Councilman Stone offered an amendment to the Fire Department ordinance.

The amendment strikes out that part where it reads that the pay rolls of the men of the department shall be presented to the Mayor. It also provides that the call men shall be paid twice a year instead of once a year, and changes the title of the fire apparatus at Houghs Neck from Hose 5 to Combination 3. Referred to the Committee on Ordinances and Fire Department.

Councilman Stone offered an order appropriating $2,100 to place fire alarm wires on Hancock street under ground, and to divide circuit No. 1 into two circuits. Referred to Committee on Fire Department.

Councilman Stone moved and it was voted to suspend rule one. He then moved when the Council adjourn it be until September 4.

Councilman Gilson opposed. There were applications for permits to be acted upon.

Councilman Stone withdrew his motion and the vote to suspend rule one was reconsidered.

CALENDAR.

The loan order for $4,300 to cover orders already passed took its second reading, and was passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules.

The order granting the Quincy Electric Light Co., a location for poles on Edison Park took its second reading and was passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules.

Adjourned at 10.25 until July 16.

Picnic of First Church

The Sunday school of the First church had a grand time Monday on its annual picnic at Randolph grove. During the day there was a series of sports for which prizes were given. The most interesting of these events was the game of ball between the Uneda's and Oysterette's. The former captained by Ralph Merritt won by a score of 10 to 3. Ice cream, peanuts, fruit and lemonade was served.

The members of the Granite City club are looking forward to a grand time tonight. During the early part of the evening there will be an entertainment by well known vaudeville artists. This will be followed by a banquet.

The hours at the Quincy postoffice tomorrow will be from 7 to 10 A. M. and 5 to 7 P. M. There will be one collection and one delivery.

Rheumatism Badly Cripples A Baldwinsville Farmer
URIC-O Quickly Cured Him.
Treated 2 Years With a High-Priced Physician With No Success.

Mr. Frank Howe, a prominent farmer in the town of Van Buren, says: "I visited the best Physician in Syracuse, who treated me for about two years for rheumatism. I spent in that time several hundred dollars and seemed to grow worse instead of better each day. Being on crutches and forced to drive to the train and hobbling to the doctor's office became very discouraging, let alone the sleepless nights and fearful hours of pain. I was advised to quit doctoring and try Smiths' Specific Uric-O. I purchased a seventy-five cent bottle, took it home and used it that day as directed.

"Those fearful sciatic pains left me, my blood seemed to let loose and flow freely. I felt different and knew the next morning I had found a cure, as I slept and rested well all that night, something I had not done before in two years. I used in all six bottles of Uric-O and have never felt a return of the disease, had no use for crutches or cane since the first day's treatment. I know that Uric-O does not contain Alcohol or opiates and that it works in a wonderful way on the blood, bladder, muscles and kidneys and is the only way on earth to cure rheumatism."

Frank Howe.
Baldwinsville, N. Y., R. F. D.

Uric-O is sold at seventy-five cents per bottle, is a liquid internal treatment good for rheumatism only, and will cure each and every case of rheumatism if properly used. Samples and circulars will be cheerfully sent free by addressing The Smith Drug Company, Syracuse, N. Y.

Uric-O is sold in Quincy by E. J. Murphy, who highly recommends the remedy.

Night Before

No Serious Disturbances Except the Keating Fire

Taken as a whole the night before the Fourth in Quincy was the quietest that it has been for several years. This was in a measure due to the rain that fell in torrents at frequent intervals during the night and to the energy of the police to keep the lid on as long as possible.

There had been no general orders to keep the boys quiet until after midnight and they did as they pleased as long as they did not overstep the bounds of innocent celebration. During the early evening, and in fact all night, there was frequently heard loud explosions but they did no harm.

There was a notable absence of bell and still alarms of fires and while in other years the alarms have been frequent, this year there was not a single false alarm.

All of the keys of the fire boxes had been taken out and placed in the hands of the police and before an alarm was sounded they had to be certain that there was a fire.

There were five bell alarms between 11.45 and 6.30 Wednesday morning and in every case they were for fires. There was but one serious fire, and that was in the Keating block of buildings on Canal street. The loss here was upwards of $1,500 and was due to incendiarism. Two of the five alarms were for this fire.

In addition to the regular force of policemen on duty, thirty specials, or constables were sworn in for duty on July 3 and 4 and in addition an automobile was kept at headquarters to be used as a patrol wagon in addition to the regular wagon. Neither of these however were overworked. Up to midnight the wagon had received but one call. This was from West Quincy and was for the purpose of taking Donato Sachetti of 32 Centre street who had been arrested by Officer Curtin for assault with a dangerous weapon on Michele Coletti. It was alleged that Sachetti had hit Coletti with a beer bottle during a dispute cutting his hand so badly that it had to be dressed by a physician.

Two boys who got too near the muzzle of a toy cannon had their hands injured and after being dressed at the hospital were sent home. John Fitzpatrick of Brackett street had a hole blown through his left hand by a pistol ball and had his hand dressed at the City Hospital by Dr. Jones.

There were probably other accidents of which the police were not informed and doubtless some of the boys will be favoring sore fingers for a few days.

There was also an alleged assault at Quincy Point where a woman told the police that her husband had hit her with a bottle. The case will probably be heard in court.

FIRE ALARMS.

The first alarm of fire was sounded from Box 42 at 11.45. This was for a fire that started from some unknown cause in a Finn printing office opposite the street railway turnout on Copeland street. The fire loss was small.

Shortly before this a hugh bon-fire had been lighted near the Quincy Adams depot and many thought the alarms was for this fire.

Box 25 was the next to be sounded. This came in at 12.45 and was for the fire of the night. It was in the lower end of the Keating building on Canal street occupied as a storehouse. The fire which probably started from the torch of some person unknown had a good start and was burning fiercely when the department arrived.

They made a good stop and prevented a conflagration in the several fire trap buildings on this corner. As the department were on their way home one of the members happened to look behind as the apparatus was going up Revere road. He saw that the building was again blazing briskly and they turned back and put the fire out a second time.

Just before the second fire a man was seen to run from the building. Officer Phillips gave chase. He ordered the man to stop or he would shoot. The man did not stop and the officer shot but did not hit the man; desiring only to frighten him. As the man was known however he may hear from it later.

It was later said that the man had been seen to enter the building with a can under his arm. While the firemen were here it rained great guns and they got thoroughly soaked. The fire was hardly under control the second time when an alarm was sounded from Box 76. This was at 1.51.

Chief Litchfield pressed in the recall and sent the ladder truck back to the station. For some reason however the bells did not strike in the West Quincy house and when 76 came in it was taken for a second alarm. The West Quincy truck started for the centre and made a record breaking run to the corner of Water street and Quincy avenue where they were stopped by the Central station men and sent back.

The alarm from Box 76 was for a fire in the old Hayden house near the Quincy Point bridge. The house was unoccupied and was soon to be torn down. The fire had made good headway and the interior was quite badly gutted. Incendiarism is given as the cause of the fire.

At 3.40 an alarm was sounded from Box 27. This was for another fire in the Keating building in a lounge and probably started from the embers of the other fires.

The last alarm of the night was sounded at 6.30 Wednesday morning from Box 42. This was for a slight fire in a Chinaman's shop at Brewers corner and did but little damage. The fire was probably due to accidental causes.

Notwithstanding the rain a large crowd collected at midnight of July 3d at the corner of Faxon and Billings roads where a tremendous bonfire was set off. For weeks men have been around collecting barrels for the pile, and all the boys of Wollaston and Norfolk Downs had been anticipating the fire with great pleasure.

THE FOURTH.

Wednesday the Fourth was very quiet in Quincy. Many who had been out the night before improved the opportunity to catch up on the sleep problem and there was little doing. The frequent rains during the day also aided materially in keeping things quiet.

There were some out of door sports advertised but the rain took the fun all out of these. There were many social house parties during the day and nearly everybody kept open house and entertained more or less guests.

The Finnish people held their regular holiday picnic at Merrymount park taking their band with them and they had a good time in spite of the rain.

Extra cars were run on all lines of the street railway during the day and it was a noticable fact that there were a large number of people travelling by cars.

NIGHT OF FOURTH.

Although the night of the Fourth was pleasant it was free from excitement.

Many people had private displays of fireworks, and one could see rockets shooting heavenward from all directions. Many of these displays were very elaborate.

As for fires there were none until 3.48 A. M. The Central station apparatus was called out needlessly twice by telephone calls to extinguish bonfires. The alarm at 3.48 came from Box 76 and was for another fire in the old Hayden house near the Quincy Point bridge. The fire was of incendiary origin and did not make much headway before it was extinguished. This house sets on the approach to the bridge and is owned by the trustees of the Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham bridges. The intention is to tear it down and the two fires will probably hasten its destruction.

During the two nights the police met with but little trouble and had no difficulty in keeping things quiet. There were some scraps but that was to be expected. Officer Hultman who was on duty at the Mitchell granite sheds, was struck on the arm with a brick thrown by one of a crowd he was trying to prevent using the buildings for fire wood. As the man who threw the brick was known he will probably have an opportunity to explain to the court just how it happened.

Nearly Drowned.

Batista Cubbi, aged 9 years, came very near being drowned Tuesday afternoon by falling into an abandoned quarry hole at West Quincy. The lad was playing about the edge of the hole when he lost his balance and fell in. He was going down for the third time when he was rescued by Jacob Lakton. The boy when taken ashore was almost dead, and it required an hour's hard work to bring him back to life.

Veteran Mason.

Nathaniel H. Hunt of Braintree passed away this morning at his residence on Plain street, aged 86 years. He was the oldest past master of Rural lodge of Masons of Quincy, having occupied the position from November 1861 to November 1866.

Second Break

The fruit store of James McConnell on Hancock street was entered again Wednesday night by unknown parties by means of a rear window, and a quantity of cigars and fruit taken.

Immense Storage Of Water

The Metropolitan Water board reports that Quincy used 3,207,200 gallons of water in May, against 3,013,800 in May 1905. This they estimate at 114 per capita, an increase from 109 per capita in 1905; this however is on a basis of a population of 28,133 and the census of 1905 gave us 28,076.

The commission find the amount used per capita in the district in May was 128 gallons, so that Quincy was 14 gallons per capita below the average. Boston used 149 gallons, but all the other cities used less than Quincy.

There seems to have been no cause for the anxiety over the supply giving out, which frightened Quincy into an appropriation of $10,000 for meters, for the Boston Transcript says:

There is a lot more water in the Metropolitan reservoirs at present than there was a year ago at this time. Then the top notch of the general rise occasioned by the winter thaws and spring rains was reached on May 1. This year heavy rains kept the water flowing into the storage basins throughout May and June, and now with July opening and the real stress of summer about due, the water is still rising.

The high level reached on May 1, 1905, was 33,708,200,000 gallons. This total, with minor accessions such as are usual in midseason, had to stand the heavy drain of summer usage for the Metropolitan district. This year, while the early spring was comparatively dry in the neighborhood of Boston, the flow into the reservoirs was pretty steady and so copious that even on May 1 the total amount of water in storage was almost 10,000 million gallons more than on the same date of the previous year.

And the inflow did not cease then. It continued through May, and in the last two or three days of that month, under the influence of heavy rains, made a jump of about 3,300 million gallons; so that June opened with a total of water in storage of about 47,200,000,000 gallons. There was rain enough through June, also, to maintain the general increase; and with the opening of July, the total is about 49,000,000,000, and still gaining.

Granite City Club Entertainment.

The members of the Granite City club and their friends never enjoyed themselves more than they did Tuesday night, the night before the National holiday. The night was a hot and sticky one outside, but within the rooms there was good air and all were very comfortable.

The arrangements for the evening were in the hands of the entertainment committee and they did well. Hanley's orchestra was present during the entire evening and gave one of the most enjoyable concerts heard for a long time. They played all of the popular airs during the evening, which the club members, led by Chief Chorister Saunders, showed how well they could sing.

Aside from the popular airs the orchestra rendered some of the more classical music in a manner that called forth well merited applause. It would be hard to enumerate all the selections rendered for it would be easier to tell what they did not play. Between the selections Erastus Osgood of Wollaston gave a number of pleasing monologues and imitations.

In the dining room a lunch consisting of lobster salad (made as only Henry Furnald knows how,) cold ham, sardines, crackers, cheese, pickles and punch was served during the entire evening.

It was an evening long to be remembered among the many good times of the club.

Philanthropic Work.

Miss Doris Cummings returned from Winthrop for the occasion of a piazza entertainment and sale, under her own and Miss Bertha Shultz's direction and assisted by Master Gordon Sherwin, who officiated as doorkeeper or ticket taker. As a result of sales, tickets at one cent; reserved seats at 2 cents; sales effected, of candy, pop corn and lime juice, a total of $1.25 was netted. Doris inherits the public spirit of her parents and will devote the proceeds of this and another entertainment some few weeks later, to some Quincy philanthropic work, probably the Day Nursery.

The Fourth At Post Island

Fourth of July was a gala day at Post Island all the residents uniting in a general celebration, which commenced at 9 o'clock with a salute of fifty cannon crackers discharged by a train of powder two hundred feet long.

Next came swimming and rowing races with substantial prizes.

At exactly eleven o'clock Col. Archie Thayer, the silver tongued orator of Saville street, delivered a patriotic address. He was frequently interrupted by uproarious applause and at the conclusion was given three cheers.

A closely contested ball game was the centre of attraction during the afternoon for the men; while an orchestra of four pieces furnished entertainment for the ladies.

A clam digging contest at the close of the game created considerable excitement, the winner digging one hundred and fifty-nine clams in eight minutes.

Over two hundred were at the Island in the evening to witness the grand display of fireworks, every cottage being crowded with invited guests.

The celebration closed at 10 o'clock after all had joined in singing "America."

Quincy Young Man Hurt at Braintree

James I Geddes, aged 16 years, of 70 Granite street, was seriously injured on the afternoon of the Fourth near Braintree pond. He was driving a spirited horse near the pond when some careless celebrator threw a fire cracker under the horse.

When the cracker exploded the horse reared up and before he could be controlled, he dashed onto an embankment, overturning and smashing the carriage and throwing the occupants out.

Geddes struck on his head and when picked up was unconscious. Physicians worked over him for an hour or more but were unable to bring him to. He was then removed to his home and up to this noon had not regained consciousness.

The attending physician is unable to tell at present just how serious his injuries are. It is thought, however, that he may have sustained concussion of the brain.

The young man is employed by the Coy forwarding agency at South Quincy.

A Resignation.

At the closing session of the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school on Sunday the resignation of Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, who has so faithfully and efficiently served as its superintendent for the past five and a half years, was received. Mrs. Gurney was presented with a beautiful set of books as a token of regard from the pupils and teachers of the Sunday school.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

It was the third rainy Fourth of July in eleven years, but those of 1898 and 1900 were amost forgotten.

The distribution of flowers by the Massachusetts Floral Emblem Society on Boston Common brought about as much sunshine on the Fourth as any observance of the holiday.

Seven is said to be a lucky number and the experience of Haakon VII, like that of Edward VII, seems likely to bear out the saying.

Mr. Rockefeller may admire the perfect roads of France, but he cannot help being painfully impressed with the lack of perfect system of pipe lines.

It is quite probable that the Russian Douma would be willing to appropriate almost any amount of money above $25,000 to send the Czar on his travels.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The summer visitor is one of Gloucester's most valuable assets and Gloucester people in general realize it. We do not seem to get many additional manufactures, so let us do with what has been given us and be thankful for the annual pilgrimage of so many of these people from all over the country to our city by the sea, and try to make their stay among us pleasant and agreeable, so they may go away firm in determination to come again. This is a year when their value will show more than ever, and their presence should be appreciated. It has been said that it costs the city too much to have things as the summer resident wants them, but it can never be said that Gloucester would be bankrupt by reason of what she has spent for the summer residents' comfort and convenience, and this in the face of the fact that one-fifth almost of the tax of the city is paid by these same summer people.—Gloucester Times.

☞ "Fads" and "Frills" will stay in the schools of Providence, R. I. The parents have settled the question. The charge of extravagance in running the school system brought things to a crisis, for attacks began on the various educational "frills" as involving a mere waste of money. The advocates of the three R's made a great impression until the votes were counted, and then it was found that 4,900 parents, who responded to the School Committee's request for their views, about 88 per cent. insisted on the "fads." Some interesting results are reported regarding details. As to teaching music in the schools, 4,726 were favorable, and 173 unfavorable; as to drawing, 4,663 were favorable, and 222 unfavorable; to gymnastics, 4,651 were favorable, and 231 unfavorable. Manual training and nature study were less popular among the parents, but nature study was favored by 3,844, with 1,004 dissenting, and manual training won by a vote of 3,360 to 1,047. Physiology won by a majority of 5 to 1. Over half of the parents who answered the circulars were taxpayers.—Springfield Republican.

The Proper Way For Us to Overcome Evil Doing

LESSONS FROM LINCOLN

Many of Our Citizens Are Offenders Only Through Force of Circumstances--The President Talks to His Neighbors

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 5.—President Roosevelt was pleased to justify his stewardship in a review of the year for the benefit of his neighbors yesterday. He spoke in the open air and nearly all his important utterances were delivered during a heavy downpour of rain. When he had finished both himself and his holiday-clad auditors were drenched. The president said in part:

"There are two or three things about which I want to talk to you today, and I shall take as my text the words of Abraham Lincoln, which he spoke in a remarkable little address delivered to a band of people who were serenading him at the White House just after his re-election to the presidency. He said:

"'In any great national trial hereafter, the men of that day as compared with those of this will be as weak and as strong, as silly and as wise, as bad and as good. Let us therefore study the incidents of this as philosophy from which to learn wisdom, and not as wrongs to be revenged.'

"And he added later in the speech a touching and characteristic expression of his, saying: 'So long as I have been here, I have not willingly planted a thorn in any man's breast.'

"Now, friends, remember that Lincoln faced the greatest crisis that this nation has seen since the Revolutionary war, as great a crisis as the nation can ever face. We haven't got the same problems nor as great problems as those with which the men of Lincoln's generation were brought face to face, and yet our problems are real and great, and upon the way in which we solve them will depend whether or not our children have cause to feel the pride or shame as American citizens.

"There are old soldiers in this, as in every other audience that I address, and these men know that first and foremost it was necessary to have the power of love for the Union, of love for the nation and that next it was necessary to have the courage to make that love good. In the same fashion we citizens of these peaceful days need first and foremost the moral quality; and next, back of that moral quality the courage, moral and physical as well, that makes the moral quality count. And yet back of them all we must have the sanity, the common sense, the just judgment, which neither hysterically over-emphasizes nor blindly refuses to acknowledge the wrongs that exist and the ways in which those wrongs must be cured.

"We have heard a great deal during the past year or two of the frightful iniquities in our politics and our business and the frightful wrong-doing in our social life. Now there is plenty of iniquity in business, in politics, in our social life. There is every warrant for our acknowledging these great evils, but in speaking about it, do not let us lose our heads, and above all let us avoid the wild vindictiveness preached by certain demagogues, a vindictiveness as far as the poles are asunder from the wise charity of Abraham Lincoln.

"Let us remember that many of the men who do the things of which we complain are American citizens with much the same tastes, tempers and characters we have, but who have been exposed to special temptations and are wrongdoers only through force of circumstances. Try to remove the causes of their wrongdoing; remove as far as may be both the power and the temptation to do wrong; but do not cultivate toward them a spirit of rancorous hatred which in the end will react most surely upon ourselves.

"The poorest of all emotions for any American citizen to feel is the emotion of hatred toward his fellows. Let him feel a just and righteous indignation where that just and righteous indignation is called for; let him not hesitate to inflict punishment where the punishment is needed in the interest of the public, but let him beware of demanding mere vengeance, and above all of inviting the masses of the people to such demand.

"There is wrong, and enough to fight. Fight it, cut it out, and, having cut it out, go your ways without either hatred or exultation over those at whose expense it has been necessary that it should be cut out.

"This year in congress our chief task has been to carry the government forward along the course which I think it must follow consistently for a number of years to come—that is in the direction of seeking, on behalf of the people as a whole, to exercise a measure of supervision, control, and restraint over the individuals, and especially over the corporations, of great wealth, insofar as the business use of that wealth brings it within the reach of the federal government. We have accomplished a fair amount and the reason that we have done so has been, in the first place, because we have not tried to do too much, and, in the next place, because we have approached the task absolutely free from any spirit of rancor or hatred. In any such movement a man will find that he has allies whom he does not like. You cannot protect property without finding that you are protecting the property of some people who are not very straight. You cannot war against the abuses of property without finding that there are some people warring beside you whose motives you would frankly repudiate. But in each case be sure that you keep your own motives and your own conduct straight.

"When it becomes necessary to curb a great corporation, curb it. I will do my best to help you do it. But I will do it in no spirit of anger or hatred to the men who own or control that corporation; and if any seek in their turn to do wrong to the men who own those corporations, I will turn around and fight for them in defense of their rights just as hard as I fight against them when I think they are doing wrong.

"Distrust as a demagogue the man who talks only of the wrong done by the men of wealth. Distrust as a demagogue the man who measures iniquity by the purse. Measure iniquity by the heart, whether a man's purse be full or empty, partly full or partly empty. If the man is a decent man, whether well off or not well off, stand by him; if he is not a decent man stand against him, whether he be rich or poor. Stand against him in no spirit of vengeance, but only with the resolute purpose to make him act as decent citizens must act if this republic is to be."

Prison Birds Set Free

Kovno, July 5.—Several political prisoners confined here by some means obtained arms and attacked and disarmed the prison warders and liberated all the prisoners, including several dreaded terrorists, who decamped, wearing their fetters. The terrorists were found in the outskirts of the city. Of the other fugitives there are no traces.

Pickpocket Is $2300 Richer

Lewiston, Me., July 5.—A wallet containing $2300 in cash was stolen from Cyrus I. Barker of this city while he was watching a head-on collision between locomotives which had been arranged as an attraction at the Maine state fair grounds. The pickpocket got away unnoticed in the crowd. Barker is president of the People's savings bank.

Korean Emperor a Prisoner

Seoul, July 5.—The Japanese have virtually made the Emperor of Korea a prisoner in his own palace by surrounding the palace with police, because of the emperor's constant intrigues to foment provincial troubles.

Local Brevities About the City

The Quincy and Wollaston Yacht clubs will have races on Saturday.

Councilman Hobbs was able to resume his Boston business this week.

Everybody who had a flag had it prominently displayed the Fourth.

John Ramsdell has had his house on Billings street dressed in a new green coat and white trimmings.

P. F. Tarr has bought of Morris Kilpatrick the new house on Squantum street, opposite the Livingston estate.

Miss Grace Howe, one of the Quincy High teachers, is at Gardner with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Howe.

The City Council Committee on Sewers meet tonight and the Committee on Streets Friday night.

George W. Hinkley of Newbury avenue and Billings street, is summering with his family in a cottage on the bluffs at North Weymouth.

Capt. Coombs of Billings street has renovated the interior of the house opposite his home and it is now occupied by his son Regua.

It is the Boston chapter of the Eastern Star which will be the guest on Saturday of Mrs. Goodey at Houghs Neck.

The U. S. cruiser Des Moines built at Quincy was reported at Funchal on Monday with the Minneapolis, Denver and Cleveland.

The Y. M. C. A. junior base ball team of Quincy suffered its first defeat of the season Saturday morning, at the hands of the Wollaston Parks.

Mrs. Everett Pope and Master Lawrence of Billings street will spend Independence day at their lovely summer cottage at Rock Island, where her sisters, the Misses Cora and Ella Pope, will share the enjoyments.

At the Quincy Point church on Friday evening at 7.30 the topic will be "The Reality of Faith." A union meeting with the C. E. Society of the church is the Sabbath home of the people. A place for all and a welcome for all.

John A. Stewart of 11 Branch St. So. Quincy was elected as one of the Massachusetts delegates to the fourteenth general convention of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, to be held at Niagara Falls, N. Y., commencing Sept. 17.

Mrs. Sylvia H. Ramsdall of Billings street has obtained very great satisfaction by having her house painted; also in returning home as she does very much improved in health, from a considerable of a stay with her son-in-law, Dr. Geo. T. Cushman of Dorchester, who treated Mrs. Ramsdell with electricity.

It is doubtful if any one in Quincy gets better results in raising dahlias than John G. Thomas of Warren avenue, Wollaston. Not only has he many beautiful and rare varieties but they blossom earlier than most peoples as he begins to cut them about the first of July. Most growers are pleased if they get well developed blossoms in August. A large bouquet from Mr. Tnomas adorns our office and are much admired.

The piano pupils of Miss Nettie Gram gave a parlor musicale at her home recently. Selections were well rendered by Freda Klingenhagen, Dorothy Lavery, Mildred Podbury, Rheta Keith, Ednah Rhodes, Olive Fay, Lida Prentiss and Jennie Harding, all the pupils doing great credit to Miss Gram's careful teaching. At the close of the program Miss Gram herself gave a beautifully rendered selection and was presented with a large bouquet of pinks, by her pupils. Ices and cake were served.

Silas Strong, emperor of the woods and the hero of Irving Bacheller's new book, says of the Adirondack Mountains:

"I've seen men come in here nigh dead an' go back W-well. They's m-med'cine here t'cure all the sickness in a hundred cities; they's f-fur 'nough here t' c-cover their naked—They's f-food 'nough t' feed their hungry—an' they's w-wood 'nough t' keep 'em w-warm."

The best way to reach the Adirondack Mountains and the Thousand Islands is by the New York Central Lines. 1t

"Just as Good" Paint

You never hear of a paint better than Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil. "Just as good" is what they say. Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil are acknowledged to be the standard by which all paints are measured.

The skillful painter invariably prefers to use it, and mix it himself. He knows that his business reputation is best built by the use of that paint which will give you the most satisfactory results.

He knows Pure White Lead wears evenly, and when ground in Pure Linseed Oil has greater elasticity and adhesive force than any other paint known.

He knows, too, that the best results are obtained only when the paint is mixed with special reference to the surface to be painted.

To make sure of the best White Lead tell your painter to use

SALEM
Pure White Lead
(Made by the Old Dutch Process)

Your interest and the painter's are identical. Adulterated paint will peel, crack or blister, however skillfully laid on. The result for you is an early expenditure for repainting, and for him a discredited reputation.

Send for a booklet containing several handsome reproductions of actual houses, offering valuable suggestions for a color scheme in painting your house. A test for paint purity is also given.

ICE INQUIRY PLANNED

District Attorney Moran Thinks Unlawful Combination Exists

Boston, July 5.—The announcement that the ice business is to be investigated by District Attorney Moran has brought forth statements from officials of the local ice companies, who make no secrecy of their dislike to being brought under cross-examination by the prosecuting officer and at the same time declare that there is no ice trust in Boston and that the increase in the price of ice, which has taken effect in every city of the state except Lowell, is due wholly to its scarcity on account of the small harvest last winter.

It is understood that the district attorney is of the opinion that the ice business in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago is absolutely controlled by one corporation, the American Ice company, which dictates the price to be paid.

Mr. Moran took the initial steps in the inquiry when he summoned Secretary Hallstram of the Massachusetts Ice Dealers' association, and his confidential clerk, O. S. Hayward, to appear before him and give information concerning the local ice business.

Treasurer Bartlett of the Boston Ice company is quoted as saying that the dealers will increase the price of ice "for spite" because of the district attorney's action.

Hanson For Governor

Burlington, Vt., July 5.—A full ticket was placed in the field and resolutions endorsing the national Prohibition party were adopted at the biennial Prohibition state convention in this city. Following are the candidates: Governor, Lester W. Hanson of Barre; lieutenant governor, H. S. Eldred, Sheldon; secretary of state, A. G. Austin, Georgia; state treasurer, M. L. Barton, Vergennes; state auditor, F. L. Page, Barre; attorney general, A. O. Ferguson, Burlington. The convention's attendance was small.

Desperate Break For Liberty

Bridgeport, Conn., July 5.—Capello Bruno, a prisoner at the county jail, who was taken to St. Vincent's hospital with a self-inflicted gash in his throat, along with Tony Cochis, a fellow prisoner, whom he had slashed with a razor, made a sensational dash for liberty last night by leaping from a second story window of the hospital. He was later recaptured. Bruno had been handcuffed to his cot on the second floor of the hospital and after the nurse had left him he broke the handcuffs.

Maine Prohibitionists' Choice

Waterville, Me., July 5.—Henry Woodward of Winthrop was nominated for governor on the second ballot in the convention of the Maine Prohibition party after an effort by a faction of the delegates to endorse the nomination of Governor Cobb, the Republican candidate, had been defeated. On the first ballot Cobb received nine votes and Woodward nine, and one the second Woodward secured an additional vote, making it 10 to 9.

Electrocuted by Accident

Portsmouth, N. H., July 5.—While on his way home, Albert E. Anderson noticed that the arc lamp at the top of a pole in front of his residence was extinguished and he tried to remedy the trouble by shaking the wire rope which is used for raising and lowering the lamp. In some way the wire had become charged with electricity and Anderson, upon touching it, received a shock which killed him. He was 60 years old.

Weavers Vote Not to Strike

New Bedford, Mass., July 5.—City hall was filled with members of the Weavers' union when the question of whether to strike was balloted on. The vote was 218 in favor of striking and 200 not to strike. Although a majority favored a strike, the rule of the union requires a two-thirds vote in favor before a strike can be declared, so the result was not to strike.

Criminal Operation Alleged

Boston, July 5.—Mrs. Ellen Bickford, 55 years old, residing in the rear of 46 Bennington street, East Boston, was arrested, charged with performing a criminal operation. It is alleged that Mrs. Bickford performed an operation which resulted in the death of Elizabeth Cosgrove, 22 years old, of 185 Paris street, East Boston.

Railway Men's Wages Increased

Amesbury, Mass., July 5.—The management of the Haverhill, Merrimac and Amesbury street railway has granted an increase in wages to all employes who have worked for the company three years or more. The increase is from the present rate of 20 cents an hour to 22 cents.

Bomb Fractured Girl's Skull

Fall River, Mass., July 5.—During an exhibition of fireworks in the city park last night a bomb had failed to explode when shot into the air, and in its fall it struck Edwina Menard, aged 14, on the forehead and exploded. Her skull was fractured and she died within five minutes.

Investigating Mysterious Death

Salem, Mass., July 5.—The police are investigating the death of an unknown man whose body was found in a small building in the rear of a saloon. The medical examiner found a deep wound two inches long on the left side of the head. No arrest has been made.

Dynamite Blew Out Windows

Burlington, Vt., July 5.—A charge of dynamite placed at the foot of a large tree on Cherry street demolished the tree and blew out all the windows in several nearby houses. No one was hurt. The police are investigating the matter.

LINER DISABLED

America Towed to Bermuda by Italian Steamship

WAS IN A BAD CONDITION

Could Not Have Reached Port Even If Machinery Had Not Been Crippled--The Food and Water Not Up to Requirements

New York, July 5.—Information was received here that the Fabre line steamship America, due to reach New York 14 days ago from Marseilles and Naples, has arrived at Bermuda in tow of the Italian steamship Dinnamare. All of her 110 passengers and crew were in good health.

The America was picked up on June 19 a short distance off the Azore islands, in a disabled condition, by the Dinnamare. She was flying signals of distress, her machinery being badly crippled, but from what cause the New York agents have not learned.

It was also stated that the America was short of provisions and coal and would not have been able to reach port even had her machinery been in working order.

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 5.—Steamer America has reached Murray's anchorage, St. Georges, in tow of the Italian steamer Dinnamare.

The America broke her shaft at noon, June 16, in heavy weather, which moderated June 18. She drifted about to June 17, when she was sighted by the Dinnamare, which agreed to tow her to Bermuda.

From that time on fine weather prevailed. The passengers and crew behaved well. The former, however, complained bitterly of the food and water, which they say was bad before the breakdown, but worse afterwards. Several of the passengers came ashore and lodged complaints with the foreign consuls.

Diseased Would-Be Immigrants

Boston, July 5.—When the steamer Romanic arrived here from Naples the immigration officials found 19 diseased Italians secreted in the lifeboats of the ship. The men had crawled under the canvas to escape observation during the inspection of the passengers and it is suspected that the foreigners were assisted by one or more members of the steamer's crew. The case is being investigated and it is said arrests may be made.

Killed Brother by Accident

Fall River, Mass., July 5.—Norman W. Reynolds, 12 years old, was celebrating the Fourth with an old shotgun which he supposed was unloaded, when the weapon was unexpectedly discharged, killing his brother, Richard W., aged 10. It is said that the shotgun was given to the boys by their father, who, forgetting that he had loaded it about a year ago, allowed them to play with it.

Dynamite Kills Five Boys

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 5.—Wanamie, a mining town, was thrown into a fever of excitement last evening when a loud report was heard similar to that of a mine explosion. Having failed to explode powder which they had put in a pipe, some boys forced a stick of dynamite in and began pounding it and the explosion followed. Five of the boys were killed and nine injured, some of whom may die.

Probe Will Be Broadened

Salisbury, Eng., July 5.—The board of trade inquiry into the Plymouth express disaster has formally begun. Major Pringle, who is directing the inquiry, will also attend the coroner's investigation, and it is said that the latter will consequently be wider than at first considered expedient. It is unofficially learned that the time in which the boat train should cover the 115 miles to London is 113 minutes.

Decomposed Body In Bushes

Providence, July 5.—The decomposed body of a man about 50 years old was found in a clump of bushes on Merino flats by two little girls who were picking flowers. The police are unable to determine whether or not the man committed suicide. A strap such as is sometimes worn to support rubber boots was drawn tightly around the neck.

Thaw's Thoughtful Act

New York, July 5.—Harry K. Thaw gave his fellow male prisoners at the Tombs a pleasant surprise yesterday by treating them all to ice cream and cake. The women and boys in the Tombs are supplied with ice cream and cake every Fourth of July. Thaw's treat required 46 quarts of ice cream and 30 dozen of cakes.

Auto Overturned

Cranston, R. I., July 5.—Miss Ida Haven of this town was dangerously injured in an automobile accident on Park avenue last evening in which the machine skidded in the muddy road and turned over on its side. It is stated by physicians that Miss Haven's chances for recovery are very doubtful.

Badly Mauled by Robbers

Milford, N. H., July 5.—After two days of unconsciousness, due to an assault by robbers who attacked her in her lonely farmhouse, two miles from the village of New Boston, Miss Jane McCurdy, aged 80 years, has partially recovered. The robbers secured a purse containing about $65 and escaped.

ASSUMES ALL THE BLAME

Rojestvenski Shields Others In Court Martial Proceedings

Cronstadt, July 5.—In a manly effort to save the surviving members of his staff and the other officers who, he believed, surrendered the gunboat Bedovi on account of their affection for their wounded commander and their desire to save his life, Admiral Rojestvensky pleaded guilty before a court martial. In a short speech to the court the admiral declared that he took all the blame on his own shoulders and asked that he alone be punished to the fullest extent of the law, virtually an appeal for condemnation and death, which is the penalty for hauling down the St. Andrews cross to a hostile vessel. All the other defendants, including the chief of Admiral Rojestvensky's staff, and Captain Baranoff, commanding the Bedovi, pleaded not guilty.

The admiral appeared to have quite recovered from the wounds he received in the battle of the Sea of Japan. After he had entered his plea the taking of testimony began. Members of the crew of the Bedovi will be examined to determine who ordered the surrender, the condition of the vessel, and the incidents of the capture. The taking of testimony will occupy several days.

Robbers Were Not Molested

Pawtucket, R. I., July 5.—Cash, tickets and papers of a total value of about $1000 were secured by safeblowers who entered the grocery and emigration agency of Kennedy, Gough & Murray. It is supposed that the robbers blew open the safe while a policeman who had discovered that the front door of the store was unlocked had gone to notify a member of the firm. When the policeman returned with the proprietor the burglary was discovered. The robbers had made their entrance and exit by the front door.

Heir Presumptive to Throne

Berlin, July 5.—Crown Princess Frederick William was safely accouched of a son yesterday. Although prayers have been said in the churches since the second Sunday in June, the event was hardly expected so soon. The news of the birth of his grandson was communicated to Emperor William by means of a wireless dispatch from Keil to the steamer Hamburg, on which he is proceeding to Trondhjem, Norway.

All Saluted Old Glory

Havana, July 5.—The American Independence day was celebrated yesterday more than on any previous occasion since intervention. The mayor granted immunity from the penalties for the discharge of fireworks, etc. The municipal and government bands last evening gave concerts of American music. The American flag was enthusiastically saluted and cheered by Cubans as well as Americans.

Weight-Throwing Record Broken

Boston, July 5.—Officials of the Clan-na-Gael organization of Massachusetts announce that Denis Mahoney exceeded the world's record in throwing the 56-pound weight at the annual field day of the society at Revere. Mahoney threw the weight, Irish style, with one hand, after an unlimited run, a distance of 39 feet 9½ inches. The previous record was 38 feet 5 inches.

Root Begins Long Journey

New York, July 5.—Secretary of State Root sailed from New York on the cruiser Charleston on his three months' South American tour. He was accompanied by Mrs. Root, his son and his daughter. He will go around Cape Horn and, returning, will cross the Isthmus of Panama. He will represent this country at the third Pan-American congress at Rio Janeiro.

Scientist Killed by Automobile

Buffalo, July 5.—Professor Henry A. Ward of Chicago, the naturalist, was struck by an automobile here and killed. Alexander Gunnell, the owner of the automobile, was running it at the time the accident occurred. He was placed under arrest and released on bail. Ward was an authority on meteorites, of which he had the largest collection in the world.

Tammany Out For Bryan

New York, July 5.—William J. Bryan and Congressman Charles A. Towne of New York were nominated for president and vice president by Congressman Henry of Texas in his "long talk" at the Tammany wigwam. Tammany braves yelled their approval in a mighty war whoop, and applauded with hands, feet and voices.

Disaster Off Grand Banks

St. Johns, July 5.—The Boston schooner Mary Powers, Captain O'Neill, foundered off the Grand Banks last Monday and 10 members of the crew managed to reach here in dories. They had rowed 80 miles to land. The small boats narrowly escaped being swamped several times.

Went to Twenty Rounds

Los Angeles, July 5.—Abe Attel, champion featherweight pugilist of America, got the decision in the 20th round over Frank Neil, bantamweight champion, before the Pacific Athletic club. Attel showed to great advantage, landing six blows to Neil's one.

Guilty of Corruption and Bribery

Paris, July 5.—By a vote of 253 to 221, the chamber of deputies annulled the election of Count Boni de Castellane to the chamber on the ground of corruption and bribery.

POLITICAL TILTS

Bryan and Reid Amuse a Big London Audience

GREAT FOURTH BANQUET

Nebraskan Delivers a Speech on the White Man's Burden, Saying We Must Educate the Ignorant--The Dignity of Labor

London, July 5.—William J. Bryan was the central figure at the annual Independence day dinner of the American society at the Hotel Cecil last night. Nearly 500 members and guests surrounded the society's board and cheered patriotic sentiments with the peculiar zest born of exile. Ambassador Reid and Bryan engaged in some sharp but good-natured raillery and banter over political differences, the crowd evincing its enjoyment of the sport with cheers and shouts of laughter.

Mr. Reid said with reference to Bryan: "At home, as a citizen, I have openly and squarely opposed him at every stage of his conspicuous career. I am reasonably sure that when I return home I shall continue to do the same. I believe he tonight is as well satisfied as I am, though by different reasoning, that the country we both love and try to serve has not been ruined by its gold. Abroad, as the official representative of the American people without distinction as to party, I am glad to welcome him here as a typical American, whose whole life has been lived in the daylight and one whom such a great host of my countrymen have long trusted and honored."

Mr. Bryan, arising amid laughter and cheers, said: "The temptation to make a political speech is strong within me. I have not had a chance to do so for 10 months. However, I will restrain myself. With reference to the ambassador's remarks on gold, I wish to say that when I see the progress my country has made walking on one leg, I wonder what it would have done walking on two legs. It is pleasing to testify that the ambassador not only has fought me, but that he has done it well. No American rejoices more than I that he is 3000 miles from his base. While abroad I have met many good Republicans—holding office—and I only wish there were enough offices abroad to take all the Republicans out of the country."

Mr. Bryan took for his subject "The White Man's Burden," and after quoting a stanza of Kipling's poem, he said in part:

"I take it for granted that our duty to the so-called inferior races is not discharged by merely feeding them in times of famine or by contributing to their temporary support when some other calamity overtakes them.

"Among the blessings which the Christian nations are at this time able—and in duty bound—to carry to the rest of the world, education comes first, and in nothing have the United States and England been more clearly helpful than in the advocacy of universal education.

"No one questions that Japan's influence has been a beneficent one since she has emerged from illiteracy and endowed her people with public schools open to all her boys and girls. The transition from a position of obscurity into a world power was scarcely more rapid than her transition from a menace into an ally.

"China is entering upon a similar experience, and I am confident that her era of reform will make her, not a yellow peril, but a powerful co-laborer in the international vineyard. In India, in the Philippines, in Egypt and even in Turkey, statistics show a gradual extension of education.

"The Christian nations must lead the movement for the promotion of peace, not only because they are enlisted under the banner of the Prince of Peace, but also because they have attained such a degree of intelligence that they can no longer take pride in a purely physical victory.

"The belief that moral questions can be settled by the shedding of human blood is a relic of barbarism; to doubt the dynamic power of righteousness is infidelity to truth itself.

"Our country has reason to congratulate itself upon the success of President Roosevelt in hastening peace between Russia and Japan. Through him our nation won a moral victory more glorious than a victory in war. King Edward has also shown himself a promoter of arbitration and a large number of members of parliament are enlisted in the same work. It means much that the two great English-speaking nations are thus arraigned on the side of peace.

"Let me appeal for a clearer recognition of the dignity of labor. The odium which rests upon the work of the hand has exerted a baneful influence the world around.

"While Europe and America have advanced far beyond the Orient in placing a proper estimate upon those who work, even our nations have not fully learned the lesson that employment at some useful avocation is essential to the physical health, intellectual development and normal growth."

Even Cossacks In Rebellion

Tiflis, July 5.—The military situation in the Caucasus is exceedingly grave. Disaffection has appeared among practically all the troops, including Cossacks. Murder, robbery and general lawlessness are increasing throughout the mountains. Thirty-five newspapers have been suppressed in Transcaucasia.

TRIBUTE TO WHITE.

Augustus Lukeman Says Architecture's Loss Is Stupendous.

A tribute to the late Stanford White as an architect and a man was recently paid in a statement given out by Augustus Lukeman, the sculptor, who was Mr. White's intimate friend for fifteen years, says the New York Tribune. Mr. Lukeman is a director of the National Sculpture society and the associate in important sculptural works of Augustus St. Gaudens and Daniel C. French. His statement follows in part:

"In the stress of excitement and the horror that seems to have overcome the art world no voice appears to be raised calling attention to the stupendous loss that has befallen the country in the death of Stanford White, the architect. In one or two papers there have been editorials that have touched only lightly on the achievements of this great man, this great producer and genius that has passed away. But it will be a generation or two before such a commanding figure will again appear upon the horizon of the art world, and it will take many years before the influence of his genius will cease to inspire and stimulate the taste for the beautiful in life and art which he has left behind.

"A great deal has been said about the supposed 'pace that kills' quality of this man, but practically nothing of the refinement of his nature that is everywhere in evidence where he was commissioned to speak the final word of artistic beauty. The silence of the art world strikes me as though it were overwhelmed by its loss and, still staggering under the blow, was not yet sufficiently recovered to give expression to admiration of the wonderful qualities of the man.

"Mr. White was not only an artist, a great architect, if not the greatest of his age, but he had a generous spirit, which stimulated the interest of the allied art workers and the taste of the public to a higher standard of beauty. You will find his refined spirit guiding the hand of the sculptor and painter invariably in each example of his architecture, and I do not hesitate to say he has many times sunk his individuality as only a true artist could do in order to make a concrete, perfect production. This is exemplified by many examples of Mr. White's work.

"Mr. White created a more beautiful environment in their homes for many laymen. He beautified their lives and made them see there was something more in life than lust. He is responsible for the best examples of art treasures that are found in the homes of our so called refined millionaires."

POSITIVE BLOCK SYSTEM.

Burlington Railway's Plan to Insure Greater Safety For Passengers.

All main lines of the Burlington railway, approximating 4,000 miles, are now operated under the positive block system. The last sections to be installed were between Kansas City and Council Bluffs and on certain of the lines west of the Missouri river. It was with considerable satisfaction that officials of the road recently made the announcement, as the work has been going on for some years.

Under the positive block system of operating trains the sections between stations, averaging from six to eight miles in length, are designated as blocks. Telegraph operators are constantly on duty at all stations, handling trains under orders from the chief dispatcher. A train cannot enter a block until that block is reported clear by the operator. The result is that accidents are practically impossible.

The cost is much greater than under the old train order system, as may be seen from the fact that ten operators in addition to the large number already in the service are required for the 128 miles of road between Council Bluffs and St. Joseph. It is considered, however, that the increased safety to the road's patrons is worth many times the cost of the new system.

CATS AS SCARECROWS.

Jersey Woman Protects Her Cherries With Two Well Trained Pets.

Mrs. Basse of Middletown, N. J., has hit upon a novel plan of protecting her cherries from catbirds and robins, says a special from Redbank, N. J., to the New York Times. Some cherry growers have adopted the plan of covering the trees with mosquito netting. Mrs. Basse's plan is much easier and less expensive. She has trained her two cats, Tommy and Jim, to do the work.

Every morning she takes a broom and, waving it at the cats, orders them up the cherry trees. The cats have become so well trained that they now run up the trees as soon as they see Mrs. Basse start for the broom. The broom is set against the tree to threaten the cats if they come down. When the broom is removed the cats take it as a signal to give up their day's vigil over catbirds and robins.

The plan has proved very successful. Not a bird comes near the tree as long as the cats are around.

Simple Life Project In Chicago.

A. Gluck, an Austrian physician, has started a new simple life colony in Chicago, says a dispatch from that city. The women who join the colony, married or single, will work only eight hours a day. Married persons with children are not wanted. The plan is to establish industries, provide pure food, establish eating houses and health and bathing resorts. No one will be paid for his labor. One day each week each member of the community will fast and rest. A strict vegetarian diet will prevail. Dr. Gluck has given his fortune of $30,000 to the society.

Lawn Party.

The second annual lawn party of the Rosebud club was held June 29 at the the residence of Miss Belle McGilvary Crescent street, and was very successful. The following members of the club had charge of the tables: Ice cream, Annie Sullivan and Marie Magee, lemonade, Margaret Burke and Lillian McGilvary, fancy work, Susie Hayes, orange tree, Katherine Hussey, candy, Louis Dennn, cake Marguerite McCarthy. A hurdy-gurdy furnished music. The potato race was won by Henry Cashman and Beatrice Morrissettee, and the running race by Joseph O'Brien and May Saville.

The proceeds of the party are to be given to the Catholic Charitable Society connected with St. Mary's church. Much of the success of the party was was due to the untiring efforts of Miss Belle McGilvary, president of the club.

The boys' club, the Huscarls, played an interesting game of ball at Ward 2 playground on the morning of the Fourth, with an expert team from Boston. The game was won by the Huscarls; score 8 to 7. Umpire, James Melville.

The boat races and tennis tournament which were to come off July 4th at the foot of River street, have been postponed, on account of rain, till Saturday at 12.30. The races are in charge of James Corprew, Frank Melville, and Geo. Sheppard. The judges are Mr. Adams, Webster Newcomb and Claude Patch.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar H. Field of 251 Newport avenue, Wollaston, entertained on the evenings of July 3d and the 4th at their cosy home. The piazza was prettily decorated with potted plants, cut flowers and Japanese lanterns. The lawn was aglow with red lights. In the midst of plenty of music and firing of guns, a large beautiful new flag of the stars and stripes was unfurled to the breeze. The guests were entertained with piano duets, banjo and phonograph selections. Ice cream, lemonade, confectionery and fruit were served.

A Pair of Cuff Links

[Original.]

John Thurlow, an engineer of marked ability, was appointed to conduct the building of a railroad in Mexico. Being a widower with one daughter, he decided to have her, as soon as she left school, join him in his camp in the mountains. Louise Thurlow was a girl graduate of two weeks' standing when she alighted from an old fashioned stagecoach, springing at the same time into her father's arms. Her arrival was witnessed by Guy Deckard, a young man who held a position on her father's engineering staff.

There were perhaps a hundred people in the camp, some of them living in temporary buildings, others in tents. Louise was assigned a tent beside her father's, and the out of door life brought the color into her cheeks as a peach will ripen in the sun. She had her mandolin with her, and Guy Deckard was the possessor of a fine voice. When he was not professionally engaged they would be sitting on camp chairs making music for the others or taking long walks to different points in the mountains from which they could obtain commanding views.

The current of young love runs rapidly, and one evening not two weeks after Louise's arrival while sitting in the moonlight on a cliff which formed a natural porch to the camp the couple plighted their troth. In lieu of an engagement ring the young man slipped the ring of his class at the scientific school on her finger, to be worn until he could procure one more appropriate. It was also agreed between them that he should wear a pair of gold cuff links Louise wore at the moment he "told his story."

Had Louise been under the care of a mother instead of a father the lady would have been well aware of what was transpiring. Not so John Thurlow. He was not only blind to the wooing; but, although the couple flaunted their exchanged love tokens under his very eyes, he did not see them. When Louise confessed and Deckard asked for her hand the father awakened to the fact that his daughter was no longer the child he had supposed her. However, if he had to give her up, he was not averse to giving her to his valued assistant.

One day when Deckard returned from some work he had been doing at a distance he wore a troubled look, and Louise noticed that her links were not in his cuffs.

"Where are they?" she asked.

"I can't tell you."

"Do you mean that you have parted with them?"

"Not willingly."

Louise drew the ring he had given her from her finger and handed it to him.

The agonized look in his eyes frightened her. He recoiled, refusing to touch the ring.

"Give me till tomorrow evening," he said in a husky voice, "and I will either wear your token or"—

"What?"

He did not finish.

The next morning Deckard mounted a horse about to depart. Louise was standing near, troubled at his appearance, and stepped toward him to say something; but, putting spurs to his horse, he rode away, throwing her a kiss. All day she waited his return anxiously. There was evidently a mystery about the affair, but she was too young, too little familiar with the country and the people, to even guess what it might be. Had she suspected the danger into which she had sent her lover she would have clung to him before the whole camp rather than let him go.

Evening came, and he had not returned. Louise sat on the cliff watching for him and at length caught sight of a horseman coming. Her heart leaped for joy, thinking that he was Guy. But as the rider passed through a field of light cast through a canyon in the mountains by the declining sun she saw that she had been mistaken. Then a sudden fear seized her. We are prone when worried to look for bad news, and she felt that the coming man bore bad news for her.

Slowly he wound his way up the steep side of the mountain and, reaching the camp, rode up to her father's tent. The two men conversed in a low tone, and Louise saw her father look at her and turn pale. She darted to him and threw her arms about his neck.

"Tell me quick; has anything happened to Guy?"

It was useless to try to conceal the secret. Guy Deckard's dead body had been found with a knife hole in his breast part way up the mountain near an inn by the roadside.

Mr. Thurlow would have sent his daughter elsewhere, but it was not only impossible, but she needed him to sustain her. No clew was found to the murderer, and both Louise and her father dreaded if there should be a discovery it would be a painful one. Mr. Thurlow took her with him often when visiting different parts of the work, hoping by this means to divert her mind. One day they were lunching at a little tavern when a Mexican girl entered, bringing them some fruit. As she set the dish on the table Louise fell against her father, trembling. Stretching an arm, pointing a finger toward the waitress, she cried fiercely:

"The murderess!"

"Why do you say that, my child?" asked her father, astonished.

"See! My sleeve links! She's wearing them!"

The girl cast back a glance of fury. Mr. Thurlow seized his daughter by the arm and dragged her away.

An hour later the Mexican girl stabbed herself.

Merrymounts Win and Lose

The Merrymounts went to Weymouth on the afternoon of the Fourth and met defeat at the hands of the strong Dewey team in an interesting game by a score of 3 to 2.

Both pitchers were very effective and each allowed but five hits. Sharp fielding by the home team cut off several Merrymount safties. The Merrymounts played superb ball in all but the fifth inning, when a bunch of errors gave the Deweys their three runs.

The Merrymounts scored one in the fifth on Taylor's hit and steal, Gram's out and Bennett's safe wallop, Kolson singled but Bennett was nailed in going to third.

In the ninth Stevens singled and stole second, went to third on Cole's out and scored when Park threw wild trying to catch him napping.

Blanchard of the Deweys cut off a three-sacker by Hoxie by a sensational catch in centre field.

Bennett and Gram made difficult catches in the outfield and Baker and Stevens did some good work around the diamond.

Holiday Games

About the only game in the city on on the Fourth was at West Quincy in the morning when the Copeland club won from the Quincys 7 to 3. The afternoon game with the South Quincys was called off.

At Merrymount park on the morning of the Fourth the Merrymounts defeated the Wollastons, a picked team of local players by a score 12 to 0 in eight innings, Gram pitched winning ball for the Wollastons, but was poorly supported. Kolson allowed but two safe hits.

Educated Wild Beast.

One of the special attractions with the Walter L. Main Circus & Cummins Greater Wild West and Indian Congress which will open in Quincy, Monday, July 9, are the educated wild beasts which have been brought together from all quarters of the globe and trained to act and play together in perfect accord. Lions, tigers, leopards, pumas, hyenas, bears, baboons, sheep and goats are shown grouped together in utter, or apparent unconsciousness of the fact that in their natural wilds they are respectively hereditary enemies. A novel feature will be the appearance of one of the largest lionesses in captivity and her two cubs, which were born in the winter quarters at Geneva, Ohio. At times the animals indulge in wrestling matches, and it is one of the sights of Colonel Cummins' exhibition to see the lions and tigers after their act is finished, roll over on the floors of their cages and buffet each other. In his specialty these animals will be seen in pyramid formation with the various types of wild and tame animals grouped indiscriminately, ending with a finale of lions and tigers lying down with a lamb in their midst.

Information Wanted On Turbine Engines

A Washington dispatch to a Boston paper says turbines will not be installed in the new battleships South Carolina and Michigan, if the recommendation of the board of construction of the navy department is approved by Secretary Bonaparte.

Bids for these two new battleships, which were authorized by congress last year, were opened at the navy department last week and referred to the board on construction for recommendation.

At first there was a deadlock in the board upon the question of turbines, several of the members were in favor of awarding the contract for one ship to William Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia, whose bid of $3,540,000 as the lowest bid submitted for a ship with reciprocating engines, and of accepting the bid for the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. for the other ship whose bid of $3,689,000 was the lowest submitted for a ship to be fitted with turbines.

Upon further consideration the board came to a unanimous agreement to the effect that the new battleships should not be equipped with turbines for the reason that turbine machinery was still in the experimental stage, the board calls attention to the fact that as two of the scout cruisers now building are to be fitted with turbine machinery, one having the Parsons and the other Curtis engines, while the third scout is to have reciprocating engines, it would be better to await the result of the trials of these three sister ships before contracting for other ships with turbine engines.

The board has therefore recommended that the contract for one ship be awarded to the Cramps, and the other to the New York Shipbuilding Co. of Camden, N. J., whose bid of $3,385,000 was the second lowest for a ship fitted with reciprocating engines. The Cramps promise to complete their vessel in 41 months and the New York Co. in 40 months.

It is fully expected that the Fore River Co., of which Former Chief Constructor Francis T. Bowles is president, and the Newport News Shipbuilding Co., will make a strong effort to refute the arguments of the board in support of its recommendations.

Both of these companies have made a thorough study of turbines and their bids for the two new battleships showed their conviction that the warships of the future would be propelled by turbine engines.

A later Washington dispatch says Secretary Bonaparte has requested the Fore River Ship Building Company of Quincy, Mass., and other companies interested in the construction of turbine warships to submit to him further arguments in favor of that type before July 11, when he will decide upon the recommendation of the navy board of construction that the Michigan and South Carolina be built with the usual engines.

MILTON.

The night before the Fourth was a very quiet one in Milton. There was practically no disturbance, and but for the occasional explosion of a fire cracker it did not differ from other nights. Not a single alarm of fire was sounded, and the department was not called out once for a fire. It is somewhat remarkable, but there has not been a bell or a still alarm for a fire in Milton since May 25.

The Thursday Evening club has closed its rooms until September.

East Milton now has but one grocery store. The grocery in the Ellsworth block after many changes in proprietors has closed its doors.

The lawn party Saturday will be on the Babcock estate on Adams street.

The Central station fire apparatus was called into Boston three times the night before the Fourth.

The new piece of fire apparatus for East Milton is expected to arrive any day.

Robert L. Raymond of Milton has been appointed by Gov. Guild on the new commission for the industrial education of the blind.

Quincy Young Man To Enter Ministry

Mr. H. H. Benedict, the senior son of the Rev. George Benedict, for several years the efficient pastor of the Point church and now the beloved pastor of the North Abington Congregational church, has taken a partial college course; has been graduated from the Bridgewater Normal training school and has taught one year at Mashpee, Mass.

In the interval between the Mashpee pastorates and while the church there was candidating or being supplied, Mr. Benedict filled the pulpit several Sabbaths, very acceptably and proved himself to be an interesting, instructive and spiritual speaker.

He appeared before the Norfolk County Association of Congregational Ministers at Randolph, on Tuesday of this week, and after due examination, the association voted to license him at the October session.

His first sermon after this action of the association on Tuesday, will be preached in the church of his boyhood, the Washington street Congregational church, Quincy Point, on the evening of Sunday, July 8. The large circle of friends who know young Mr. Benedict, congratulate him on the choice of his profession and wish him success in his life of christian service. He is to re-enter Yale, probably the Theological department, in September.

A Rescue at The Bathhouse

But for the prompt action of John B. Foley, a man who refused to give his name, would have been drowned at the City bath house on Thursday afternoon. The man was a good swimmer, but when near the outer raft, where the water was deeper than he thought, he attempted to touch bottom. The water rushed over his head and he swallowed a large mouthful. This so confused him that he lost his head and he was in immediate danger of being drowned.

Mr. Foley who was on shore saw the man's danger, and without stopping to undress he jumped into a life boat and rowed out to the man. By that time the man had gone down for the third time. Mr. Foley dived for him and succeeded in getting the man ashore. He and Mr. Starr worked over the man until they brought him to.

The Cadets In Camp Tonight

The 1st corps of Cadets, M. V. M., will go into camp tonight at Hingham, for eight days.

They are expected to arrive between 6 and 7 and the first ceremony will be that of guard mount, which will take place immediately after the arrival of the battalion. Col. Talbot has made a change from the usual routine of guard duty this year. No officer of the guard will be detailed, but instead a sergeant will be appointed every day.

The advance details reported to Quartermaster Lieut. Alfred S. Rowan at the camp on Burdett avenue on Thursday. Lieut. F. G. Brackett, commissary of subsistence, went to Hingham early and began work. Armorer George W. Coolbroth and his squad have the camp laid out, tents pitched and everything in readiness for the corps.

A telephone exchange, "No. 41310 Hingham," has been established for the camp. A United States mail service is also established.

The camp has been named "Camp Duty."

Many think that the seat of Madison M. Cannon in the City Council should be declared vacant, and a special election ordered.

URIC-O CURED HIM.

Rheumatism Tortured and Crippled Mr. Theo. D. Hadley of Kennett Square, Pa.

Dear Friend:

You will remember of my writing you some time ago regarding Uric-O for rheumatism. I took your advice and purchased three bottles from my local druggist and began its use at once. Favorable effects were experienced and day by day I improved. I have used the three bottles and can truthfully state that I am a well man.

Uric-O has cured in me as bad a case of rheumatism as ever existed. My suffering for months was intense, some nights not able to get one moment's sleep, could not raise my right hand to my head—had to do all with my left. I could not even dress myself for over three months. My trouble being inflammatory rheumatism had settled in my right arm and shoulder, crippling, as I thought, permanently. This is the third letter I have written, a thing I hardly expected to be able to do again, as I did not think I could possibly recover from the terrible effects of the disease, as you know I am past the four score year on the way to the "New Jerusalem." I am happy to state that after suffering so long with the most painful forms of rheumatism, that Uric-O has cured me and nearly normal conditions exist. My former strength is improving, and yet for all I am 85 years old, sleep well again, eat well and as hale and hearty as a man at the age of fifty. I thank you again most heartily for recommending Uric-O to me. I can now recommend it to my friends.

Theo. H. Hadley, Kennett Square, Pa.

This marvelous specific is sold at 75 cents a bottle, two weeks' treatment, a blood cure for all forms of rheumatism, acting alone on the blood, muscles and kidneys. Uric-O is a liquid taken in spoonful doses three times daily and must be used for rheumatism only. Ask your druggist for samples and circulars explaining the treatment.

Mr. Keating Writes on the Fire

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I wish to correct a statement in yesterday's issue that "the keys to the fire alarm boxes were removed from the boxes and put into the pockets of the police officers."

I will say the officer on the beat which covered box 25 and box 27 did not have the keys in his pocket, nor the knowledge where they were in his head.

When the alarm for the fire in my building was to be given, no key to either box 25 or 27 could be found, and a paving stone was used for an opener.

The result was a broken fire alarm box and the alarm delayed in consequence. It seems to me it would have been better to have had a few false alarms than have boxes ruined and long delays in pulling in alarms.

You say "in the fire trap." I can't see why my buildings are any more of a fire trap, with a gallon of kerosene oil and a match in the hands of a firebug down here, than buildings in City Square that have been afire three times within nine months.

Now as to police protection in such locations. There was to be only one officer to cover a very large teritory. I knew that to be a fact, and made application to the Chief of Police for authority to act without pay. My answer from him was that he did not have time to appoint me.

Beautiful Tributes To Mrs. Choate

The funeral of Mrs. Mabelle Marion MacLeod Choate, wife of George F. Choate, Jr., who died Sunday, was held from 42 North Central avenue on Tuesday. The services were very largely attended and were conducted by Rev. Edward Norton.

During the services Edward E. Bullock sang "Passing out of the Shadow," "Good Night," and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

The burial was at Mt. Wollaston.

Among the many beautiful flowers were the following:

Pillow of roses, carnations and ferns, "Our only child" Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Macleod.

Pillow, "A loving wife."

Wreath of roses, Mr. and Mrs. Choate.

Roses from Mr. and Mrs. Howarth.

Basket of roses and pinks, William E. Tarbox.

White pinks, Miss Bland.

Pinks and roses, Mr. and Mrs. MacDonnell and Dorothy MacDonnell.

Bouquet of roses, Mrs. Sargent.

Basket of pinks, a friend.

Spray of white pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen.

Spray of pink sweet peas, Mrs. McSwords.

Spray of white pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Patterson and Miss Elsie Patterson.

Spray of white sweet peas, Miss Eliza Miner.

White roses, Ladies' benevolent society, Baptist church East Milton.

Basket of roses, pinks, star of Bethlehem and ferns, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hodges.

Basket of pink pinks and ferns from the brothers and sisters of Mr. Choate.

White and pink carnations, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Sawin.

Wreath of roses, pinks, ferns, palms and lilies etc., Mr. Choate's fellow workmen.

White pinks and ferns, Mrs. Nash, Arlington street.

Bouquet of roses, pinks, ferns, Mrs. Joy.

Nearly 1,000 Transfers.

During the six months ending July 1 there were 3422 instruments recorded in the Norfolk registry against 3485 for the same period in 1905. Aside from tax deeds, tax releases and takings, there were 980 deeds, about the same number as a year ago. There were 708 mortgages, which was 14 less than in 1905.

—Brocktons contributions to the California sufferers amounted to $14,078.

Funeral of Rev. Victor Witting

The body of Rev. Victor Witting, the veteran Methodist pastor, was taken to Worcester for interment. Funeral services were held in that city on Thursday at the Quinsigamond Methodist church, which was inadequate to accommodate all who wished to attend.

The services were conducted by Rev. E. Wyman, and eulogies were given by Rev. Mr. Thornblade of Boston and Rev. H. W. Ecklund of Worcester. The bearers were six associates of the dead clergyman in the ministry, Rev. S. L. Carlander of Quincy, Rev. H. W. Ecklund of Worcester, Rev. C. E. Rydstrom of Lynn, Rev. C. G. Hagberg of Worcester, Rev. C. A. Cederberg of Malden, and Rev. O. W. Johnson of Lowell.

The church was draped in mourning, there being streamers of black and white, and a white dove hovered over the casket. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The burial was in Swedish cemetery.

Tourney for Caddies.

Harold S. Tuck with a score of 89 won the first prize of $10 in the 18-hole championship for caddies of the Wollaston Golf club on Thursday. John F. Reid, Jr., and Arthur Quale were tied at 94 and were awarded $3.75 each, and the fourth prize went to C. Stewart Dineen with 95. Other scores were: Desmond A. Reid, 98; V. A. Curley, 98; John J. Hamilton, 99; Frank Bestgen, 101; Harry T. Freethy, 103; I. L. Hearn, 108; Alfred Keith, 111; and E. L. Cockrey, 112.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

What a beautiful and impressive sight it is to see the packers worrying over the danger of the inspection law reducing the stock-raisers' profits.

Mr. Bailey, the circus king, left an estate of several millions and his heirs are now having a circus over it in the courts.

It seems to be settled that the government will pay the cost of meat inspection. The packers will then deduct it from the prices of cattle and add it to the price of meat.

June was the banner month for marriages. During that month the City Clerk issued 65 marriage licenses. This is the largest number ever issued in a single month in Quincy.

By the way, there does not appear to be a great rush on the part of the city government to put in those water meters for which a few were clamoring. It is now the last half of the year, so that they cannot have a six months' trial this year.

Ex-Senator Samuel W. George of Haverhill, who helped materially to bring about a better gas situation in Quincy, has on completion of his term, been removed from the board of Gas Commissioners by Gov. Guild, who has appointed Alonzo R. Weed, the ex-Mayor of Newton.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The city of Newburyport proposes to determine the value of a shade tree and also the degree of responsibility of the gas company which allows its street mains to get in such condition that escaping gas kills the trees in the vicinity. Suit has been entered by the city against the gas company for the death of a number of shade trees from this cause, and the action will be one of general interest in the commonwealth.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ It was an expensive storm on the Fourth for a lot of people, especially hotel and restaurant keepers at the beaches, and the managers of baseball and other out-door amusements in cities and towns. As a money saver for Brockton people it may have helped some. Many undoubtedly remained in the city to see the announced fun who otherwise would have passed the whole or part of the day away, and many more remained when they noted the morning weather conditions. Which means that there are many dollars in town today to be spent mostly in Brockton that ordinarily would have been spent in other places.—Brockton Enterprise.

Wrecked by Knives.

A number of accidents which have occurred recently to British fishing vessels have been attributed to the magnetized condition of the sheath knives carried by the sailors, says the Electrical Review. Iron is easily magnetized and may acquire considerable strength due only to the earth's field. If it be used anywhere near a dynamo or motor it is almost sure to become strongly magnetic. It has recently been discovered that the sailors' knives may become magnetized so strongly as to influence considerably the ship's compass, and that the wrecks referred to above have been brought about in this way. It has been suggested that the sailors be supplied with knives of non-magnetic material, when the danger will at once disappear.

AT POINT OF WAR

Strain Between Guatemala and Salvador Is Acute

UNCLE SAM AS ARBITER

Has Already Taken Steps to Check Any Combination In Central America to Overthrow President of Guatemala

Washington, July 6.—Guatemala and Salvador are making overtures for the arbitration of their troubles resulting from the alleged activity of Salvador in support of the revolutionary movement against President Cabrera of Guatemala and it is likely that the United States will be selected as the country to act as peacemaker.

The state department has been advised of the desire of the two countries, which are almost at the point of making war against each other, to have their differences settled by arbitration, and although formal negotiations have not been made as yet, there seems to be but little doubt that an amicable settlement of the points of difference will be finally effected through arbitration.

At the first intimation of outside interference in Guatemalan affairs the state department sent the Marblehead from Panama to prevent meddling, and Mexico and the United States both made it clear that they would look with disfavor upon any combination of any Central American powers to overthrow President Cabrera of Guatemala. When the position of the United States became known Salvador announced the appointment of a special envoy to present the Salvadorean position to American authorities and prevent any serious international complications. The state department has been advised of the departure of Mr. Pacus, the special envoy, for this country, but it is not believed that he will arrive in Washington for several weeks, because of the difficulties of reaching this country from Salvador.

Guatemala has complained bitterly to the United States of the conduct of Salvador, and charges that the latter government has taken every means to forward the cause of the revolutionary general, Barillas, and to hasten the downfall of President Cabrera. It is charged that Salvador not only winked at all expeditions which crossed her borders into Guatemalan territory, but actually sent troops into Guatemalan territory and committed many acts which cannot be regarded as less than the invasion of the territory of a friendly power.

Challenge Cup Goes to Belgium

Henley, Eng., July 6.—The crew representing the Club Nautique de Gand (Belgium) defeated Trinity Hall, Cambridge, by three lengths in the final for the grand challenge cup. Time, 7:09. The cup thus leaves England for the first time in its history, and for the next 12 months will adorn the headquarters of the Belgian rowing organization. The ease with which the Belgians beat the crack British crew was a rather rough shock to the complacency of the home oarsmen.

Wellman Starts For Spitzbergen

Tromsoe, Norway, July 6.—The Wellman-Chicago Record-Herald Arctic expedition sailed yesterday on the steamer Frithjof for its headquarters at Spitzbergen. Steamer Kong Helge sailed today with the remainder of the material for gas-making and erecting dwellings. Wellman is on board the Frithjof with his principal assistants. He hopes to make his first wireless test in about a fortnight.

A Mountain-Climbing Feat

Rome, July 6.—King Victor Emmanuel has received a telegram from the Duke of Abruzzi, his cousin, filed at Uganda, Central Africa, announcing that on June 18 he had succeeded in reaching the summit of Mount Ruvenzori, which had never been climbed. The mountain is situated between Albert Nyanza and Albert Edward Nyanza and is about 18,000 feet above the level of the sea.

Insurance Agent Arrested

Torrington, Conn., July 6.—An insurance agent giving the name of Frank McKay was arrested here at the request of the police of Boston, charged with the larceny of sums amounting to about $700. The man is said to be Frank Mackewiecz, 25 years of age, with a wife and family living at Hyde Park, Mass.

Missing Youth Found Drowned

Catskill, N. Y., July 6.—The body of a young man found floating in the river here last evening has been identified as that of Paul R. Willard of Stanford, Conn., aged 17. Young Willard disappeared a few hours after boarding the night boat C. W. Morse at New York city on Monday night.

Saloons Open in San Francisco

San Francisco, July 6.—For the first time since April 18, San Francisco saloons were permitted to reopen yesterday. Licenses had been granted to about 600 drinking places and all did a rushing business. Saloon licenses are now $500 a year against $84 before the fire.

Canal Fund Bonds Out

Washington, July 6.—Secretary Shaw is in receipt of about 100 bids for small blocks of the Panama canal fund bonds, $30,000,000 of which he offered last Monday for popular subscription.

No Funerals on Sabbath Day

Council Bluffs, Ia., July 6.—Having compelled the saloons to close on Sunday, Mayor MacRae is now seeking to put a lid on the ministers. After stating that he believed that the ministers of Council Bluffs were disregarding the commandment to keep the Sabbath holy by conducting Sunday funerals, MacRae asked the city council to take some action to compel the ministers to do their work in the six days allotted them. He insisted that they must refrain from conducting funerals on the Sabbath day.

Summer Girls as Witnesses

Atlantic City, N. J., July 6.—In order to secure proper evidence in the fight being made against owners of smoke belching chimneys, the mayor has issued a call for summer girls who have had dresses and lingerie ruined by soot to come forward as witnesses. The new anti-smoke law insists that damage be shown, and the evidence of the women is necessary to make a case.

Wire Tappers' Sharp Game

Windsor, Ont., July 6.—A gang of wire tappers cut in on the Windsor race track and intercepted and changed the result of the second race. Confederates in Cincinnati, Chicago, Louisville and other cities all over the country won large sums of money on the horse sent over the wires as the winner of the race.

Prosecuting Tobacco Trust

Nashville, July 6.—Investigation of the alleged tobacco trust began before the federal grand jury here, particularly as the alleged trust affects the growing of leaf tobacco in Tennessee, Kentucky and other states. So far 15 witnesses have been summoned to appear before the grand jury.

At the Odd Fellows' picnic at Canobie lake park, at Salem, N. H., on Wednesday, July 25th, there will be a great ball match when Mt. Wollaston and Puritan lodges will cross bats with John Hancock and Neponset lodges.

BLAZING METEORS.

The Short Lived Splendor of a Shooting Star.

A small body as large as a paving stone or not as large as a marble is moving round the sun. Just as a mighty planet revolves in an ellipse, so this small object will move round and round in an ellipse, with the sun in the focus. There are at the present moment inconceivable myriads of such meteors moving in this manner. They are too small and too distant for our telescopes, and we can never see them except under extraordinary circumstances.

At the time we see the meteor it traverses a distance of more than twenty miles a second. Such a velocity is almost impossible near the earth's surface. The resistance of the air would prevent it. Aloft in the emptiness of space there is no air to resist it.

In the course of its wanderings the body may come near the earth and within a few hundred miles of its surface, of course, begins to encounter the upper surface of the atmosphere with which the earth is inclosed. To a body moving with the appalling velocity of a meteor, a plunge into the atmosphere is usually fatal. Even though the upper layers of air are excessively attenuated, yet they suddenly check the velocity, almost as a rifle bullet would be checked when fired into water. As a meteor rushes through the atmosphere the friction of the air warms its surface; gradually it becomes red hot, then white hot and is finally driven off into the vapor with a brilliant light, while we on the earth, one or two hundred miles below, exclaim:

"Oh, look! There is a shooting star."

Purity of Milk.

In Paris the municipal chemists accept milk as pure when it contains one ounce of butter and four ounces of solids per quart. At Bern milk must contain at least 3 per cent of butter and may contain 90 per cent of water. At Berlin the police seize all milk offered for sale which is below the legally required standard of 2.7 per cent of fatty matters. This allows the dairymen to add with safety from 10 to 13 per cent of water to fairly rich milk.

A CRISIS IN EGYPT

It May Be Forced by Fanaticism of the Natives

A PROBLEM FOR ENGLAND

Foreign Secretary Grey Admits That It Is a Serious One--Discusses Congo Question and the Proposed Visit of British Fleet to Russian Waters

London, July 6.—Parliament and the country were given a surprise last night by an unexpected and sensational speech by Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, on the situation in Egypt. An interesting debate on foreign affairs had been anticipated when the house of commons took up the foreign estimates, but on account of Russia and the Congo affairs rather than Egypt.

All other subjects, however, were temporarily forgotten when the house realized the momentous character of Grey's deliverance with regard to Egypt. Speaking in a solemn tone and amid a tense silence, the minister declared that the recent attack on British officers at Tantab was not accidental, but a deliberate manifestation of the fatanical spirit which had necessitated the strengthening of the garrison in Egypt, and declared that unless the authority of Lord Cromer and the Egyptian government were strongly upheld it might lead to a situation requiring the adoption of such unconstitutional measures to meet the emergency as would be especially distasteful to the Liberal government.

With regard to the Egyptian affair Sir Edward said he accepted full responsibility, and pointed out that danger might accrue when dealing with eastern peoples, through discussions of this kind. The secretary proceeded to refer to the great growth of fanatical feeling in Egypt and throughout North Africa recently, which might necessitate even further measures to protect Europeans in Egypt, and, speaking in a solemn manner, said:

"As things are now I say deliberately, and with a full sense of responsibility, that if parliament does anything at this moment to weaken or destroy the authority of the Egyptian government you will come face to face with a very serious situation, for should fanaticism get the better of constituted authority, there might arise the necessity for extreme measures."

Dealing with the Congo question, Grey said he distrusted the proposed reforms because the system was wrong. He disliked trading companies, and believed the root of the whole mischief was in the system under which the state itself was a trading company and monopolist companies held administrative power. If other powers would join Great Britain in insisting on reforms the government would welcome them. If the Congo state talked of its rights, Sir Edward said, Great Britain also had rights. The question of the reservation of enormous areas for private property must be dealt with, and if any dispute arose there was The Hague tribunal. He believed it would be beneficial to resume British consular jurisdiction, but this would be discouraging Belgium from taking over the Congo government and therefore he thought the government should wait; but it could not wait forever.

With regard to the proposed visit of a British fleet to Cronstadt, the foreign secretary said he felt assured that the central government of Russia was neither aware of nor had connived at the recent unfortunate occurrences. No interference from the outside would strengthen a reform party, but rather reactionaries or revolutionists. As a British fleet was in the Baltic last year and had not visited Russian ports, it would be remarkable if a fleet should not do so this year. He hoped the usual civilities would be observed. The fleet would go entirely without reference to Russian internal affairs. It would be impossible to make a change now without giving rise to the suspicion that Great Britain was taking sides. The visit would be in a friendly spirit, to pay compliments to Emperor Nicholas and the Russian nation.

Sir Edward said he could not imagine the Russian parliament interpreting the visits as taking sides. The only safe rule in the present Russian trouble, he added, was to avoid comment and interference. Through all that was happening there were signs that the vitality, energy and character of a great people were working to a great future.

Insular Attorney General

Washington, July 6.—Georgorio Araneta, solicitor general of the Philippines, has been selected as attorney general of the insular government at a salary of $7000 per annum. Araneta is about 35 years old. He has learned English and can make argument in court in either Spanish or English. He is a native of Visaya.

Liabilities Exceedingly Heavy

Philadelphia, July 6.—Alden H. Weed and Thomas J. McAvoy, trading as E. R. Hawkins & Co., manufacturers of woolen goods, were declared voluntary bankrupts in the United States district court. The liabilities are given as $044,339.

Tillman's Opponent Withdraws

Charleston, July 6.—A special from Columbia says that W. W. Lumpkin has withdrawn from the race for United States senator. This leaves the field clear for Senator Tillman's re-election.

STILL IN FERMENT

Important Russian Regiments Join Ranks of Mutineers

HOLD SAMARA CAPITAL

Government Adopting Double Method to Counteract Workmen's Revolutionary Spirit--Queer Moscow Proclamation

St. Petersburg, July 6.—Dispatches received here from Samara state that two regiments garrisoning that important provincial capital mutinied and presented a series of political and service demands. The officers promised to satisfy the service demands if the mutineers would return to duty, but the men replied that they would be satisfied only with compliance with all of their demands. The mutineers still command the situation, but are not indulging in excesses. The situation is complicated by the fact that in Samara the revolutionists are pushing a movement to proclaim a republic in case a general strike is declared and may seize the present opportunity to further their aims.

The ferment among the soldiers and sailors at Odessa and Sebastopol continues.

No inkling of the reported rioting and pillage at Vladivostok has reached the Russian public, but the military authorities, who control the telegraph, would be able to withhold for days any news of such conditions, as they did of the last uprising there.

The double method which the government is adopting to counteract the revolutionary spirit among the workmen is illustrated by a proclamation issued yesterday by the prefect of police of Moscow. While prohibiting, under heavy penalty, open-air meetings, the carrying of arms and the inciting of strikes, it orders employers of manual artisans, such as bakers, carpenters and shoemakers, to introduce the 10-hour day instead of the 12-hour day, not to require Sunday labor, and to improve the food and lodgings of employes, under the same penalties as are invoked against the workmen. The prefect has also ordered that striking building trades employes shall be expelled from Moscow. The Moscow city council has decided that relief for the unemployed shall not be extended to strikers.

Police activity against the "patriots" who are trying to incite anti-Jewish uprisings is reported from various sections of the country. The local authorities evidently have taken warning from the change in sentiment in official circles at St. Petersburg since publicity was given to the Bialystok events. The policeman of Bialystok who was caught firing revolver shots which were ascribed to Jewish revolutionists, precipitating a renewal of the massacre there, has been dismissed from the service. He pleaded that he was drunk at the time and had no intention of provoking a renewal of the excesses.

Was In Assassination Plot

St. Petersburg, July 6.—The council of the empire yesterday confirmed the credentials of all its members, though there remains some question as to the validity of the election of M. Oushakoff on account of his having been convicted and exiled to Siberia 40 years ago for participation in the first plot to assassinate Alexander II. Oushakoff subsequently was pardoned and changed his views.

Mussulmans Murdered

Kars, Transcaucasia, July 6.—The decapitated bodies of seven Mussulmans, who had been summoned to appear as witnesses at the investigation into the inter-racial troubles, were found yesterday outside the fortress. It is feared this will provoke reprisals against Armenians.

"We Shall Soon Be Back"

Moscow, July 6.—Maria Spiridonovo, who killed Chief of Police Luzhenoffsky of Tambov, was yesterday sent to Siberia with other prisoners. Spectators at the railway station bade her keep up a stout heart, to which she replied: "We shall soon be back."

Union Cards Come High

New York, July 6.—Secretary Platt of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union was held in $2500 bail in a police court on a charge of grand larceny. Louis Miller swore that he had paid Platt $200 for credentials certifying that he (Miller) was a member of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union. It is said that 17 men will testify that they paid sums ranging from $150 to $200 to Platt and two other officers of the union in question for union cards.

Parisians See the Longworths

Paris, July 6.—Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth arrived here last night. The crowd at the station showed much curiosity to see President Roosevelt's daughter, lining the platform and saluting respectfully. The party were escorted to the American embassy, where they are the guests of Ambassador and Mrs. McCormick.

An Embezzler of Jewelry

New York, July 6.—Charged with embezzling about $1200 worth of jewelry from his employer, Harry Levinson, 25 years old, a jewelry salesman of Boston, was arrested and locked up here. Levinson is said to have confessed to the theft. His employer was Louis Sonnabend.

GAME DOGS AND GAME.

A Remarkable Instance of the Influence of Heredity.

The setter ate the mutton chop greedily, but he would have none of the partridge bones.

"A good game dog," said his master, "can't eat game. Its taste is repugnant to him. This is a remarkable instance of the influence of heredity.

"Game dogs have been trained for many generations not to eat the game—the birds and rabbits and what not—which they bring back to their masters in their mouths. They have been trained to consider that the eating of such game would be a disgrace and an unpardonable sin, the same as bank clerks have been trained to consider that the pocketing of a few dollars from the millions they annually handle would be a disgrace and a sin.

"And the result in the game dogs' case has been that this moral abhorrence of game, suggested to them by their masters, has been transmitted in its passage down from one generation to another, into an actual physical abhorrence. In the matter of game, thanks to heredity, game dogs now are never tempted. They can't sin.

"It would be a good thing for policy holders if, in the same way, man's moral disinclination to steal had been changed by heredity to an actual physical aversion of other people's money."

Ancient Tricks.

The arts of juggling were, as has been proved by learned writers, of high antiquity. The Hirpini, who lived near Rome, jumped through burning coals; women in early times were accustomed to walk over burning coals in Cappadocia, and the exhibition of balls and cups is often mentioned in the works of the ancients. It was as far back as the third century that one Fermus, or Firmius, who endeavored to make himself emperor in Egypt, suffered a smith to forge iron on an anvil placed on his breast, and rope dancers with balancing poles are mentioned by Petronius and others, while the various feats of horsemanship exhibited in our circuses passed, in the thirteenth century, from Egypt to the Byzantine court and thence over all Europe.

A Proud Man.

"Did you see that proud man going out just now?" asked the cashier. "Proud as Lucifer. Know what he did? Found that I had made a mistake in his favor and handed me back the change. Now, I wonder why it is that people are so proud when they have discovered that they are honest. I could rake in a lot of extra coin if I availed myself of the mistakes that are made here every hour of the day, but I don't on general principles, because I am naturally honest. It's nothing to be proud of."—New York Sun.

Where Taxes Are Unknown.

Orsa, in Sweden, has in the course of a generation sold $5,750,000 worth of trees and by means of judicious replanting has provided for a similar income every thirty or forty years. In consequence of the development of this commercial wealth there are no taxes. Railways and telephones are free and so are the schoolhouses, teaching and many other things.

BORGES SENTENCED

At Least Ten Years For His Part In Ubero Plantation Scheme

Boston, July 6.—Ferdnand E. Borges was sentenced to from 12 to 15 years in state prison, the first day in solitary confinement, for his connection with Ubero Plantation company operations. In passing sentence the court adjudged Borges to be a common and notorious thief. The supreme court, with Judge White on the bench, was in session all day hearing a plea for mercy.

The attorney for Borges asked that the larceny counts be set aside and the prisoner sentenced on the conspiracy count only, which would have amounted to perhaps three years, but Judge White ordered the conspiracy charge set aside and based the sentence upon the larceny charges.

Justice White listened to a witness in behalf of Borges, the reading of a long statement and the argument for mitigation of the defendant's sentence, he having been previously found guilty on 73 counts of larceny and one of conspiracy in connection with the Ubero schemes.

Miss Keller on Blind Commission

Boston, July 6.—Governor Guild has appointed Miss Helen Keller, the famous deaf, dumb and blind girl, a member of the new commission for the industrial education of the blind, which had long been advocated by her and which was recently authorized by the legislature. The commission may establish a bureau for the employment and registration of the blind, for the education of adults in the useful arts and trades, and for the establishment of workshops in which the blind may be employed and made self-sustaining.

Moran Evidently Means Business

Boston, July 6.—District Attorney Moran has engaged at his own expense an attorney who will compare the testimony of every one of about 300 witnesses given in the bribery investigation which resulted in the expulsion of Representative Gethro from the legislature. Discrepancies in the testimony are sought for by Moran as a basis for perjury indictments, and all admissions as to bribery or knowledge of bribery are to be presented to the grand jury.

Pounded Youngster to Save His Life

Boston, July 6.—Before the eyes of scores of people, 15-year-old James Riley jumped into the water off the Dorchester Yacht club pier and rescued from drowning Robert Schrevene, aged 6. Great difficulty and danger were experienced by Riley in effecting the rescue. The youngster struggled desperately and Riley had to punch Schrevene into insensibility before he could tow him ashore. Both were exhausted when they landed on the beach.

Four Men Lost With Vessel

Machias, Me., July 6.—The loss of his crew of four men and the wrecking of his three-masted schooner Ella G. Eells of Rockport, Me., were reported in a message sent here by Captain Breen, who was the only survivor. The schooner was wrecked on one of the outer islands of Machias bay. Breen, while clinging to wreckage, was thrown upon the rocks and rescued by lifesavers.

Capitalist Twombly's Son Drowned

Ashland, N. H., July 6.—H. McK. Twombly, Jr., only son of H. McK. Twombly, the New York and Newport capitalist, was drowned last night while swimming in Big Squam lake at Holderness. Twombly was 18 years of age. He intended to enter Harvard next fall. His mother was a daughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt of New York.

Were Close to Death

Providence, July 6.—Charles E. Bliss of Attleboro, Chester Bliss, his son, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Woodworth were on an automobile tour. The car stopped on the Bearcroft railroad crossing at Chartley as a train bore down upon them. The occupants of the car jumped and barely escaped. The automobile was smashed into kindling wood.

Weavers Are Dissatisfied

Warren, Mass., July 6.—The employes of the Sayles & Jenks woolen mills, to the number of 350, have gone out on strike, 60 weavers because they were told a two-loom system of weaving was to go into effect, instead of the single loom system, and the remaining employes in sympathy.

Prowler Shot and Killed

Williamstown, Vt., July 6.—Fred Ainsworth, aged 60 years, who was mistaken for a burglar and shot, is dead. Thomas Jamison, who found Ainsworth in his barn on the outskirts of the village early in the morning, is said to have fired the fatal shot, but he has not been arrested.

Novelist Will Try For Governor

Concord, N. H., July 6.—The Lincoln Republican Club of New Hampshire has invited Winston Churchill of Cornish, the novelist, to become a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination on an anti-corporation platform, and he has accepted the invitation.

To Investigate Church Fire

Malden, Mass., July 6.—Chief Gowan of the fire department has asked aid from the state fire marshal's office to help him obtain a clue to the firebugs who applied the torch to the Immaculate Conception church. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

Justices of Juvenile Court

Boston, July 6.—As justices of the first juvenile court for Boston, Governor Guild appointed Harvey H. Baker, Frank Leveroni and Philip Rubenstein. The first named will be chief justice and the two latter will be special justices.

NOT MARRIED ABROAD

Only Wedding of Evelyn Nesbit Took Place at Pittsburg

New York, July 6.—Judge Olcott says that Mrs. Harry Thaw's statement of several days ago, in which she declared that she and Thaw were married in Europe and that the ceremony was performed solely upon the request of Thaw's mother, was made under a misapprehension. He said that the confusion arose through Mrs. Thaw's misunderstanding a question on the telephone and that, as a matter of fact, the Thaws never were married in Europe. The first and only marriage was the one performed at Pittsburg.

Conflicting stories as to the existence or non-existence of an affidavit made by Evelyn Nesbit in a breach of promise suit which, it is alleged, she took steps to bring against Harry K. Thaw prior to her trip to Europe, and marriage later to the young Pittsburg millionaire, are told by persons interested in the investigation of the Thaw-White murder.

Big Suits Against Icemen

Little Rock, July 6.—Attorney General Rogers has filed suits against the Consumers' Ice company, the C. L. Kraft Ice company and the Retail Grocers' Ice company under the anti-trust law, alleging a combination to prevent competition. Rogers asks for an assessment of the penalty of $5000 against each for every day since March 25. Suits were also brought against Morris & Co. of New Jersey for a penalty of $1,915,000 and costs, for alleged complicity. Morris & Co. are packers and ice dealers.

Warrant Out For Carrie Nation

Guthrie, Okla., July 6.—A federal warrant was issued by United States Attorney Scothorn for Carrie Nation, charging her with sending obscene matter through the mails in her temperance publication, The Hatchet. Mrs. Nation is now lecturing in Texas and federal officers have been ordered to arrest her. A recent issue of The Hatchet contained a lecture to young men and boys in which Mrs. Nation used plain language.

Congressmen Were Not Idle

Washington, July 6.—A detailed statement of the work of the house of representatives during the first session of the Fifty-Ninth congress shows that there were 4501 bills passed by the house and 362 left undisposed of. The total number of laws enacted by this congress is given officially as 3989, while the Fifty-Eighth congress, in both sessions, enacted a total of 2160 laws.

Leader of Greeks Is Dead

Bucharest, July 6.—Michael Anagnos, president of the Greek Union of America, died at Turn-Severin, Roumania. He was the son-in-law of the late Dr. Samuel G. Howe and Julia Ward Howe of Boston and was the successor of the former as superintendent of the Perkins institution for the blind at Boston. Mrs. Anagnos died in 1886.

Trophy Winners In the Navy

Washington, July 6.—The navy department has made public the results of rifle practice with the big guns of the navy on various ships. The trophy winners are the Wisconsin in the battleship class, the Baltimore in the cruiser class, and the Perry in the torpedo boat class. The gunboat class has not yet been decided.

Government Boat Missing

Washington, July 6.—The lighthouse board has received a report from Key West, Fla., that lighthouse tender Laurel, due at Guantanamo on June 27, is not reported there and that search is now being made for the vessel. She carried five officers and a crew of 14 men. She was last seen June 24.

Spanish Cabinet Again Quits

Madrid, July 6.—The cabinet resigned yesterday and King Alfonso has charged Lopez Dominguez to form a new ministry. The outgoing cabinet was formed June 10 under the premiership of Senor Moret and was in the main identical with the cabinet of June 7, of which also Moret was premier.

Porto Rican Legislature Meets

San Juan, P. R., July 6.—The extraordinary session of the insular legislature has opened. In his message to the legislature, Governor Winthrop recommends the building of a new steamship pier, the money to be taken from the $1,000,000 loan available for public improvements.

Asthma Attacks Grover Cleveland

Princeton, N. J., July 6.—Former President Grover Cleveland is ill at his home here, suffering from an attack of asthma, to which he is subject. His condition is not serious. Mr. Cleveland became ill at his summer home in New England and decided to come to Princeton.

Damage on Land and Sea

Cannes, July 6.—A destructive cyclone swept over this section and railway traffic has been stopped owing to the tracks being obstructed by uprooted trees. Many houses were unroofed and many fishing smacks were dashed to pieces on the rocks.

Was Pioneer Newspaper Man

Kansas City, July 6.—T. W. Householder, who started the first evening newspaper in Kansas City, the Kansas City Evening Bulletin, in 1868, died last evening, aged 81. He served in both branches of the Pennsylvania legislature during the Civil war.

Your Cold How will your cold be tonight? Worse, probably. How about tomorrow? The trouble is, colds always tend downward. Stop this downward tendency with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Your doctor will tell you why it can do this. Ask him all about it. Ask him if he has anything better for coughs and colds. Then follow his advice, whatever it is.

We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our medicines! J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

AN IDEAL HOME.

The place where you spend all your life may be as comfortable and cosy as any in the land if you will only make it so. Don't make up your mind you cannot have a pretty home because you haven't lots of money. Ask about our "Credit Plan." We have furnished more cosy homes than we could possibly name. We have done it to the owners satisfaction, and we can do the same thing for you.

Don't Slip Up On Quality.

It's easily done, but the results are not laughble. It is better to pay a little more for a suit, and feel sure of it, than to pay too little and take chances. Our Suits from $15 to $20 are garments with the risk of the slip-up taken out, but with all the styles of expensive tailor-made put in. Other good suits as low as $7.50.

STRAW HATS ARE NOW RIPE.

The Latest Local Brevities

There are a very large number of continued cases for the court to pass upon Saturday.

The South Quincys play the Wolworths on the Ward Three playground Saturday afternoon.

One was received into full membership and two on probation last Sunday at the West Quincy M. E. church.

James I. Geddes of 70 Granite street, who was injured at Braintree on the Fourth, was still unconscious this noon, due to concussion of the brain.

Two sessions of the district court have been necessary for several days to keep the deck clear, Judges Avery and Pratt presiding.

The funeral of Nathaniel H. Hunt will be held at Braintree on Saturday at 2.30 P. M., from his late residence on Plain street.

A. R. Poquette has been appointed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad as station agent at the Atlantic depot.

The Merrymounts play the Neponset-Dorchester aggregation at Nightingale field, Dorchester, on Saturday, and must work to win.

Playmates of William C. Edwards of Greenleaf street envy him because he is to enjoy the pleasures of a camp in Maine this summer. He left today for Washington, Maine.

Lieut. McKay recovered two automobile tires from a Quincy junk dealer on Thursday that had been stolen at Cohasset. The tires which cost $38 each had been sold to the junk man for seventy cents.

☞The chauffeur who ran over and killed an old man in Tewksbury the other night was pleased to say to a reporter after the accident that he saw three men in the road, and that "I slowed up some, as I always do when people are in the path." Considering that his machine is said to have been going at the rate of thirty-five to forty miles an hour, he was thoughtful to slow up "some" and it ought to count in his favor that he is in the habit of slowing up "some" whenever he sees a man in the road. He has suggested a valuable thought. Slowing up "some" is recommended to pedestrians and chauffeurs alike.—New Bedford Standard.

The Kitchen Autocrat.

"Yes, ma'am, an' now that I'm goin' to take hold here I'll settle th' permit business first of all. You see, I carry me own fountain pen. There, take that an' don't lose it."

"What is this?"

"That's a permit, ma'am, for you to visit th' kitchen. It entitles you to one visit a week. If you come oftener th' permit will be taken up, an' don't you forget it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Where the Rub Comes.

"Well," said the good natured boarder, "there's one thing about our boarding house—you can eat all you like there."

"Of course; same as ours," replied the grouchy one. "You can eat all you like, but there's never anything you could possibly like." — Philadelphia Press.

Depends on the Man.

"What good is experience?" wailed the man who was looking for a job. "You can't cash it."

"Some people can," said his friend. "I bought some experience once that cost me $3,000."—Detroit Free Press.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert Whiteway was arraigned for assault at Quincy. Case continued until July 11.

Angus McIntosh was arraigned for larceny at Cohasset. The case was continued on probation to Sept 27, the defendant to pay costs amounting to $17.90.

Charles J. Eiles was arraigned for assault on Thomas W. Good at Quincy. Case continued until July 13.

The continued case of William Mullen, for assault at Quincy, was called and he was fined $15.

Her Third Duty

[Original.]

Chester Huxford was an exemplary young man. At the age of thirty-two he came into a large fortune and resolved that he would spend nine-tenths of the income in benefiting others. This would leave all he needed for himself. He also determined that, so far as possible, he would conceal his good works from the world. Had he given in the usual way this would have been impossible. He refused all general charities, confining his benefactions to such cases as came under his notice. Indeed, he never missed an opportunity to make some one happy.

Miss Margaret Miller, a young lady who had been brought up in affluence to meet poverty on the threshold of womanhood, received, on the application of friends, an appointment of secretary to Mr. Huxford. He was going abroad for a few months and put her in charge of his entire correspondence, not fearing to have any one open any letter he might receive. She was to keep him advised of his affairs, including applications for assistance, by letter or by cable in urgent cases, and he even left a fund for her to draw on to save suffering in cases requiring immediate attention.

Notwithstanding Mr. Huxford's action in not letting his right hand know what his left hand did he was not insensible to the good opinion of the world. Just before leaving he said to his secretary:

"By the bye, Miss Miller, I would like you to cut out anything you may see about me in print."

"You mean of a pleasant nature?"

"Well, yes. I don't see how I can have an enemy in the world to speak evil of me, but I may have, so if you see anything unpleasant you needn't keep it."

Miss Miller's place was no sinecure. She was kept busy reporting to her employer the many applications for help, replying to the applicants and transmitting relief when the directions arrived to do so. Every evening she took a huge bundle of papers and periodicals home with her and looked them through for pleasant references to the philanthropist.

When Mr. Huxford returned he said with a smile: "You have not been troubled, I suppose, in clipping the good things that have been said about me in print."

"Not in clipping them," she replied, "though I did my duty in looking for them."

"Then they were not numerous?"

"I regret to say that there was not one."

Mr. Huxford thought for a few moments and then said:

"I am not surprised. I am not sufficiently prominent to take up space in newspapers." And with that the subject was dropped. Miss Miller was given a vacation and soon after her return to duty her employer started for another trip.

"Miss Miller," he said, "before starting on my last trip I asked you to preserve anything good said about me in print. This time I wish you would clip anything bad said about me."

Mr. Huxford was gone but half the time of his previous trip and when he returned had forgotten all about the clippings. He found Miss Miller ill from overwork and sent her into the country at once to recoup. When she returned there was plenty for her to do and she was very busy. One day Mr. Huxford said to her:

"Didn't I ask you to clip items—unflattering items—about me before I left on my last trip?"

"You did."

"I was doomed to disappointment that no one had anything good to say of me; now I suppose I shall be chagrined at being ignored entirely."

"Don't you think you will be happier at not seeing the unflattering references?"

"Oh, there are unflattering references, are there? Please let me see them."

Miss Miller opened a drawer in her desk, took out a huge bundle of clippings and laid them before her employer. He looked quite disconcerted at first, but, regaining his equanimity, began to examine them, reading aloud extracts.

We do not see the name of a certain bloated bondholder, who is silently buying the stock of the —— railway with a view to freezing out the small stockholders and getting their property by foreclosure, on the list of subscribers to the Grace church fund. The gentleman is one of the pillars of the church.

He threw the clipping into the wastebasket, and the other clippings soon followed.

"Miss Miller," he said, "I am about to shut myself up from the world, putting my property in bond and mortgage and withdrawing from active investments. Then perhaps my acts will not be misconstrued."

"That won't help you," she replied. "Some day you'll have to foreclose a mortgage or lose an investment. If you do the one, you will be called a brute; if you do the other you will be called a fool."

Mr. Huxford pondered for a time, while Miss Miller resumed her work. Finally he said:

"Miss Miller, I employed you first to give me the good, then the bad said about me. I have now another work for you. I would be pleased to employ you permanently to keep from me all that is said about me."

Sufficient had passed between them for Miss Miller to understand the word "permanently." She accepted the position. WINIFRED ROBERTS.

True as the sun lights the world at day,
And the moon lights it at night,
True as thou walk the straight and narrow way
Thy footsteps will be light.

True as the stars in the heavens are bright,
The records of all in the end will show,
Whether true or false, in the wrong or the right,
The print of our footsteps wherever we go.

Sisters At War

Over Aged Mother and Aunt Who Are Taken Into Court

The most puzzled spectators in the Supreme Judicial Court yesterday afternoon, says the Boston Journal, were Mrs. Caroline W. Estabrook and Mrs. Harriet W. Butters, sisters, both almost 90 years old, who wonderingly watched two daughters of Mrs. Estabrook struggle for possession of themselves.

The two old women had been brought into court on habeas corpus proceedings and complainingly they occupied places within the rail, pining for their comfortable armchairs in their Wollaston home, while Judge Loring listened to the testimony that will decide later whether or not they are to reside with the Wollaston daughter or change their abode to the home of another daughter in Boston. The court proceedings yesterday were the forerunner to the hearing on a petition to appoint Mrs. Lizzie C. Winslow guardian of the two old women.

While the struggle for the right to give the two old women a home came out in its furious form yesterday, it has been going on more or less stormily for over a year, when Mrs. Lizzie C. Winslow of Boston sought to have herself appointed guardian of her mother and the latter's sister, Mrs. Butters. Both were then living, as they were previous to the service of a habeas corpus writ issued by Judge Warren A. Reed of the Brockton Police Court yesterday morning, with Mrs. Helen Francis E. Cox of Wollaston. An attempt was then made to serve guardianship papers on Mrs Cox, but she successfully evaded them and has ever since continued to keep herself and her aged relatives out of the courts.

On Thursday, though, Mrs. Winslow adopted other tactics, and she sent Private Detective George N. Sanborn to Wollaston to reconnoiter. Sanborn reconnoitered all right and then he had a sprinting match, in which Mrs. Cox, armed with a broom, was second best all to the gate, and the way she belabored the unfortunate private detective with the broom is still a subject for comment in Wollaston. That drubbing with the broom was evidently the drop that filled Mrs. Winslow's cup of woe to overflowing, as she appeared in Brockton yesterday morning and at the Brockton police court alleged that her mother and aunt were being held prisoners by her sister, Mrs. Cox, at Wollaston.

Judge Reed issued the writ of habeas corpus, directing Deputy Sheriff Earl P. Blake to take possession of the persons of the two women, and he proceeded at once to Wollaston to serve it, but when he arrived it was necessary for him to break down the front door of the Cox residence with a crowbar to gain admittance.

While he was doing it, Mrs. Cox stood on the roof of a veranda and defied him, but when he had once gained the inside of the house she made no resistance, but assisted the two old women get ready for the trip to Boston.

Arrived in Boston, Mrs. Cox attemted to conduct her own case, but Judge Loring refused to permit her to do so. He cautioned her that the best thing she could do would be to secure counsel, and upon her promise to do so he continued the case until 9.30 o'clock, Monday morning. In the meantime he consigned the two old women to the custody of Deputy Sheriff Blake, with Mrs. Winslow as keeper, and they were removed from the court to the residence of the latter, although none of those interested were aware last night where that was.

In the report of the brief hearing that was held the Herald reports the testimony as follows:

Mrs. Winslow was the first witness. She said she had heard five or six weeks ago that her mother was not expected to live, and that when she went to her sister's house in Wollaston she could not see her mother. She tried again yesterday, but her sister would not allow her in the house, saying the Masons had ordered her not to admit her. She was not threatened.

Dr. Charles S. Adams of Wollaston testified that about 13 months ago he was called to attend Mrs. Butters for bruises on her wrists. The history of the bruises might have been ascribed t bites inflicted by herself during epile tic fits. Some time afterward he was called in again on account of an accident, but refused to respond to the call because of some criticism made by Mrs. Cox of another physician.

Deputy Sheriff Blake testified to the difficulty he had experienced in serving the process. He said the house was locked and Mrs. Cox would not let him in, though he told his errand. He then forced an entrance with a crowbar.

George M. Sanborn of Brockton testified to his experience in serving a citation of the new guardianship proceeding. He said he tried all the doors and got no response. He then got a ladder to go up to the attic room where Mrs. Butters was, on whom he wanted to serve the process. When he had brought the ladder up to the house he tried the door again and Mrs. Cox appeared. He was in overalls, and he told her that the owner of the house had sent him to repair a leak in the roof. He testified that she used indecent language toward him.

Mrs. Cox has lived in Wollaston for 18 months, but she is little known there, even to her nearest neighbors. She kept very much to herself and saw little of any other persons than her aged mother and aunt. It is thought by her neighbors that Mrs. Cox came from western Pennsylvania.

Business School Closed.

The Quincy branch of the Plymouth Business school closed Friday for the summer vacation. There were a number of graduates in the business and shorthand courses, some of whom have already taken positions in Boston. The pupils have all shown remarkable progression in their studies; the class in shorthand writing an average of over 120 words per minute on absolutely new matter, (including ten letters from dictation) and accurately transcribing them on the typewriter. A passing mark of 80 per cent. is required in English letter writing, commercial law and bookkeeping. Specimens of the students penmanship, which shows a remarkable improvement, are on exhibition in some of the store window about the city. The school will re open for the fall term, Wednesday Sept. 5.

IN WHITE'S AUTO

Mrs Thaw Went Riding on Two Occasions

STORY OF A CHAFFEUR

On One Occasion He Heard the Wife of Slayer Address His Employer as "Stannie"--A Denial From Thaw's Counsel

New York, July 7.—That Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was on amicable terms with Stanford White since her marriage to Harry K. Thaw was yesterday established by a statement from John Burns, chauffeur to White. Mrs. Thaw dined in the company of White at Rector's one night last September and then rode to her hotel in White's electric hansom.

Thaw and the former chorus girl were married in Pittsburg on April 4, 1905, five months previous to the episode at the Broadway restaurant recalled by Burns.

The following statement was dictated by Burns and signed by him in the presence of witnesses:

"I entered the employ of Stanford White the latter part of January, 1905, driving his electric hansom between the hours of 5 p. m. and 3 a. m. I was White's night chauffeur until the latter part of September, 1905, when he discontinued using the machine, as I understood at the time, because of the persistent following of the electric hansom by men riding bicycles, on foot and also in horse hansoms, runabouts and automobiles.

"In those nine months, taking out the time Mr. White was in Europe and Canada, my employer never once entered the electric hansom in the company of a woman other than Mrs. White, whom he frequently took to Sherry's for dinner.

"Evelyn Nesbit rode in Mr. White's electric hansom on two occasions, which I well recall. She was alone on one occasion and with a lady friend on the other.

"The first time I ever saw the present Mrs. Thaw was in February, between 12 and 1 o'clock in the morning, standing with a company of men and women on the sidewalk in front of Rector's. Mr. White escorted her to the machine and put her in, saying to me: "Take this lady home and then come right back for me.'

"Miss Nesbit was then living at the Hotel Wolcott, if my memory serves me right. She impressed me as having brought about the situation. I took her to the hotel and then went back and took Mr. White to the Brook club, 6 East Thirty-fifth street.

"Several weeks passed before I saw Miss Nesbit again. In the latter part of February or the first of March, on a very cold Sunday night, I took Mr. White to Carl Berger's catering establishment, 7 West Thirty-ninth street. He was going to attend a dinner and it was between 8 and 9 o'clock when he alighted from the hansom. I had pulled in from Fifth avenue.

"Hardly had Mr. White reached the sidewalk when a horse hansom approached from Broadway, pulled up and Miss Nesbit jumped to the sidewalk and approached Mr. White, saying as she held out her hands: 'Hello, Stannie! How have you been?'

"Mr. White shook hands. He seemed anxious to get up the stoop. They talked for a few minutes and he bade her good night. He then hurried into Berger's place and she got back into her horse hansom and was driven off."

Former Judge Olcott, after reading the statement given out by Burns, said he wished to deny absolutely that Mrs. Thaw, since her marriage, had been a guest of White and had used his automobile. "There isn't one chance in a million of it being true," said Olcott.

Assistant District Attorney Garvan said that although he had examined Burns in connection with his investigation of the Thaw-White tragedy, he never had heard of Mrs. Thaw's rides in White's automobiles until now. Burns told him nothing whatever during the examination concerning White having entertained Mrs. Thaw, he said.

The widow of Stanford White was paid yesterday by the Equitable Life Assurance society $149,040, the value of a single policy White had carried on his life for a number of years. There are several policies for amounts aggregating about $50,000, on which no claim for payment has yet been presented.

Admiral Was Out of His Head

Cronstadt, July 7.—At the court martial trial of Admiral Rojestvensky for the surrender of the torpedo boat Bedovi in the battle of the Sea of Japan, the surgeons of the Bedovi testified that Rojestvensky, owing to his wounds, was partly out of his head, irresponsible and incapable of passing orders to surrender.

Executive Clemency For Tanner

Portland, Or., July 7.—Former Judge Tanner, who committed perjury in order to shield his law partner, the late United States Senator Mitchell, has been pardoned by the president. Sentence had never been passed in the case of Tanner.

St. Louis, July 7.—The recount of votes cast at the last election is proceeding slowly, but enough frauds have been discovered to unseat every Democratic official in the city government from the mayor down.

WHAT THE DOUMA STANDS FOR

Vast Majority of Russia's Legislature Demand a Freedom Even More Advanced Than That of England and France—Strikingly Democratic Body That Is "the Thought" of the Czar's Empire—Significant Scene When the Douma Was Convened

In our own day we are seeing the transformation of a great people from despotism to democracy. Before our eyes transpire the beginnings of another French revolution, only this one is not among the volatile Latins, but among the melancholy Slavs. It is given us to behold the coming of liberty. Once more we may learn that she does not move backward, but that, first in one land, then in another, she marches onward. The rule of the people is now the most living factor or, rather, promise in all nations. This England begins to realize, as do France, Germany, even America, and Russia most of all.

Russia has been like an ice locked land for ages—ice locked under absolutism, bureaucracy, repression—but now the sun of freedom shines upon her and the masses begin to melt, to move. There will be avalanches later.

A Striking Parallel.

The parallel between the Russian and French revolution is one of the most striking things in modern history. It is as though the leaders of the douma were consciously modeling their course after that taken by the French national convention. Both bodies had the same sort of an insolent, vicious, grafting aristocracy and the same manner of a weak, well intentioned, vacillating monarch with whom to deal. Both represented the same kind of a sullen, desperate constituency, hardened and brutalized through centuries of misrule; both met in May; both named its radical group "The Mountain," and both had a similar trinity of watchwords—the cry of "Liberty, Fraternity, Equality" in France having been modified into "Freedom, Land and Amnesty" in Russia.

How much further the parallel may go who can tell? Already the douma is breaking with the czar, as the French convention broke with the king. Will the drama be re-enacted to the end? Will the wrongs of ages be avenged in one earthquake year of terror and the new day be ushered in through a red and smoky dawn?

The initial work, which is the real and important work in all revolutions, is accomplished in peace. Afterward the reactionary elements attempt a counter revolution, and it is that which brings bloodshed. Signs are already to be seen in Russia of such a denouement. The actual revolution, that in the thought of the nation, was accomplished when the Constitutional Democrats and other advanced elements captured practically every seat in the douma. It is now that the bureaucrats and aristocrats, tawdry, contemptuous, licentious, befouled by graft, their hearts black with hatred of the people and their hands red with Jewish massacres, seek to influence the spineless czar and to create turmoil and confusion that they may retain their ancient privileges. If war and anarchy result, on their souls will rest the guilt.

The meaning of the word douma is thought. The douma, then, is "the thought" of the Russian empire. It is a fitting term, a higher concept of the origin of a legislature than has ever been expressed by a name in any other land or tongue. It makes the congress an outward symbol, representative of the inward purposes and aspirations of the nation, the spirit of a people incarnated in a parliamentary body.

The scene at the convoking of the douma was significant. On one side of the great hall of the Winter palace were banked the nobles, on the other the representatives of the people. It was the old order and the new. The one was dazzling in jewels, uniforms, medals, sashes and gold lace. The other was clothed in the plain and often coarse dress of the citizen and peasant. Formalism and caste were on the one hand, simplicity and democracy on the other. "Let those wear clothes who need them," said Thomas Paine, and the aristocratic party certainly needed all its finery, for inwardly it was foul and unkempt, while the great peasant and citizen body did not require the outward trappings, for they were clothed with justice and the rights of man, while inwardly they were fair and clean.

The Old Order and the New.

Between the two bodies was a wide space, a veritable gulf, through which walked the czar with his empress, grand dukes and other royalties. Small and insignificant he looked, and his hand trembled. He kissed the representative of the church and heard the chanting of the priests amid their icons. Then he strode, with an assumed dignity several sizes too large for him, up to his throne, and from that seeming eminence, that has sunk much in height of late, he delivered his speech, which said nothing except by its omissions. At its close the nobles broke into loud cheers, but the representatives of the people remained impassive and still. It was an eloquent silence, even more eloquent than the things the speech did not say.

Let us tarry with that scene, for it is worth while. It so perfectly symbolized two great forces that it is destined to become historic, one of the mileposts in the march of man. There two armies glare at each other across a chasm that yet may run with blood—aristocracy in barbaric splendor; democracy in simple majesty; the receding past and the advancing future; the letter of the old and the spirit of the new.

If the speech from the throne said nothing, the answer to that speech said much. Its language was plain; there was no misunderstanding its meaning. It did not indulge in empty phrases about divine right, but it had many meaty phrases about human right. It was not delivered with dress parade and pomp, nor in the presence of a large bunch of titled and gilded nobodies. Rather was it conveyed to the royal presence in so unceremonious a fashion that at first Nicholas refused to receive it. His sacred hands could not take it direct. It must pass through the hands of his ministers. It is wonderful the way those who lack the substance stickle for the form.

That answer made some very definite demands:

First.—General amnesty for political prisoners.

Second.—Abolition of the death penalty.

Third.—Suspension of martial law and of all exceptional laws.

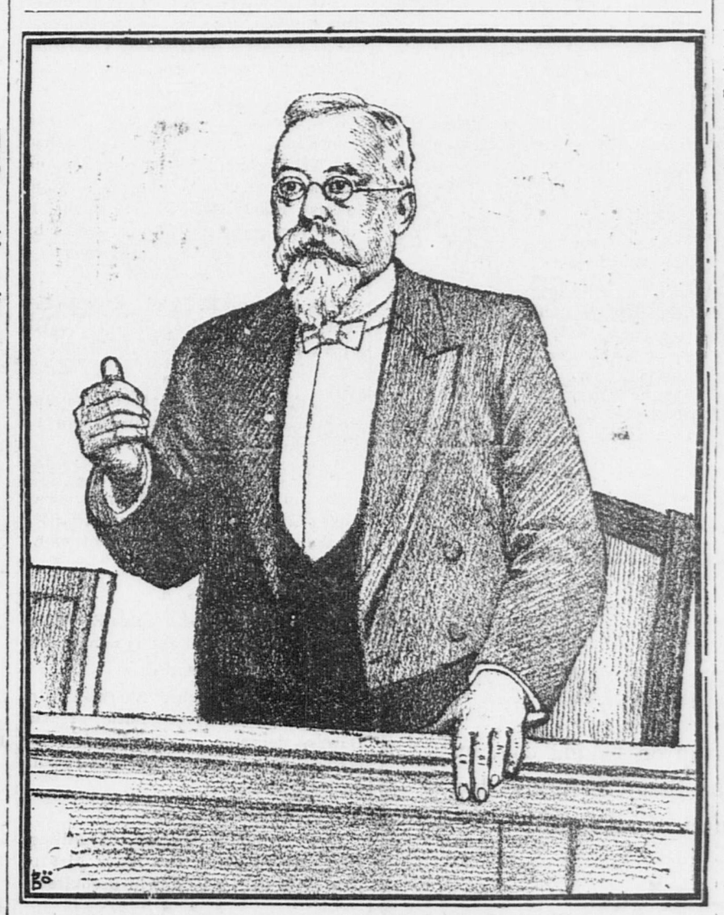
Fourth.—Full civil liberty.

Fifth.—Abolition of the council of empire, an upper house somewhat worse than our senate.

Sixth.—Revision of the fundamental law, which was promulgated to limit the douma and protect the autocracy.

Seventh.—Make the ministers responsible to the douma.

Eighth.—Right of the douma to question the ministers in public.



PRESIDENT SERGIUS A. MOUROMTSEFF.

Ninth.—Forced expropriation of land from the nobles so that it may pass into the hands of those who till it.

Tenth.—Guarantee of the rights of labor unions.

Music of Liberty.

Throughout the document bristles with thrusts at the bureaucracy, the grafters and the petty despots who stand between the czar and the people. These must go. If the czar stands with them possibly he may go with the rest. The answer does not say this, but there are meanings in it not put baldly in words. Besides, when a people starts moving it sometimes goes further than at first intended. When that great inert mass of the Slav empire gets momentum it might be as well for little Nicholas to stand out of the way. He might find it of advantage carefully to read the lives of Charles Stuart and Louis Capet. A perusal of the deaths of these two gentlemen might also be instructive. The world has advanced, it is true, since those events took place, but Russia is still somewhat primitive, and the folks there have elemental passions. In times of revolution a man is only a man, and blue blood is as liable to flow as any other sort. Russia has got the music of liberty in her heart now, and she will march to it. She has seen the vision of a free state, and she is bound for it.

With all that has been said against the more radical of the Russian revolutionaries one thing should not be forgotten—that if it had not been for them the douma in all probability would never have been called. The strikes, the pronunciamentos and the uprisings occasioned by the labor groups struck terror to the heart of the bureaucracy, and to allay the popular unrest the czar finally consented to call a national consultative assembly that would have no real power. Now that he has it, he wants to let go. The plight of the American president who had "congress on his hands" is not a circumstance to that of Nicholas. The douma may not be able to do anything, but its very presence gives a sense of solidarity to the people and unifies them for their struggle with the privileged classes. Moreover, it gives a definite and authoritative statement of their demands. It makes them an organic entity rather than a mob.

Influence of the Douma.

The first surprise that came, and it was an agreeable one to all lovers of liberty, was the intelligence with which the moujiks used the ballot. All sorts of pessimistic and doleful predictions had been made on this head. Self styled superior persons always affect to distrust the people, forgetting that they themselves are a part of the people. Evils in government come, not from trusting the masses, but from self seeking men, from those who want to use public place for private ends and most of all from those who corruptly obtain special privileges not granted to their fellows. It is these things that are in contravention to democratic institutions which are at fault, not the democratic institutions themselves. No pure appeal to the people was ever disappointed. This has been proved over and over again throughout modern history. It was proved once more in the case of the Russian peasantry. Their experience in the mir, or village assembly, and in the zemstvo, or assembly of the province, had schooled them for self government. With a practically unanimous voice throughout the great empire they declared for a constitutional democracy. Only a small handful of conservatives were elected to the douma, and even they have not the temerity to stand with the bureaucracy. The vast majority of the body stand for a freedom even farther advanced than that of England and France, and the attitude of the czar is driving them to yet more radical grounds. A little more hesitancy on the part of Nicholas will make of the douma a thoroughly revolutionary body, and as goes the douma so goes the empire.

To paraphrase an old saw, "Whom the gods would destroy they first strike blind." Russia's reactionaries certainly are blind. They do not seem to comprehend what it all means. Either they have not read history or are incapable of understanding it. They will never know till the storm breaks. Then it will be too late. Indeed it is already too late.

One man does understand. That man is Witte. He it was that advised the calling of the douma. He saw the yawning chasm and sought to bridge it. Instead he fell into its depths.

The douma is the most democratic body in the world. The peasant is there, the man who has been in prison, the victim with the knout marks on his back, the workman, the revolutionary professor, even the socialistic prince, all are in the douma. One hundred and forty nationalities are represented. All sorts of costumes are seen, from the long blouse of the moujik to the business suit of the townsman. But with all their variations of dress and class a spirit of close brotherhood unites them. They are one in the dream of the new order.

M. Sergius Andrejevitch Mouromtseff, who is the president of the douma, is a member of a noble St. Petersburg family. He was born in 1850 and was educated at Moscow university, being graduated from the law department.

There is real eloquence in this "thought" body—rough, elemental eloquence, but singularly stirring. All language is eloquent that is in earnest and that deals with actualities.

Here is to the revolution that is to make a free Russia! The clock of time is striking another hour for liberty. May its chimes be heard in all lands and awaken all peoples. Long enough has selfishness ruled the world. The day of the grafter and despot is ending. The day of brotherhood is here and the era of the rights of man.

A MOVE BY BORDEN

Voluntarily Advances Wages In Seven Big Mills

AMOUN'T IS NOT STATED

Will Be, However, on Higher Basis Than That of Other Fall River Cloth Mills--Plan to Hold Employes and Get Recruits

Fall River, Mass., July 7.—An important development in the textile situation here was the announcement last night that a general advance in wages will be given at the mills of the Fall River Iron Works company on Monday next. Notices were affixed to the bulletin boards in all seven mills of the large plant informing the operatives of the proposed change.

The notices did not name the percentage of the proposed increase, and when Superintendent Hathaway was questioned concerning this point, he said that the company had not figured how great the advance would be.

The Fall River Iron Works, which are controlled by M. C. D. Borden of New York, employ 5000 persons. All of these will be affected by the advance, but it is understood the 1000 employes of the American Printing company, also controlled by Borden, will not participate.

Since last October Borden's mills have been paying the scale which existed in all the mills here previous to July, 1904, and which was restored by the association manufacturers last Monday. It is understood that the new schedule at the Iron Works plant will be on a higher basis than that of the other cloth mills, as wages this week at all the mills in the city are on a common basis. Borden reduced wages to the level of those paid by his competitors in January, 1905, after the general strike in the association mills, but on Oct. 18 last he restored the cut.

The officials of the Fall River Manufacturers' association declined to comment upon the developments at the Iron Works mills, but the union officials discussed the news freely. They had not sent a demand to Borden. In some quarters the decision of the owner of the Iron Works to raise wages again is attributed to a desire to hold his employes and attract recruits.

Arbitration Where Diplomacy Fails

Geneva, July 7.—The revised Red Cross convention and protocol were signed by the plenipotentiaries of the powers last evening in the course of the final sitting of the international Red Cross conference. One of the articles provides for the pacific settlement by means of arbitration of international conflicts where diplomacy fails to reach an understanding. After addresses by several of the delegates the conference adjourned.

Women In Fatal Tragedy

Detroit, July 7.—Bertha Elick, aged 29, cook on the schooner Herschel, last night shot and almost instantly killed Mrs. Mary Kunna, aged 45, wife of the captain of the schooner. Miss Elick had been cook on the schooner for two years and it is said that the captain's wife had been jealous of her. Miss Elick freely admits the shooting, pleading self-defense.

Midsummer Lull In Trade

New York, July 7.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that seasonably quiet conditions have appeared in many commercial departments, the first week in July invariably bringing the minimum of activity in certain occupations, but preparations for unprecedented fall and winter trade increase with the maturity of the crops.

Grover Cleveland's Sickness

Princeton, N. J., July 7.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland, who is ill at his home here, is feeling better and will be out in a day or two. Dr. Carnochan says there is nothing at all serious in Cleveland's condition; that it is simply a case of indigestion, which will pass over in a day or two. Mr. Cleveland's family is at Buzzards Bay.

Smoothing Ruffled Tempers

Washington, July 7.—The state department is advised by a cablegram from American Minister Merry that he has arrived at San Salvador from Guatemala and is endeavoring to make arrangements there for an agreement between Guatemala and Salvador. Merry expresses himself as hopeful of arranging this difficulty.

Abyssinian Agreement Completed

London, July 7.—Foreign Secretary Grey, for Great Britain, Ambassador Tittoni, for Italy, and Paul Cambon, for France, last evening agreed upon the draft of the agreement concerning Abyssinia. It will be communicated to the Abyssinian government, but will not be signed till Emperor Menelik expresses his views.

Alleged Slayer For Governor

Denver, July 7.—The Socialist party of Colorado held a convention in this city and nominated a full state ticket, headed by William D. Haywood, secretary and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, now in prison in Idaho, for governor.

Long Swim In Quick Time

London, July 7.—Jabez Wolff swam from Dover to Rams Gate, covering the 18 miles in 6 hours 35 minutes, breaking the record for the same course made by the late Captain Webb in 1875, who covered it in 8½ hours.

BEPRIEVE IS REFUSED

Guild Declines to Interfere With the Execution of Schidlofski

Boston, July 7.—Governor Guild has refused to interfere in the execution of John Schidlofski, a Pole, who is condemned to die in the electric chair next week for the brutal murder of his wife last summer. A petition to reprieve Schidlofski was presented to the governor on the ground that the prisoner was insane at the time he committed the crime. The governor took the case under advisement and last evening he wrote to the effect that he saw no reason for him to interfere with the work of the state judiciary. He wrote to the petitioners in part:

"In regard to the appeal that an examination by alienists is desirable, I must report to you that numerous examinations of this character have already been made. I have recently had the prisoner re-examined by one of the most noted alienists in the world and by his skilled physician who has been in constant attendance on the prisoner since his arrest."

The governor then quoted the report of the examination to the effect that the man was sane at the time of the murder, at the time of his trial and conviction and now,

Thinks Moran Has Made Good

Boston, July 7.—Mayor Fitzgerald's Republic apparently commits itself to the support of Moran for governor, saying: "It goes without saying that the Moran boom has received a great impetus. Up to the time of the conviction of the secretary of Senator Lodge, the district attorney's enemies were pointing to the record of his office and asking what he had done. This query is no longer effective. The office has made good, and Mr. Moran's strength has increased accordingly among the rank and file of the Democracy in all sections of the state."

Negro Methodists In Session

Providence, July 7.—Speeches strongly denunciatory of the treatment of the negro in the north and south were the predominating features at the annual conference of the African M. E. church here. Bishop Turner spoke bitterly of the degradation of the negro, due, he said, not to the negro's own incapacity, but to the malicious hatred shown by those who take every opportunity to slander and crush the negro race.

Says Charges Are False

Foxboro, Mass., July 7.—"Accusations that men were killed here by abuse are deliberate and malicious lies," declared Dr. Coffin, an official at the Foxboro state hospital, last night. "We welcome any investigation that Governor Guild and the executive council may see fit to order," he said, commenting on the visit which the governor and his council are to pay the institution next week.

A Singular Fatality

Boston, July 7.—Strangled to death by a linen collar is the cause given for the death of Frank J. Blagdon, 50, of Medford, who was found dead on the floor of a room in Clark's hotel last night. The police say that the man had evidently attempted to tear the collar from his throat, but strangled while in the act and fell dead on the floor.

Alleged Attempt to Kill

Williamstown, Vt., July 7.—Thomas Jamison, charged with assault with intent to kill upon Fred Ainsworth, was released under bail of $1000. It is alleged that Jamison, finding Ainsworth in his barn, mistook him for a burglar and fired at him, inflicting wounds from which Ainsworth died.

Child Killed by Automobile

Providence, July 7.—Ralph Benert, 5 years old, was struck and killed by an automobile last evening. The lad was playing in the road near his home in Apponaug at the time.

China Comes to Terms

Pekin, July 7.—Mr. Carnegie, the British charge here, has finally settled the British claims growing out of the anti-foreign riot at Nanchang in February of this year. China pays $20,000 indemnity for the killing of the child of H. C. Kingman, a British missionary, and $3500 for the British mission property destroyed, and agrees to punish the guilty persons and to reward those who protected the missionaries.

Six New Ships For French Navy

Paris, July 7.—In the course of an address before the naval committee of the chamber of deputies, M. Thomson, minister of marine, announced that the construction of six armored warships would be begun this year. He said he considered it necessary that France should not permit foreign powers to obtain a naval superiority over her.

Stockyards Product Wholesome

Chicago, July 7.—The report of the joint committee of the Chicago Commercial and the Illinois Manufacturers' associations, appointed to investigate the meat packing industries in Chicago, declares that "we, ourselves, have no hesitation in stating that the meat products at the stock yards are wholesome and proper food."

Sent Poisoned Candy to Daughter

Trenton, July 7.—Charles Davenport was found guilty on the charge of attempting to poison his 12-year-old daughter, Josephine, by sending the girl a box of poisoned candy for the purpose of killing her, thereby securing a small amount of life insurance.

Fifty Persons Killed by Hail

Valencia, Spain, July 7.—A hailstorm yesterday killed 50 persons. Hailstones as big as oranges smashed the roofs of houses. The crops in many districts were destroyed and great distress prevails. Relief is urgently requested.

Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil should always be used for the first or priming coat. No other paint has the same affinity for the surface—marrying and becoming a part of the wood.

Yellow ochre, barytes, zinc or any other substance than Pure White Lead fails to unite with the wood and serves only to form a cushion, which will prevent even Pure White Lead from attaching itself when finally applied.

Satisfactory results can never be obtained so long as a surface is coated with a veneering (for that is all it is) of yellow ochre, barytes, zinc, etc. Such a coating is bound to crumble, crack and peel, and must be burned or scraped off, down to the wood itself, before a good job can be done—an expensive process, and not without danger of fire.

A house owner can scarcely make a more costly mistake than to use a substitute for Pure White Lead in the priming coat. Avoid all risk by using

SALEM
Pure White Lead
(Made by the Old Dutch Process)

Send for a booklet containing several handsome reproductions of actual houses, offering valuable suggestions for a color scheme in painting your house. A test for paint purity is also given.

Gerald's Wife

By.... IZOLA FORRESTER

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

Broderick swung off the 4:35 express, walked quickly up the steps leading from the railroad platform and took his first look at Pineville. Those who lived in Pineville proper were content to call it Pineville. Gerald had written that they did not live in Pineville proper, but in Pineville-by-the-Sea, otherwise Pineville improper.

All that Broderick saw were pines, plenty of them, a flat white ribbon of roadway and a bit of a postoffice, roughly shingled, in the midst of the nearest clump of pines. He stepped into the postoffice as the central spot of civilization. Some one was stamping letters behind the glass inclosure, a girl with smooth dark hair. Beatrice had smooth dark hair.

He watched the girl stamping letters with interest and wondered why some one did not tell her to wear her smooth dark hair in two soft braids around her head, crown fashion, as Beatrice did.

"Where do the Vaughans live, please?" he asked finally, when the stamping ceased.

"The Vaughans? Oh, Mr. Gerald Vaughan and his wife? It's a brown house down near the shore, with a wide veranda and a funny roof. About a mile straight down the road."

A wide veranda and a funny roof. That sounded like Gerald. He wondered how Gerald's wife liked it. Beatrice was artistic, but not artistically eccentric. She had a horror of things odd, bizarre, so called bohemian, and yet she had married Gerald. And Gerald's brother knew that Gerald was utterly odd, bizarre and bohemian, so called.

He walked on down the flat white ribboned roadway and wondered whether he would find her like the girls Gerald had always admired. A lithesome, limp, blessed damozel type, with close silky gowns and loose floppy hair. Last summer she had not been that type. He thought of the trim girl figure holding the rudder of the Water Lily that last day. She had been more than the sort of a girl to fall in love with. She had been a good fellow, a stanch friend. And as he watched her he had stopped rowing, and they had drifted slowly in the sunset glow that flooded the lake while he told her.

There had been no actual engagement. He had nothing to reproach her with. He had not been in a position to ask her to be his wife then, but he had thought a girl like Beatrice had meant more by a kiss, a hand clasp, a few vague words of understanding, than other girls. He had thought she might wait until next summer. And now, in April, he had returned to New York to learn that Gerald was in disgrace, had married on nothing, eloped to Pineville-by-the-Sea, N. C., and his wife was Beatrice Stafford.

Gerald's mother had said they were penniless. Gerald's father had remarked that he didn't give a rap. They could exist upon love and art.

More or less for Beatrice's sake and a little for Gerald's, Gerald's brother had taken it upon himself to visit the bridal couple and help Gerald. Smothering his own love, he had made up his mind that as long as Beatrice had married a Vaughan she should not suffer from it.

There was no bell at the door of the little brown house with the funny roof. It was merely a bungalow in weathered shingles, and he pounded on the door lustily until it opened and Beatrice stood before him.

She was not the blessed damozel type yet. Her smooth dark hair was wound about her head in just the same crown fashion, and she wore a short dark blue linen skirt and a white shirt waist. The sleeves were rolled to her elbows, and from her finger tips to elbow dimples there was flour sprinkled.

He had not expected to see her face to face so soon or alone. Neither had he expected her to act as she did. The color rose in her cheeks, tipping even her ears with pink. It was an old habit. He remembered it.

"I thought you were in London," she said.

"You don't give a fellow a very decent welcome after he's traveled from London to this wilderness to say congratulations."

He stepped into the hall after her. She hesitated and laughed, looking at her floured hands.

"I can't shake hands with you, and—and the biscuits are in the oven. I shall have to watch them. Do you mind coming out to the kitchen?"

He didn't mind. There appeared to be only three rooms—the studio-sitting room, the dining room and the kitchen. Collapsible ready-in-a-minute studio divans were in the sitting room and dining room in lieu of bedrooms. It was all charmingly, most uncomfortably odd, bizarre and bohemian.

"Where's Gerald?" he asked when he had found a chair in the kitchen.

Beatrice knelt beside the stove to look at the biscuit. He could not see her face.

"He went to the postoffice for the last mail. You must have missed him."

"Well, what ever made him come to this lost corner?"

"Oh, because it was the chance of something definite, you know! Don't you know?" she added quickly, seeing the puzzled look on his face. "Well, Gerald's chum, Netherby Ames, broke all to pieces last fall from overwork and so on, and he was ordered down here. And he couldn't afford to come and stay indefinitely, so he pulled a few wires, and things happened. He was made postmaster here at Pineville. And he got lonesome and healthy and workful again a month ago, so Gerald's in his place, and he's in New York. Don't you see? It was really very definite and businesslike and right under the circumstances."

"Oh, certainly, under the circumstances," agreed Broderick. "So old Gerry's postmaster instead of artist."

"Both," she corrected. "He has lots of time to study, and it's good for him—the responsibility, I mean. You wouldn't know him."

"I suppose not," assented Broderick uneasily. He tried to reconcile his little circle of the universe, to make the chaotic jumble fall into place and harmonize. Gerald, Gerald the helpless, erratic, fantastic, irrational, joyous hearted, penniless artist, a person of matrimonial responsibility, a postmaster. But then he remembered the young smooth haired person stamping letters. Of course Gerald had found his usual way out of the difficulty. He had hired some Pineville lass to do the heavy work, and he drew the salary. It was like Gerald. But there was Beatrice, Beatrice making biscuit. He looked at her with troubled eyes, seeing endless vistas of Beatrices making biscuit throughout the years.

"Don't you miss New York?"

"Oh, so much!" she said. "I'll never be happy until I get back."

"Have you given up your own work?"

"Only for the time being. I shall take it up again, of course. I shall have to."

Broderick's hands tightened in a sudden grip. So she was to work again, turn out her endless succession of little wash illustrations for second rate monthly magazines. Gerald would not mind, would not see the point. He would think he was being broadminded and bohemian to let his wife carry on her own art irrespective of him. But Beatrice saw the point.

He rose from his chair suddenly, his face white with the anger and love he had smothered. Before he could stop himself the words came leaping to his lips:

"Why did you do it?"

"Do what?"

She stood beside the little bare kitchen table, her face raised to his, her eyes bright with startled wonderment at his tone.

"Why did you marry Gerald?"

"Marry Gerald! I?" Some one was coming along the white roadway. From the kitchen window two figures could be seen, and she pointed to them. "There is Gerald, and that is his wife, my sister Barbara. I am merely attendant star to the honeymoon. They brought me along to—well, to make the biscuit."

A minute later and Broderick met the bridal couple on the wide veranda under the funny roof. The bride was the girl with the smooth dark hair who had been stamping letters, and she laughed at him.

"I knew who you were, but I wanted Gerald all to myself, and I knew Beatrice would take care of you."

"She did," answered Broderick happily, and as the rest went into the house he paused to brush off traces of flour from his coat collar. But Beatrice burned the biscuit.

The "Father of Leprosy."

The gecko belongs to a family of thick tongued lizards, which are widely distributed over the tropical and subtropical countries of Europe and Asia, and in all countries where he is known he is thoroughly despised. Because of his repulsive appearance he is called the "father of leprosy." Down to times comparatively modern it was firmly believed that contact either directly or indirectly with the little reptile was sure to communicate leprosy. The investigations of modern zoologists have proved that the little animal is undeserving of his name of "father of leprosy" and that he is indeed a most harmless and useful creature. Since the old belief in the ability of this reptile to communicate leprosy to any human flesh which might come in contact with his warty, sore looking skin was exploded he has retained his objectionable name solely on account of the bad appearance he makes. His skin is one mass of scaly and tuberculous excrescences that cover his body from the tip of his tail to the end of his nose. Every quarter inch section of this repulsive looking body has a general resemblance to the thickened, callous protuberances that appear on the human body in cases of leprosy. On this account and no other the harmless little gecko was given the name of being the progenitor of the worst form of disease.

Ugly Athenian Coins.

It is little surprising that the Athenian coins are less beautiful than some others. They always preserved an affectation of archaism. The Attic drachmas bore the head of Athene and on the reverse an owl often standing on a lyre, the whole in a myrtle wreath. Plutarch in his "Lysander" tells an amusing tale how Glippus had been sent to Sparta with a great sum of money as a bribe and how he unripped the bottoms of the sacks and stole large sums, sewing up the sacks again, not knowing that there was a writing in each sack saying how much coin it held. On coming to Sparta he hid his plunder under the tiles of his house, showing the Ephors the unbroken seals on the mouths of the sacks. When the Ephors opened these they were in great perplexity, but Glippus' servant betrayed him, saying "that under the tiles roosted the owls." The consternation was great. Glippus fled, and the stern Spartans declared that for the future they would use iron coinage made redhot and quenched in vinegar to make it hard and unpliable. In the laws of Solon, 600 B. C., the punishment of death is recorded against forging the coinage.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The West Quincy people are coming to a realization of the fact that they are getting something that was worth waiting for. The work on the Metropolitan parkway from Adams street has reached Cross street. The wide thoroughfare with its sidewalk and grass plots will greatly improve West Quincy and be an incentive to other improvements.

Today Lynn people are pleased at the opening of the beach parkway connecting that city with the Revere Beach boulevard, so that they have a delightful drive to Revere, Chelsea, Everett, Malden, Medford and the Fells.

Another year probably there will be a beautiful shore drive on this side of Boston extending from Atlantic to Norfolk Downs, Merrymount park, Quincy and West Quincy, to the Blue Hills reservation and thence to Boston, and to Lynn if desired.

During the year 1905 there were 263 new connections with the water supply, and 300 new connections with the sewers. But there were on Jan. 1, but 1,790 particular sewers where there were over 5,000 water takers.

Drift of Opinion.

☞It is not merely Senator Lodge and his son-in-law in the other wing of the Capitol who have "had hard luck" with the immigration bill. The chief sufferer in the case is the United States of America. An unsifted immigration—a flood of illiterate, unintelligent, undesirable aliens pouring constantly into the country—is a public peril.—Hartford Courant.

☞The investigations in this country which have characterized the past two years, entering into very many branches of business and laying bare violations of the law and direct dishonesty in robbing the people cannot fail of proving beneficial. The fact that these investigations were made necessary by the greed and desire of overreaching on the part of people from which something better was expected is conclusive evidence that the time had arrived for the probe to be applied, and the proof has warranted that the efforts made have been as successful as might have been expected, considering the vast amount of opposition backed up by a plentiful supply of money, on the part of those whose devious ways had brought them into an accounting of their doings.

☞Both the people who stay at home and those who are off on a summer vacation are receiving advice from the New York pulpit. "If some of you," said Bishop Potter, "are left alone during the summer months, deserted for the time being by family and friends, do not fall into vagrant habits. Do not join in with questionable company in questionable occupations, in this sort of semi-vagabondage, with the excuse that you are left very much alone." That's good advice, and it's considerably more temperate than the language used by the Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters. "I dare not trust myself," he said, "to describe the things which may be seen in our summer hotels, where wealth abounds and beauty smiles. The harvest that will be gathered from the summer's drinking will be ruined homes, broken hearts, destroyed hopes, crushed affections, reputations blasted, dishonored lives, tormented souls, cheerless graves and an undone eternity."—Hartford Times.

Gov. Guild refused yesterday to grant a reprieve to John Schidlofski, convicted of murdering his wife.

Artistic Work By F. A. Spear

Most everybody knows Francis A. Spear. That is everybody who has anything to do with the District court does, for Frank is probation officer, and has given his fatherly advice to many offenders. Frank was not always a probation officer. Years ago he was a tailor and he had the reputation of making men's clothing that fitted like "der paper on der wall." He was also a policeman, and then he was appointed as probation officer.

While a tailor he learned how to handle tools, which he has never forgotten. There are numerous examples of his handiwork at the court room. A little off of Thayer street is a little building called Lazyhurst. Here Frank spends his spare hours fashioning things of beauty.

His latest achievement is a chest and dolls bedstead. The chest is a beautiful piece of work. Eighteen different kinds of wood have been used in it, coming from all over the world. These woods have been highly polished.

The bedstead is also made of different kinds of wood and matches the chest. Glue was used to hold the different pieces together but the joints are so nicely made that but for the different colors one would think it one piece of wood. A piano hinge has been fashioned for the cover which also has a patent stop, so that when opened the cover is held firmly in place. The chest and bedstead will eventually make the heart of a little girl in Barre, Vt., happy.

Was a Match For Husband

There was quite an exciting time in the corridor of the district court room this morning, when Mrs. Frank B. Fryery in a fit of passion made an assault on her husband.

She had summoned her husband into court because he would not support her and their minor child.

She has had him in court on other occasions upon similiar complaints, but she claimed that he absolutely refused to contribute anything for her support.

The court continued the case until July 10.

The parties then went to the corridor, and before anyone could prevent it, Mrs. Fryery flew at her husband and gave him two or three good blows almost knocking him down. Picking himself up he left the building and disappeared toward Quincy Point.

Bethany Church Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Sunday school of the Bethany church is being held at New Downer Landing. Today is an ideal one for a picnic and the young people should have a grand time.

The children with their teachers began to gather in City Square shortly after 9.30 and an half hour later when the special cars arrived there was several hundred in waiting.

When the first special came in sight the children made a grand rush down Hancock street to meet it, and although the older ones tried to make them wait it was useless. Several cars were quickly filled and dispatched toward the grove. Others went down later in the cars. This afternoon there will be a series of sports for boys and girls.

School Attendance.

For ahe closing month of the public schools the average daily attendance was 4,980, or over 92 per cent. Five of the buildings had over 94 per cent. The superintendent's report:

Quarrymen Qut.

The quarrymen employed by the Hallowell granite works have refused to work longer, says the Globe, at the present wage of $1.71 to $1.75, and demand $2.00 which increase the company declines to makes The 8-hour day is already in force. The four gangs of cutters, in all about 75 men, are off duty at present, although not directly interested.

—Good luck recipe: Luck means rising not later than six o'clock in the morning, living on a dollar a day if you earn two, minding your own business, and not meddling with other people's. Luck means the appointments you have never failed to keep, the trains you have never failed to catch. Luck means trusting in God and your own resources. —Farm Journal.

Night Watchman Falls Under Car

David Gage, aged 70 years, of West Quincy, employed as night watchman at the Citizens Gas Co. trench on Hancock street, was injured by an electric car at 11.20 last night. The accident was a peculiar one, and was due to the watchman being too near the rail.

It appears that Mr. Gage stood on a bank of earth that had been thrown up near the rail opposite the Woodward Institute, but was probably nearer the tracks than he thought. While he stood there the Neponset car due in City Square at 11.20 came along.

The car was in charge of conductor Howard Thayer and motorman Joseph O'Brien. The conductor stood on the running board, and as the car passed Gage he bumped against him. Mr. Gage was knocked down and rolled toward the car. One of his hands went under the wheel, which passed over it cutting off two fingers and one side of his hand.

Gage also sustained a cut on the scalp and was bruised more or less. Conductor Thayer was knocked from his feet. Fortunately he had a firm grip with his hands on the car standard. This saved him from being thrown under the car.

A physician was summoned and Mr. Gage taken to the City Hospital in the police ambulance.

Cadets in Camp Hours of Calls

The cadets in all their glory arrived at Camp Duty at Hingham last evening. The train from Boston reached Hingham at 6.10, and the corps marched to camp via Lincoln street and Burdette avenue. The people of Hingham and vicinity turned out in large numbers to welcome them.

Upon arriving at camp there was grand mount. Then mess call was sounded and after supper there was evening band practice,

A Selectman For Many Years

Nathaniel H. Hunt passed away at his home at Braintree Thursday, in his 87th year. For three weeks he had been ill but during that time went out in the yard a few times. Thursday morning he arose as usual and after breakfast sat down in his easy chair and died without warning.

Mr. Hunt was born in what is now Mayflower Park, June 27, 1820, son of Sylvanus and Betsey (Hollis) Hunt and has always lived in South Braintree. When a young man he went to sea, being away four months.

He married Susan Adams Holbrook and to them were born two daughters, Susan Rebecca and Ann Augusta, and one son, John Ruggles. When he was left alone by the death of wife and children he was fortunate in having the tender care of Miss Theresa Youngworth of Quincy. She has been in his household for seven years and did all in her power to make him comfortable.

Mr. Hunt's father died Jan. 8, 1835 at the age of 43 and was buried in the cemetery on Dyer hill.

Nathaniel H. Hunt served the town as selectman, highway surveyor, assessor and overseer of the poor from 1857 to 1874 with the exception of three or four years. He is survived by Eben Denton, now of Dorchester, and George H. Arnold of Braintree, who served with him on the board the last three years, and all went out together.

Mr. Hunt has been a trustee of the Thayer public library since its institution in 1874 and has been treasurer of the same also in 1877 after the death of Mr. N. F. T. Hunt.

The funeral will be held at the home this Saturday afternoon at 2.30 Rev. F. R. Griffin officiating. Interment will be in the Pond street cemetery.

—There have been three drowings in the Charles river at Dedham this year.

☞Do you know Who is Who?

Local Brevities About the City

The Epworth League will hold a lawn party next Wednesday evening on the parsonage grounds on Hall place.

A large paper balloon sent up on Bigelow street last night landed on the Quarry street extension at West Quincy.

The grounds of the parsonage on Hall place are much improved by a fence which has been erected by the Alpha club.

The Board of Health has ordered all of the buildings bounded by Copeland, Cross and Miller streets connected with the public sewer.

Those who participated in the Universalist picnic yesterday at Revere beach had a good time. The day was pleasant and a cool breeze made it comfortable. There was plenty doing at the beach to make it interesting. The party arrived home in the early evening.

Montclair.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Young of Eliot avenue entertained a party of friends from Brighton on the Fourth.

A large party of Norwegians, friends of Martin Quail, held their annual picnic in "the pines" on the Fourth. The grove was decorated with American and Norwegian flags.

Daniel Donnelly of Bowdoin street, Bellevue park, was to have umpired the ball game given under the auspices of the city of Boston on Boston common on the Fourth but owing to the rain the game was not played.

Some of the boys of this neighborhood seem to think that the burlap which has been placed about the trees to catch the gypsy moths was put there purely to furnish amusement for them.

Several boys were seen to take the burlap off of a number of trees and make a bonfire of it. This should certainly be stopped as these same boys are the ones who do most of the mischief in this section.

HOW WEASELS HUNT.

The Graceful Pose of the Animals When on the Trail.

The lithe grace of the weasel may be observed whenever it is on the trail. At an even speed, with nose to the ground, its reddish brown back seems literally to glide along through the rank herbage by the bank.

It may be the scent of a rat, and the trail may take it in and out of the bank a good many times before it comes up with its victim. It may even have to swim a stream before its persistence is rewarded. It is wonderful how small a hole that long, arched body can glide into and emerge from without the slightest difficulty.

When it has caught and killed its prey its movements are equally graceful as it carries the spoil home to its hole. Crossing a Kentish field I saw a weasel coming along under the hedgerow red toothed from the chase. There was the same sinuous motion of the back, but the little beast's head was held as high as possible and from its mouth hung the limp carcass of a young rat, freshly killed. The weasel held it by the neck and so high, for all the shortness of its legs, that only the end of the rat's tail dragged through the grass.

A family of weasels will often hunt in company, and this is naturally a most interesting sight to witness. The ability of the weasel to enter exceedingly small holes is owing entirely to the structure of its body—its flat head, long neck and short limbs and tail. In a cornrick it can pursue mice with ease along their burrows.—London Mail.

LACE BARK TREES.

The Beautiful and Serviceable Dress Materials They Yield.

There are in all about half a dozen lace bark trees in the world, so called because the inner bark yields a natural lace in ready made sheet form, which can be made up in serviceable articles of apparel. Only four of these curious species of trees are of much practical value. Tourists who have stopped at Hawaii or Samoa may recall the lace bark clothing of the natives—clothing of a neat brown color when new, of remarkable strength and of a fragrant odor, like freshly cured tobacco leaf. The native tapa cloth, as it is called, is made from the bark of the Brusonetia papirifera, but it is not usually included among the real lace bark trees. In its natural state the real lace bark is of a delicate cream white tint. It is probably a kind of fibrous pith. When the outer bark is removed it can be unfolded and unwound in one seamless piece, having a surface of a little more than a square yard. Washing and sun bleaching give it a dazzling white appearance. The fabric is airily light. It is used in the West Indies for mantillas, cravats, collars, window curtains—in a word, for every purpose that ordinary lace is used. In making up shawls, veils and the like it is customary to piece two sheets of lace bark together. Delicate and apparently weak as it is in single mesh, a bit of lace bark if rolled into a thin string will all but resist human strength to break it.—New York World.

Trolley Freight

Regulations and Restrictions Reported To City Council.

The Committee on Streets reported to the City Council this week three orders granting to the Old Colony Street Railway Company permission to operate freight cars over all the street railway routes in the city. The committee seems to have put all the necessary safeguards about the grant, including a five-year limit and other restrictions.

Order No. 158, given in full below, is for the trunk line between Braintree and Neponset. Order No. 159 is for Randolph avenue, between Randolph and Milton. Order No. 157 is for all other routes in the city including Wollaston, Squantum, Norfolk Downs, Houghs Neck, Quincy avenue, and West Quincy to the East Milton line. In this last order is the following requirement: "Said company shall establish stations for the receipt and delivery of baggage and freight at Atlantic, Wollaston, City Square, South Quincy, West Quincy and Quincy Point.

Order 158 reads:

WHEREAS: The Old Colony Street Railway Company has presented a petition to this City Council, asking that it approve of its acting as a common carrier of baggage and freight upon its railway in said City of Quincy, from the Braintree line on Independence avenue, Franklin, School and Hancock streets, to the Boston line, under and by virtue of Chapter 202 of the Acts of 1903 as amended by Chapter 441 of the Acts of 1904, and

WHEREAS: Notice has been given to all parties interested, by publication of such order of notice in the Quincy Daily Ledger and Quincy Advertiser, newspapers published in Quincy, as required by law, said publications being fourteen days before the time appointed for said hearing, and

WHEREAS: A hearing has been duly had upon said petition in accordance with said notice, and in accordance with the law, on the fifth day of March, A. D., 1906, and

WHEREAS: The subject matter has been duly considered by this City Council, it is hereby ORDERED: That the said City Council hereby approves of the exercise by the said Old Colony Street Railway Company and its successors or assigns of the rights granted and permitted by said Acts, to act as a common carrier of baggage and freight as petitioned for, over and upon its tracks located within the City of Quincy, from the Braintree line on Independence avenue, Franklin, School and Hancock streets to the Boston line.

This approval is granted subject to the following regulations and restrictions:

FIRST. Said company shall not engage in the business of a common carrier under the authority of said Act and this approval until, and then only to the extent that the Board of Railroad Commissioners upon petition shall certify that public convenience and necessity require.

SECOND. Said company acting under said authority shall be subject to such regulations and restrictions as may from time to time be made by said City Council with the approval of said Board of Railroad Commissioners.

THIRD. Said company shall also be subject to the provisions of all laws now, or hereafter in force relating to common carriers so far as they shall be consistent herewith and with these regulations and restrictions.

FOURTH. The exercise of the authority under said Act by said company shall not in any way alter or abridge the duties and obligations of said company imposed by law relative to the transportation of passengers upon its tracks within said City of Quincy, nor delay the cars for passenger service, nor reduce the facilities for such service.

FIFTH. While acting as a common carrier said company shall not run its baggage or freight cars at any time at a higher rate of speed than is consistent with public safety or than it runs its cars for the transportation of passengers; and all such cars shall be in charge of an adequate number of employees.

SIXTH. This franchise or authority is granted for the term of five years from the date of the passage of this order. It shall not be operative unless accepted within sixty days hereof, nor unless exercised within six months.

SEVENTH. All such baggage and freight shall be carried in closed cars.

EIGHTH. No freight car shall be allowed to make stops on public streets, except when its movements are obstructed by other vehicles or passenger cars, and except in cases of emergency.

NINTH. No more than one freight car shall be run at one time; nor shall it be run in said highways between the hours of 10 P. M. and 5 A. M.; nor shall such cars be run Sundays, except through baggage cars, coming from connecting lines to carry personal baggage.

TENTH. Said company shall not in doing its freight business, make or give any undue or unreasonable preference to or in favor of any person, firm or corporation, nor subject any person, firm or corporation to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage.

This order shall be construed to grant approval for the carrying and transporting of such kinds of packages, parcels, goods and merchandise, of such bulk, size, weight and dimensions, as are ordinarily carried and transported by express companies in wagons, upon and over highways, and not for the transportation of heavy freight nor to any articles, goods or merchandise deemed by said company dangerous to public travel or the safety or comfort of passengers, such as dynamite or other explosives of a dangerous nature, or such as would be likely to interfere with the conduct of its business as a common carrier of passengers.

BRAINTREE.

Miss Ruby McGlauflin of Plain street who has returned from an extended stay in New Hampshire, entertained the Misses Huston of Quincy several days this week.

John Kelley, returned the first of the week from Milwaukee, Wis., where he has been attending the convention of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union as a delegate.

Foster F. Tupper's troubles have just commenced. He has bought an automobile.

Sunday, several members of Antietam Camp S. of V. attended Memorial services held by the Massachusetts Division S. of V. at the Soldiers' home, Chelsea.

Dr. A. E. Oliver will go to New Britain, Conn., to associate with Dr. C. B. Erichson in dentistry. Mr. Oliver is a popular young man here and his many friends wish him success.

The band concert last Sunday, given by the Canoe club, was a perfect success and was greatly appreciated by the large crowd in attendance.

The grand annual illumination of the Braintree Canoe club will be held next Wednesday night, July 11th on Sunset lake. Cuff's orchesta will furnish music and there will be a fine display of fireworks. Club members will decorate their canoes and owners of boats are invited to participate.

The town flag has been at half mast since the death of ex-selectman, Nathaniel H. Hunt.

Wednesday, Mrs. Errol Dunbar of 142 Beacon street, Boston invited her friends and acquaintances to her home, to congratulate Merton L. Emerson and Miss Frances Dike on their engagement, which has just been announced.

Master Arthur Minchin met with an accident on Railroad street yesterday afternoon. A heavy gray horse attempted to ride Arthur's bicycle and smashed the front wheel.

Rev. William O. Ayer of the Baptist church united in marriage at Roxbury, Saturday, June 30, Miss Irma Edyth Wing, a graduate of Bridgewater Normal school and Mr. Charles Ralph Taylor master of the Wollaston grammar school.

Charles H. Snow of Maple street has leased one of Mr. May's houses on Dearing avenue and will move about the middle of the month.

Miss Beatrice May of St. Johnsbury, Vt., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha May, is one of the successful contestants in the Boston American European contest, winning in the Shakespearian tour. Miss May will sail Thursday, July 12, from Charlestown and will visit England and France. Many of her Braintree relatives and friends will see her off.

Mr. Schuman has had a house built in Hayward's grove off Quincy avenue. Mr. Kirby is the builder. Mr. A. L. Hobart has wired the dwelling for electric lighting this week. A second house is to be erected near the first. Mr. Kirby has the contract. He has just completed a house for Mr. Leben on Hayward street.

Mr. Odom, our letter carrier is taking a two weeks' vacation. Mr. E. B. Arnold is filling the duties of his position and covers his route through East Braintree.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Richards of Front street, Weymouth, gave a garden party on the Fourth. A large company of relatives and friends filled the spacious lawn and tennis grounds. After the delicious fruit punch, sandwiches, cheese wafers, cakes and ices had been enjoyed within the house, all gathered beneath the spreading ash tree in the sunset glow. A bright account of a happy lawn party held on July 4th, 1905, written by a niece was read by Mrs. C. P. Whittle.

Mr. Frank Custance died July 4th at his home on Factory hill, aged 32 years. Deceased had been ill but a few days. He was a native of this town but did not live here for some years until recently. He is survived by a widow. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon. Interment was at Village cemetery, Weymouth.

The many friends of Rev. Oliver B. Loud of Lawton, Oklahoma congratulate him and his bride and wish them much happiness. Miss Julia Sophie Schule of Chicago having journeyed to Lawton was met by Mr. Loud and they were married on July 6th in that city. The lady, it will be recalled, visited here two summers since and met a number of Mr. Loud's relatives and friends and sang at the Union church on the Sunday of her visit.

The Methodist Episcopal Sabbath school and society enjoyed their annual picnic on Friday. A crowded car carried the company to Ridge Hill. They went off in fine spirits and had perfect weather for a day's outing. Rev. Mr. Darby of New Bedford, a former pastor, was here and went with the party. Rev. Mr. Bath was glad so many could attend. The recent lawn party yielded the necessary funds to take the children.

The Braintree High School Alumni association met last Friday evening in High School hall. Owing to the uncomfortableness of the evening there were not so many there as was expected and it was decided by those present to postpone further business until some time in September when a set of regulations and by-laws will be adopted.

The Union engine will enter the playout at Medford on July 14th. The Active of Weymouth and the Cochato of Braintree have also decided to compete.

The graduating class of the High school surprised Principal Ernest L. Collins last Saturday evening and spent a very pleasant evening at his home on Middle street. While they were there, the class presented Mr. Collins with a fine leather travelling bag.

A letter has been received at the Observer office from Rev. William O Ayer of the Braintree Baptist church, who is in Bangor, Maine, on a two weeks' vacation. Mr. Ayer is visiting his sister, Mrs. B. S. Huzzey and is having a real good time.

Holiday Week At the Seashore

The season at Houghs Neck is now at its zenith. Practically everything in the shape of a cottage has been let and is occupied. All the amusement places are open and busy. Fifteen minute cars are being run and there has been more transient visitors this season than ever before.

A penny vauderville has been opened near the end of the car line, and is a great place for the children.

Oscar Mattson and family of Brockton are in the Philedian cottage on Prospect avenue.

The Vera cottage on Rogers street is occupied by John Flood and family of Brockton.

An awning has been placed over the waiting seat at Post Island.

Ex-Councilman Silva of Brockton, with family, are summering at the Marjorie cottage on Charles street.

Thomas W. Barry and family of Roxbury are in the Mabel cottage on Cannon street.

Houghs Neck was better patroled against fire the night before the Fourth this year than ever before, and it was never quieter than this year.

Mrs. Ellen M. Perry of Brockton has been the guest this week of Mrs. Harriett Connor.

Charles Hobart of Brockton with family are occupying the Mayflower cottage on Parkhurst street.

Adolph Carlson of Campello and family have arrived at the Sunlight cottage on Bird street.

Many visitors were entertained at he various cottages over the Fourth.

Robert Bruce of the Jamaica Plain M. E. church was elected superintendent of the Sunday school at Houghs Neck, last Sunday. Miss Aacorn is pianist. An increased number of church people seem to be at the Neck this season and there is the outlook for good Congregations at the 10.30 A. M. preaching service, and the 11.30 A. M. Sunday school session. Friends from Quincy who would enjoy a breath of salt air, are cordially invited to take part in these services.

Bids Opened for Water Extensions

Bids for the extension of Braintree water works through Mayflower Park to the Holbrook line were opened Monday afternoon in the Town hall before a large gathering of men. The board of water commissioners decided not to award the contract until the last of the week. All bidders, except one, were above the appropriation of ten thousand dollars.

The bids were as follows:

LANDED IN A DORY

Noted Aeronaut Has a Most Thrilling Experience

BLOWN FAR OUT TO SEA

Was In Perilous Plight After Passing Beyond Limits of the Coast--Rescued by Fishermen After Spending Night In Air

Boston, July 7.—After one of the most remarkable experiences in the history of aerial navigation, James K. Allen, the aeronaut, who made a balloon ascension at Providence on the Fourth of July, was brought to this port last evening on the fishing schooner Francis V. Sylvia, having been picked up at sea off Block Island Thursday morning.

Allen had a narrow escape from death by drowning, the winds that prevailed Wednesday having blown his balloon far out over the Atlantic. Until news of his arrival here became known it had been thought that he had met his death, as it was known that at the last time he was sighted on Wednesday evening he was traveling out to sea.

That Allen is alive is due wholly to a fortunate shift of the wind. When he made his ascension at Providence on Wednesday the wind was blowing a brisk breeze from the southwest. The aeronaut was carried in his balloon in a northeasterly direction and passed over the town of Attleboro. He had his balloon under perfect control at that time, and while in the vicinity of Attleboro he descended twice, and twice he reascended.

From Attleboro the airship traveled in the direction of Brockton, and the last seen of the aeronaut by observers on shore was when he passed over Scituate early in the evening. At that time the balloon was headed straight out to sea. When Thursday dawned without any news being received from Allen and it became known that the last time he was seen was when he was on the ocean shore headed out to sea, it was then believed that he would never return and that another chapter would be added to the list of tragedies connected with aerial navigation.

After Allen passed beyond the limits of the coast his plight was most perilous. Unless the wind shifted the aeronaut could not hope to reach land, as there was not enough gas in the balloon to carry him across the Atlantic.

Fortunately the shift of wind came. It was during the night that the air currents over the ocean turned their course from southwest to northeast, and the car retraced its course. Instead of returning to Providence, the starting point, the wind carried the balloon considerably to the southward and when daylight dawned Allen was off the southern coast of Block Island.

When the balloon descended Allen was picked up by the Boston fishing schooner Francis V. Sylvia and brought here. The balloon was also saved and taken on board the fisherman. As soon as Allen landed he telegraphed his family and friends in Providence, telling them that he was safe.

Allen appeared to be none the worse for his experience. He said that he was cool at all times and would have remained over the land had he not lost his bearings in the clouds after passing over Attleboro. At Attleboro he bumped against a house and later his ropes struck a flagpole in that town. His outfit was not damaged and after leaving Attleboro he ascended to a height of two miles. He found a high wind and was carried through the clouds at a rapid rate. He lost his reckoning and was carried further to the southeast than he anticipated. A heavy rain and mist completely obscured his vision until nearly dark. About dark Wednesday night he passed over Provincetown, but not at a great height. He was unable to make a landing and the wind, which shifted to the eastward, carried him down the Cape Cod coast.

"I knew I was over the water," said Allen, "and I knew I was pretty low, but it was terribly dark and I couldn't see a thing. It must have been soon after midnight when I got my first ducking. The wind carried my basket against the water. The minute I touched the water I grabbed the ropes over my head, and I was none too quick, for the basket was almost submerged. I threw out some sand and went up again to about 100 feet, I guess, but about an hour later I struck the water again and got another soaking. I then threw out a little more sand and went up again, but came down once more and struck the water. I held onto the ropes. I didn't see a thing until dawn. Then I saw a steamer. She was going one way and I the other. I shouted, but I guess she didn't see me, for she paid no attention.

"About an hour after this I met a tug with several barges. I shouted again and the tug cut loose from the barges and chased me, but soon gave it up, as I was going too fast for her. I was about 100 feet above water. The rope and anchor were still in the sea, but she's a big balloon and as the wind continued to blow stiffly I went tearing along at a pretty good pace in spite of the drag. At this time I had the balloon under perfect control and felt no danger. About 7:30 Thursday morning I sighted a fishing schooner and was rescued."

Allen said that when the men in one of the dories made his rope fast the balloon pulled the dory some distance, but when he let the gas out there was no difficulty in descending.

Warrants In Hartje Divorce Case

Pittsburg, July 7.—A controversy between opposing counsel in the sensational suit of Augustus Hartje, a millionaire paper manufacturer of this city, against Mary Hartje, his wife, for divorce, which is now being tried here, has developed that County Detective Robinson has warrants in his possession for the arrest of Augustus Hartje, John L. Welshops, a wealthy business friend, and Clifford Hooe, a negro, former coachman for Hartje. The charge against the three is conspiracy. The warrants have not been served and no action will be taken until the divorce trial is concluded. Hooe was named as a co-respondent in the case.

Five Years For Diamond Thief

Omaha, July 7.—Mrs. Mae Hayes, convicted of the theft from a local jewelry firm of a $300 diamond, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Mrs. Hayes was looking at unset gems in the jewelry store and when the clerk's back was turned she put a large stone in her mouth. Two detectives who had been shadowing her at once arrested her and she swallowed the diamond. The gem has never been recovered, although Mrs. Hayes offered to submit to a surgical operation if prosecution was dropped. This the state would not agree to.

Theatrical Men Acquitted

New York, July 7.—The production of George B. Shaw's play, "Mrs. Warren's Profession," in this city was not a violation of the penal code, according to a decision handed down by the justices of the court of special sessions. The decision was given in the case of Arnold Daly and Samuel Gumpertz, who were arrested at the time the play was ordered discontinued by the police commissioner. The two defendants are acquitted by the decision.

Getting Away From New Tax Law

New York, July 7.—Several brokers who make a specialty of dealing in the low-priced mining shares in the New York curb market have definitely decided to transfer their operations to Jersey City. They will begin business there on Monday next. The movement is the outcome of the enforcement of the amended stock tax law, which compels a tax of 2 cents a share on all selling transactions, irrespective of par value.

Manila, July 7.—The United States transport Thomas is ashore on a coral reef near the Island of Guam. The Thomas' position is favorable as long as good weather prevails. She is reported to have run on the reef a distance of 100 feet. Efforts to dislodge her thus far have been futile. All on board the Thomas are safe.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Herbert T. George of Nashua, N. H., 10 years old, fell from a boom into the Nashua river and was drowned.

How to Play the Infield

Comiskey Tells How First Baseman In Particular Should Cover His Position---"Play Very Deep." Play Close to the Foul Line.

By CHARLES A. COMISKEY, President of the Chicago Americans.

The only players who become successful infielders are those with a natural aptitude for baseball.

A good mechanical player who can hit at a fair clip may make good and hold a position in the outfield, but when he comes in to the diamond he must be a quick thinker, a fast fielder and a natural player as well.

I wonder how many baseball fans have thought of the build of these infielders and the part that plays in determining a man's qualification for a certain position.

For instance, the first baseman must be a tall, rangy fellow who can cover ground, but more especially one who has a reach to catch throws a trifle wild.

Then again height and reach are valuable in stepping forward to meet thrown balls. Many a first baseman who understands his position robs batsmen of hits merely by stretching out and meeting the ball.

In the course of a season this one or two feet advantage will mean a score or more less base hits. Now the second baseman and shortstop, on the other hand, the latter especially, should be short, chunky men, something of the dachshund order, for they have to gather the ball in from all positions while on the run, so the lower they are to the ground the better.

Most of the great third basemen are small men or men of medium height, but it is not so essential there.

In playing the bags many managers have different ideas, but I have my own, and in regard to first base, the position I played on the old St. Louis team, my opinions are set.

I am a great believer in playing deep and depending on the pitcher to cover the bag in many instances. I always played my position ten or fifteen feet deeper than the other first basemen, and the pitchers had to get over to cover the bag.

They could not be sluggish and try to show me up. If I saw the pitcher was loafing on me I fielded the ball and then threw to first whether any one was there or not. Then the crowd saw who was to blame, and pretty soon the pitchers got in the habit of running over pretty rapidly rather than be roasted.

But generally a baseman has no trouble, for when a pitcher sees his first baseman cutting off hits into right field he is glad to do his part.

Often I have worked plays where the second basemen ran over to receive my put out. At the same time I always played the foul line safe, for a hit along the foul lines is the most damaging of any. It is nearly always good for two bases and often for three, for the fielders are away off and have a long run to field the ball. The same principle holds good at third. As a general rule I would say the first baseman should field the ball and leave the pitcher to cover the base.

Fishing Season.

Many Big Trout Catches Reported---Roosevelt Trout a New Arrival.

The fishing season of 1906, so far as lake and brook sport are concerned, is proving a big success. The wholesale stocking of waterways by the United States government hatcheries has improved the sport vastly over that of two or three years ago.

Reports of unusually large catches of trout have been received by the writer from Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Michigan and Maine.

President Roosevelt has had many queer things named after him, from Chickasaw papooses to a particular brand of hard cider, and now he has attained new fame through the discovery of what is to be known as the "Roosevelt trout." The Roosevelt trout, or "Salmo roosevelti," as science will know it, is a newly discovered species and described as the most beautiful in America. Golden in color and about a foot in length, it is found only in one small creek tributary to the Kern river in the high Sierras of California, called Volcano creek.

It is by the president's express permission that his name has been bestowed upon this remarkable trout. He has taken a special and personal interest in its preservation, and under his direction steps have been taken to propagate it artificially and to distribute it over the United States.

The experts of the fisheries bureau believe that it will thrive and multiply in the cold streams of the Adirondacks and in other parts of the eastern United States as well as in mountainous regions of the west. It is hardy and prolific.

When Salmo roosevelti jumps out of the water in the sunshine it looks as if it were literally made of gold. On the back it is of a light yellowish olive color, but the lower sides and belly are a bright golden yellow, and along the middle of each side runs a rosy band.

The gills are rosy, and so likewise are the fins, except the back fin, which, as well as the tail, is olive and yellow mottled with black spots.

Out of the way Florida coast places like Punta Rassa or St. James City on the southwest coast have become celebrated fishing resorts. These are crowded in summer with enthusiastic anglers, ladies being quite as eager as the men in catching ray. The sea is literally covered with boats on a fine morning.

The gulf of Mexico, bay of Florida and the straits are all good fishing grounds. Shoals of tarpon swarm there, dipping and plunging in the blue waters in proximity with various kinds of sharks, whose presence is indicated by their dorsal fins. In the shallow waters of the coral inlets the prickly ray (or thornback) is found warming itself or springing with great flapping wings high into the air. Among these multitudinous coral fishes are to be found the sawperch, the sawfish, the swordfish and all the thousand strange inhabitants of the sea. The least dangerous fishing is that for tarpon, which is one of a little known branch of the herring family. It is sometimes called the silver king on account of its very large glittering scales. The scientific name, Megalops thrissoides (megalops—large eyes), has been given to the tarpon on account of the large size and peculiar shape of its eyes. There is also a remarkable bayonet continuation at the extreme end of the dorsal fin. The flesh of the tarpon is very coarse and bony and can scarcely be eaten.

The thornbacks or rays live exclusively at the bottom of the sea, burrowing themselves into the sand, and, owing to their protective coloring, are able to spring out upon the unsuspecting plaice, shrimp and crab. These grotesque fishes often reach gigantic size. Their breast fins, which answer to the wings of a bird, are often extraordinarily broad.

Two Great Cornell Coaches

Courtney and Moakley Responsible For Wide Athletic Prominence of Ithaca Institution --- J. H. Garrells, Michigan's Redoubtable Star.

The present sensational prominence of Cornell university in the athletic world is due primarily to her two great trainers and coaches, Charles Courtney, the rowing instructor, and Jack Moakley, generalissimo of the track team.

The victory of two of the Cornell crews at the recent annual intercollegiate rowing regatta at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and the triumph of the Cornell track and field team in the intercollegiate athletic meet at Cambridge, Mass., are directly due to these two men, who took raw material and developed it into winning form.

JACK MOAKLEY, CORNELL TRACK TRAINER.

Between the two trainers of Cornell there is a wide line of personality.

Courtney is no angel to get along with. He never minces words.

A failure to do one's duty is an unpardonable sin in his eyes.

He has taken men out of the boat and crew on mere suspicion of dereliction in duty. His anger is the equal of a Chinese typhoon. But he is always fair.

Moakley, on the other hand, is slow to decision, but quick to act when his mind is made up. And, like Courtney, he is firm in his resolves. The law of either is absolute. That is why Cornell wins.

Moakley started in at the bottom of the scale at Cornell in 1899, and with his usual sagacity he took up the branch he could do most with at the beginning—that is, distance running. He knew it would take years to develop an all round team, but if he could turn out a high class squad of distance runners who would attract attention in the long races, where the competition among college athletes seemed at that time to be most keen, it would be possible to attract more attention to the other branches of track work.

Moakley, however, built up his team in spite of all difficulties and has an all round, well balanced bunch of track athletes at Cornell that look good to win the intercollegiates for a couple of years to come—next year at any rate. Of the thirteen men who totaled 38 points in this year's intercollegiate meet not one was a prep. school star, and with the exception of Philips and Jackson in the pole vault, Magoffin in the two mile and Rogers in the quarter none of them had ever done anything at all in track work before going to Ithaca. This is a record that will be hard to beat.

J. H. Garrells of the University of Michigan is just now the leading competing athlete of the west and middle west.

A lad of unusual all round ability, he astounded rivals and friends alike in the recent conference meet at Evanston, Ill., by his sensational work.

Besides equaling the world record over the high stick, Garrells won the low hurdles and the discus throw and was second in the shot put.

He thus scored eighteen points for his college and equaled another record made by Kraenzlein when the great Pennsylvania athlete was first in the 100, the two hurdle races and second in the broad jump at the eastern intercollegiate in 1900.

RUSSIAN FINANCES

Alleged Padding ot Estimates to Blind Money Markets

St. Petersburg, July 7.—While the action of the lower house of parliament yesterday in appropriating $7,500,000 to be dispensed by the administration for famine relief was epochal, as the first recognition of the cabinet by parliament and the first step in joint work, its importance was far overshadowed by the revelation of alleged admissions made by Finance Minister Kokovsoff in the budget commission about the padding of estimates for the liquidation of war expenses, in order to be able to extract a larger loan from the foreign markets.

These developments made an immense sensation and were eagerly discussed in the corridors of the chamber, where it was declared that if the statements of the commission members were true it placed Russian financial methods on a par with those of mushroom South American republics, and would undermine the confidence of foreign financiers in the old guard now managing Russian finances and immensely complicate further credit operations.

All this is naturally fish for the net of the Constitutional Democrats, who see in the revelations the brightest prospect for forcing the transfer of administrative power to a responsible cabinet.

Houser Found Not Guilty

Madison, Wis., July 7.—Walter I. Houser, secretary of state of Wisconsin, was acquitted in court last night of the charge of having attempted to bribe Zeno H. Most, state commissioner of insurance, by reading a prepared decision in the Brunkhost-Equitable Insurance case from Robert Luscombe to the commissioner and telling him that the Equitable society would contribute $2000 to the La Follette campaign fund if such a decision were rendered.

New British Naval Base

London, July 7.—Under the award of the arbitrators in the case of the Tanjong Pagar Dock company of Singapore, the Straits Settlements government must pay the company $14,175,000 for the acquisition of the company's docks and shipyards at Singapore and Penang. Although the imperial government was not actually a party to the transaction, it is believed the admiralty intends to carry out developments making Singapore an important naval base.

Trying to Head Off Pests

Albany, July 7.—State Entomologist Felt has mailed a placard to the postmasters of the state illustrating the destructive gypsy and brown-tail moths in their various stages and in connection therewith he has issued a circular saying that the gypsy moth, which has caused losses running into millions of dollars in Massachusetts, has already escaped from that commonwealth and is steadily making its way westward.

Plot Against Kaiser's Life

Berlin, July 7.—The chief of police of Altona and Privy Councillor Rosenhagen are inquiring into the case of August Rosenberg, recently arrested at Altona, who is strongly suspected of having planned an attempt on Emperor William's life. There are numerous overwhelming causes for suspicion and it is believed that only the man's arrest prevented the attempt.

Guilty of Granting Rebates

Chicago, July 7.—The Chicago and Alton railroad, John N. Faithorn and Fred A. Wann, formerly officials of the road, were convicted in the United States district court of illegally granting rebates to the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Packing company. No sentence was imposed by Judge Landis, pending the arguments for a new trial.

To Get Pointers From Roosevelt

Washington, July 7.—Secretary Taft started for Oyster Bay last night. He is to deliver a speech at the Republican state convention at Greensboro, N. C., next week which is expected to be of considerable importance and it is probable that he will discuss with the president the topics to be dealt with in that speech.

Toward Municipal Ownership

Trenton, July 7.—Governor Stokes has signed a bill authorizing cities to construct, acquire and operate electric light and gas plants. The bill, while particularly intended for Camden, is general in its application, and is looked upon by many as an advance step in the direction of municipal ownership in New Jersey.

Mother and Six Children Killed

Lafayette, Ind., July 7.—Mrs. Solomon Gobbeau and her six children were burned to death last night in a fire that destroyed their home here. The husband and father was badly burned, but will recover. The entire family was asleep when the fire started.

The Longworths at Palace Elysee

Paris, July 7.—President and Mme. Fallieres, at the Elysee palace, received Congressman and Mrs. Longworth. The visit, which was informal, lasted half an hour, during which the party were shown through the salons and gardens.

London Visit Lengthened

London, July 7.—Mr. Bryan has decided not to leave London on Monday as he had intended, but will remain till Thursday, after which he will start on his tour of the Rhine, Switzerland and Italy.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, July 8.
Sun rises—4:15; sets—7:23.
Moon rises—9:24 p. m.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

BOSTON LETTER.

True Inwardness of the Statement Made by Gethro.

IT WAS A MATTER OF POLITICS.

Was Used to Give Moran Democratic Nomination.

The unseating of Representative Frank J. Gethro of Boston has proven a bitter experience for that person, and the end is not yet. All his subsequent actions prove beyond controversy that his sole object now is revenge for his unseating. His bitterness against the men who voted to unseat him and his silence in regard to those who were in his favor, prove that his mind is filled with bitter hatred, notwithstanding the fact that every word and act of his since he ceased to be a member of the house give eloquent testimony that that body acted with great wisdom and great conservatism in sending him forth shorn of his honors.

Since he has been unseated a statement has been put forth with his authority, in which he makes serious charges against those members of the house who voted to unseat him. Some of these are so preposterous that they carry their refutation upon their face, and the entire statement is stamped as utterly unreliable and untrue in so far as it relates to other members of the great and general court. One of Gethro's statements is as follows: "I agreed to buy Republican votes, got the contract and bought the votes."

Why is the word "Republican" in that statement? Gethro is a Boston Democrat. No Republican whose vote was for sale would have trusted himself to a man of the character of this man. But why was the word "Republican" used in this statement of Gethro's? Are there no venal Democrats in the legislature? If there are corrupt men in the general court, are none of them Democrats? Do not those most familiar with the legislature know that many of the venal men there are Democrats?

Was This a Conspiracy?

Then why this word "Republican" in this statement? Is Gethro a tool in the hands of designing Democratic politicians? Did they seize upon his misfortune as an opportunity to viciously and vindictively attack the Republican party of Massachusetts? Was this a part of the conspiracy of two or three men to secure the nomination of John B. Moran for governor? Really what is the significance of that word "Republican" in Gethro's statement? Everybody knows that he is a Democrat. It is a matter of common consent around the legislature that he was incapable of writing such a statement as that issued over his signature. Was it written by his counsel, Daniel H. Coakley, or was it planned by that cunning craftsman, John B. Moran, in order to make it appear that there was reeking corruption in the Republican legislature on Beacon Hill, and that he was needed there as governor to clean it out?

Was that statement put out as a matter of pure-minded patriotism, or merely as a political screed designed to assist the personal fortunes of a designing politician? Is there a conspiracy between Coakley, Gethro and Moran, to throw discredit upon the Republican party and the Republican legislature and endeavor to make the people believe that only the Democrats in the state and Democratic members of the legislature are pure, patriotic and high-minded? It looks very much that way, even though it may not at this moment be susceptible of proof.

In confessing that he was employed to bribe and that he did bribe members of the great and general court, this man Gethro has furnished the most abundant justification of the action of the house in casting him out as a traitor to his constituency, to the commonwealth, and to the legislature.

The most preposterous part of his statement is that in which he alleges that he went to the state house as a member of the legislature innocent and unsophisticated in the ways of legislation, and through his youth and his surroundings was led to take the steps he did, and fell into disgrace.

What Gethro Admits

It is entirely clear from his own statement that Gethro is a perjurer, that he attempted to bribe members of the legislature, that he did bribe some of them, that he betrayed his constituency which he had sworn to serve faithfully as a member of the house, that he proved a traitor to the commonwealth in attempting to secure the defeat of healthy and much needed legislation for a money consideration; and if he lied to the Suffolk county grand jury and to the house committee on rules when under oath to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, it is entirely probable that in his latest statement, which is not under oath, smirching the reputation of the legislature, his word is entitled to no more credit than that of any other perjurer would be under the circumstances. If he bribed anybody both briber and bribed should be punished. It is quite evident that as soon as Mr. Gethro saw that the house intended to unseat him he began to formulate plans for revenge. He knew that most of the men who had voted to deprive him of membership had done so in order to remove the stain of wholesale bribery which had been charged against the legislature; and which, if true, was a blot upon the escutcheon of the commonwealth. He knew that their object was to wipe out the stain upon the reputation of this state which for 130 years has led the galaxy of states in purity, ability, and reputation. Having sullied his own reputation by a course consistent only with the character of a traitor he proceeded to cast wholesale aspersions upon the entire legislature, and in order that his own political party might not suffer in his undoing, he proceeded to single out Republicans upon whom to vent the vials of his wrath and his revenge.

It is not an alluring picture, this apology of a man, wallowing, himself, in the mire, and endeavoring to drag down into the same depths with him good men and true who had the courage to stand for their honest convictions and mete out to him the punishment which he so richly deserved.

Some Democratic Opinion

The Boston Herald sums up the situation concisely in the following words:

"It will take more conclusive evidence than the testimony of Frank J. Gethro to secure the conviction of anyone. He is, by his own confession, not only an accepter of bribes but a seeker of them, and he wished to obtain the position of purchaser of votes. He further admits that in his earlier testimony he perjured himself."

In this connection it has been stated that Gethro has probably been promised immunity in case he shall make a clean breast of the whole affair to the district attorney. Quite likely this is the fact.

It seems entirely clear to most people that this Gethro matter, with its sensational and preposterous charges, is being used to promote the political ambition of John B. Moran in his canvass for the governorship of this commonwealth. It will be a sorry day for the old Bay State if a man of the character of John B. Moran should be elected as its chief magistrate. Let us hope that it will be many years before a man politically irresponsible and with the brass-band-methods of Mr. Moran could be elected to the highest position in the gift of the people of this state.

Power of Unscrupulous Men

In becoming the instrument of irresponsible parties, Mr. Gethro may be putting his head into a worse noose than he did when he attempted to bribe, or when he did bribe, members of the Massachusetts legislature. It is extremely unfortunate that a few men, irresponsible, unscrupulous, and desperate, should have it in their power to wreck or to destroy the reputation of men in the legislature who have been guilty of no wrong, but alone because of their defense of the honor and purity of the flag of the commonwealth of Massachusetts against such insidious foes as the self-confessed briber, Gethro, must be considered on his own showing.

Mr. Gethro is no longer a member of the house. His word is no longer regarded even by the credulous and the innocent. His reputation today, on his own showing, is that of a man who has sought to corrupt the morals of members of the legislature and then turned about and betrayed them. Of the two, the briber and the bribed, the former must be considered the greater offender. No doubt there are men in the legislature who have sold their votes. That, however, is no justification for the conduct of Mr. Gethro. He cannot justify himself by smirching others. It will be difficult to make the public believe other members of the legislature are guilty on the mere say-so of this man, Gethro. The word of a perjurer in a court of law has very little weight. It will be extremely difficult for him to pose either as a penitent or a martyr.

However, that politics has entered into this question of corruption in the legislature is evidenced by the fact that for many weeks Mr. Moran has been seeking support among the Prohibitionists and Democrats with a view to securing both these nominations. The Prohibitionists have already placed him on their ticket, and the Democratic leaders today are making a tremendous struggle to prevent his carryings off the nomination in their convention in September.

Politics from beginning to end, a mad ambition that could not be restrained, seem to have actuated and dictated the entire course of Mr. Moran since he was nominated for district attorney last year.

"How's Your Stomach"

is the way people in China say "Good Morning." The greeting of almost every nation is an inquiry after health. The Chinese have the root of the matter. A strong stomach is the foundation. Look after this organ and the general health cares for itself. Man is so constituted it cannot be otherwise. It is the mission of to keep the stomach well, the liver active and the bowels regular. They dispel sickness and create health. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness or Constipation cannot exist when Beecham's Pills are used according to directions. For over 50 years they have cured disordered stomachs, and are now a world-famous remedy. They merit your confidence.

—That Toledo, Ohio, Judge who got after the half-dozen ice dealers, who formed a trust and raised the price of this household necessity over 100 per cent, did the trick about as neatly as has ever been recorded. He touched each one for $5,000 in fines and gave them in addition a jail sentence from which there is no appeal. It looks as if the consumers are about to get justice, now that the Ohio judge has put the judicial sieve in motion.—Hyde Park Gazette.

July Magazines.

Warm weather creates a desire for easily digested food—both physical and mental. The July number of Lippincott's Magazine responds generously to this demand by making entertainment the keynote of its contents. Jane Belfield contributes a complete novelette, "The Heart of Paprika." This, as its name implies, is both sweet and spicy and holds the reader's interest in spite of the thermometer. Its author wanted her story to be a tragedy, but her hero took the matter into his own hands and marries the right girl.

TODAY'S COURT.

Samuel F. Chase was fined $50 for violation of the liquor law at Braintree.

Frank B. Fryerg was arraigned for non support of his wife and minor child at Quincy. Case continued until July 10.

—His mother tucked the four-year-old Johnny away in the top berth of the sleeping car, says a writer in Youth. Hearing him stirring in the middle of the night, she called softly, "Johnny, do you know where you are?" "Tourse I do," he returned sturdily, "I'm in the top drawer."—Youth's Companion.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The patrons of the Castle Square Theatre have been anxiously awaiting the promised revival of "The Bohemian Girl." This famous old opera stood first in the list voted for by thousands of theatre goers at the opening of the Castle Square summer season, and there have naturally been many questions as to the date of its production. It will be given during the coming week, and the preparations for its revival promise an exceptionally popular and artistic series of performances. The opera itself is as tuneful as it is famous. Written by the famous composer Balfe more than a century ago. It has been sung the world around to the enthusiastic appreciation of all music lovers.

GLOBE THEATRE.

Mr. John Craig enters upon the third week of his summer stock season at the Globe Theatre next Monday afternoon when he will offer for the entertainment of his patrons the delightful comedy drama, "The Last Word." Next Monday afternoon will be souvenir day when an attractive souvenir photograph of Mr. Craig will be presented to every lady purchasing a seat in the balcony or orchestra. "The Last Word" should form a particularly attractive play at this season of the year as its comedy situations, its dialogue and its many pleasing scenes are of such a nature as to prove most entertaining. The play was first produced by the Augustine Daly Stock company and it is an interesting fact, worthy of note, that it was in this play as a member of Mr. Daly's company that Mr. Craig made his first appearance on the stage as a modern type of character.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Coming to Keith's the week of July 9, is one of the best balanced companies of vaudeville entertainers that have appeared at that popular playhouse this season. Prominent on the bill will be the Dainty Dairy Maids, ten clever singing and dancing girls from "The Isle of Dreams." The young women are pretty, are clever dancers, and know how to look their way into the good graces of the audience. Some of the others in the surrounding show are the St. Onge Brothers, two of the cleverest comedy and trick bicyclists in the business; the Buckeye State quartet of vocalists and funmakers, and Grace Childers, exhibiting a clever little canine. The kinetograph will exhibit an entire new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures.

Highland Park.

After the week that has just passed when musical comedy has pleased thousands at the open air theatre at Highland Park a change will be made and next week vaudeville will hold the stage. This will be a big vaudeville show of six acts which has played the past two weeks in Haverhill and Lawrence to big audiences and many encores. It is said by critics to be the best vaudeville show that was ever presented on a summer stage.

Day Nursery Notes.

The first of July finds so many people going away for the summer that the attendance was small at the meeting on Tuesday of the day Nursery Association but the interest was unabated.

The association is not quite ready to publish an itemized report of the lawn party, but is gratifying to know that the treasurer reported $610.38 cash on hand, including the proceeds of the party.

The matron reported all children under her care well.

The thanks of the Association are due the following ladies for their donations during June:

Mrs. Vienna Ross, cake, rhubarb sauce, crib mattress.
Mrs. Miller, cake and piece pork.
Mrs. King, cake
Miss Gladys Howland, three fans.
Mrs. Mitchell, crib.
A friend, box of clothes and cotton diapers.
Mrs. E. S. Brown, nasturtium plants.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

LAND COURT.

TO the O. T. Rogers Granite Company, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in Quincy in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; Marshall P. Wright, Antonio Cellucci, Mary A. Carey, Patrick Carey and Thomas J. Dunphy, Receiver of the Quincy Quarries Company, all of said Quincy, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas a petition has been presented to said Court by Titolivio Tocci of said Quincy, to register and confirm his title in the following described land situate in said Quincy, bounded:

Westerly by Willard Street ninety (90) feet; Northerly by land of the Quincy Quarries Company one hundred sixty-three and 9-10 (163.9) feet; Easterly by a private way ninety-seven and 6-10 (97.6) feet; and Southerly by land of Patrick Carey et al, one hundred fifty-one and 83-100 (151.83) feet; containing 14,760 square feet of land.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in said County of Suffolk, on the thirtieth day of July A. D. 1906, at ten o'clock in the fornoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Leonard A. Jones, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixth day of July, in the year nineteen hundred and six.

FIRST AID TO THE INJURED.

How to Save the Small Boy After the Fourth of July.

Perhaps this may seem like seeking trouble, but if mothers would act upon these hints they might save themselves many unavailing tears and regrets, for boys will burn hands and faces on the glorious Fourth of July. And lockjaw is but too apt to follow such burns. This dread malady comes not so much from the burns as from carelessly dressed wounds.

It is better not to dress a wound at all than to touch it with unsterilized hands. Do not permit a wound made by a firecracker or toy pistol to heal until you have a surgeon's word that it is safe to do so. Many a lad ties up his wounded hand himself, and it is thought little of, but so long as a bit of the wadding is left in the wound there is danger. If the germs of lockjaw are present in the blackened wadding the danger is too grave to disregard. So it is a wise precaution for mothers to obtain proper antiseptic washes and bandages. It is not always possible to find a surgeon at once, and so a wound may be made innocuous if properly dressed until a doctor can be found in case the wound is dangerous. And all toy pistols with their poisonous wadding are as deadly as bullets. More so, for a boy will go to a doctor if wounded by a ball, but he counts the wadding as nothing and dies of lockjaw.

Every mother should have a porcelain pitcher and basin handy, some safety pins, a package of absorbent cotton and one of iodoform gauze, a solution of linseed oil and limewater, a solution of boric acid, flaxseed for poultices and a surgeon's probe. The carbolic solution has one teaspoonful of carbolic acid to a pint of water. The boric solution means a teaspoonful of the acid to a glass of warm water.

Burns are the most frequent injuries. The pain is great. Girls and boys should on this day be dressed in woolen garments so far as is possible. More than half the burns are received because of the filmy nature of the dresses worn on this day. A spark sets them afire. If any one is set on fire he or she should be thrown to the ground and a shawl or rug or some other woolen article thrown about the victim. This is to protect the person from inhaling the fire. After the fire is out dress the burns at once with the solution of linseed oil and water, a little at a time, excluding the air. If the clothing sticks to the burned spot wet it with a little oil and cut it away from the wound. Cover the burned place with the solution of linseed oil and limewater and swathe it in the antiseptic gauze. If the patient suffers from the shock the body will grow cold, pulse grow feeble and eyelids close, and sometimes complete insensibility supervenes. In that case apply hot bottles around the body, rub the arms and legs and apply mustard plasters to the wrists and soles of the feet. If the patient is conscious give milk or coffee, but no liquor of any kind, and send for the family doctor at once.

When an explosion tears the palm or inside of the hand the danger is greatest and calls for drastic measures. The mother must be firm in this moment. Here she saves her boy from lockjaw. The wound must not be touched by anything but sterilized implements and fabrics. The basin is to be put over a flame and the probe in the water and allowed to boil five minutes. In the meantime the hands are to be washed in water as hot as can be borne with antiseptic soap and touching nothing that has not been sterilized. Remove the wadding with the sterilized probe, bathe the wound with the sterilized water, with carbolic in it. Use absorbent, antiseptic cotton to cleanse the wound and throw each piece aside after using, but not in the water. After the wound is cleansed of all substances wrap it in iodoform gauze and leave the rest to the surgeon. Linseed and oil would calm the pain, but as they are not entirely antiseptic it is better to wait the arrival of the physician. The prompt cleaning of the wound and the use of germicides in the solutions are far more important at this time than relief from pain.

If these simple but necessary precautions are taken the long death list of our children would be made very much smaller.

How to Renovate Chiffon.

To renovate old chiffon make a lather with good white soap and let the chiffon steep in it for some time, says the Pittsburg Press. Shake it about in the water and pass through the fingers, but do not rub it; put it into clean water and change this until it becomes quite clear; take half a cupful of water and dissolve a bit of pure gum arabic in it, then add a few drops of white vinegar; dip the chiffon into it; do not squeeze or wring, but lay it between folds of soft white muslin and pat gently with the hand; iron it with a moderately hot iron on the wrong side, placing tissue paper under the iron.

How to Prepare Iced Peaches.

Pare and quarter some ripe yellow peaches, dust them with powdered sugar and put into a self sealing glass jar, adjusting the rubber and the lid securely, says the Kansas City Star. Bury in ice and salt until thoroughly chilled, not frozen, about a half hour or longer. Serve in small sherbet glasses at the beginning of a meal as a delightfully refreshing appetizer on a hot summer day or with plain or whipped cream as a very dainty dessert.

How to Cure Lockjaw.

To cure lockjaw take a raw red beet, cut it in half and scrape or mash it into a pulp and apply it to the wound and also to the palms of the hands, binding it on like a poultice. The juice of the red beet will cure lockjaw. It draws the poison out and prevents it from spreading.

South Quincys Win From Wolworths Merrymounts Lose To Neponsets

The Wolworth base ball team of Boston has met with but few defeats this year, but South Quincy was equal to the occasion on Saturday and won 3 to 2.

The visitors scored all their runs in the second innings, when Rogers got a pass, stole second, was advanced on a passed ball and scored on fielders choice. Kelley got first on an error, and second on a passed ball and scored on Lauder's hit.

In the third the visitors twice filled the bases, but McQuarrie was caught off third, and Hallahan was out at the plate. They were at the mercy of Marion in the other innings, several striking out.

South Quincy scored one each in the second, third and fourth innings, and had men on bases in every inning except the first.

In the second Duffy hit safely and made the circuit on errors. Forbes was hit in the third, and also scored on errors. Errors and a sacrifice gave Spargo his run in the fourth.

Eleven Innings.

On Nightingale Field, Dorchester Lower Mills, the Merrymounts met defeat at the hands of the Neponset-Dorchester team in one of the hottest games of the season, by a score of 9 to 8. The game was anybodies up to the finish and required eleven innings to settle the result.

The Merrymounts catcher failed to show up, so Bert Hoxie came in from the outfield to catch. He did well under the circumstances, but Kolson was somewhat handicapped and could not let himself out to the limit. Osgood, who went along to root for Merrymount, was pressed into service and played a star game in the outfield. The Merrymounts were handicapped by the field which is rough and irregular.

Travellers Club Is Delighted

The Traveller's Club of Everett were in Quincy on Saturday, and were delighted with our historic places, as guests of of Mrs. Ward Whitcher of Atlantic. They first visited Gardner's grove and Moswetussett hill, then the Myles Standish spring and the cairn at Squantum.

At the residence of Mrs. Whitcher on Webster street, which was decorated with foliage from the historic sites, the club was entertained at lunch.

A special car later conveyed the party to the birthplaces of President John Adams and President John Quincy Adams, which abound in relics. The burial place of the Presidents beneath the Stone church, and also the old cemetery opposite, had much of interest to the visitors. The historic Dorothy Q. house was the last place visited. Mr. Whitcher, who accompanied the travellers, gave interesting talks at the different places visited and at this house recited Holmes' famous poem.

The visitors spoke approvingly many times of the work which has been done in Quincy to preserve and mark the historic places.

Quincy Selected.

The headquarters of the National Granite Cutters Union for the next five years at least will be in Quincy. The result of the vote taken in June between Quincy and New York as headquarters was decidedly in favor this city. The exact figures cannot be given, but the majority was over 1700.

All Property of the Quincy Quarries Company

All of the property, both real and personal of the Quincy Quarries Company was sold at Master's sale this morning on pursuance of a degree of foreclsure entered by the Circuit court of United States, district of Massachusetts.

The realty consisted of 59 parcles advertised in the Daily Ledger June 30, and was sold in two parcels. The first parcel included all of the mortaged property and the second parcel the unmortaged property. The sale was held at the company's office at the Hitchcock quarry.

There was but half a dozen persons present and but few bidders. Those who desired to bid on the mortgaged property had to deposit a certified check for $5,000, and on the unmortgaged property a check for $2,000.

Thomas J. Dumphy, special master, read the advertised notice, and then asked for bids for the mortgaged property.

Theophilus King, trustee for the reorganizers, bid $50,000. This was the only bid and it was sold to him.

Mr. King was the only bidder for the unmortgaged property and it was sold to him for $5,000.

The sale was held at 11 o'clock and was all over in twenty minutes.

Daniel J. Padula, manager of the Boston financial press association, and a nephew of the late Rev. Francis A. Frigugletti of Quincy, died Sunday at his home in Worcester. He was a brother of the late Dr. Padula of Quincy.

Unique Sports At Bethany Picnic

The 400 to 500 who attended the annual picnic of the Bethany church Sunday school on Saturday at New Downer Landing grove, had a very enjoyable day. There were amusements for all.

At 11.30 there were field sports with classes for boys and classes for girls.

First and second places for boys of 14 years were taken as follows:

100 yard dash,—Albert Prescott, Albert Coffin.

Ball throw,—Russell Bates, Lee Brooks.

220 yard dash,—Albert Prescott, Albert Coffin.

Sack race,—Albert Coffin, Russell Bates.

Three-legged race,—Lee Brooks and Albert Coffin; James Myer and Albert Prescott.

Broad jump,—13 ft. 2 inches. Russell Bates, Albert Coffin.

Half mile run,—Albert Coffin, Albert Prescott.

For boys under 14 years the winners were:

10 yd. dash, Harold Gould, Everett Harris.

Ball throw, Lincoln Gardner, Ernest Rich.

220 yd. dash, Gullickson, Harold Gould.

Sack race, Ernest Rich, Robert Pratt.

3-legged race, Isaacson and Grant, Ernest Rich and Harold Gould.

First and second place in Class C for girls over 14 years were taken by:

50 yard dash,—Florence Farquhar, Edwina Sweetland.

Ball throw,—Abbie Penley, Edwina Sweetland.

75 yard dash,—Florence Farquhar, Edwina Sweetland.

Potato race, Edwina Sweetland, Annie Laing.

Sack race,—Florence Farquhar, Annie Laing.

Broad jump,—Sadie Johnson, Edwina Sweetland.

[illegible] under 14 years the [illegible]

Potato race,—Dorothy Sweetland, Rachel Hardwick.

Sack race,—Irene Williams, Rachel Hardwick.

Broad jump,—Dorothy Sweetland, Rachel Hardwick.

The grand prizes were taken as follows:

Boys over 14, Albert Coffin.
Boys under 14, Harold Gould.
Girls over 14, Edwina Sweetland.
Girls under 14, Dorothy Sweetland.

The Athletics won the ball game with the Makarias—5 to 2, and then came the great and eagerly awaited contest between the "Boys" and the "Girls." Weeks before the Makaria Fraternity had "signed, sealed and delivered" to the Philethea class a uniquely decorated challenge which had been duly accepted.

Here are the special rules:

A Wright & Ditson tennis ball must be used.

The Makaria must be becomingly gowned with skirts (long,) black kid gloves and other toggery are optional.

If they throw the ball over-hand or if the ball touches their right hand, all base runners are given a base, and if there is no base runner, the batter is sent to first base.

The batter using his right hand is out. He is out on three strikes whether the ball is caught or not. He is not to be given first base on balls.

One out, all out.

The Philethea have three strikes, and the ball must be caught to put the batter out. On four balls the runner goes to first.

Three out, all out.

The Umpire is absolute. He can alter or add to these rules as emergency requires. He can change the position of any player or do anything else which in his opinion will add to the fun or frolicsomeness of the game. From his "Say So" there is no appeal.

Mr. Theophilus King was umpire and he appeared in a becoming gown with a fetching hat and veil and a dainty feather boa. Makariaites were all "things of beauty;" one in a gorgeous red bonnet, another completing his costume with the prevailing long black gloves, (in this case, stockings,) and another chap had flowing flaxen hair and was costumed throughout in purest white. In fact there was not one of the boys but was entrancing.

Circus In Town

Street Parade A Good One Indians, Cowboys Horses and Animals

Main's circus, menagerie and hippodrome combined with Cummin's Wild West Show arrived in Quincy bright and early Sunday morning, upwards of thirty cars being required to transport the animals and equipment of the enterprise.

Quincy people are familiar with Walter L. Main's show but they were unprepared to see such a large aggregation of teams, horses, etc., as came this year.

In other years the River street lot was found plenty large to accommodate the tents, but this year when the show arrived it was seen that it would not be anywhere near large enough.

More land was necessary and the large lot of H. H. Low on Washington street near Pond street was secured and in a remarkably short space of time a large tented city had been erected. The location is nearer City Square than the River street lot, and is directly on the line of the electric cars.

All day Sunday there were a large number of visitors to the grounds. Everything was orderly throughout the day.

This morning City Square and other streets through which the parade passed were thronged with people an hour before the advertised time.

The parade was a good one, led by Col. Cummins in all the rich trappings peculiar to the plains, astride [illegible] handsome horses, [illegible] mounted on [illegible]

A band of Indians, the same that was seen at the exposition at Buffalo, Omaha, St. Louis and at Madison Square Garden, New York, was next in line. Plodding along in single file, riding their ponies easily, with their long black hair decked with feathers and their cheeks streaked with ochre, the old warriors passed. A company of Cossacks on spirited mounts greatly contrasted with the slow traveling Indians.

Other features of the parade were United States cavalry and a squad of heavy artillery, a cavalcade of horse women, a caged buffalo, one of a few alive today; two of the largest lions in the world, camels, leopards and wild cats and four large trained elephants.

The fire department travelling with the show attracted considerable attention, composed of a hose wagon and steamer. This is the apparatus that fights the fire at the spectacle blazing "Baltimore City."

The performance this afternoon was given before a large and well pleased audience and is easily the equal of anything in its line ever shown here and has all the features Col. Cummins has presented to the thousands who have attended his various exhibitions in the last ten years, and has several additional attractions which fit in well for the old timers.

The show will be repeated this evening when there will be a larger audience. The Wild West Show is always popular in Quincy.

The washerwomen have about as much cause for complaint with the weather as some other people.

The battleship Rhode Island is at Annapolis, the New Jersey at New London, and the Des Moines at Fayal.

Last year there were five days of 90 degree weather during the second week of July and 82 was the lowest noon temperature.

A new location has been secured for the circus today. It is on the Lowe lot on Washington street, between Pond and Mill streets.

The Rev. William C. Clark of Lyndon, Vermont, assisted Rev. Mr. Atwood in the services of Sunday morning at the Point church.

The large power launches Cultivator, Madeline and Alert have been engaged for the guests of the Quincy Yacht club at its annual ladies' day on Thursday.

The old gas main on Adams street was connected with the new twelve inch main on Hancock street at the junction of these two streets on Sunday morning.

A few Quincy people visited the camp of the Cadets at Hingham on Sunday. There would have been many more had the day been pleasant. Tomorrow will be Governor's day in camp.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hunt of East Weymouth, Miss Mildred A. Harden of North Weymouth and Mr. Marcus S. Wight of Quincy Point, are registered at Story's Tavern, Weirs, New Hampshire. They will remain for a period of two weeks.

The Boys' club, the Huscarls of the King, have gone into camp at Weymouth. For several years the pastor of the Point church, Rev. A. R. Atwood, has taken some of the boys of his parish on a camping tour, where each "soldier" in the military company has done his own cooking. Wednesday and Friday afternoons, from 2 to 4, visitors are to be welcomed to the camp.

MET QUICK DEATH

Schidlofski, Wife Murderer, Pays Extreme Penalty

EXPRESSES REPENTANCE

Refuses to Speak to His Brothers Before Entering the Death Chamber--Electrocution Pronounced to Be Successful

Boston, July 9.—John Schidlofski was electrocuted at the state prison here early this morning for the murder of his wife. Schidlofski was taken to the chair at 12:18 and was pronounced dead at 12:23½.

The execution was successful in every way and was unattended by sensational features. Schidlofski was in a weak condition before he left the death house and had to be assisted from the death house to the electric chair by Rev. Robert Walker, chaplain of the Middlesex house of correction, and a guard.

Schidlofski made no statement after he was placed in the chair, but he moaned softly until the application of the current.

In the opinion of medical attendants and prison officials the execution was the most successful that has ever taken place at Charlestown. Whereas, in previous executions, two and three different applications of the current have been necessary, only one application was made in Schidlofski's case.

Schidlofski entered the death chamber at 12:16½. He was in a state bordering on complete collapse. As the condemned man entered the death chamber he moved in an uncertain manner. His knees shook beneath him, but he uttered no sound other than a protracted moan which was hardly audible, even in the stillness of the execution room.

Chaplain Walker and the guard who were supporting the prisoner guided him to the electric chair and Schidlofski seated himself. He seemed unconscious of what was going on about him and, although his eyes roamed all over the chamber, he did not appear to see anything. The prison officials quickly adjusted his ankles in the lower part of the chair and buckled the straps. At the same time other attendants placed his head against the back of the chair, put the electrodes in their places, and buckled the arm straps.

Schidlofski kept both hands closed and in one he clenched tightly a small crucifix that had been sent him by [illegible] who took an interest in his case. While he was being placed in the chair and during the adjustment of the straps and the electrodes, Schidlofski moaned continually in an almost inaudible manner.

At 12:18 o'clock Warden Bridges raised his hand as a signal to the electrician. The current was applied and instantly the body of the murderer sprang forward against the straps. The current had a voltage of 1800, and was applied for 60 seconds. During this time, however, the intensity of the current was gradually decreased, and at the end of the minute it was turned on to its intensity, kept at 1800 volts for five seconds and then shut off.

The attending physicians then approached the chair and endeavored to detect signs of life. Their examination consumed four minutes, but no sign of life could be detected. Even the faint pulsations which are generally noticed five or six minutes after the electric current has been applied could not be detected on Schidlofski. At 12:23 o'clock he was officially pronounced dead.

Schidlofski's last day on earth was spent quietly in the death cell. Most of the time the prisoner was absorbed in prayer. During Sunday afternoon Rev. Mr. Walker visited him and conversed with him for some time. The chaplain told the condemned man that he must die that night. Schidlofski replied that he welcomed death, because it would end his suffering.

While Walker was in the death cell Schidlofski was visited by his two brothers, Dominick and Tony. The brothers told the prisoner that they had a message for him from their father in Lithuania. The condemned man did not speak to his brothers and tried to shut the sound of their voices out of his ears. Chaplain Walker begged Schidlofski to listen to his brothers and to speak to them, but the prisoner persisted in his refusal and covered his head with a blanket from his cot. Finally he called to the prison guard: "Mr. Officer, put those fellows out; I don't want to talk to them." The brothers then left the prison.

Chaplain Walker again visited Schidlofski at 11:35, and remained with him until the man was summoned to his death. Schidlofski said that he was ready to die. He expressed repentance for his crime and said that he had asked divine forgiveness countless times. Just before the summons came Schidlofski repeated the Lord's Prayer and the Twenty-Third Psalm.

The crime for which John Schidlofski was sentenced to die was the murder of his wife, Marciana, on July 12, 1905. Schidlofski, a Lithuanian by birth, generally went by the name of John Cline. He was a barber by trade, and at the time of the murder he worked in South Braintree and lived with his wife at 93 Martland avenue, Brockton.

On July 13, 1905, the terribly mutilated body of a woman was found on the golf links at Belmont, a few miles to the west of Boston. The head had been nearly severed from the body and the face had been so slashed as to be almost unrecognizable. The skull was crushed in, apparently by heavy stones. A woman's parasol, a bottle of liquor and a pair of blood-stained cuffs were found near the body. The woman was identified by means of a slip of paper found in her purse.

It was known that a day or two before the murder the woman had drawn all her savings, amounting to about $300, from a savings bank. Inasmuch as no trace of the money could be found, it was thought that the husband might have it and a search for him was instituted. It was known that Schidlofski had been desirous of going to Los Angeles, Cal., and inquiry among the ticket offices developed the fact that he had bought a ticket for California.

A description of the fugitive was sent out and Schidlofski was arrested a few days later on a Pacific coast train at La Junta, Col. Schidlofski confessed his guilt and returned to Massachusetts without extradition papers.

On March 12 last he was placed on trial at Cambridge. His defense was that he had been drinking; that he had no recollection of the crime, and that it was unpremeditated. On March 17 the jury, after two hours' deliberation, brought in a verdict of guilty. On April 8 he was sentenced to death.

According to Schidlofski's own story, he killed his wife because she had misrepresented her age and the amount of her savings. He married her, he said, because she told him that she was only 28 years old and had more than $800. He later learned, to his rage, that she was 40 years old and had saved only about $300.

War Wound Caused Death

Lawrenceville, Va., July 9.—William P. Knibbs of Boston, who had been here some time for his health, died of paralysis. He received several wounds at the battle of El Caney while serving in the United States army during the Spanish-American war. One of the shots passed through the young man's neck and caused a formation over one of the large arteries, which grew and expanded and pressed upon it until it was predicted by eminent specialists that paralysis would result. Knibbs was a young man of more than ordinary intelligence, having been appointed by President McKinley as United States consul to British Columbia.

Suicide of Murderer

Brewton, Ala., July 9.—Fred L. Hancock, murderer of Professor Jesse Troutman, and who figured in a sensational trial for the crime, committed suicide in his cell in jail last night by taking carbolic acid. Hancock made his escape from jail May 9 and had just been recaptured in Kansas City. He left a note in which he said he was going where he would receive a just trial.

Laredo, Tex., July 9.—Heavy rains have played havoc with the National railroad between this city and Villadama, 90 miles south of here. Twenty-five kilometres of track and five bridges have been washed away and all trains have been abandoned between here and Monterey.

Slaughter of African Rebels

Durban, Natal, July 9.—Natal troops have completely surrounded and defeated a rebel body in the Umvoti district, 547 rebels being killed. But few escaped. There were no white casualties.

IN LOCAL OPTION

Moran Sees Solution of the Liquor Question

HE ACCEPTS NOMINATION

Scores Dominant Party In Massachusetts and Says Outcome of Prohibitionists' Contest Is Not Even Doubtful

Boston, July 9.—John B. Moran, who last fall was elected district attorney of Suffolk, through his own nomination, has accepted the nomination as candidate for governor of Massachusetts on a Prohibition ticket. In his letter of acceptance Mr. Moran says, in part:

"Although for years a total abstainer, I believe 'local option' to be the best practical solution of the liquor question, and when laws regulating it are rigidly enforced, the nearest possible condition to absolute prohibition attainable.

"The dominant party in this state has long been free from the dictation of the liquor dealer, but in the recent past it has for political reasons affiliated itself with that element, to which it was formerly opposed. By it the prohibition features of our license laws have been ignored.

"In some towns our drug stores have become rum shops. In our cities the aristocratic hotel keeper has become a violator of the law and is granted immunity from punishment by law officials.

"The schoolhouse law was no longer sacred. The wealthy rum drinker was provided with a special screen behind which he could indulge unseen in his debauch. The night owls' early dissipation was prolonged to midnight, while the vicious night hawk had another hour added to his already too many, in which to overcome the resisting power of his victim, weakened by the red richness of the wine cup."

"Pledging a rigid enforcement of all laws, opposing the enactment of additional legislation in the interest of liquor, the outcome of our contest is not even doubtful.

"The Republican party, faithless to its trust, exchanging its principles for a promise of undeliverable votes, will learn that law is more powerful than crime, that honor is more esteemed than treachery, and that the people are the masters of the politicians and not their blind, subservient followers.

"Appreciating the honor bestowed on me by your convention, I pledge you an unswerving devotion to law and order, uninfluenced by politicians, adhering to my own views on all matters and holding myself responsible only to the people, to whom, regardless of party, as law-abiding citizens, I confidently appeal."

Mr. Moran then reviewed his well known efforts as prosecuting officer in enforcing the liquor laws at several local hotels, criticises the legislature, and continues:

Bryan Willing to Run Again

Washington, July 9.—Ex-United States Senator Jones of Arkansas, who was chairman of the Democratic national committee when William J. Bryan made his campaign for the presidency in 1896 and 1900, has received a letter from Bryan, in which he announces that he will accept the nomination for president for the third time if it is tendered to him. The letter is dated at Stockholm.

Croker Says It Will Be Bryan

Dublin, July 9.—"The most available man, in my opinion, for the Democratic nomination for the presidency," said Richard Croker yesterday at his home on the Dublin mountains, "is William J. Bryan. I think he was cheated out of the last two elections by the newspapers. His ideas are all coming to the front now."

Theatre Crowd Badly Scared

Atlantic City, N. J., July 9.—A slight fire in a moving picture machine in the theatre on Young's pier here last night caused a panic among the several hundred persons who were in the auditorium and a number of persons were injured in the rush for the exits. Women were knocked down and children were separated from their parents, but all escaped from the building without serious injury so far as is known.

Bad Man's Account Closed

Charlotte, N. C., July 9.—While on a train between Wilmington and Stedman, returning from an excursion, a man named Elliston rose in a crowded coach and, showing himself heavily armed, announced his intention of killing everybody in the car. A passenger named Bledsoe fired at Elliston, striking him in the forehead and killing him instantly. Bledsoe surrendered himself to the authorities.

Conference on Inspection Law

Chicago, July 9.—Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, accompanied by a corps of assistants, has arrived in Chicago to confer with superintendents of government meat inspection relative to changes made necessary by the new meat inspection law. The conference will cover every phase of the inspection service.

New York, July 9.—Falling from a car on a scenic railway at Rockaway beach last night, Harriet Nagel, 15 years old, was so badly injured that she

A RAID ON MONGOLS

Chinese-Speaking Bluecoat Received an Unexpected Tip

Boston, July 9.—Because he has become so proficient in talking Chinese that he can carry on an extended confab in that language, Sergeant Canney of the Lagrange street police station was enabled to make two big gambling raids in the Mongolian quarter last night.

In all 26 sons of the Flowery Kingdom came to grief and two complete fantan layouts fell into the hands of the police as the result of raids.

A disgruntled laundryman told his troubles to Sergeant Canney. The latter was standing on Harrison avenue about 9:30 when a sickly looking Chinaman approached him and in broken English tried to tell the sergeant that he had been fleeced by a gang of card sharps.

He wasn't making much progress when the sergeant, who has picked up a good smattering of Chinese, told him to talk that language.

When the Chinaman recovered from his amazement he told the sergeant a little something that made that official beam with joy. Incidentally it made him get very busy. Rushing to the station the sergeant mustered a half dozen men and the next thing Chinatown knew there had been two raids made in their midst.

Again In Clutches of Police

Boston, July 9.—Under arrest as a fugitive from justice, Frank J. Mackewicz, 35, was brought back to this city yesterday by Inspector Rooney from Torrington, Conn., where he was arrested July 5, after having been in hiding since April 30. He jumped his bail of $500, given by his wife, while awaiting trial for an alleged violation of the foreign corporation law. He is charged with the larceny of $561.85. His wife is under arrest, charged with perjury.

Sweet Marie Took Both Heats

Readville, Mass., July 9.—In the presence of several thousand followers of harness racing, the California mare, Sweet Marie, won the match race over the gelding, Wentworth. Only two heats were trotted, Sweet Marie winning both in the same time, 2:07 3-4. The mare carried away for her owner a purse of $7500 and 60 percent of the gate receipts. Tiverton was withdrawn, the bay gelding having developed some lameness.

Woman Charged With Murder

Richford, Vt., July 9.—Eva B. Tracey, aged 26, wife of Edward Tracey of Glen Farnham, a village over the Quebec boundary line, is locked up at Cowansville on a charge of murdering Forest Howard. Mrs. Tracey admits killing Howard, but maintains that, in the absence of her husband, Howard attempted to assault her, whereupon she shot and killed him.

Accidentally Poisoned

Twin Mountain, N. H., July 9.—Mrs. Edward H. Griggs of New York city, wife of the lecturer, died at her summer home here of poison accidentally taken. She had been using tablets containing malted milk and it is supposed that one of them which she took contained some impurity.

Two Canoeists Drowned

Presque Isle, Me., July 9.—Leslie J. Bean and Miss Rena Dacey, young people of this town, were drowned in Squaw Pan lake, 15 miles from here. The two drove to the lake for an outing and went out in a canoe, which was overturned.

After Two Decades of Idleness

Adams, Mass., July 9.—After 20 years of idleness, the furnaces of the Richmond Iron Works in Richmond and Chesire will be started again soon under the management of Samuel G. Colt of Pittsfield, who has purchased the works.

Became Insane Aboard Ship

St. John, July 9.—Maynard D. Wilson, a young man supposed to live at Worcester, Mass., was given into the care of the police here, having become suddenly insane on board the steamer Prince Rupert. Wilson proclaimed himself captain of the boat and demanded that the passengers give their tickets to him. He was overcome and confined in a cabin, where he threw everything movable at those who endeavored to calm him.

Shot Uncle of Girl He Loved

Seattle, July 9.—C. M. Emory, a lawyer, was shot and probably fatally wounded at his home by Chester Thompson, a student at the University of Washington. Thompson, it is said, was infatuated with Miss Charlotte Whittlesey, a niece of Emory's, and Miss Whittlesey requested her uncle to prevent Thompson from entering the house. When Emory attempted to carry out his niece's wish Thompson shot him.

Chinese Soldiers at Shanghai

Shanghai, July 9.—An unprecedented and interesting spectacle was witnessed here when 4000 Chinese volunteers, who have been drilling assiduously for the past few months, paraded through the flag-decked streets of the settlement. The men were dressed in khaki and presented a smart appearance. Only the officers wore swords.

No Yellow Fever at New Orleans

New Orleans, July 9.—Dr. J. H. White, surgeon in charge of the marine hospital service here, says that neither he nor any of his assistants has any evidence that yellow fever now exists in New Orleans.

Transport Thomas Again Afloat

A SPLIT OVER LAND

Serious Complications Are Threatened In Russia

UPRISING OF PEASANTS

Reports of Conflicts With Military Authorities In Many Provinces--The Dronght Has Brought Starvation Times

St. Petersburg, July 9.—The first paragraph of the proposed agrarian law, viz: the augmentation of the lands of the peasants by the expropriation of all state and crown domains, and church and monastery lands, has been accepted by the commission of the lower house with practically unanimity. The commissioners have now locked horns over the mode of expropriation and the method of disposal of private estates and the end is not yet in sight.

The determination to expropriate church lands which, in distinction to the great estates owned by the monasteries, lie scattered like the lands of primary schools in America in small tracts throughout the country, and support the local clergy, will cause complications. Such action would deprive the parish priests of the principal part of their scanty emoluments and necessitate an equivalent from some other source.

A correspondent of the press has just completed a tour of the provinces of Samara and Saratov. He reports that the drought is finally broken, but the rains have come too late to save the crops and help the peasants, who are in a pitiable condition. Their cattle have either been sold or are starving in the fields. The government relief granaries were completely emptied during last year's famine.

The present agrarian disorders, which can be expected steadily to grow worse, are due largely to the necessity of the peasants seizing food and forage to preserve their lives and save from starvation the remainder of their cattle. These disorders have reached the highest pitch in the province of Voronezh, where the troops and Cossacks, although in considerable force, are practically helpless and on the defensive. Many peasants have been killed or wounded in desperate attacks on the military patrols and the rural guards.

A telegram from Tambov says that peasants on the estate of Princess Bariatinsky attacked a commissary and a posse of rural police. The commissary and four policemen were seriously wounded. In another section of the province of Tambov a body of peasants, armed with pitchforks and spades, resisted a squadron of dragoons. Because of this resistance the troops fired, killing three peasants and wounding many others. At Kedaby a hand-to-hand fight occurred between Cossacks and an armed band of peasants, with the result that several men were killed on both sides.

There was a fatal encounter at Krassnoplsk between rich peasants and poor peasants. The poor men were incensed because the rich men sent a telegram to the lower house protesting against the proposed distribution of land. An encounter resulted.

In St. Petersburg 1000 workmen met and passed resolutions opposing the agrarian program of the group of toil in the lower house. They declared that fearful consequences would ensue if this program became effective and urged the members of the group to recognize their error and co-operate with the Social Democrats and the laborites.

There have been grave disorders on the estate of Minister of Agriculture Stichinsky, in Tula province.

M. Mouromtseff, president of the lower house, received yesterday a couple of telegraphic oddities. One is a dispatch from the conservative peasantry in the province of Yarostav, asking him to use his influence to have the czar declare a military dictatorship, and the other is from a group of Moscovites, complaining that the number of words of foreign origin used in the debates in the lower house render them unintelligible to the common people.

Appeal to Armed Revolt

St. Petersburg, July 9.—The Twentieth Century has published a second poem by M. Amfitcatroff, one of Russia's most brilliant journalist-poets, entitled "The New Marcellaise." The paper has been confiscated and probably will be suppressed. The verses are virtually an appeal to armed revolt.

Seven Peasants Laid Out

Grodno, July 9.—In a conflict between a company of infantry and peasantry who were devastating the estate of Countess Potelsky, two peasants were killed and five were seriously wounded.

Jews to Flock to America

St. Petersburg, July 9.—News received here from Bialystok is to the effect that the Jews there are in such a condition of panic that they are selling all their property to emigrate to America.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Tuesday, July 10.
Sun rises—4:16; sets—7:22.
Moon sets—10:59 p. m.
High water—3 a. m.; 3:30 p. m.

Conditions indicate the approach of a period of higher temperature in New England. There are, however, no immediate prospects of a marked warra wave. The weather will be partly cloudy.

Land of the Limas

Ventura County, Cal., Where Everybody Knows Beans and Raises Them.

Forty Bushels to the Acre at $2.60 Per Bushel — Growing the Sugar Beet—Birds of the Sea That Race With Trains.

By MARK BENNITT.

STRANGE, that affection in your heart for Los Angeles as you decide to say goodby. Only a chance acquaintance too. You happened to be passing this way and dropped in. Here you are all but won. What shall be the denouement? From Los Angeles you go up the San Fernando valley, a land apparently of fine possibilities, yet but little tilled. Absence of an abundance of water may be responsible. Towering cacti may adjoin a fruitful orchard. A few ranches look thrifty and neat. You pass a pigeon ranch that swarms with the beautiful birds. At Burbank the train takes a westerly course, while another track continues northward. Huge rocks stand out on the foothills, sometimes blocking the view of the pretty valley as you attempt to look back upon it from this higher ground. The train is rushing headlong toward a high, rocky ridge and then dives into it. The civil engineer, the civilizing engineer, has made the way easy.

You pop out on the other side in a few moments and scud down a narrow valley into Ventura county, the land of the lima bean. Everybody knows beans in this locality—knows them to be the best paying crop they can put into the ground. The Venturians have reduced bean growing to an art that yields handsomely. Land prices went soaring a good while ago, and no one seems to be anxious to sell at what are commonly regarded as good figures. The fact is, they can raise forty to forty-five bushels of lima beans to the acre here, and in 1905 the crop sold on the spot at $2.60 a bushel. So you do not wonder at the demand for bean land. The land that produces so bountifully of course has water for irrigating, but they do raise crops with no other than the natural winter and spring rainfall. The lima bean is one of the legumes on whose roots are the tubercles that contain the nitrogen fixing bacteria, like the clovers and alfalfa. So, with crop after crop, the land only becomes the richer by reason of the abundance of nitrogen brought into it from the atmosphere by the minute, living organisms on the roots. The dwarf lima bean is a shy bearer and has no friends here. The climbing bean is everywhere planted, but no attempt is made to supply poles. The ground is prepared in midwinter, for frosts are unknown, and the seed goes into the ground early. The fogs that come in from the ocean help to give the vines a luxuriant growth, and they soon cover the ground. In the dry season they are mowed like hay, raked into wind rows and thrashed in a special machine. The same industry may be seen upon the flat lands west of Los Angeles, where hundreds of acres are devoted to beans. But the county of Ventura raises many other things and is reckoned one of the richest of the southern counties. Sugar beets are one of the profitable crops. The season is long, with sunshine aplenty, and it is the sunshine that puts the sugar in the beet. A big factory makes beet sugar at Oxnard. Fruits of all kinds, English walnuts and almonds are other products of importance.

The train presently comes to the coast, and for a hundred miles you ride upon the ocean cliff. A place of uncommon interest is Summerland. The oil seekers a few years ago discovered evidences of petroleum here, with the result that wells were sunk at the ocean's edge. The rock formation was found to be such that if they put additional wells inland they would get nothing but "dusters." The alternative was to go out to sea, which they did. So here at Summerland steel piles were driven in the ocean bed and platforms built out over the water. Wells were put down, and a generous production of oil resulted. The grove of black derricks planted thus over the ocean, their thin legs reaching down among the waves, form an odd sight. The pumps are going twenty-four hours a day, and the oil flows steadily into the many tanks that encumber the land all about. Half a dozen wells are pumped by the same engine by means of cables stretching out to each, a method common to all oil fields.

Sea birds become companions to the flying train and easily keep pace with it for miles. The sociable gull looks up from the sandy shore where it feeds on the tiny mussels and insects washed up by the waves. Flocks of snipe go scudding over the waves, all acting in exact harmony, like a perfectly trained company of West Pointers, and alight as one bird on the hard sand, there to play like a jolly company of children. The California pelican is rarely out of sight, flying alone, for it is an emblem of solitude and loneliness. No bird can skim the water more closely. It is the largest of the ocean birds, with a great spread of wings and famed for its long sustained flight. Now and then you will see it poised in the air fifty feet above the water, and from that height it will drop straight as an arrow and pick a fish from beneath the surface. The pelican has an admirable fishing outfit, consisting of a sharply hooked upper mandible and a huge pouch in the lower one. The maker of the gaff hook and scoop net must have taken his cue from the pelican. Only in the breeding season do the pelicans become social. Then they gather in vast numbers in some remote and unfrequented spot in a sort of homecoming and merrymaking festival.

The train comes to Santa Barbara before noon, and, the bracing air of the ocean having done its work, you have an appetite worthy of the excellent lunch that any of the hotels sets forth. The board of trade will load you with facts that charm your interest, and you barely escape from the spell that binds you to this realm of bliss. Here wealthy people from many snowy states have splendid homes and live in restful security and freedom from the vexations of an inclement season. Many, too, are permanent residents. Most of those whom you accost are strangers in this vale of serenity, and this fact helps on a swift acquaintanceship.

At midday you take the northward train to continue the ride along the coast. It is then you discover that the Santa Barbara valley is open at both ends, a trough behind a long ridge thrown up between the foothills and the ocean. As you get away from the city you come again to great English walnut orchards, clean of every weed or deterrent plant, such as graced the sloping lands of Ventura county. Ye childless ones who would have a parent's thoughts, plant an orchard! The care of trees, if you love them, is akin to a parent's cares. The hopes they inspire are only in less degree a parent's hopes.

Here grow the showy pampas plumes that find a broad market in eastern states. They stand in little gardens among the orchards and help to make diversity in this uncommon farming while swelling the income by a considerable item.

Goleta placards herself as the "Premium Section," by which you are to infer that she has gone abroad in the world with her choicest products and won public and official acclaim at some of the great expositions. You cannot doubt it as you look upon these smiling lands where the total cloudy days of the whole year are but sixty and the rainy ones but half as many. The natural rains supply but half the needs. The rest of the water required comes from the hills or from deep wells of great capacity. Yet without irrigation crop failures are unknown. Lemons and olives, oranges and deciduous fruits come from the orchards here, beans and sugar beets from the fields. A great field of squashes, the crop still ungathered, reminds one of some bowlder strewn moraine. Alluvial lands are worth $100 to $300 an acre, the mesa and hill lands $25 to $75 an acre.

Elwood is named in honor of Elwood Cooper, a famous orchardist whose hand has helped to make the coast region so fruitful and whose fame has gone beyond the boundaries of mere locality.

This hundred mile ride by swift train upon the ocean's edge has no counterpart elsewhere. Far off shore are the islands Ana Capa, Santa Cruz, Santa Rosa and San Miguel that mark the south side of Santa Barbara channel. The broad and sheltered waters are a favorite place for testing the speed of Uncle Sam's new war vessels. The sea and sky present an ever changing panorama. Such a marine view is for the artist to describe in color thoughts. One quite forgets the land side of this incomparable journey, so taken is he with the attractions of the boundless ocean, the creatures on graceful pinion that soar on and on over the green and the blue of the undulating sea, the billows that crash on the sand and the rocks, the distant sail or some slender trail of smoke far off that marks the course of an ocean steamer.

But there are things to be seen upon the land—the deep canyons and the live oaks, the little farms wherever water flows near a tillable acre or more, the herds of cattle and sheep and the herdsmen that salute the train. Two boys hold aloft the pelt of a wolf which they have captured half an hour before, a trophy of the chase that an eastern hunter would not soon forget. Behind the ridge that hugs the coast so closely are other fertile lands. You are on the far edge of the continent. The land is sparsely settled, but where agriculture in its strictest sense is not practicable the cattle and sheep men have established themselves, and the hills and mountain slopes produce a share of the flesh food of the nation.

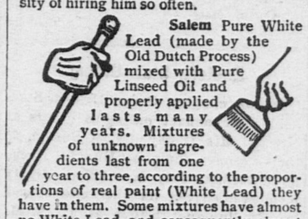
The ocean seems as still as a mirror, but the hulk of vessels half buried in the sand and the pieces of wreckage that lie along the shore remind you that this wide waste whose currents run round the world is not always of such gentle disposition. Now and then little settlements have sprung into existence by reason of good fishing grounds, and the many small sail boats riding at anchor off shore indicate the prosperity of the industry. In the loneliest of places are the coast lighthouses. On Point Concepcion is one of these, standing upon a rocky shelf. The homes of the lighthouse keepers are upon a lofty rock 250 feet high, above the lighthouse, surrounded by the white fences characteristic of government property. Back of Point Concepcion is a vast cattle country.

The station called Surf is back of a wide sandy beach which receives the full onset of the huge ocean billows. A railroad runs up the fertile valley of the Santa Ynez river to Lompoc. This is the mustard pot of the United States. Half the mustard seed of the country comes from this broad valley. The Dutch lunch pays perpetual tribute to Lompoc, and the old fashioned hot plaster, such as grandmother used to make, is more readily available by reason of the industry developed on this flat and running landscape.

Pennywise on Painting

The cost of the paint, be it good or bad, is the minor portion of a bill for painting. It is the painter's time in putting it on that costs. The outlay for paint is rarely more than a fourth, never more than a third.

A little personal attention to the paint your painter uses will save you the necessity of hiring him so often.



Salem Pure White Lead (made by the Old Dutch Process) mixed with Pure Linseed Oil and properly applied lasts many years. Mixtures of unknown ingredients last from one year to three, according to the proportions of real paint (White Lead) they have in them. Some mixtures have almost no White Lead, and consequently almost no value as paint.

Skilled labor and poor material are a most expensive combination. In using Pure White Lead you get full value for the painter's time.

Send for a booklet containing several handsome reproductions of actual houses, offering valuable suggestions for a color scheme in painting your house. A test for paint purity is also given.

BOLD LONE HIGHWAYMAN

Successfully Robs Passengers In Five Stage Coaches

Wawona, Cal., July 9.—Five Yosemite valley stage coaches were held up near the entrance to the National park by a lone highwayman who obtained a considerable amount of money and jewelry. The conveyances were halted in rapid succession at a curve in the road at the identical spot where a bandit, a year ago, robbed several wealthy tourists of their valuables.

The stages were traveling sufficiently far apart to avoid each other's dust and when the first vehicle reached the turn in the road the highwayman, whose features were hidden by a duster thrown over his head, stepped out, pointed a gun at the driver and commanded him to halt. Some of the women passengers screamed, while others began wildly to secure their valuables.

The highwayman directed all passengers to throw out their money and jewelry and, when the order met with compliance, he directed the driver to move on. The second stage arrived within a few minutes after the first and the driver and passengers suffered a similar experience. The process was repeated until all five coaches had been halted and robbed. Then the bandit disappeared in the brush.

Lowell Man Is President

New York, July 9.—The delegates to the convention of the Amalgamated Leather Workers' Union of America have completed the labors of the sixth annual gathering of the organization. Among the officers elected were: President, J. T. Gilligan, Lowell, Mass.; second vice president, F. V. Turnquist, Lynn, Mass.; organizer, Michael McMullen, Lowell, Mass. Seventy-eight delegates from nearly every leather producing city east of the Mississippi river attended the convention.

Large Percentage of Unfortunates

Washington, July 9.—About one person in every 1200 was blind and one in every 850 persons was deaf in the United States in 1900, according to a special census report on the blind and deaf in the United States in that year, just issued by the census office. Of the blind whose parents were cousins 25 percent were congenitally blind, while among the blind whose parents were not cousins the proportion congenitally blind was only 6.8 percent.

Passengers In a Panic

New York, July 9.—Fire, following a collision in Coney Island last night between an elevated railroad express train and a local trolley car, caused a panic in which six persons were more or less seriously injured by being trampled upon. By the force of the impact a fuse of the local was blown out and started a fire. The passengers became unmanageable and fought fiercely with others to escape.

Suicide In Unusual Fashion

New York, July 9.—An unidentified man, after pacing the sidewalk near St. Mary's park for some time in evident mental distress, drove his head against a thick plate glass window until it shivered from top to bottom. Then with a big fragment of the broken pane he cut his throat. The man bled to death in a few moments, to the horror of a number of onlookers.

Root Stops at San Juan

San Juan, P. R., July 9.—Cruiser Charleston, with Secretary Root and party on board, arrived here yesterday afternoon. Upon Root's arrival at the palace troops and the insular police lined the sidewalk approaches and presented arms when the distinguished visitors passed them. The secretary subsequently reviewed the police from a balcony of the palace.

Council Disagrees With Governor

San Juan, P. R., July 9.—The executive council has defeated the pier measure proposed by Governor Winthrop. The members of the council have construed the act of congress authorizing a franchise and the granting of pier concessions subject to the approval of the secretary of war as debarring the insular government from building its own piers.

Guard of 14,000 Men

Fort Worth, Tex., July 9.—As the result of the labor riots last month at Cananea, Mex., the mining camp of W. C. Greene has been converted into a military stronghold and hereafter 14,000 Mexican rurales will be quartered there. This action was taken by the military governor of Sonora to serve as a precaution against further outbreaks.

French Warships at New York

New York, July 9.—The French cruisers Jurien de la Graviere and Desaix, which were sent to Venezuela during the recent trouble there, arrived here yesterday and anchored in the North river. Many of the sailors were given shore leave and Coney Island was crowded with French jackies.

Thaw's Possible Defense

New York, July 9.—Harry Thaw's defense will be emotional insanity, it is stated on good authority. The scientific world is being scoured for alienists and enormous fees are being paid for their retention. The "unwritten law" may also figure.

King Wilhelm Visits King Haakon

Trondhjem, Norway, July 9.—Emperor William arrived here yesterday afternoon and attended the gala dinner at the palace last evening. The press of Norway comments on the importance of the visit.

Boycott on Servian Products

Belgrade, July 9.—In addition to closing her frontier to all Servian cattle, Austria-Hungary has prohibited the bringing in of tinned meats from Servia.

Bethany Picnic.

The Philethea were radient in their white uniforms.

After the burst of laughter and applause at the various contestants had died away, the game began. Umpire King, however, was so eager in acknowledging the repeated plaudits of the audience that he did not always see when the "girls" were put out, but as he was clothed with absolute authority in addition to his other clothing, what could be done?

After three innings of breathless excitement and with the score 6 to 4 in favor of the Philethea the Girls discovered that it was raining, and so the Makaria, who were now "getting on" to the pitcher's curves, had to content themselves with a lusty cheer for the victorious opponents.

Then came ice cream and cake for all, the cars leaving for home at 6 P. M. except the "Makaria Special" which left an hour later giving some sixty a two hours trolley trip with singing, cheering, and general merry making.

Zoe Gets Leg For the Cup

The first of a series of races for the W. S. Fiander cup, under the auspices of the Squantum Yacht club, was sailed yesterday. There was three [starters and the race was a close one between the Zoe and Toss. There was but 47 seconds in the difference in the finish, actual time. Corrected time, however, gave the race to the Zoe by twenty seconds. The summary:

Zoe, F. J. Stewart	1 42 52	1 41 45
Toss, W. J. Fiander	1 42 05	1 42 05
Waneta, Atkins & Brown	2 00 51	1 58 46

Coming to Quincy.

The Washburn and D'Alma Trained Animal Shows, the newest and best of the big tented amusement enterprises, will pay its first visit to Quincy on July 13, 14 and will exhibit on the River st. grounds, afternoon and evening, rain or shine. Housed under mammoth waterproof tents which defy the elements, no storm is too severe to spoil the entertainment, and with a new and perfect system of ventilation, no day is too hot to prevent its being cool and comfortable under the canvas. There are hundreds of animals of all sorts and sizes with this show, and the performance is a constant source of wonder and delight. Ladies and children, in particular, find the entertainment delightfully interesting, and every care is taken for their comfort and convenience. There are none of the disagreeable features sometimes so noticeable with other big shows and there is no lady or child who may not attend in perfect safety and comfort. Washburn and D'Alma pride themselves particularly on their parade, which will pass through the main streets on the morning of the day of exhibition, and no one should fail to miss this interesting and novel pageant. In this parade are shown the smallest horses in the world, the smallest herd of baby elephants in captivity, the finest draft horses, the greatest array of dogs and monkeys, many cages of rare animals, and many new and novel features.

Eastern Star Outing.

Boston chapter, Order Eastern Star, held their annual outing as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Goody of East Boston, at their summer camp at Houghs Neck, on Saturday, July 7. About thirty members arrived on the special car leaving Neponset bridge at 11 A. M. The day was most delightfully spent in various summer pastimes, including bathing, boating, etc. At noon a clam-chowder and coffee augumented the basket lunch. Ice cream and cake were served at frequent intervals. Music, readings, story telling, graphophone selections and piazza confidences wiled away any discomforts caused by the rain. At 9 P. M. the return special was boarded, after three hearty cheers were given the host and hostess.

The Arowack Easy Winner

A fairly good easterly sailing breeze greeted the yachts of the Quincy Yacht club Saturday afternoon at its club race. The breeze died down considerable, however, before the finish and the yachts were late in getting in. The race was scheduled for 2.30, but it was 3 o'clock before they got away.

Owing to ebb tide, the start was from near Peddocks Island and not a very good view of the race was had from the club house. The light air made it a good dy afor the light-air boats and the Arowak had things her own way from the start. She crossed first, with the Marvel and Josephine good seconds and the others in class D well bunched.

There were but two starters in Class B, the I. X. L. and Catherine. The latter boat not having been measured the result in this class is in doubt.

There were several starters in the power boat class and there was an interesting race between the Marjorie and Susie, the former winning by 22 seconds.

The judges were Thomas L. Williams, George S. Morse, John O. Hall and John J. Deasey. The summary:

Eleanor Wins Championship

Councilma Sawyer's flyer Eleanor was winner in the club race of the Wollaston Yacht club Saturday. As she had won one race before she captures the championship in class A She lead at the start and held it throughtout the race finishing with a lead of over nearly six minutes over the Mildred.

In Class B the Sheila secures a leg for the championship, and in Class C the Pewee gets a leg. The wind was light from the east and the boats were late in finishing.

There were a good number of entries and if the wind had been fresh as the morning hours gave promise the race would have been much more interesting than it was.

The summary:

Base Ball.

Neponset scored two in the first. Corbet was passed and Donaher beat out a bunt. The next two men were out, but the runners scored on Hayes' hit. Hayes was thrown out in trying to go to second on his hit.

Paterson singled in the fifth, and went around on a sacrifice and an error. Two baggers by Lovett and Murray, and Patterson's single gave the home team two more in the sixth. Neponset scored two more in the eighth, and tied the score in the ninth. In the eleventh with one down Hayes doubled and scored the winning run on Lovett's safety.

Merrymount did not score until the fifth when Gram worked a pass and stole second. Baker fanned, but Hoxie singled. A passed ball and stevens single scored two runs. In the eighth the visitors got after Patterson. Kappler was safe on Donaher's error. Cole was thrown out by Barrett. Bennett singled and Kolson was safe on a fielder's choice. Osgood flew out to left. Gram singled, Baker smashed out a double, Hoxie singled and Stevens doubled. Kappler was thrown out and ended the inning after six runs had been scored.

The Merrymounts had men on base in the ninth and eleventh innings but failed to score.

A large party of local fans accompanied the team and rooted hard for a victory.

Umpire Colligan.

The Quincy Point A. A. base ball team defeated the Washington Social club at the Ward Two park on Saturday by the score of 6 to 5. The game was close and exciting from the beginning to the end, and was played without an error on either side. By defeating the Bigelows on the Fourth of July, and the Washington Social club Saturday, the Quincy Points head the list at Ward Two.

The Copeland club was taken into camp at South Weymouth by the Norfolks, who won 6 to 1. Morales and Coughlin were the battery of the West Quincy team.

The Junior base ball team of the Y. M. C. A. defeated the Germantown A. A. base ball team at the Bethany church Sunday school picnic on Saturday by a score of 10 to 4.

The Braintrees were defeated by the Deweys 3 to 2.

Big Battleship.

Naval constructors all over the United States have been asked to submit to the Navy department their ideas of what the big battleship should be. The plans are to be submitted to Congress according to a Senate amendment introduced by Senator Hale, and naval officers are inclined to doubt whether builders will consent to have their ideas spread broadcast in this fashion.

Tax Rate Lower.

Milton assessors report a tax rate of $11.50 per $1,000 which is $1.30 less than in 1905. The increase in valuation was nearly half a million dollars. The polls decreased 26.

TODAY'S COURT.

Michael Callahan and Michael J. Cannon were arraigned for disorderly conduct on a public street of Quincy. They were fined $10 each.

David Tobin of Weymouth was arraigned for assault on Eliza Tobin. Case continued until July 13.

Duncan Brown was arraigned for drunkeness at Quincy and was fined $10.

August Decort was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile limit at the Blue Hill parkway.

A MORAL REVOLUTION

[Original.]

New Orleans has always been the chosen spot in America among the French people. There is something in the tropical beauty of the country that attracts the denizens of the sunny land of France. Soon after the French revolution an old aristocrat who had escaped the guillotine by getting away in time went to New Orleans with his only child, a daughter. Old Charlier was younger brother to a duke, who before the reign of terror had supplied him with an income which the younger Charlier pieced out by gambling with others of the nobility. When he came to America, broken down in mind and body, he eked out a small living by his skill in cards.

About this time a Creole, Felix Duvoll, came into the possession of several large plantations. A man of the world, he denied himself no luxury money could buy. One morning he saw Denise Charlier at the flower market, where she had gone to sell some roses she had cultivated, or, rather, which had grown unassisted in her father's little back yard. Duvoll purchased her roses and learned from her where she lived. He determined to possess the girl and went about it methodically. He made old Charlier's acquaintance, invited him to his city residence, played cards with him and permitted him to win quite a sum of money. Charlier invited Duvoll to his little house and introduced him to Denise. It was rather the fault of Duvoll's surroundings than a natural predisposition that led him to evil. He was a fascinating man to women and Denise fell in love with him.

After permitting Charlier to win various small sums Duvoll gradually led the old man to understand that he desired his daughter, but could not ask for her in marriage without great pecuniary loss. Then he adroitly intimated that if Denise were to be exposed in the slave market he would gladly give $50,000 for her. Thus he insidiously put it into the old man's head to gamble the girl against $50,000 at a game of cards. By this means Charlier saw himself in possession of $50,000 and his daughter as well. He considered Duvoll no match for him at cards.

And so it was agreed that if Charlier lost he should sign papers declaring that Denise, who was a brunette, had negro blood in her veins and that he had bought her of a negro trader. It was also agreed that he should sign a bill of sale for the girl.

One day Denise entered the room where her father and Duvoll were playing and saw at once that an unusual stake was being played for. Duvoll, whom she had always noticed playing carelessly, was concentrating all his mind on the game and played with great skill. The girl stood by and saw her father lose a number of games in rapid succession. Looking into his face, she noticed intense agony pictured there. Then suddenly there came a change, and her father began to win. She went over and stood behind him, where she could see his cards. It was not long before the turn of the tide in her father's favor was apparent. When it came his turn to deal he would direct his opponent's attention to some object in the room or out through the window, and while he looked Charlier would manipulate the cards.

Denise was horror stricken. Had it indeed come to this? She had borne the terrors of the revolution, she had seen her family dwindle by the guillotine, but thus far there had been no dishonor. Her resolution was at once taken.

"Can you not stop your game long enough, M. Duvoll, to come out and see some new plants I have just secured?"

"Certainly, mademoiselle." And, arising from the table, he went with her.

She had no sooner reached the garden than she turned to Duvoll and said:

"Monsieur, promise me to take no action to punish an act I am about to reveal to you."

"I promise," said Duvoll, surprised.

"My father has passed through an ordeal that has weakened his brain. His elder brother, his son, my own brother, besides many relatives and friends, perished on the Place de la Revolution in Paris. My father escaped in disguise. From comparative wealth he has been reduced to want. It has broken through that sense of honor for which our family has been distinguished for centuries. Oh, that one of our name should have fallen so low! Stop the game, monsieur. My father is"—with an effort she finished—"cheating you."

Duvoll stood looking at her without speaking. A revolution more important than that through which France had passed—a moral revolution—was at work within him. Born to regard a human being as a chattel, he had been led by a love the sacred nature of which he was unconscious to a deed compared with which her father's effort to save her from the results of his own weakness was noble.

"Mademoiselle," he said at last in a faltering voice, "should I tell you of the guilt lying at my own door you would despise me. Were I worthy of you I would ask you to be my wife. If I ever find a way to atone for the wrong I would have done but for the quick change you have made in me you shall certainly have the privilege of spurning me, as I deserve."

It did not take long for Denise to forgive a sin in the man she loved—a sin she never knew, though she lived many years as his wife. When, in her husband's old age, the slavery controversy came on he advocated some form of peaceful emancipation.

ROSE TREAT THURBER.

Visit from Deputy.

Quincy lodge, N. E. O. P., held their regular meeting at Wilson hall, Friday evening, July 6, which the deputy and suite were present. After the business of the regular meeting the visitors and members enjoyed a social evening. Music was very beautifully rendered by a trio of the Wollaston orchestra consisting of Miss Stone, pianist, Mr. Noyes, violinist and Mr. G. Critchley, cornetist. Dancing was enjoyed for a time, after which a piano duet was given by Mrs. White and Miss Harriet Spooner. A solo was sung by Mrs. Holmes. Visiting members were present from Ocean lodge of Beachmont and Enterprise lodge of Boston. At the close of the entertainment a very bountiful collation was served.

Why! Why!

Should Milton's Park Assessment Be But One-Half That of Quincy?

Most of the cities and towns in the Metropolitan Park district will pay smaller assessments this year under the new apportionment, than in past years, although the total tax is $906,435.04 against $720,559.46 last year.

The Quincy assessment will be $12,147.74, where it was $9,448.59 in 1905. The other places which get soaked are: Boston, Cambridge, Chelsea, Everett, Lynn, Melrose, Revere, Swampscott, Wakefield, Wellesley and Westwood.

There are 28 cities and towns out of 39 where the assessment will be less, yet they are taxpayers paradises and better situated to pay. Cohasset will have money refunded. The Brookline assessment will be reduced from $43,384.54 to $33,769.10, and that of Milton from $21,897.46 to $6,533.55. Milton has practically the same valuation as Quincy, and has received much greater benefits both from reservations and parkways, yet her assessment is only one-half that of Quincy.

For the same reason that Malden gets a reduction in water assessment, probably, its park assessment will be reduced from $17,853.06 to $12,116.87. Medford gets a similar decrease. The rich city of Newton will pay less than one-half what it paid in 1905.

There are a great many radical changes, as will be seen by the assessments for both 1905 and 1906, which are given below:

	1906	1905
Boston,	$608,794.96	$360,279.74

* Due the town.

The basis of apportionment is partly upon valuation and partly on betterments, and, it is said, will stand for five years. Further, the assessment this year corrects some inequalities which were not adjusted before the assessment last year.

Had Quincy had as able representatives and shrewd financiers before the commission as Brookline and some of the other towns, the rich towns might not have escaped with a reduction in their assessments. Certainly Quincy should pay no more than Milton.

Lower Tax Rate.

The city of Haverhill is the first city to report its 1906 tax rate, and it is a decrease. The rate is $17.40. The valuation is $27,409,744, an increase of nearly half a million dollars, there being being $21,884,600 real, and $6,025,124 personal. There were 11,478 polls assessed.

Lawrence also has a lower tax rate, the assessors reporting $16 a $1000, a decrease of 80 cents from last year. The rate is the lowest since 1902. The total valuation is $51,048,809, an increase of $4,863,841 over last year. There is a gain of 1541 in polls, the total being 19,731.

Visit from Royal Chief

Every seat was taken in Doble's hall Monday evening, the occasion being a visit of W. H. Steen, Royal Chief of the Order of Scottish Clans, to Clan McGregor.

Mayor Thompson was on hand to welcome the distinguished guest, and in a felicitous speech, full of tributes to their common ancestry, expressed to Mr. Steen the pleasure it gave the Scotchmen of Quincy to meet him.

Chief Steen made an address of considerable length in the same happy vein, lauding the qualities of Scottish character, and showing how readily it assimilated into the American life.

Royal Secretary Kerr was also present, and made some remarks. Bagpipe playing, sword dancing, and other music both vocal and instrumental were features of the entertainment and the evening was greatly enjoyed.

Chief Steen, who lives in Illinois, is spending his vacation on the Atlantic coast, and takes occasion to visit the local clans.

Which Make of Meters?

Mayor Thompson when seen in relation to the installation of the water meter system, said that the main reason why the installation had not been commenced was that he was making a careful study of the different meters on the market, collecting data as to the merit of each make, so that when one should be adopted he would be sure the city got the best. Each maker he says, calls his the best, and it was only by careful investigation that the best meters for the city to adopt could be obtained.

Crowds Attend Wild West Show

The Wild West show of Col. Cummins had a crowded house last night in Quincy. Every seat in the large tent was taken and it was necessary for the band to vacate its usual place.

There was little of the old-fashioned circus, and the tent was only a covering for the audience, and a screen to prevent outsiders from seeing the show. All the events were in the open air.

Those who enjoy fine horses and good riding witnessed considerable of both by Indians, Cowboys, Cowgirls, Cossacks, Rough Riders and others.

One of the best features was the Hippodrome elephants. Their training was wonderful, including the barber shop scene and several stunts.

The introduction consisted of military representatives of the world powers. They presented an imposing spectacle when all were lined up prepared to receive Colonel Cummins, who made his appearance last and won rounds of hearty applause by the magnificent picture of robust manhood and perfection of horse-flesh he and his mount made.

The old Deadwood coach went the rounds and the Indians rushed out to the attack and back again when the valiant cowboys hove in sight.

The Imperial Female Zouaves gave a pretty drill and scaled a high wall as easily as a lively boy would vault a three foot fence.

The fire scene and the Custer massacre appealed to many, while others enjoyed best the Natzelle troupe of eight lively acrobats, including men, women and children. The rifle shooting was also good.

The Q. Y. C. Ladies' Day

The annual ladies' day at the Quincy Yacht club is scheduled for Thursday. Should that day be stormy it will be held the following day. The plans this year vary but little from other years.

There will be a review and sail from 3 to 5.30, to be followed by a lunch at the club house.

During the sail those who remain on the club house piazza will be entertained by Handley's orchestra.

Special cars to take guests will leave City Square at 1.50.

Everybody who desires to participate in the sail will have ample opportunity. In addition to the yachts of the fleet which will take guests, the house committee have secured the launches Madeline, Cultivator and Alert.

In the evening the clubhouse will be illuminated, and there will be a promenade concert and dancing until 10 o'clock. Special cars will leave for City Square at 10.15.

Extra tickets for Ladies' Day can be procured by members at the stores of C. F. Pettengill, George W. Jones, Weeks & Hill, the office of Commodore Frank F. Crane, and of any member of the house committee.

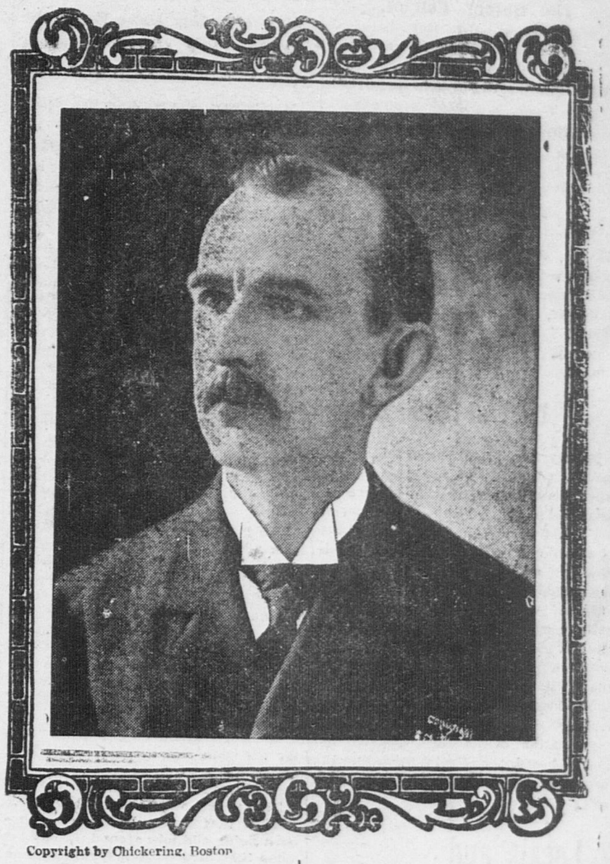
SENATOR CRANE MARRIED.



Copyright by Chickering, Boston

Senator W. Murray Crane and Miss Josephine Boardman were quietly married at 10 o'clock this morning at Wyndcliffe, the summer home of the bride at Manchester by-the-Sea.

Only the immediate families were present at the ceremony. There were no bridesmaids or best man, but Miss Mabel Boardman, the brides sister, was maid of honor.

The decorations were beautiful, the spacious room being transformed into a bower of pink and white roses.

Rev. Rolland Cotton Smith, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Washington, was the officiating clergyman, and he was assisted by Rev. William H. Dewart, rector of Christ church, Hyde Park.

An interesting event at this time was the fact that the senator became a grandfather on the eve of his wedding, a daughter having been born Monday night at Dalton to Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Crane, Jr. It is the Senator's only grandchild.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Gov. Guild has been told by his medical advisers that he must drop all work immediately and take a rest, if he would save his health. The governor's first six months in office has been of an order of strenuousity that is seldom put up to the chief executive of the commonwealth. The duties of the office of governor are ordinarily sufficiently exacting to demand a man's best strength, but this year with the Tucker question to determine, the situation in the legislature, the merger question and some close issues in the matter of several appointments, including the reorganization of the Boston police and license board, the strain upon him has been unusually severe.—Haverhill Gazette.

Locals and City Brevities

The repair committee of the Point church will meet this evening with Dr. Bushnell.

Mrs. Malcolm McLeod and little daughters of Trafford street left last week for a two months' visit to relatives in Canada.

A. D. McGregor has gone to Hallowwell, Maine, to assume the position of superintendent of the Hallowell Granite Co.

Mrs. Isabella Cameron has gone to Cleveland, Ohio, to visit her daughter Mrs. G. Hillman Eggleton (nee Maude Cameron.)

The Epworth League of the Wollaston M. E. church held their monthly business meeting at the home of Mrs. Epes on Grand View avenue, Sunday evening.

The Sunday School board of the Wollaston Methodist church Sunday school are to have their regular meeting on Friday evening after the prayer service.

Misses Margaret and Mary Dermody of North Easton, and Miss Alice Menton of Brockton has been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Evans of 22 Copeland street for the past few days.

At the present rate of progress it does not seem possible to complete the High school building by the first of September. The contractor claims the delay is due to inability to get the granite trimmings.

Several meetings of City Council committees have been called for Thursday evening: Sewers and Drains, at 7 o'clock; Fire Department, at 7.30; Finance at 7.30, and Licenses at 8 o'clock.

The ordering of the block of buildings bounded by Copeland, Cross and Miller streets to connect with the sewer is a good thing for the health of the neighborhood but the work should not stop there.

Councilman Sawyer who worked so hard for the new Atlantic school building and to whom great credit is due for the passage of the order has spoken for the pen with which Mayor Thompson signs the order.

If the weather proves favorable on Saturday, July 14, the Y. P. S. C. E., of the First Presbyterian church are planning to go on a sight-seeing excursion to Boston via Houghs Neck, returning from Boston by trolley. Cars will leave the church at 2.15, and the boat will leave Houghs Neck at four o'clock.

IN HIS OWN HOME

Connecticut Man the Victim of a Brutal Murder

HEAD BADLY BATTERED

Had Recently Sold a House and Robbery May Have Been the Motive For Crime--Warrant Out For Suspect's Arrest

Middletown, Conn., July 10.—When John Anderson, a farmer, found the dead body of his friend, George Goodale, in a room in the latter's house last evening he discovered a murder which probably will baffle the local police for some time.

Goodale was a fish dealer and lived alone in a small house in the West Longhill district and recently sold a house, the sale bringing him in over $1000. Whether or not his money was stolen is not known, but it is not doubted that he was the victim of a brutal attack, his assailant using a blunt instrument which might have been a hammer or the back of an axe. Goodale was sitting in a chair near a window. His forehead on the right side was split open, the gash being a long one, and there were deep cuts over both of his eyes. The right side of his skull was also split open.

The police authorities were notified soon after the murder was discovered and Chief Inglis and Coroner Davis went to the scene and made a thorough investigation. They found no clues and apparently the house had not been ransacked. Anderson was questioned and he said that he had not seen Goodale for several days and went to his house to investigate. As soon as he opened the door he found the body of his friend.

Medical Examiner Calef, after viewing the body, had it removed to a local undertaker's, where an autopsy was performed upon it last night.

The police state that they have learned that Henry Bailey, who has been doing odd jobs around the city for some time, had worked for Goodale on Friday and that late in the day he was seen to drive away from Goodale's place in the direction of Middlefield in a team which Goodale used in his business. The police secured a warrant for Bailey's arrest and Chief Inglis went to Durham, where Bailey is reported to have secured work on the farm of Henry Gaylord. Little is known of Bailey.

Goodale was 45 years old and leaves a widow and five children. He did not live with his wife.

Chamberlain Quotes Gladstone

Birmingham, July 10.—In a celebration in honor of Joseph Chamberlain's attainment of 70 years, 10,000 persons assembled in Bingley hall last night to witness the presentation of 120 addresses of appreciation of Chamberlain's political services. Replying to the speeches of presentation, Chamberlain entered on a political retrospect. Alluding to the charge that he often changed his opinions, he quoted William E. Gladstone, who once said that change was a sign of life and that it was only the dead who remained the same.

Slashing Emigrant Rates

Bremen, July 10.—The North German Lloyd Steamship company yesterday reduced the steerage rate to New York $2.50. The reduction in emigrant passage rates announced by the North German Lloyd Steamship company is that company's answer to the Hamburg-American line's cut of the same amount last week, which is its second recent reduction. The situation begins to look extremely like a rate war between the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines in the emigrant business.

Brussels, July 10.—Colonel Van Zuylf publishes a strong protest against the charges made by Rev. R. H. Nassau, who is connected with the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, charging cruelty against Belgian officers on the Congo. Van Zuylf demands proof of Nassau's allegations and also the publication of the name of the officer who is accused of having tortured a woman to death.

As Watterson Sees It

New York, July 10.—Firm in his belief that the ticket in 1908 will be Roosevelt against Bryan, Colonel Watterson again declares that on the third term issue he believes Roosevelt would lose Massachusetts.

"It is never safe to foretell horse races and elections," says Watterson. "There are plenty who argue as to the President of the United States much as they would argue of the president of a bank—that is, because he is a good president, who not keep him as long as he is willing to serve? But such persons wholly forget the dangers inevitable to prolonged tenure either of individuals or parties.

"In the event that Mr. Roosevelt is to succeed himself in 1908 will it not be easier for him, the tradition exploded and the habit acquired, to carry the country in 1912, and so on to the end of his days?

"That is the proposition which Mr. Roosevelt will have to tackle if he should present himself as a candidate for substantially a third term. On that proposition my confident belief is that he would lose Massachusetts."

Must Organize Without Delay

New York, July 10.—The international policyholders' committee, organized to overthrow the present management of the New York Life Insurance company and the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, effected a permanent organization at a meeting here and elected officers. After the meeting the committee issued an address to policyholders. Reciting that the voting power has gradually been transferred from the policyholders to a few of the executive officers centered in New York, the address says that it is necessary for the 1,200,000 policyholders to organize without delay, as this year, under the law recently enacted, affords the policyholders their only opportunity to obtain complete control in one election, while hereafter only half the directors can be chosen in any one election.

Acted as Thaw's Valet

New York, July 10.—A new witness in connection with the Thaw-White case has been found in the person of Warren Hammond, who at one time was employed by Thaw as a valet. It had been supposed that when William Bedford, Thaw's regular valet, died, the testimony of the only person who had ever occupied the position of a body servant to Thaw had been lost. Hammond, however, substituted for Bedford during three months when the latter was sick.

Walked Off With Jewelry

New York, July 10.—A young man walked into P. Freidrich's jewelry store on Broadway, Brooklyn, poked a revolver under a salesman's nose and said: "If you move or shout for help, I'll shoot a hole through your head." The salesman did not move or shout and the robber departed with a tray of jewels valued at $1000. He fled down the street and was soon out of sight.

BREAK UP SOUTH

Taft Says "Solid" Idea Must Be Eliminated

A SPECTRE OF THE PAST

Speaks of Panama Canal and Organization of Capital and Trades Unions In an Address to North Carolinians

Greensboro, N. C., July 10.—Secretary of War Taft last night, before a meeting of North Carolina Republicans on the eve of their state convention, delivered a speech that was generally considered the opening gun of the congressional campaign of 1906. The opera house was packed.

Secretary Taft said: "I believe that nothing that could happen in the politics of this country would work greater advantage to the country at large, and to the south in particular, than the breaking up of what has been properly known as the 'solid south.'

"The question which should address itself to the great business interests of the south is how much longer 'the spectre of things past' is to hold them to a political allegiance that does them no good in national politics, and deprives their communities of the inestimable benefit of the presence in local politics of two parties, each of which, if it does wrong, has a real chance of being punished for its misconduct?

"Although much of the wealth of the south is dependent upon a protective tariff, its representatives in a national convention vote unhesitatingly for the proposition that a protective tariff is a robbery of the many for the benefit of a few.

"Again, no part of this country is so vitally interested in the construction of a great waterway to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans across the Isthmus of Panama as the south. It was indispensable to this enterprise that the treaty made with Panama by President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay should be promptly confirmed, and yet the majority of the representatives of the south in the senate attempted to defeat the treaty.

"As long as the Republican party in the southern states shall represent little save a factional chase for federal offices in which business men and men of substance in the community have no desire to enter, and in the result of which they have no interest, we may expect the present political conditions of the south to continue."

The secretary said that the organization of capital has reduced the cost of production and has therefore contributed to the material prosperity of the world and that the organization of labor has undoubtedly bettered the condition and raised the wages of labor, but he said it would be unreasonable to suppose that in the power which organization has placed in the hands of individuals there would be no temptations to oppression and abuse, but when these are yielded to by the few as compared with the many it is no reason for hysteria or the destruction of the whole serial order.

"It is no reason for giving up the system of private property or forbidding the formation of corporations or preventing the organizations of trades unions. It is no ground for the advocacy of socialism," said the secretary.

"It may be noted that while Mr. Bryan has been most emphatic and eloquent in his description and denunciation of trusts and abuses of corporations, organizations and wealth, his suggested remedies for their prompt suppression have been very vague unless indeed his proposal that the government buy or condemn all interstate railways with their immense mileage and maintain and operate them is to be regarded as an immediate, ready, practical and feasible remedy."

Mr. Taft, after explaining the increase in appropriations in the last congress, declared that in spite of the increase there would be a surplus of $40,000,000 in the treasury after all the expenditures have been made.

Mr. Taft urged that the record of the present congress, enumerating its important enactments, "confirm in the most convincing way the claim always made for the Republican party that it is an efficient party for the accomplishment of good; that it does things, and that it carries out its promises." He expressed the hope that the Philippine tariff bill now pending in the senate will be passed at the next session.

Mr. Taft argued against any reason for returning a Democratic majority in the next house, saying in conclusion that no party has ever taken more decisive steps to restrain the abuses of irresponsible corporate wealth and power than the Republican party. He said that, while the administration is straining every nerve to secure compliance with the laws, it is prophesied that the "champion of this reform, the man who not by words, but by deeds, as President of the United States, has shown his adherence to the principles of equal protection of the laws to all and his courage in resisting all claims of special immunity, whether for organized labor or capital, is to be rebuked and thwarted by the return to congress of a majority of the opposition.

"Not while the American people admire courage, consistency, high ideals and practical common sense; not while they believe in energy, honesty and Americanism; not while they take a man for what he is and what he does, rather than for what he says, will this prophesy be justified."

BY PREARRANGED PLAN

An Alleged Embezzler Returns From South America

Boston, July 10.—Charles F. Berry, a trustee of estates, for whom representatives of the property he managed have been seeking for a year or more, returned to this city and surrendered himself to District Attorney Moran. Shortly after this he was arraigned in court on the charge of larceny. Judge Bishop ordered him held in bonds of $15,000. Berry served as trustee of 11 estates and funds aggregating in value about $1,000,000. He was indicted in April, 1905, on 74 counts, charging embezzlement of $300,000 from the estates of which he was trustee.

About three weeks ago a man called at the district attorney's office and showed Moran a letter from Berry, who was at that time in South America. In the letter Berry said that he would come home if he was granted reasonable bail and fair treatment.

Bail was furnished by six women relatives, and after being interviewed by Moran, Berry went to his home. Neither he nor his counsel would make any definite statement, but it is thought that some restitution of the money alleged to have been stolen is under consideration.

Woman Steered Schooner Home

New York, July 10.—Schooner Martha J. Mason of Charleston limped into port with the captain sick in his cabin and his doughty young wife at the helm. The captain of the little schooner had been sick during the entire voyage. On the night of July 3 the ship was caught in a heavy storm. Unable to trust the crew at the helm, the brave woman stood at the wheel and shouted her orders to the sailors. Inspired by the coolness and bravery of their new captain, the crew worked valiantly. Two sails were torn away before the canvas could be reefed and taken in. For five long hours the ship was driven with bare masts before the storm. With rare courage Mrs. Mason held on and conquered at the expense of blistered hands and sore muscles.

Unearthing Indian Skeletons

Watertown, N. Y., July 10.—In the vicinity of the village of Rodman they are digging up the remains of a prehistoric people who were possibly of the Indian strip and had their village nearby. Within a few days 18 skeletons have been unearthed on the farm of Homer J. Heath. Raymond Harrington, field archaeologist for the Peabody museum of Harvard university, has been directing the excavation work in a hillside pasture.

Death Penalty For Criminal Assault

Chicago, July 10.—In an effort to stop criminal attacks on women and children, which have been quite prevalent in Chicago recently, the city council last night unanimously passed a resolution recommending capital punishment for such outrages. The committee on state legislation, to which the resolution was referred, will prepare a report to be transmitted to the legislaure.

Servia Again In Good Standing

London, July 10.—Diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Servia, which were terminated by Great Britain three years ago, immediately following the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga, were formally resumed last evening, when King Edward received in audience the Servian minister.

Schooner and Crew Lost

Sydney, N. S., July 10.—Sixteen lives were lost from the fishing schooner Stanley Joseph in a terrific gale which swept the banks. The schooner was commanded by Captain Vallis, and carried a crew of 15 all told, but not one escaped. The crew, who were nearly all married, leave families at Ramea, N. F.

Young Broker a Suicide

New York, July 10.—Norman G. Leopold, a young broker, killed himself by shooting in a room in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel: Financial difficulties are supposed to have caused him to commit suicide. An uncle of the dead man, James M. Leopold, is a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

For Benefit of Little Ones

New York, July 10.—The fresh air camp for babies, made possible by a gift of John D. Rockefeller, was opened yesterday. In addition to the treatment of infants, arrangements have been made for daily lectures at the camp to mothers on the proper care of babies.

Trolley Passengers Hurt

Wichita, Kan., July 10.—More than a dozen passengers were cut and bruised when a trolley car carrying 30 persons jumped the track and rolled down an embankment. The track had been weakened by a heavy rain. Several women were knocked down and trampled upon.

New Cruiser In Commission

Philadelphia, July 10.—Cruiser Tennessee, which was launched Dec. 3, 1904, has gone into commission with Captain Bailey commanding. The cruiser will steam to the League Island navy yard to wait for further orders.

Killed Ninety-Two Bulgarians

Salonica, July 10.—In the Konopishta district yesterday Turkish troops annihilated three Bulgarian bands which had concentrated, killing 92 of them. The Turks lost 20 killed.

NOW THE CAVALRY

Ample Proof That They Cannot Be Depended Upon

A REGIMENT IN MUTINY

Loyal Troops' Efforts to Compel Submission Meet With Failure --Cossacks Mobilized For Police Service Refuse to Work

Tambov, July 10.—A mutiny broke out July 7 in the Kasarva regiment of cavalry and during the consequent disorder an infantry officer and a soldier of the Hejini dragoons who attacked the mutineers were killed. The mutineers have barricaded themselves in their barracks.

St. Petersburg, July 10.—The news of the mutiny at Tambov, which apparently is the most serious of such affairs since the Sebastopol mutiny, is confined to the bare details of a censored agency dispatch showing that the mutineers, when attacked by loyal troops, offered armed resistance before retreating to their barracks, where they are now barricaded. Up to 1:30 o'clock this morning the newspapers have received no further particulars.

In previous mutinies this year the disaffected troops have submitted when confronted by loyal detachments. The outbreak is a quick commentary on General Trepoff's declaration in the interview with him published July 7, in which he affirmed that the cavalry could be more depended upon than the infantry because their officers were in closer touch with their men.

A dispatch from Ust-Medvieditsa, Territory of The Don, says: The Cossacks of the second reserve, who had been ordered mobilized for police service, have refused to join the colors.

Dispatches from Novo-Tcherkask, which is in the centre of the Don Cossack district, show that the authorities are extremely apprehensive as to the effect of the speeches delivered in the lower house of parliament in the recent debate on the Cossack question and which were palpably intended to undermine the loyalty of the Cossack levies engaged on police duty. Regular meetings of Constitutional Democrats, at which the report of the debate was to have been read, were dispersed, and the papers have been terrified into omitting reports of the speeches.

Goremykin's Time Is Short

London, July 10.—According to the correspondent of The Times at St. Petersburg, it is the consensus of opinion there that the Constitutional Democrats will be invited to form a ministry. One of their leaders said there had been indirect overtures with that in view and that they were awaiting the next move from Peterhof. Another leader said the Goremykin cabinet was certain to go and that there will be a Mouromtseff cabinet.

St Petersburg Inspired Excesses

St. Petersburg, July 10.—Smarting under General Trepoff's epithet of liar, applied in an interview, Prince Urusoff declares that he is in possession of full documentary evidence to prove his charges that anti-Jewish excesses throughout the country had been inspired from St. Petersburg, and that they were not, as Trepoff asserted, due to the arbitrary action of embittered local officials.

Crowd Attacked Policeman

Grodno, July 10.—In consequence of the arrest of a Jew in the Hebrew quarter a crowd of Jews attacked the arresting patrolman with stones. Several revolver shots were fired, and the policeman killed one of the Jews.

Manifestants Were Immune

Uzvoka, Russia, July 10.—A company of Cossacks which had been garrisoning this town has been sent away on account of the soldiers' refusal to fire on manifestants.

Three-Cent Fares Successful

Cleveland, July 10.—The Forest City Railway company, which has started to conduct two 3-cent fare car lines in the city in competition with the regularly established 5-cent system, last night asked for franchises over 12 additional routes. Ordinances granting these franchises were immediately introduced in the city council and were referred to committees for further report.

Presidents' Guard Is Fined

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 10.—Chief Sloan of the president's secret service corps pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and was fined $10 by the village squire. The assault took place the day the president arrived in Oyster Bay, and resulted from an attempt by Clarence Legrendre to photograph President and Mrs. Roosevelt in their carriage.

Agree to Obey Liquor Law

Kansas City, July 10.—Brewers who control saloons in Kansas City, Kan., admit defeat in their efforts to keep saloons open in defiance of the law and promise to give bond of $1000 for each building they own in Kansas City, Kan., in which they have fixtures as a guarantee that they will not again violate the liquor law.

Paper For Wage Earners

London, July 10.—The new Morning Majority, out this morning, describes itself as "the organ of all who work for wage or salary, and bound by no party, no league, and no association."

MILL WAGES RAISED

About 165,000 Operatives Benefited In New England

Boston, July 10.—A raise of 5 percent in wages, benefiting 45,000 operatives in cotton mills of southern Massachusetts and Rhode Island, went into effect yesterday. Few nights of more general rejoicing have occurred than last night in the affected districts.

M. C. D. Borden, controlling the Fall River Iron Works mills, has gone even a step further than his competitors in the Border City. He immediately made another advance, as soon as he learned that the wages in the other mills equalled his. What the exact amount of the raise will be he has not yet stated.

The latest advance is consistent with the movement started early in the present year to better the conditions of the laboring classes in the mill cities. Already in the New England states 165,000 operatives have had their pay advanced from 5 to 14 percent.

Of the total number, two-thirds work in the cotton mills and the other third in the woolen and worsted plants.

The raise in the association mills in Fall River was made 10 percent in order to bring the weaving schedules to the basis that existed before the reduction in 1904.

All the cloth mills in New Bedford, employing collectively about 15,000 hands, made an advance of 5 percent in wages.

The raise seems confined almost exclusively to the southern mills of New England, although a few in Maine and New Hampshire, it is understood, intend to follow suit.

Tramp Wielded a Knife

Springfield, Mass., July 10.—James Flahaven was cut from his left ear to his chin by a knife wielded by a man who said he was John M. Jennings of Boston. Flahaven also received stab wounds in his right palm and wrist. Jennings, who appears to be a tramp, had been refused money by Flahaven, who is said to have slapped him in the face, and the slashing followed. The wounds are not serious. Jennings was arrested.

Ice Prices Soar High

Boston, July 10.—The books of the so-called ice trust have been placed at the disposal of District Attorney Moran in connection with the investigation which he has undertaken into the prices charged for ice. The price of the commodity is unusually high in Boston and vicinity. The present price varies from 30 to 70 cents a hundred-weight. Last year the rate was 25 cents in the metropolitan district.

In Sympathy With Weavers

Warren, Mass., July 10.—After several stormy sessions, the textile workers of the Sayles & Jenks cassimere mill last night voted to remain out in sympathy with the striking weavers. The mill management states that if the striking operatives do not return today the mill will be open to help from anywhere.

Would Not Work With Hebrews

Spencer, Mass., July 10.—The strike which began Friday at the Isaac Prouty company shoe factory in Spencer, because of the employment of nine Hebrews, and which threatened to tie up the factory and put 1500 operatives out of work, has been settled by the company discharging the Hebrews.

Strike In Quarries Ended

Milford, Mass., July 10.—A strike of the engineers at the Webb Granite company quarries, which was declared a week ago because of the employment of a non-union man, has been settled. The terms of agreement were not announced.

Stock Quotations Private Property

St. Paul, July 10.—Stock market quotations are private property, even after having been posted in conspicuous places by the owners or lessees of them, and cannot be circulated by those who have not secured the owner's consent. This is the effect of a decision of the federal court of appeals filed by Judge Vandevanter.

Default of Ice Dealers' Bonds

Washington, July 10.—The grand jury of the District of Columbia has continued its investigation into the charges of a combination among the ice dealers to raise the price of ice. Several dealers have forfeited their collateral in default of appearance to answer to the charge of selling under weight.

Injunction Against Poolrooms

Hot Springs, Ark., July 10.—A temporary injunction restraining the several poolrooms and the turf exchanges of this resort from operating has been granted by Chancellor Curl on the grounds that they are corruptive to youth, are harborers of law-breakers and are common nuisances.

Critchell's Condition Very Grave

Salisbury, Eng., July 10.—A bulletin issued at the infirmary, relative to the condition of those who were injured in the wreck of the Plymouth special railway train, states that all the patients are progressing favorably except Robert S. Critchell of Chicago, whose condition is exceedingly grave.

American Meats Barred

London, July 10.—As the result of the refusal of one of the ships of the British Atlantic fleet to take on American tinned meats during the recent naval maneuvers, the admiralty directs that ships' companies be supplied with Australia or Argentine brands in lieu of American.

The Dewey Reaches the Philippines

Manila, July 10.—The drydock Dewey arrived at Olongapo, Luzon, this morning. The trip from Singapore was uneventful.

The Inspector's Romance

By CLAUDE PAMARES

Copyright, 1906, by M. M. Cunningham

Once every two months—now a day or two earlier, and now a day or two later—Inspector Cranforth had entered the different postoffices on his route and checked up and straightened out affairs. There were postmasters who had seen him grow old and gray since his appointment. They had always found him a pleasant spoken and a just man, but all stood in awe of him. In no department of the public service is Uncle Sam more particular than in the postal. The cash must balance to a cent with the postmasters, and any man or woman who attempts to play tricks with his letters are certain to be pursued with relentless energy.

Inspector Cranforth was generally regarded as a flint hearted man. It was understood that he was an old bachelor and had never known what love was. He accepted no excuses from postmasters and indulged in no flirtations while traveling. At fifty years of age he had got to be part of the route, and no one knew him for just what he was. Outside of his officialism he had a heart as warm as any man's, and one reason—and perhaps the main one—why he had not married was the fact that he had always maintained a home for a mother and a crippled sister. His salary could do no more. One day a windfall came in the shape of a legacy, and if the inspector had dreams of matrimony and a fireside all his own, no one could blame him.

Those who looked upon the man as flint hearted did not know the ins and outs of the case at the Dover postoffice. An old soldier had been postmaster there for years. When he died his widow took his place. When she died her daughter Mary, who had known the inspector since her babyhood, was left motherless, fatherless and almost penniless. It was the inspector who paid a part of the undertaker's bill; it was the inspector who had Uncle Billy Smith appointed; it was the inspector who got Mary Williams a clerkship that practically made her postmistress and financially independent.

Even the girl did not know the extent of his kindness. When he found himself asking why he did it he found himself replying that in two or three years more he hoped to be in a position to marry. At present his feelings toward the girl were merely paternal. What they might be in the future he wouldn't discuss with himself.

It was said that Inspector Cranforth took more time for inspection at the Dover postoffice than anywhere else. Some of the village gossips said it was because of Mary Williams, who regarded him as a friend and was always glad to see him come, and others said he had his eye on Tillie Langton, the daughter of the village innkeeper. It was the talk that the two girls were rivals, and the innkeeper's daughter at least came to believe it and to feel bitterly toward the girl in the postoffice. The situation of affairs was just right when there came an official complaint against the Dover postoffice.

William Penfield, son of Deacon Penfield, was in the habit of sending his old father money from Iowa every month or two.

William was of an economical turn and did not want to pay a registry fee or the premium exacted for a money order. The bill was simply inclosed in a letter. The father was inclined to be garrulous and to look upon it as a smart trick to get ahead of Uncle Sam, and so in time every one in and around Dover came to know what would have been more prudent to be kept secret.

A money letter was missing. Old Mr. Penfield haunted the postoffice for a week and then wrote to William. William made affidavit that he wrote and inclosed a ten dollar bill on a certain date. It was the business of Uncle Sam to send out a tracer and for one of his inspectors to follow it up. Inspector Cranforth took his time about it, but he finally traced the letter into the Dover postoffice.

By that time there was great ado in the town. Old Mr. Penfield hadn't hesitated to express his opinions that "some one" right in the home postoffice had cribbed his letter and abstracted the money, and of course he referred to Mary.

She claimed to be innocent, but there were those who held to the contrary, and when Inspector Cranforth arrived to carry his investigation further there was great excitement. To the intense indignation of hundreds of citizens the investigation was held within closed doors—that is, Mary was questioned only in the presence of a justice of the peace. She was nervous and excited and shaken. She admitted her belief that such a letter had arrived at about such a date, but what had become of it, if not delivered, she could not say.

The establishment was a combination grocery and postoffice. A person could have sneaked into the postoffice part from the grocery, but he would have had to look over all the general delivery mail to get the Penfield letter. He would have also had to hit the exact date of its arrival.

Every incident of the day was recalled, but suspicion could not be directed against anybody. The letter had arrived, but what had become of it was a puzzle. Two hours' talk was leaving the investigation just where it had begun, when the outsiders demanded that the girl's trunk at her boarding place be searched. She went pale in an instant, and as the inspector noticed it a suspicion lodged in his heart. When asked if she were willing she hesitated and finally declined. Even the good old justice, who was her friend, looked at her with pity in his face. The inspector stared into vacancy a moment, and then his mind was made up.

"Mary, have you a ten-dollar bill in your trunk?" he asked.

"I—I"—she stammered.

"Have you or have you not?"

"Yes, but—but"—

"Then you took the letter?"

"Oh, I couldn't have done it—I never did it!" she wailed.

"Then where did the bill come from?"

"I can't tell you. Please don't ask me anything more. I didn't take the Penfield letter, but I—I can't tell you!"

"Poor girl!" sighed the justice as he walked across to the hotel with the inspector.

"I've got a duty to do," was the reply.

When the inspector had reached his room he sat down and wrote out his resignation, to take immediate effect. Some one else would have to arrest Mary Williams. It was the hardest blow of his life. He had been thinking of her for a month past as his wife. It seemed impossible that she could be guilty, and yet the inspector sent on to take his place must arrest her on her own showing. The man was feeling more sore at heart than ever before in his life when he heard two female voices in the next room. There was a vacant stovepipe hole just above his head that let every word float through. The women were the innkeeper's wife and his daughter, and he heard the mother say:

"Tillie, where did you get that ten-dollar bill changed?"

"At the butcher's," was the reply.

"And what did you do with the letter?"

"Burned it up. Don't you go to fretting over things. They say that Mary will lose her place, but nothing else will happen. I want to get Mr. Cranforth in the parlor tonight and sing and play for him."

Ten minutes later the inspector was at the butcher's, asking questions. He went from there to the postoffice for a few minutes' talk with the accused girl. When he had asked a question or two she remembered that on a certain date when she had half a dozen letters in her hand she had been called into the grocery part in a hurry and had left the letters on the counter for a moment beside the innkeeper's daughter.

"And now about searching your trunk?" asked the inspector.

She handed him the key in a shamefaced way and said:

"I don't want you to, but if you must then you will find the bill in a letter. Read the letter."

The justice was taken along. The letter and money were found, and both read the letter and replaced it and went out of the room almost on tiptoe. The inspector had never heard that Mary even had a beau. The letter proved that she was engaged to a young man in a neighboring town, and he had sent her the money to save up with more against their wedding.

"Why didn't you tell me this before?" asked the inspector of the girl that evening.

"I—I didn't want to hurt you," she replied.

"Hurt me how?"

"I knew you were falling in love with me, and you are so old, you know, and I'd have to say no, you see"—

"I understand," he finished, with a sigh, and, going into his own room, he tore up his resignation and sat down and figured it all out and said to himself:

"The girl is right. The man of fifty who has a romance is an old fool!"

He was not entertained in the inn parlor that evening. He never stops there now. The thing was somehow fixed up between the landlord and old Penfield and the government, but it is whispered around that it cost the former a thousand dollars and that Tillie is likely to die an old maid.

The Lesson He Was Taught.

A southern judge tells of the disqualification of a juryman who came before him. The case was a capital one and the lanky backwoodsman declared determined opposition to capital punishment. Looking at him sternly and in tones somewhat suggestive of wrath, the judge asked the fellow if he did not think there were conditions so extraordinary as to warrant the hanging of the offender. He said he did not believe anything could make him assent to such a verdict.

"But will your honor let me explain?" said the disqualified citizen. "I'd like to give the court my reasons."

"I don't wish to hear any explanation from you. Go and sit down."

"Excuse me, judge, but you must hear my reason."

"Well, then, give it, and go along with you."

"The reason I am opposed to capital punishment, your honor, is that my old mammy taught me it were a sin to kill anything that wasn't fittin' to eat."

So Near.

Near Vineland, N. J., there lived a German farmer who brewed his own beer, the superiority of which he was continually proclaiming, though no other person ever enjoyed an opportunity of testing its merits. A young neighbor made a wager that he could trick the farmer into giving him a taste of the much vaunted drink. The youth visited the German one Sunday afternoon and the conversation was deftly steered around to home brewed beer. The young man boasted that his father brewed beer that could not be equaled. The farmer at once vehemently ordered up a mug of his own favorite brew. When it appeared the German raised it to his lips, and, the other hand pressing his stomach, drank every drop without taking breath. Then, holding the empty mug to the disappointed young fellow, he said gravely:

"You say your fader's beer iss so better as mine! Joost schmell dot mug!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Coddington School Lot

Apparently nothing has yet been done under the appropriation made several months ago for the enlargement of the Coddington school lot. The deed passed some time ago tranferring the Faxon lot to the city, and the children should have the benefit of the open space at the beginning of school in September.

The lot is needed not only for a playground, but for the health of the rooms on the north side of the building which seldom gets any sunshine. It will also give the school an entrance from Faxon avenue and take the children from Coddington street with its electric cars and automobiles.

The prospects are not good for a new building in the immediate future, and therefore there should be no delay in enlarging the lot as voted. The money has been appropriated, and the house purchased should be sold before it becomes a wreck.

The Heart Can't Stand Rheumatic Acid Poisoning

To Free and Correct the Blood a Uric-O Treatment is Advised.

There is great danger in those sharp shooting pains through the chest around the region of the heart. It means that poisonous uric and rheumatic acid are there ready to spring and grip tightly the muscles controlling the heart's action. Don't neglect these warnings, they are the danger signals Nature flashes to you for help. You must neutralize and drive these dangerous poisons from the system, or sooner or later they will overcome you.

The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to get at it from the inside with Uric-O. It acts with marvelous swiftness upon the muscles, kidneys and blood. Clears out the sand-like deposits in the muscles, forces the kidneys to perform those duties for which they were designed and neutralizes the acid within the blood.

Your physician will admit that this is the only true way to cure Rheumatism permanently, and should know that Uric-O is the one remedy that will do it successfully and permanently. Uric-O is a liquid taken internally, 3 times daily and does not contain a drop of alcohol, opium or other dangerous poisons. It is good for Rheumatism in any form. Sciatica, Muscular, Inflamatory and Articular Rheumatism all yield readily to Uric-O. The store of E. J. Murphy is the home of Uric-O in Quincy, and if you call on him, he can tell you of many wonderful cures that Uric-O has made right here in your own home city. He sells it for 75c. and $1.00 the bottle or you can obtain a trial bottle free by writing to the makers of Uric-O, the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y.

CITY IN A SKYSCRAPER

Preacher's Scheme to Build One Along Christian Lines.

WILL BE ERECTED IN CHICAGO

Rev. Dr. George F. Hall Plans a Church, University, Hotel and Stores, All In One Building, For Ambitious Young Folks—To Provide Good Society For Poor Workers.

Undiscouraged by the foreclosure proceedings against his Chicago-Texas Land and Lumber company, Dr. George F. Hall, pastor of the independent congregation which worships in the Bush Temple theater, promises to carry the enterprise to a successful issue and to build in Chicago a "Christian temple" at a cost of $5,000,000, says a Chicago special dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

At his offices in the Security building Dr. Hall spoke enthusiastically and confidently of both propositions.

The "Christian temple" is to be an eighteen story skyscraper on the North Side in the vicinity of Lincoln park. Dr. Hall, who is the originator of the idea, has planned a complete Christian city under one roof. The main purpose is to provide good society for the working young men and women of Chicago who are now compelled to live in cheap rooms and are deprived of all social diversion.

Five floors of the temple are to be devoted to a university which will accommodate 12,000 pupils who must obtain their education at night, if at all.

In the building there will be 3,500 rooms, and each room will be rented to two young men or two young women at a rate, per individual, of $2.50 a week. The young people will have their clubs, lodges, societies, parties, etc., all under one roof.

The auditorium will be one of the most splendid in Chicago if Dr. Hall's plans are carried to fulfillment. It will seat 12,000 at one time, and will be so arranged that the stage will be in the center of the auditorium.

In the eighteen story temple there will be banquet halls, restaurants, laundries, rooms for servants and attendants, a bank, chapels, recreation rooms, study rooms, etc. In fact, the young people need not go out of the temple to live a complete life.

Dr. Hall declared he was in New York recently and talked with a bonding firm, and was assured that the money with which to finance the Christian temple would be forthcoming whenever he decided to launch the enterprise.

TAFT MOST POLITE OF MEN.

Gave His Car Seat to Three Women, Justice Brewer Told Yale Men.

At the Yale alumni meeting the other day in New Haven Justice Brewer was one of the speakers, says the New York Sun. He began by referring to the many colored costumes which confronted him and added, "And those gentlemen in the striped garb would make us think perhaps that they had recently retired from the United States senate."

Speaking of Secretary Taft, he said: "Now, Secretary Taft is the politest man alive. I heard that recently he arose in a street car and gave his seat to three women."

In President Hadley's address his main suggestion, that Yale have fewer professors and pay them better, was received with surprise, but with some enthusiasm. He said rather bluntly:

"Yale would be better off if one-half of the faculty were to be dropped (I will not say which half) and the pay of the other correspondingly raised."

President Hadley told a new class room story of Professor Thomas Lounsbury in announcing the latter's retirement from the faculty. He said:

"Professor Lounsbury was teaching an inattentive class. He turned to them and said: 'Gentlemen, bear with me a few minutes. I have yet a few pearls to cast.'"

Arcadia In Missouri.

The Arcadia assembly is a new Missouri enterprise, says the Missouri Farmers' Herald. Robertus Love is the organizer. Aug. 18 to 31 is the first annual encampment, and the summery section of the state, where the breezes blow ever from the southward, is to be the site. There are Chautauquas without number, but this Love affair is to be the Arcadia, which is entirely different. The assembly would be an Arcadia even though it was held at Hoboken or Kalamazoo. It will be more so at a place so beautiful and bonny as Arcadia. Some sort of organization will be effected by these forces which are working toward the restoration of the independence of men by inducing people to get out of the clutch of city slavery and live the natural life—the rural or the simple life. John Burroughs' creed has been adopted as the shibboleth of the Arcadia.

Rutgers Professor on Long Walk.

Professor Edwin Bell Davis, professor of romance languages at Rutgers college in New Brunswick, N. J., accompanied by his son Donald, started the other morning on a walking tour to the Adirondacks, where he will remain until the reopening of college in the fall, says the New York Tribune. Last winter Professor Davis had a severe attack of typhoid fever and thinks this way of passing his vacation will build him up for his fall work. For the last five years Professor Davis has taken long walking tours. The trampers took with them guns, fishing rods and a tent.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

How to Talk Properly and In an Entertaining Way.

Be unaffected, be honest, in speaking and writing. Never use a long word where a short one will do. Call a spade a spade, not a well known oblong instrument of manual industry. Let home be a home, not a residence; a place a place, not a locality; and so of the rest, says the New York Journal.

Where a short word will do one always loses by using a long one. One loses in clearness, in honest expression of the meaning, and, in the estimation of all men who are competent to judge, one loses in reputation for ability. Elegance of language may not be in the power of every one, but simplicity and straightforwardness are.

One should write as he would speak; speak as he thinks. If with inferiors speak no coarser than usual; if with superiors speak no finer. Avoid all idity of expression. No one ever was a gainer by singularity of words or in pronunciation.

The truly wise man will so speak that no one will observe how he speaks. A man may show great knowledge of chemistry by carrying about bladders of strange gases to breathe, but he will enjoy better health and find more time for business who lives on the common air. When a person uses a queer expression or pronounces a name in reading differently from his neighbor the habit always goes down, minus sign before. It stands on the side of deficit, not of credit.

Avoid likewise all slang words. There is no greater nuisance in society than a talker of slang. Talk as sensible men talk. Use the easiest words in their commonest meaning. Let the sense conveyed, not the vehicle in which it is conveyed, be the subject of attention.

Once more, avoid in conversation all singularity of accuracy. One of the bores of society is the talker who is always setting people right, who, when you read from the paper that 10,000 men fell in some battle, says that it was 9,900. Truth does not consist in minute accuracy of detail, but in conveying a right impression, and there are vague ways of speaking that are truer than strict facts would be. When the psalmist said, "Rivers of water run down mine eyes because men keep not thy law," he did not state the fact, but he stated a truth deeper than fact and also truer.

How to Reach Safety In Fires.

Familiarize yourself with the location of windows and natural escapes.

Learn the position of all stairways, particularly the top landing and scuttle to the roof.

Keep the doors of rooms shut.

Open windows from the top.

Wet a towel, stuff it in the mouth, breathe through it instead of nose so as not to inhale smoke.

Stand at window and get benefit of outside air.

If room fills with smoke keep close to floor and crawl along by the walls to the window.

Never jump unless the blaze behind is scorching you; not then if the firemen with scaling ladders are near.

Never go to the roof unless as a last resort and you know there is escape to adjoining buildings.

In big buildings fire always goes to the top.

Never jump through flames in a building without covering the head with a blanket or heavy clothing.

Never get excited; try to recall all the means of exit.

How to Keep Hats Looking Fresh.

In traveling from one place to another in summer you may often be at a loss as to how to keep your hats fresh, as the tray of a trunk is generally crowded with little things. Try taking a handbox with you in this way, says Ladies' Home Journal: Cut down the sides of the box at the corners, fold and lay flat on the bottom of the trunk. When staying anywhere tie the corners together and you will have a good box for your hats. A good way to pack hats in the regular hat tray is to bore four holes, one in each side, near the corner and half an inch from the bottom. Take four pieces of tape, each half a yard long, and after tying a knot in one end run the tape through the holes, leaving the knots on the outside of the tray and the loose ends inside. Place a hat in the bottom and tie the tape ends, which are diagonally opposite each other, together.

How to Destroy Moths.

There is a better insurance against moths than the ordinary moth balls or gum camphor, says Good Housekeeping. Put into the bottom of the trunk in which clothes are packed away a small bottle of chloroform, say an ounce or two, according to size of case. Split the cork slightly, so that the chloroform can gradually evaporate. The fumes will kill not only moths, but many disease germs. It would be an exaggeration to say that the gas will kill all bacteria as well as insects, but certainly it is more efficacious than ordinary camphor. Of course care must be taken not to inhale the fumes when opening the chest.

How to Fill a Fountain Pen.

If you use one of the little glass and rubber fillers, be careful to use it slowly both in taking ink from the bottle and in putting it into the pen so as to avoid the air bubbles which hinder the smooth flow of the ink when writing, says Tom Watson's Magazine. If the bubbles form in spite of you, take the slightly unraveled end of a piece of brown twine or splintered end of a broken match and push it into the bubbles until they disappear.

How to Polish Damp Shoes.

Damp shoes are very difficult to polish. Try putting a drop or two of paraffin to the blacking, and you will find they polish up at once.

Tax Rate

No Reduction Probable In Quincy This Year

About $5 of the Quincy tax rate of 1906 will be required to pay the State, county and Metropolitan taxes and assessments upon the city. The total assessment is $128,440.86 against $126,388.03 last year, an increase of $2,052.83.

There were reductions in the State, the county and the sewer assessments, but because of the adoption of a new basis of apportionment all the other items are increased; that for water from $35,832.50 to $46,314.16, and that for parks from $9,448.59 to $12,147.74.

The figures for the two years are:

	1906.	1905.
State,	$25,270.00	$23,880.00
County,	22,656.90	22,261.09
Sewer,	23,813.99	28,960.81
Water,	46,314.16	35,832.50
Parks,	12,147.74	9,448.59
Highways,	27.48	5.04
Middlesex bridge,	210.59	0.00
	$128,440.86	$126,388.03

The above increase is not large enough to cause any material increase in the Quincy tax rate this year, but there are local increases which may affect the tax rate,—the increase in appropriations, the increase in maturing debt, and the increase in interest accounts.

Some of the other items which enter into the make-up of the tax rate are given below. The figures for 1905 are definite, while those for this year are estimates, but approximately correct:

	1906.	1905.
City tax	*$301,287.33	$284,976.94
City debt	*79,670.00	77,942.00
Interest city debt	17,609.88	14,307.92
Park debt	2,000.00	2,000.00
Interest park debt	1,440.00	1,520.00
Interest, temporary	14,000.00	12,000.00
Sewer tax	†	00.00
Overlayings	†	10,479.88
		$403,226.74
To be reduced by—
Receipts	†	44,068.38
Polls	†	17,456.00
		$61,524.38

*Mayor's estimate. †Unknown.

It looks as though the Assessors must raise about $15,000 more by taxation, this year than last year, of which $13,000 is for city purposes and $2,052.83 for State assessments.

The tax rate of 1905 was $18.30 per $1,000, which has been exceeded but twice in the history of the town and city. The high water mark is $19.20, and the next highest $18.80. Only six years has it been $18 or above, and all in the last nine years.

On Their Honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. McGrath, (Ruth Keegan) who were married in October, entertained on Sunday at their home on Barry street, West Quincy, their brother, Mr. Thomas D. McGrath and his bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. McGrath are on their honeymoon, having been married July 2 at Honesdale, Pa., the home of the bride, where Mr. McGrath has been in business for the last two years. The guests have been showered with hearty congratulations since their arrival here in Mr. McGrath's native city, where he was always most popular, having hosts of friends. He will be particularly remembered as being a most energetic and valued member of the St. Mary's C. T. A. society of West Quincy, at one time president and at all times a hard worker for the advancement of the society. Since taking up his residence in Honesdale, his jovial spirit and thorough good fellowship have won him legions of friends. He is now president of two Catholic societies there.

While in West Quincy the bride and groom were entertained at the homestead on Douglas street and at luncheons and teas by the different relatives. Mr. David A. McGrath and daughter, Miss Alice, did the honors at their pretty home on Mallet street, Dorchester, the afternoon and evening of the Fourth. Mr. and Mrs. William McGrath of Bryant avenue, West Quincy, entertained on Saturday.

The bride's charming personality and pleasing manners have made for her life friends, who will remember her most pleasantly and kindly and who sincerely regret that she is not going to take up her residence here. The happy couple took their departure for Honesdale, Pa., Monday afternoon, where they will make their future home, followed by the best wishes of many friends.

A Delay in Reorganization

It was the intention of the purchasers of the Quincy Quarries Co. property to reorganize the company on Tuesday, but owing to the absence of the judge of the Circuit court, who originally passed upon the matter, the reorganizations has been postponed until the judge returns next week. While the plans of the new company have not been made known as yet, it is understood that they intend to continue developing the property. It has been rumored that they would sell part of the quarries. This rumor is denied, however, as far as any of the good quarries are concerned.

House Struck

Little Damage In this City More Serious In Weymouth

An unusually heavy thunder shower passed over Quincy Tuesday afternoon. It commenced to cloud up the middle of the afternoon and at 4 o'clock it was black in the northern horizon. Then the wind began to increase. It did not begin to rain however until just before 5 o'clock. It rained easy at first, then increasing in violence.

Then came the loud peals of distant thunder growing nearer and nearer. These were accompanied by sharp and vivid flashes of lightning. The air was full of electricity and the rain fell in torrents. The lightning could be seen to play along the telephone wires, and it was terrifically grand.

This was kept up for an hour when it began to clear, and the sun came out and set clear.

Although the storm was a severe one so far as known but little damage was done in Quincy, one house was struck in West Quincy and numerous telephone wires burnt out and blown down. The streets were gullied out in some places.

At the house of John J. Kane on Willard street which was struck, the bolt hit the rear of the house, ran along the ridge pole, ripping off shingles and then went through one room, scattering the plastering about. Fortunately no one was injured. The damage done is estimated at $25.

At Weymouth.

Weymouth was not so fortunate, as three or more houses were struck. The house of Rufus S. Turple at 1219 Commercial street, East Weymouth, was almost wrecked by the lightning. There was only a slight fire but the loss was nearly $2,000. No one was at home at the time, Mr. Turple being at the camp of the Cadets in Hingham.

The house of Charles H. Pratt on Hawthorne street, East Weymouth, was struck, the bolt entering the chimney. It ran about in two rooms causing a damage of $100. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were in the house but escaped injury.

The Cole estate on Thicket street, South Weymouth, was struck and burned together with barn and shed.

At Hyde Park.

The Grew school on Gordon avenue at Hyde Park was struck and set on fire. The fire alarm system was out of service so that it was necessary to run to the fire station to summon the apparatus. The loss was about $5000. It was an 11 room building erected in 1871 at a cost of $25,000. The janitor and another man were in the schoolhouse when it was struck, but escaped uninjured.

The house of Mrs. Clara Reader on on Fairmont avenue was also struck.

At Milton.

The storm did but little damage in Milton. Some of the telephone wires were blown down or burnt out. The fire alarm wires escaped. The chimney on the house of Edwin D. Dodge on Granite avenue was struck and demolished but the house was not injured.

Crain—Truax.

John J. Crain of the civil engineering department of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. was united in marriage in New York on Monday to Miss Louise Truax, daughter of Mrs. Irene Truax Hibbard.

The ceremony took place at noon at St. Bartholomew's church, and was performed by Rev. George Worthington, bishop of Nebraska. Only the immediate family friends were present.

Mr. Crain is a graduate of Cornell, class of '96 and Miss Truax is the celebrated whistling soloist. Mr. and Mrs. Crain will reside in Quincy.

Runaway.

A two horse team owned by Alden Briggs of East Milton ran away on Bates avenue, West Quincy, this noon. In their mad flight the horses dashed against a hydrant breaking it off, and injuring one of the horses so badly that he had to be killed. The horses then dashed against a telephone pole which held them until they could be captured.

—The recent Legislature cost the State $267,534.39.

Gov. Guild Visits Cadets

The storm of Tuesday held off just long enough to make Governor's day with the Cadets at Hingham a grand success. Governor Guild and guests arrived on the steam yacht Nacondah about 11 A. M. In the party were Gen. Frye, Gen. Carpenter, Col. White, Lieut. Col. Parker, Maj. Hayden, State Treasurer Chapin, Attorney General Malone, Gen. J. H. Whitney, and others, with ladies.

At the suggestion of Gov. Guild the comfortable khaki uniform was worn. The march of the Cadets and review were witnessed by a large gathering of friends.

When the storm came at 4.40 there was a lively stampede to get under cover. Evening parade was omitted.

Agricultural Meeting.

The demonstration work at the summer field meetings of the State Board of Agriculture has been such a success for the past two years that Secretary Ellsworth plans to continue it at the meetings this summer, with, in the main, new subjects for demonstration. The meeting will be held at Whalom Park, near Fitchburg, on Tuesday, July 24 next. In addition to the demonstration work there will be an address by Governor Bell of Vermont and a visit to the dairy farm of George N. Proctor, in the afternoon.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The injustice of laws governing taxation is again illustrated by the Metropolitan Park assessments, and the city of Quincy should not quietly submit. Valuation is said to be the basis of apportionment, but some mistake must have been made. In property valuation, according to the Manual for the General Court of 1906, Milton is worth $25,435,822 and Quincy but $23,894,528, yet Milton's park assessment for 1906 is $6,533.55, whereas that for Quincy is $12,147.74. Brookline's valuation is given as $102,306,308,—over four times that of Quincy,—yet its park assessment is $33,769.10, not three times as large.

Betterments are said to enter into the basis of apportionment for Metropolitan boulevards, but here again Milton and Brookline receive far greater benefits than Quincy. There is certainly a chance for an investigation, and inquiries should be made by the Mayor and City Solicitor.

Uneasy lies the head that runs a trust, in Ohio.

Punch calls him Senator Longworth. Cracked a real joke at last.

The Congressional committee to investigate the Government Printing Office, better not get too ink-quisitive.

The Zionites are urging Restorer Dowie to restore that $200,000 he got out of their bank.

"Two pints of milk make one quart," says an exchange. So does one pint of milk and one pint of water.

The fact that the crown of King Haakon of Norway was too big for him, shows that, unlike many others, his head has not been swollen by his elevation.

A New Jersey dog swallowed a wasp and immediately proceeded to do ground and lofty tumbling. The cry immediately arose that he was mad. He probably was.

The next Democratic platform, we are informed, will ignore the money question. The men who have been "yielding up" in the past, will be pleased if the campaign committee will follow suit.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Mr. Bryan shows great political wisdom in refusing to commit himself at this time to the wishes of his friends, and promise to make the presidential run two years hence. The circumstances are too queer, and too liable to change, to warrant in good judgment such a commitment. The most anybody can do for the present is to sit by as quietly as conditions permit, and study the panoramic show, mindful of what Justice Brewer of the Supreme Court said, when in New Haven for the commencement exercises, that there is still a constitution and a bench ready to construe it in the spirit which characterized the days of John Marshall. Before the lane upon which Congress has set our feet can be considered a safe lane, we must hear from the courts. They may change the order of things and open another road to victory at the polls.—New Haven Register.

—An estate valued at $1,000,000 is in controversy and the question of distribution turns on the construction of the word "and" in the will of John R. Farnsworth, late of Rockland, Me. By the terms of the will one-half of his estate passed to his wife "and her heirs," and the estate is claimed by George F. A STATE OF TERROR

Panic Follows Mutiny of Garrison at Tambov

CAVALRY IS ON STRIKE

Ruse of Military Authorities to Make Arrests While Religious Procession Was In Progress Meets With Utter Failure

Tambov, Central Russia, July 11.—A mutiny followed by serious fighting has broken out among the troops forming the garrison here, due to an attempt of the military authorities to arrest and disarm the Seventh reserve cavalry, who "struck," presenting a series of political and service demands.

Taking advantage of a great religious procession, the authorities sent the regiment to escort the processionists and preserve order and attempted, in the absence of the bulk of the regiment, to arrest the men remaining in barracks and stationed at the railway station.

The regiment, on hearing of this action, left the procession and galloped to the rescue of their comrades, firing as they rode. They cut their way through other troops to the barracks, where they barricaded themselves and beat off repeated attacks of the loyal troops. The detachment of the Seventh at the railway station cut the telegraph and semaphore wires and is holding out there.

An officer of the railroad corps and the commanding officer and a sergeant of the Seventh cavalry were killed, while many were wounded.

The procession broke up in a panic and as this dispatch is filed the population is in a state of terror.

Court Acquits Rojestvensky

St. Petersburg, July 11.—Admiral Rojestvensky, whose trial on the charge of surrendering to the enemy after the battle of the Sea of Japan began before a court martial here July 4, was acquitted on the ground that he was not in his full senses at the time of the surrender. Four officers of the torpedo destroyer Bedovi, who were placed on trial with the admiral, were found guilty of having premeditatively surrendered the Bedovi and all four were condemned to death by shooting. But, on account of extenuating circumstances, the czar will be requested to commute the sentences of the four officers to dismissal from the service and to be deprived of certain rights which they would otherwise enjoy.

Drifting Toward Great Uprising

Odessa, July 11.—Agrarian outrages and political industrial strikes occur daily and are alarmingly spreading in the southern provinces. The revolting peasantry are now evidently organized and led by professional propagandists, who are clandestinely importing arms.

A marshal of the nobility of Kherson expresses the firm conviction that the situation is inevitably and rapidly drifting to a colossal and calamitous uprising of the peasants against the landowners and that the movement will be actively supported by the disaffected soldiery.

A Serious Allegation

St. Petersburg, July 11.—The labor group in the lower house of parliament declare they have absolute proof that orders have been sent out from St. Petersburg to the police authorities in the province of Saratov to fire on gatherings addressed by members of parliament after the prorogation of that body. It is asserted that the orders instructed the police to single out the deputies and afterwards make it appear that their shooting was accidental.

Planned to Slaughter Jews

London, July 11.—The Standard's correspondent at Odessa telegraphs that he is assured on the highets authority that the sudden declaration of full instead of a semi-state of siege in that province was the direct consequence of the discovery of an elaborate Black Hundred conspiracy to inaugurate Jewish massacres in no fewer than 14 Jewish centres. The outbreaks were to occur at the same time.

Ironclads Join Mutineers

Sebastopol, July 11.—It is reported that the iron-clads Planteleimon and Three Saints have joined the garrison of the Batoum fortress, which has been in mutiny; that the Three Saints hoisted the red flag, and that the mutineers are forcibly detaining two other iron-clads, which had refused to join them.

Guards Attacked by Mob

Karsk, July 11.—A detachment of rural guards who tried to disperse rioters in the village of Eland were surrounded by the mob, which attempted to pull the men from their horses. The police fled. A lieutenant was unhorsed and killed and the house of the captain was demolished.

Revolutionists Seize Explosive

Kostroma, July 11.—A band of revolutionists boarded and seized a Volga steamer and captured 450 pounds of pyroxilene, presumably intending to use it for loading bombs.

Professional Burglar Sentenced

Boston, July 11.—John Henry, a negro, was sentenced by Judge Bishop to a term of from eight to ten years in the state prison. Henry had been convicted of burglary. The police claim that he was guilty of more than a dozen

RAIN AND LIGHTNING

Caused Much Damage and a Death In Greater Boston

Boston, July 11.—A sultry and oppressive summer afternoon was brought to an end yesterday by an unusually severe electrical storm. For more than an hour Boston and the surrounding cities and towns were the centre of a thunderstorm that was accompanied by a deluge of rain, almost incessant lightning, a high wind, and, in some cases, a fall of hailstones.

In the city two buildings were struck by lightning, and one man was killed by a bolt. In Hyde Park a schoolhouse was struck and at East Weymouth two residences were partially demolished by bolts. The lightning also struck in North Weymouth. At Hull the rainfall was so heavy as to lead to the belief in a cloudburst. There was also a heavy fall of hail at Hull and Nantasket.

The only fatality due to the storm was at Wood Island park in East Boston. In one of the bath houses during the height of the storm were two men, Herbert E. Williams and Thomas H. Evans. The bath house was struck by a bolt of lightning and both men were prostrated. Williams was killed instantly. Evans was taken to a hospital, where he was later resuscitated.

Connecticut Has Severe Storm

Willimantic, Conn., July 11.—Considerable damage was done in this section of the state by a severe thunderstorm late yesterday. The chief damage was done at Hampton, where a summer house owned by Dr. J. M. Winfield of Brooklyn and occupied by his family was struck by lightning and burned. The family managed to escape. At Windham several houses were struck by lightning and badly damaged. A train near here was struck by lightning while running 30 miles an hour. Three windows in the smoker were broken and the side of the car badly scratched.

Increase In Boston's State Tax

Boston, July 11.—From State Treasurer Chapin Mayor Fitzgerald has learned that Boston will this year pay a tax to the state of $4,117,729.23, as against $4,029,864.89, which was required last year, making a total increase to the state of $87,864.34. With these figures at hand, the principal assessors will have a little idea how much of a gain will be needed in both real and personal valuations to offset these figures and enable them to keep, if possible, within the present tax rate of $16 per $1000.

A Paris Green Famine

Hartford, July 11.—There is a scare among farmers in this locality over a shortage in the paris green market. They are unable to secure enough poison to save the tobacco and potato crops with which the bugs are playing havoc. Potato bugs and cut worms have been fully as active as usual, and the local supply house has disposed of 10 tons and can't get any more paris green. In their dismay the farmers are trying all kinds of substitutes.

Made Love to Friend's Wife

Lynn, Mass., July 11.—Warren Mansfield, a shoemaker, residing at Swampscott, has brought suit against John W. Cann, a gardener, living in West Newbury, for the sum of $10,000, the charge being alienation of Mansfield's wife's affections. Cann was formerly a frequent guest in the Mansfield house, but abused his privilege by making love to his host's wife with such success that she left home to reside with him.

Walcott Retains Famous Punch

Chelsea, Mass., July 11.—Joe Walcott of Boston retained the welterweight championship of the world by knocking out Jack Dougherty of Milwaukee in the eighth round at the Lincoln Athletic club here. Walcott's famous punch, a left hand swing to the jaw, defeated Dougherty. More than 2000 spectators witnessed the contest.

Mangled by Mowing Machine

Bucksport, Me., July 11.—While cutting grass on his farm in Prospect, James H. Littlefield was thrown from the seat of the mowing machine and received injuries which caused his death, being badly mangled. He was 71 years old and had served two terms in the Maine legislature.

Took Poison and Slashed Himself

Woburn, Mass., July 11.—The body of Harry H. Bryant of Somerville, aged 70, was found in the woods near this city. The throat was cut, the veins of the wrist were severed and an investigation further proved that the man had taken poison. No cause can be given for the suicide.

Compromise on Strike

Providence, July 11.—The strike which has been in progress for about a week among 25 men at the Valley Falls plant of the Rhode Island Perkins Horseshoe company was settled by a compromise giving the men a 57-hour-a-week schedule. They asked for a nine-hour day.

Neck Broken by Machine

Holyoke, Mass., July 11.—Leonard Twitchell, 22 years of age, employed in one of the mills of the American Writing Paper company in this city, slipped and fell into the gearing of a machine. Death was instantaneous, the man's neck having been broken.

Robbers Made Off With $5400

Moscow, July 11.—Two unknown armed men entered a train between Yaroslav and Moscow, killed the attendant, robbed a carriage manufactory cashier of $5400 and disappeared unmolested into the forest.

DENIAL BY CHEKIB

Says Turkey Is Not Against Elevation of Legation

POLICY OF THE SULTAN

It Causes No Surprise at Washington, Where Resistance to Leishman's Promotion Delays Settling American Questions

Washington, July 11.—Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister to this country, states that no instructions have been received by him from his government to delay the steps taken for the elevation of the American legation at Constantinople to an embassy.

"My government is as desirous to be adequately represented through an embassy at Washington as is the United States through an embassy at Constantinople," he said. "The question has long been pending, and Turkey has previously signified her willingness to take the step whenever financial and other conditions enabled her to do so. Both countries should move simultaneously in the matter subsequent to a definite agreement. If any question has arisen at Constantinople, the last reason to be ascribed for any delay should be any indisposition on the part of my government to cultivate the friendship and good will of the United States."

The reported opposition of the sultan to the elevation of the American diplomatic mission at Constantinople to the rank of an embassy does not create surprise in well informed circles here. A good reason for that opposition exists in the additional power and authority which the ambassador, John G. A. Leishman, will have in his dealings with the sublime porte.

Abdul Hamid has shown a wonderful resourcefulness in evading his obligations to the United States, and the action of this government in increasing the rank of Leishman will deprive the sultan of his ability to procrastinate in the adjustment of American affairs.

Under the original law providing for ambassadors it was impossible for this government to promote any minister to that rank unless the nation to which he was accredited first raised its mission in this country to the rank of an embassy. For many years the several ministers of the United States to Turkey have urged this government to promote them. They convinced the government that without the higher rank it was practically impossible to do effective business with the porte, but the government was powerless under the law, which required that Turkey should take the initial step.

Every great European power has an ambassador at Constantinople. The difference between an ambassador and a minister is that while the minister represents his government only, the ambassador is in addition the personal representative of his sovereign or chief of state, and as such ranks with the head of the country to which he is credited. He is entitled therefore to go direct to the sovereign at whose capital he resides upon any matter of business, while the minister must conduct his exchanges through the foreign office. In Turkey the sultan is absolute, and experience has demonstrated that unless direct assurances are obtained from him personally nothing can be accomplished.

After hearing of many trying experiences of Leishman the government decided that it was time to secure him a promotion to ambassadorial rank, and accordingly legislation was asked for and obtained which allowed the president to make Leishman an ambassador without waiting for Turkey to make the first move.

With Leishman entitled to go into the sultan's presence, the ability of the sultan to evade the settlement of American claims is practically at an end, and it is supposed here that the opposition of Abdul Hamid is born of the hope that he may be spared the embarrassment of direct intercourse with the progressive and importunate American representative.

Republicans Out In Force

Greensboro, N. C., July 11.—The Republicans of North Carolina opened their convention in this city with some 1500 delegates and alternates in attendance, the largest gathering in the state since 1876. Interest in the convention centered on the election of the next state chairman to succeed Spencer B. Adams. The first ballot resulted in the election of Adams to succeed himself.

New Officers In Mutual Life

New York, July 11.—Not one of the executive officers of the Mutual Life Insurance company responsible for the conditions which prevailed in that organization prior to the year 1905 remain in the service of the company, according to a letter to the policyholders which was made public by President Peabody of the company.

Spanish Governor Burned Out

Seville, July 11.—The civil governor's palace, with its entire archives, was destroyed by fire. The families of the governor and his staff escaped with difficulty. The adjoining barracks of the civil guards also were burned. The roof of St. Paul's church took fire and fell in, several persons being injured.

San Juan, P. R., July 11.—A reception was given by Governor and Mrs. Winthrop at the executive mansion to Secretary Root and his party. It was a very successful affair.

PROTEST BY THAW

No Foundation For Questioning His Sanity

HE WAS A "DOPE FIEND"

Theatrical Man Thus Declares to District Attorney's Office, and Tells Why He Thinks Thaw Unbalanced Mentally

New York, July 11.—Harry K. Thaw last night in the Tombs prison gave out his first formal statement since he shot and killed Stanford White on the Madison Square roof garden. In it the young man utters a protest against being regarded as insane. The statement follows:

"I am informed by Mr. Olcott and Mr. Gruber that the interview with the latter in one of last evening's papers quoting him (Gruber) to the effect that I am now insane and that a lunatic commission would be appointed to determine that fact has no foundation whatever; that Mr. Gruber never made such a statement, and that no such course is contemplated.

"Mr. Olcott further tells me that he did not go to Philadelphia for the purpose of seeing or inquiring about Harriet Thaw or her alleged insanity; and that his visit had nothing whatever to do with the question of my mental condition or that of any member of my family."

Assistant District Attorney Garvan continued yesterday vigorously to prosecute the case, and had before him several prospective witnesses.

Among them were James L. Lederer of Philadelphia, who was manager of "The Wild Rose" Theatrical company at the time Evelyn Nesbit, now Mrs. Thaw, was a member of the organization; May Mackenzie, an actress and friend of Mrs. Thaw, and Mary Leahy, Mrs. Thaw's maid.

Mr. Lederer told the assistant district attorney that it was his belief young Thaw was crazy. He based his opinion on the man's actions during the time Miss Nesbit was a member of "The Wild Rose" company.

"It was common talk among all the people who knew Thaw," said Lederer, "that Thaw was a dope fiend. I recall one night when Thaw was about to send two of his chorus girl acquaintances home in a hansom cab. He was there with a friend of his named McKay. Suddenly Thaw insisted on trying to jump over the roof of the hansom.

"Of course, he could not actually jump over the roof of the cab, but he tried and succeeded in doing the next best thing—he crawled up one side of the cab, over the roof and down the other side. McKay remonstrated with him, but it was no use. Then McKay, disgusted, turned aside and said: 'You can't do anything with a crazy man. He's crazy, like so many of the Thaws.'

"And the killing of White was just as much the act of a crazy man as many other things that Harry Thaw was always doing. He had absolutely no justification for it."

When the time came for exercise in the courtyard of the prison yesterday afternoon Thaw decided to remain indoors, telling the warden that he was not feeling well.

This decision created considerable discussion in the Tombs, and it was said that during the morning exercise Thaw had rushed around the corridors as fast as he could until he was exhausted. The other prisoners reported that Thaw's manner was wild, and that he went at such a pace that the other men exercising were obliged to get out of his way.

How Icemen Do Business

Kansas City, July 11.—In the investigation of the ice manufacturing concerns of this city, which County Prosecutor Kimball is trying to show is a trust in restraint of trade, Secretary Burke of the People's Ice Storage and Fuel company admitted that his company dictates the price of ice in this city. He told how his company sometimes bought ice for $2 a ton and sold it for $5 without even seeing the product.

Steamer Fast on Rocks

Louisburg, C. B., July 11.—Steamer Angola, from Vera Cruz and Progreso, Mex., for Montreal, struck on a rocky point 10 miles east of Louisburg harbor and sustained serious damage. The sea was smooth at the time of the accident. Several tugs are standing by the steamer, but there is much doubt as to whether she can be floated.

Statistics Regarding Paupers

Washington, July 11.—According to a report issued by the census bureau, there were in the United States in 1904 163,174 persons in almshouses and of these 111,817 were males. The ratio of almshouse paupers to population is decreasing. In 1880 it was 132 per 100,000 of population; it decreased to 117 in 1890, and 101 in 1903.

Yellow Fever Appears at Havana

New Orleans, July 11.—Reports from Havana to the Louisiana state board of health say that two cases of fever, suspected to be yellow fever, were found in Havana yesterday and that one case of yellow fever developed there on July 4.

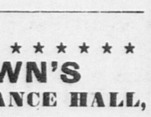
Warrant Out For Rockefeller

Findlay, O., July 11.—A warrant for John D. Rockefeller is now in the hands of the sheriff of Hancock county, charging Rockefeller with violation of the anti-trust laws in organizing and maintaining a monopoly of the oil business.

Repainting.

Paint has no protection against the elements, and climatic changes work hard and fast upon it. The best paint will eventually wear down, and the surface will have to be repainted. But when Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil are used the surface is left smooth and free, all ready for the painter to begin his work.

If, on the other hand, a hard, lifeless, inelastic paint (such as zinc and barytes) has been used, it cracks, peels and wears off unevenly, leaving a scaly surface, necessitating the expensive and dangerous process of burning off before satisfactory repainting can be done.



To paint with cheap paint is to repaint at high cost, and too soon.

Those who use

Lapses Will Not Be Tolerated

Chicago, July 11.—A new warning to the packers was given by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. "So long as the packers make strenuous progress toward bringing their plants up to the government standard as regards sanitation there will be no quarrel, and they will be given plenty of time to make the changes, but if my inspectors find after a while that they are letting up on the work of improvement, why—they will hear from it, that's all." In these words Secretary Wilson summed up the situation following a conference with the heads of packing houses and a trip of inspectors through four of the stock yard plants.

Errand Boy Was Mistaken

New York, July 11.—A victim of mistaken identity, Carl Gerstein, a lawyer, who came to this city from Boston to practice his profession, was discharged in a police court after having passed 24 hours in a prison cell. An errand boy for a hat store had pointed out Gerstein as the man who had stolen a C. O. D. order from him. Evidence was adduced, showing that the errand boy was wrong in his identification.

Investigators' Report Adopted

New York, July 11.—The board of aldermen adopted the report of two members of the aldermanic committee which recently investigated the street cleaning department in this city, supporting Counsel Ivins' recommendation that Commissioner of Street Cleaning Woodbury be dismissed. The vote was 36 to 19 in favor of the report.

Killed Soldiers and Got $50,000

Warsaw, July 11.—Ten armed men attacked the cashier of the Vistula railway, who was proceeding to the State bank to deposit the day's receipts. He was accompanied by an attendant and two soldiers. The assailants stopped the carriage, shot the soldiers dead and got off with $50,000. The cashier escaped, saving $400,000.

Rumor of Seizure of Warships

St. Petersburg, July 11.—No confirmation of the Sebastopol rumor of the seizure of warships by the Batoum mutineers is obtainable. Dispatches from Batoum make no mention of disorders or even of the presence of the squadron, which was last reported at Kertch, two days' sail from Batoum.

Creffield's Slayer Acquitted

Seattle, July 11.—George Mitchell, who shot and killed Franz Creffield, leader of the sect known as "Holy Rollers," in this city, alleging that Creffield had deluded and wronged his two sisters, was found not guilty by a jury. The defense was insanity.

Outrages In the Transvaal

Johannesburg, July 11.—Outrages by natives continue in the town and suburbs, the perpetrators frequently using revolvers. On one occasion natives were accompanied by Chinese coolies. The authorities have warned the whites to lock up all their arms.

Quick Payment

upon its Bonds of Suretyship is the fixed rule of the American Surety Company.

Without quibble or technical objection, and with only such delay as careful examination of proof requires; losses are promptly paid, the check being often mailed the same day the claim is filed.

On Personal Security, recovery necessarily takes time; with the American Surety Company, recovery upon proof of loss is certain and immediate. Such quick action often saves a bank from closing its doors, or a firm from bankruptcy.

Persons, firms and corporations requiring bonds from their employees, should write to the

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

SENATOR CRANE WEDS

Ceremony Performed at Summer Home of the Bride's Parents

Manchester, Mass., July 11.—With only the nearest relatives present and with as much freedom from all formality as is possible on such an occasion, the marriage of United States Senator W. M. Crane and Miss Josephine P. Boardman, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Boardman of Washington, took place here yesterday.

The marriage ceremony lasted just seven minutes and took place at "Wyndcliffe," the spacious summer residence of the bride's parents. The abbreviated single-ring Episcopal service was used. Originally Rev. R. C. Smith of Washington was to have been the officiating clergyman. It was found out yesterday morning, however, that the ceremony would have to be legally performed by a Massachusetts clergyman. Plans to meet this new emergency were quickly formed, with the result that Rev. W. H. Dewart of Hyde Park, who was to have been the assisting clergyman, officiated.

Promptly at 3 o'clock, 2½ hours after the wedding, a four-seated, canopied touring car chug-chugged up to the front portico, where it halted. Into it were ushered Senator Crane and his bride, together with considerable luggage. Without giving the army of newspaper photographers a chance to snap them, they were whirled away to Boston.

Pennsylvania Coal Strike Ends

Philadelphia, July 11.—Virtual settlement of the strike of mine workers in the central Pennsylvania bituminous field, which began last April, was made in this city last night at a conference between representatives of the United Mine Workers of America and the operators in that field. The principal terms of the settlement are: A 5.55 percent increase in wages for all mine workers over the scale which existed before the strike, and application of the check-off system to miners, but not to laborers.

Neckwear Makers on Strike

New York, July 11.—Twelve hundred girls, members of the Neckwear Makers' union, are out on strike. Thirty-five of the largest neckwear concerns in the city are affected by the strike. A contractor is said to have slapped one of the girls in the face and tore her shirtwaist during what he describes as a "friendly scuffle." The union imposed a fine of $25 on the contractor. He refused to pay and the strike is the result.

May Have Stolen $2,000,000

London, July 11.—Inquiries are on foot regarding the affairs of Charles Cheston, a solicitor, who died in May last, after having lost, it is alleged, between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 of his clients' money. The main losses affect five or six. It is alleged that Cheston's defalcations extended over several years and were largely the outcome of speculation in the stock exchange, principally in mining shares.

Emery Heads Fusion Ticket

Philadelphia, July 11.—Complete fusion between the Lincoln Republican party and the Democratic party of this state was effected at a reassembled convention of the Lincoln party in this city. The fusion ticket is as follows: Governor, Lewis Emery, Jr., Ind. Dem.; lieutenant governor, J. S. Black, Dem.; auditor general, W. T. Creasy, Dem.; secretary of internal affairs, J. J. Green, Dem.

American Cricketers Won

Philadelphia, July 11.—The international cricket match between the United States and Canada ended in a victory for the Americans by a large margin. Heavy batting characterized the play of the home team, while the visitors could do little with the deadly bowling of the Philadelphians.

Quick Work of Flames

St. Johns, July 11.—A disastrous fire swept over Mint Brook, resulting in a loss to the Timber Estates company of $100,000. In two hours its large lumber mill, two stores, 10 houses and 300,000 feet of lumber were destroyed. Twelve families are homeless, having lost all their effects.

To Prolong Visit to England

London, July 11.—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bryan have temporarily abandoned their planned continental tour and have decided to remain in Great Britain until after the conference of the Inter-Parliamentary union, which opens here July 22. Invitations have been pouring in on Bryan.

Wages Below Agreement

Athens, O., July 11.—Ten thousand miners in the Hocking district have struck because when the loaders received their pay checks they found they were short a third of a cent a ton from the price which they were to receive under the Columbus agreement.

Accountant Scoops In $17,000

New York, July 11.—James E. Brady's Accountant, ridden by Martin, won the $17,000 first money of the Lawrence Realization stakes at Sheepshead bay. The time, 2:48, is three seconds slower than the track record.

Compliment to Commander Hosley

Washington, July 11.—Secretary Bonaparte has sent a cable message of congratulation to Commander Hosley at Olongapo for the successful management of the drydock Dewey on its long voyage from Chesapeake bay.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, July 12.
Sun rises—4:18; sets—7:21.
Moon rises—11:26 p. m.
High water—3:45 a. m.; 4:30 p. m.

There will be showers in eastern New England. Temperature changes will be unimportant.

Revenge From Beyond the Grave

[Original.]

Townsend Waterman, a young American in Paris, strolled down the boulevard in evening dress and a light overcoat on his arm to the Place de l'Opera. He bought a seat in the parquet and before the curtain rose glanced at the boxes to see if any of his friends were present. All were occupied by strangers to him except one, and that was empty.

During the last act, while the audience was intent on what was taking place on the stage, something—he knew not what—impelled him to glance aside at the empty box. Though he had noticed it a moment before and saw that no one was in it, now a woman's face protruded from behind a side curtain, the eyes bent eagerly upon him with every evidence of distress.

Waterman was not the man to decline what he regarded an invitation and without waiting for the performance to finish left his seat and in a few minutes stood before the door of the box in question. He did not need to knock, for it opened noiselessly, and, entering, he took a seat beside the lady.

"Do not think evil of me," she said. "I am suffering and wish to leave this place. I must have an escort, and, seeing you in the audience, feeling that I could trust you, and catching your eye, I virtually invited you to come to me."

"Do you wish to go now?" he asked.

"At once."

They rose, Waterman helped her on with a light wrap, she took his arm and they left the house. Waterman called a carriage.

"I need fresh air," she said. "May we not walk?"

"Certainly, if you desire it. I supposed you were ill."

"Not so ill but that I can walk home," she said.

Indeed, it seemed to the American that she was as light as a feather. Her hand pressed so softly on his arm that at times he thought she had withdrawn it. Once while passing under a street lamp he failed to see her shadow beside his own. He turned to see if she had not slipped away from him, but she was still there. He looked again for the missing shadow, but they had passed out of range of the lamplight.

There was an odor about his companion that he could not account for—an odor of dampness, of water such as one often gets from a river, especially a river flowing through a city.

A third singular feature was that now and again he thought he heard something rolling on the pavement behind him. Twice he looked back to see, but there was nothing there.

Presently the lady guided her attendant from the boulevard into a side street that was taken up with dwellings, and, after pursuing it for a few blocks, she turned and mounted the steps of a stone front mansion.

"Quick," she said, "I'm fainting!" and fell into his arms. The door opened at a touch, and he carried her in.

"Upstairs to my bedroom!" she gasped.

Taking her up to the second story, he entered a room the door of which stood open and laid her on the bed; then he went to call for assistance, but no one replied; the house was empty. He went back to the bed and laid his hand on the woman, who by this time was stiff and stark. Indeed it seemed to him that she had been dead some hours.

At that moment a key was put into the lock of the front door, and some one came in. Waterman looked over the banister and saw a man in evening dress. Waterman went down, and when the man saw him he staggered back.

"The lady!" said Waterman. "She is up in her room!"

"What lady?" gasped the man.

"I don't know. She asked me to see her home. She is lying on her bed. I fear it is all over with her. Come."

The man shrank back. Waterman took him by the arm, supported him upstairs, and they entered the bedroom.

The man gave a shriek and fell on the floor.

"Elsie!" he cried. "Oh, why did I do it? You have come from your bed at the bottom of the Seine to mock me. I smell the water. I see the stone I tied about your waist."

From this he went off into incoherent cries and mutterings.

Waterman, as soon as he could collect his faculties, hunted up a telephone and called for the police. In a few minutes a party of gendarmes drove up in a wagon, stopping before the house. Waterman, who was now trembling in every fiber, went down and let them in.

"A very singular thing has occurred," he said. "I don't understand it. There is a dead woman upstairs. I met her at the opera and she asked me to bring her home. I did so, put her on her bed, and she died before I could summon assistance."

He led the way upstairs. There lay the man on the floor glaring and muttering. They turned to the bed.

It was empty.

From the evidence adduced at the trial it was plain that the husband had drowned his wife in the Seine about 10 o'clock in the evening. He had gone home at 11:30. He was never convicted of the crime because he was hopelessly insane from the moment he reached his house.

Waterman returned to America with his nervous system shattered. He says that to this day he can smell the bottom of the Seine and hear the stone rolling behind him when he walks.

Some think he was mentally unbalanced when he went abroad.

The Latest Local Brevities

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Maupas of 118 Washington street welcomed a 12 pound boy on the Fourth of July.

The ponies, dogs, monkeys and donkeys with the Washburn and D'Alma show to be here on Friday and Saturday, will surely please the children and entertain adults.

There is one generous man in town surely, for over on Saville street above a water cooler is the sign "Free Ice Water." About the store is a little flower garden and other evidences of the owner's love of nature.

Miss Sadie Thomas of Granite street is now located at the new cottage erected for her this summer at Hampton on Weir River, Nantasket. She is accompanied by her brother, City Solicitor William R. Thomas, sister and other relatives and friends.

Orangemens' Picnic.

Tomorrow the two Quincy lodges of Orangemen will celebrate the dethronement of James The Second by a parade through the principal streets of Quincy, after which they will take trains for Boston to meet lodges from other parts of the State and parade from Copley square to the North station. There they take trains for Centennial grove, in Essex, where the annual picnic will be held. The usual games and sports will be indulged in and addresses will be delivered by prominent men.

Warships as Old Junk.

The eighty British warships of all classes, which were condemned recently as being unfit for present day warfare, were sold at Portsmouth, England, this week, bringing a total of $400,000. The vessels which were sold for this price represent an outlay of $50,000,000.

—While the steamer South Shore, of the Nantasket line, was passing Fort Independence on the 5.20 o'clock trip from Boston, Sunday afternoon, a young man—who, with other passengers, had been calmly enjoying the harbor panorama from the ship's stern—suddenly mounted the guard rail, and without further ceremony dived overboard and swam to a yacht. The incident created great excitement.

—Upon being told that sulphur was a good blood tonic, Miss Veronica Shamteta, of Waterbury, Ct., bought a box of matches and soaked them in a pail of water. Then she scraped off the wet phosphorus and sulphur and, pouring a small quantity of the solution into a saucer, drank it. She became violently ill and Dr. Lopez, who was called, had to use a stomach pump.

Collars Presented To Past Grands

D. D. G. M., Silas S. Wescott and suite of Boston installed the following officers of Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., on Tuesday evening:

N. G.,—John W. Nash.
V. G.,—James Moorehead, Jr.
War.,—Charles Keiser.
Con.,—J. S. Baker,
Chap.,—William Patterson.
I. G.,—Edward L. Goodridge.
O. G.,—D. Edward McDonald.
R. S. N. G.,—Charles Hobart.
L. S. N. G.,—Thomas E. Furnald.
R. S. V. G.,—Thomas Smith.
L. S. V. G.,—Charles Prout.
R. S. S.,—Albert Clark.
L. S. S.,—Walter V. Loud.
P. G.,—Charles S. Jones.

After the installation ceremonies, D. D. G. M. Wescott in his remarks said that he had a very pleasant duty to perform for the officers and members of Mt. Wollaston lodge which was the presentation of two past grand collars, one to P. G. D. Edward McDonald, and the other to the retiring N. G. Charles S. Jones, in appreciation of their past services to the lodge.

The brothers thanked the lodge for the same.

After the lodge was closed the brothers retired to the banquet hall where ices was served, followed by speeches.

Trolley Freight Orders Discussed

A regular meeting of the Citizens' Association was held Tuesday evening at the rooms of the Granite Manufacturers' Association. There was a long discussion on the trolley freight orders which are now before the City Council.

The Association did not exactly oppose the granting of the permits, but did oppose the passage of the orders in their present form, it being claimed they were not legal.

A committee was appointed consisting of John W. McAnarney and Walter S. Pinkham, to enlighten the City Council on the matter next Monday evening.

There was also quite a discussion as to the advisability of changing the present site selected for the new Federal building.

The subject of candidates for municipal offices to be voted for next fall was then taken up and while no definite action was taken it is probable that the association will take an active part in municipal affairs in the fall.

Presentation of Watch and Chain

Harold Senior, a boilermaker employed at the Fore River shipyard, was presented with a gold watch and chain Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Boilermaker and Shipbuilders' club, held at Wilson's hall. The presentation speech was by Alexander Stewart and was responded to by Mr. Senior. An entertainment and refreshments followed. Mr. Senior, who is held in high esteem by his fellow workmen, leaves for England in a few days.

—The new steamboat Ticonderoga, launched by the Champlain Transportation Company, at Rutland, Vt., last spring, will go into commission Aug. 1. It will take the place of the Chateaugay, which will hereafter carry out excursion parties. The route of the new boat will be Westport, N. Y., to St. Albans Bay, Vt. Capt. Rockwell and staff of the old boat will be transferred to the new boat.

Petition for Guardianship

A petition was filed at the probate office in Dedham on Tuesday for the appointment of a guardian for Mrs. Caroline W. Estabrook, aged 86 years, and Mrs. Harriet W. Butters, aged 89 years, of Wollaston. A citation was issued returnable at Brookline on July 24.

The habeas corpus proceedings brought by Mrs. Lizzie C. Winslow of Brockton against her sister, Mrs. Helen F. E. Cox of Wollaston, for the release of the two old ladies, upon the ground that they were being unlawfully deprived of their liberty, which came up Monday in the supreme court, have been continued until July 27, to await the action of the probate court.

—Thirty thousand paving stones were recovered by divers on Tuesday from the schooner Gifford which sunk at Gloucester.

—Roger Wolcott has purchased the Charles Lowell estate on Canton avenue, Milton, comprising six acres.

—Mrs. Nancy Sherman Follansbee of Dedham observed her 93d birthday on Tuesday, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. George W. Humphrey.

—The old Norfolk House on Court street, Dedham, is being remodelled and will become the residence of Charles H. Gifford, superintendent of the B. F. Sturtevant Co.

Small Boats.

Popularity of the Knockabout Type of Racing Craft Greatly Increased.

It is but a few years ago that men with the best interests of yachting at heart were deploring the decline of small boat sailing.

Yacht racing, it was averred, had fallen into the hands of a class of men who, whether possessing knowledge of seamanship or not, had little use for it, since the size of their craft demanded the services of a professional skipper and crew.

It was freely predicted that unless something was done to revive the popularity of small boats the Corinthian or amateur sailor would soon practically cease to be for want of a training school in which to acquire that intimate knowledge of boat handling which can be obtained only by personal experience in working sheet and tiller unaided by professional skill or muscle. Probably there is no sport in which a youthful beginning is more essential to the acquirement of that instinct or subconscious faculty which enables one to perceive correctly without conscious reasoning, and there are many accomplished theorists in nautical matters who are very indifferent sailors in practice.

The conditions which seemed to threaten the future of Corinthian yachtsmanship were commonly held to be in a large measure the result of the increasingly ambitious scale on which the America's cup races were being conducted, for the cup contestants were supposed to set a standard to be at least approximated, and these were not only becoming bigger and costlier, but were deteriorating into mere racing machines, whose usefulness terminated with their racing career.

Unquestionably the international races did and still do distract attention from small boat racing, and it is equally true that they have become little more than contests between professional designers and skippers, amateurs contributing scarcely more than the money wherewith to build and race them, but today the small boat is supreme, little complaint is heard of the cup defender type, and if it did temporarily affect racing in general the yachting element has certainly cut loose from its influence.

A glance over the list of starters in any of the big regattas is sufficient demonstration of this.

It would seem as though the reaction in favor of small boats must have been inevitable, for it is hard to believe that a people so strongly imbued with the nautical instinct as we are could long have remained content with yachting honors dearly bought, but bringing so little nautical distinction to the purchaser.

FRONTENAC, KNOCKABOUT TYPE (LARK), NOW IN WIDE FAVOR.

[The Frontenac was a candidate for Seawanhaka-Corinthian cup honors last year.]

At all events, the development of the knockabout type so fast, so responsive, so easily handled and so comparatively inexpensive hastened the reaction.

Prior to the appearance of this type the familiar American catboat was the popular craft of the small yachtsman, but now the catboat, with its big, unwieldy mainsail, has been almost entirely superseded. Few are built and fewer raced, for the knockabout rig with its foresail inboard combines the merit of a sloop with that of a cat.

Another great factor in the revival of the small boat has been the introduction of one design classes.

Nearly all the well known yacht clubs now have their one design knockabouts or raceabouts, which furnish the life of the season, and many of these, such as the Manhasset Bay (N. Y.), New Rochelle (N. Y.), Buzzards Bay (Mass.), Seawanhaka raceabouts and knockabouts and Newport (R. I.) thirty footers have become famous. Incidentally the small boat yachtsmen, which class is by no means limited by financial considerations, but includes the proprietors of many of the most magnificent sailing and steam craft, have their international blue ribbon event, which enlists almost as much nautical attention as the America's cup races and seems to be gaining more general notice every year.

This is the struggle for the Seawanhaka-Corinthian challenge trophy, one of the most interesting and exciting of the annual aquatic features.

Rich Towns Favored in Assessments For Metropolitan Water Supply

Partly because the total assessment is larger, but mainly because of the new basis of apportionment, Quincy is this year called upon to pay a much larger water assessment. The total assessment on the district is $2,262,657.20 against $2,177,586.39 in 1905, an increase of $85,070.81.

Eight of the 19 cities and towns have a smaller assessment because this year the basis is largely upon consumption of water rather than on valuation of the city. These are Belmont, Hyde Park, Lexington, Milton, Stoneham, Watertown, Malden and Newton.

In only two cities is the increase in assessment larger than in Quincy, namely Boston and Chelsea. There were jumps, however, in Somerville, Melrose, Everett, Medford and Winthrop.

The assessments for this year and last year are given below.

Boston,	$1,822,556.33	$1,758,635.00
Chelsea,	57,687.81	46,418.14
Everett,	39,583.12	35,081.32
Malden,	38,087.38	49,720.51
Medford,	31,653.25	28,631.54
Melrose,	25,230.09	20,478.53
Newton,	6,234.22	10,699.51
QUINCY,	46,314.12	35,832.50
Somerville,	97,160.08	90,560.73
Arlington,	13,663.68	13,486.46
Belmont,	5,668.67	6,637.30
Hyde Park,	1,242.52	3,256.77
Lexington,	6,205.30	6,679.80
Milton,	14,070.41	16,580.60
Nahant,	4,187.88	3,699.67
Revere,	16,894.21	16,412.09
Stoneham,	8,088.06	8,662.33
Watertown,	14,778.34	15,689.53
Winthrop,	13,351.69	10,424.06
Totals,	$2,262,657.20	$2,177,586.39

Quincy is a victim of circumstances, because the water tax is assessed upon consumption of water rather than valuation of the cities. This basis favors the rich cities and puts the burden on those cities whose per capita valuation is small. The water tax is almost wholly to pay cost of construction, and therefore the tax should be largely on valuation.

The system is something similar to this. If taxes for the maintenance of schools were assessed upon the parents the cost of new schoolhouses would be assessed upon the parents also, instead of on property valuation as at present.

There is this consolation for the taxpayers of Quincy, however, the income from the water which this year costs $46,314.12 will be over $100,000. Perhaps the increase in water receipts 1906 over 1905 will be larger than the increase in assessment.

The South Metropolitan sewer tax is less this year upon all the cities and towns in the district because the total to be raised is nearly $50,000 smaller than in 1905. The Quincy assessment is $23,813.99 against $28,960.81 last year.

Battleship Contract Wanted

President Bowles of the Fore River Company expects to secure today a contract for one of the new U. S. battleships, but some diplomacy will be required.

A Washington dispatch of Wednesday to the Boston Herald says: On the decision of Secretary Bonaparte hangs the fate of an important contract for the building of a battleship, which may deprive the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy, Mass., of its construction, and affect the employment of 700 or 800 mechanics of Boston and Quincy. The Fore River Company made the lowest bid for the building of a vessel equipped with turbines, and would have been awarded the contract for one vessel at a cost of not more than $4,400,000, had not the board of construction of the navy made a report adverse to the turbines. The Fore River company's bid was $3,689,000.

Francis T. Bowles of the Fore River company came to Washington today and filed with Secretary Bonaparte a formal argument in favor of the turbines. If the secretary decides in favor of building one vessel with turbines, one warship will be built by the Fore River company. About 800 men will be employed on it for about three years. Mr. Bowels said today that the decision would mean much for the shipbuilding industry of Massachusetts.

In his argument he pointed out the economy of the turbines over the reciprocating system. The advertisement of the department calls for a speed of 18.5 knots. Mr. bowles promises to produce a speed of 19.5 or a knot more than required. He also claims that by the turbine system great economy in coal consumption results.

Great Britian has adopted turbines in warship construction.

Long Pier at Adams Shore

The Harbor and Land Commissioners gave a hearing Wednesday on the petition of the Adams Land Shore Company for the privilege of erecting a pier on Quincy bay. James R. Murphy, president of the company, represented the petitioner and the situation was put before the commission by means of maps on a large scale.

The petition asks for the right to build a pier 300 feet long, running from the Adams shore to the channel. The purpose is to secure a landing place for boats and yachts sailing in Quincy bay, so as to make it convenient for people to land at the Adams shore. It is admitted by Mr. Murphy that the purpose is to promote the land enterprise of the company. Some 12 or 15 cottages stand on the land now and it is hoped to have 60.

A landing place would increase the value of the lots. All the cottages are occupied and it is believed that there would be a demand for more if a landing place were provided for boats. Already, says President Murphy, there is quite a demand for lots for building purposes. The proposed pier would not interfere with tide water, but there would be full opportunity for persons wishing to land on the Adams shore and using either motor boats or row boats. The commission took the matter under advisement.

Miss Sarah Malone, a teacher at the Washington school has gone to Old Orchard beach, Maine, for two weeks.

The Crane Theological School

As already noted, Tufts college, as well as the city of Quincy, is handsomely remembered by Albert Crane in memory of Thomas Crane. Quincy has its Thomas Crane Public Library and beautiful grounds to which additions are being made. The gift to Tufts college was announced in the following letter.

Stamford, Conn., June 15, 1906.
Board of Trustees of Tufts College,
Gentlemen:

My father, the late Thomas Crane, was a trustee of Tufts College before his death, and I, his only surviving son, a graduate of the class of 1863.

My father was a strong pillar of the Universalist Church and a supporter of its teachings, and in his honor and name, believing that it would be in accordance with his own wishes, I purpose giving to the College, for an endowment of the Divinity School, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, to be paid over, if accepted, within one year and probably within six months, as a memorial of him. This gift would have undoubtedly been made heretofore and contributed to by his wife and son, Benjamin F. Crane, in their lifetime but that circumstances did not permit; and I now, with abiding sentiments of filial gratitude and esteem, feel impressed upon myself the duty of making, from my father's estate, without further delay, this gift to Tufts College and its Divinity School in which he had always a strong interest.

With cordial wishes for the continued prosperity of the college, I remain,

Yours respectfully,
Albert Crane.

The Universalist Leader says the gift deserves more than passing mention. Mr. Albert Crane feels that this gift proceeds from his honored father, not from himself, regarding it simply as the carrying out of a wish clearly formed by his father but at the time not possible of execution.

The college is grateful to this stalwart Universalist of the old days for this very important help at a crucial period in its history, and grateful also for the filial affection of the son whose tender regard for his father's wishes and intentions sees them fulfilled when fulfillment becomes possible.

It is proposed that the school shall be known hereafter as the Crane Theological school. Those survivors of the earlier days of the college who remember Mr. Thomas Crane's zeal and devotion, and those younger friends who have heard of them through the affectionate memory of their elders, will rejoice to see his honored name preserved forever in connection with one of the central and most important agencies of our church.

THE GLIDDEN TOUR STARTED TODAY.

W. C. WALKER AND JAMES P. GRADY.

The great automobile event, the Glidden Tour, started today from Buffalo, N. Y., several cars being entered. The route is via Auburn, Utica, Saratoga, Plattsburg, Montreal, Quebec, Jackman and Waterville, Me., to Rangeley lakes and Bretton Woods, nearly 1400 miles in 17 days, a severe test for motor cars.

Wilbur C. Walker, secretary of the Pope Manufacturing Company, who is driving the 25 horse-power Pope-Hartford in the Glidden tour from Chicago to Bretton Woods, N. H., July 12-26, is an expert autoist and knows the Pope-Hartford like a book.

Model F., which is the car entered, was watched by Mr. Walker through all its experimental stages; he studied and subjected it to all kinds of tests; he was always with it and the record the car has been making is due to a great extent, to Mr. Walker's personal pride in the vehicle.

The car climbed the mile long Dead Horse Hill, defeated its thirteen competitors and making the severe grade in 1.50; four passengers were carried. In the stripped events it did the hill in 1.28 1-5 This and other victories of a similar nature won Model F. the name of "King of Hill Climbers," Mr. Walker is not afraid to pin his faith to Model F. in the Glidden tour, that is why he is going to be at the wheel himself.

Sale of The Mitchell Plant

The auction sale of the granite plant of the Mitchell Granite company by auctioneer James F. Burke on Wednesday afternoon, attracted a large number. Many regretted to see this plant which had been established for so many years wiped out of existance.

Auctioneer Burke stated at the start that everything would have to be removed inside of ten days. It is understood that the railroad, which owns the property upon which the plant is situated, will utilize it for a freight yard. Everything at the plant was sold separately.

As a rule the articles brought good prices. Some went high and others very cheap. The two cutting sheds which are good for little more than kindling wood brought $60 and $71. A block of wood such as could be bought at any lumber yard for a mere nominal price sold for $3.

The travelling derrick sold for $160. A large grindstone worth $15 or $20 sold for $5. The engine brought $75.

The large granite cutting machine, which cost several thousand dollars to install, and which is in condition to run, sold for $90. This was the first granite cutting machine ever installed in Quincy.

Some pieces of granite brought good prices while others went cheap. Taken as a whole, however, Auctioneer Burke obtained good prices for the articles sold.

Good Weather For Ladies' Day

The Quincy Yacht club have delightful weather for Ladies' day, and large numbers left City Square early this afternoon for the clubhouse at Houghs Neck. The bay is alive with small yachts and launches and an enjoyable time is assured. The review is at 3 P. M., followed by a sail. There will be a concert from 5 to 7 and dancing from 7 to 10.

Many Visitors at Camp.

The camp of the Cadets at Hingham is an attraction for many, both in the afternoon and the evening. Among the guests on Wednesday were: ex-Gov. Long and Mrs. Long; Mrs. Thomas Talbot, the widow of the late Governor Talbot and mother of Thomas Talbot; Mayor Fitzgerald and daughters of Boston, and others.

The drills at 4 P. M., inspection at 5.15, and parade at 6 are always largely attended; also the band concerts in the evening from 7.45 to 9.15.

Veteran Granite Cutter.

Richard Prout, a well known and long resident of Quincy, passed away this morning at his home 65 Granite street, after a long illness. He is 61 years of age, a stone cutter by trade, and leaves a widow and family. He was affiliated with a Virginia lodge of the Knights of Pythias.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Now the Boston Transcript suggest putting "meters" on the Metropolitan reservations. In discussing the park assessments the Transcript says: "Another important factor which should be given consideration is the use of the parks. It might be impossible exactly to determine the number of Boston people, for example, who visit Middlesex Fells, but in general it may be assumed that the metropolitan parks are of most benefit to those who live near them, and that they constitute a betterment is not seriously to be questioned." Certainly a great many more Boston people visit the Blue Hills reservation than Quincy people, although the greater part of the taking for this reservation was from the city of Quincy. Boston is not too heavily assessed for any of Metropolitan improvements undertaken almost wholly for Boston's benefit.

☞News values vary with the seasons. What would be a mighty good and reasonable piece of news in midwinter has nothing to commend it in summer, and vice versa. A great political scheme that is being hatched out is received with languid interest in the dog days. The story that a man you know has hooked an especially big fish, however, or that he has won a sailing boat race, or has been warned for fast work in his automobile, will be discussed in a thousand homes two hours after the story is printed. For the ladies the news about the clubs still have a certain interest; but stories about the doings of the Newport set and about the whist parties and the latest social affairs at all the beaches where there are people one knows beat the club news just at this moment.—Brockton Enterprise.

A WARM WELCOME

Thaw Was Very Glad to See Newspaper Men

FRIENDSHIP WAS SHORT

Pencil Pushers Snubbed When They Made a Second Call--Detectives Summon Mrs Schwartz Before the Grand Jury

New York, July 12.—Harry K. Thaw's attitude toward the press and the public underwent a striking change between morning and evening yesterday. Immediately after breakfast he secured permission to have a delegation of newspaper men brought to the Tombs prison, telling them, after a friendly interview, that to talk with any one besides the lawyers, doctors and prison officials was "like getting a whiff of fresh air from the outside world."

Last evening it was different. When the newspaper men then sent Thaw a note asking if he wished to add anything to his formal statement of Tuesday, he sent a reply which said: "I have said all that I wish to say. In future I shall be guided by the advice of my counsel."

At his morning interview with the newspaper men Thaw asked them to give the widest publicity to his statement of Tuesday, which denied that he was insane, and he declared that there was to be no lunacy commission appointed to inquire into his state of mind.

Assistant District Attorney Garvan says that his detectives have succeeded in serving a subpoena upon Mrs. Beatrice Schwartz, in whose home at a dinner party Thaw is alleged to have made threats upon the life of Stanford White. It is said that she will testify before the grand jury not only to having seen Thaw flourish a revolver and threaten to kill White, but that she will swear to having heard Thaw threaten to shoot his wife also.

May McKenzie, an actress, was question by Garvan for a long time yesterday concerning her knowledge of White's friendship of Mrs. Thaw. Miss McKenzie is one of the friends of Mrs. Thaw who have heretofore refused to furnish the district attorney's office with any information concerning the case, but it is understood that yesterday she freely told Mr. Garvan what she knew.

Wound Up With Ten-Day Sentence

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 12.—Elisha Moore was arrested here because he was trying to impress the villagers that he was in charge of the secret service force. He telephoned to Sagamore Hill that he would soon be out there and warned local saloonkeepers that he would arrest them as soon as he got his uniform, because of defects in their licenses. Squire Franklin sentenced Moore to 10 days' imprisonment for being drunk.

Politicians Meet In Smashup

Danville, Ills., July 12.—An automobile bearing Vice President Fairbanks crashed into a buggy driven by Joseph M. Dougherty, a prominent Democratic politician. Dougherty was thrown out and painfully bruised. Fairbanks went to the assistance of Dougherty, who expressed his pleasure at the meeting, but said he would have been better pleased had it taken place under slightly different circumstances.

Eighty Autos In 1100-Mile Run

Buffalo, July 12.—Early this morning 80 automobiles started from this city on the 1100-mile run through this state, the province of Quebec and the states of Maine and New Hampshire. The event is the third annual run of the American Automobile association for the Glidden trophy. The cars left at short intervals, beginning at 7 o'clock, and the last machine was on its way east before 10 a. m.

Pathetic Request Granted

Ischl, Austria, July 12.—Eugenie, former Empress of France, arrived here last evening and was met by Emperor Francis Joseph. Before coming to Ischl the ex-empress asked the emperor's permission in writing, saying: "Being near death, I request that your majesty grant me the opportunity to see you once more in order that I may thank you for all the kindnesses you have shown me."

Jews Fleeing From Warsaw

Warsaw, July 12.—Sensational rumors that an anti-Jewish outbreak might be expected tomorrow have resulted in a panic and thousands of Jews have fled the town. The authorities have adopted far-reaching measures, which were all the more necessary, as the soldiers and police are incensed by the numerous attempted murders of their comrades.

A Bloodless Duel

Lima, Peru, July 12.—Senor Zapata, recently minister of the interior, and Senor Ulloa, a journalist, fought a duel, exchanging shots without result. They left the duelling ground without being reconciled. Zapata had accused Ulloa of insulting him in a newspaper article and resigned from the ministry of the interior in order to be free to fight the writer.

Bark Abandoned and Set Afire

Lewes, Del., July 12.—Having been forced to abandon their vessel at sea, Captain Alsena and his crew of 12 men of the Uruguayan bark Margarita arrived here on board the schooner Judge Pennewill. The crew suffered no hardship. The Margarita was bound from Philadelphia to Halifax with a cargo of coal. Soon after leaving the Delaware capes Sunday the bark sprang aleak and the vessel was filling at the rate of nearly two feet an hour by Monday morning. Distress signals were hoisted and were seen by the Judge Pennewill. It was decided to set fire to the bark and leave her, which was done.

Five Killed In Trolley Wreck

Buffalo, July 12.—A train of two trolley cars ran into an open switch at a siding just east of Martinsville last night and crashed into a trolley freight motor and a train of seven freight cars lying on the siding, waiting for the passenger train to go by. Five passengers were killed outright and a score injured, some of whom may die. The passenger cars were going at high speed and the impact was terrific. The foremost car was utterly demolished.

Lynching In Georgia Swamp

Swainsboro, Ga., July 12.—About 100 heavily armed men took Ed Pearson, a negro, from Deputy Sheriff Fields, about three miles from this place, carried him to a swamp and lynched him. Pearson had been found by Misses Maud and Ida Durnen hiding under their bed. Screams attracted their father, an aged man, who entered the room with a gun, but was knocked senseless by the negro, who escaped, but was later captured.

33,000 Pounds of Bad Meat

Philadelphia, July 12.—Inspectors of the bureau of health have condemned and destroyed 33,000 pounds of impure meats found in the cold storage plant of the Delaware Freezing company. The stuff was turned over to a fertilizer plant. The crusade against impure meat and unsanitary slaughter houses is being pushed vigorously by the health bureau.

THE LAW NOT NEW

Old Statutes Are Ample to Stifle Corporate Abuses

PARKER IS HEARD FROM

Says Taft Tried to Give Impression That Recent Prosecutions Are Due to Congressional Action Since 1904

New York, July 12.—Alton B. Parker, in a public statement, takes issue with some of the utterances of Secretary of War Taft in the speech delivered at Greensboro, N. C., by Taft last Monday. Judge Parker declares that the secretary in his speech sought to have the public draw the inference that the recent prosecutions of alleged illegal combinations are due to new statutes. To this Parker takes exception and to support his contention he quotes from his letter of acceptance and a speech subsequently delivered during the last presidential campaign. In both the speech and the letter Parker is quoted as saying that the laws then on the statute books were entirely adequate if enforced. Judge Parker says:

"Secretary Taft's speech at Greensboro, N. C., was interesting throughout, but it cannot be said that it was accurate throughout. I shall only refer to the statement in which he alluded to the position taken by me in the campaign of 1904, in substance and effect that we have law enough to stop every corporate abuse; that all that is lacking is an administration disposed to enforce the law.

"I said, in the 'letter of acceptance,' under the title of 'Trust Remedies':

"'I pointed out in my earlier response the remedy which, in my judgment, can effectually be applied against monopolies, and the assurance was then given that if existing laws, including both statute and common law, proved inadequate, contrary to my expectations, I favor such further legislation, with constitutional limitations, as will best promote and safeguard the interests of all the people.' I emphasized the same thought on other occasions in public speeches."

Judge Parker says that not until after his utterance on the subject in a speech on Jefferson day, 1905, had any visible action been taken by an administration that had been in power about four years to check corporate and trust abuses by an appeal to the criminal courts. He continues:

"After that such steps were taken, and I submit that the result proves the truthfulness of the assertion often made by me, that we have an abundance of law to put an end to all offenses against the public by the officers of the trusts and great corporations of the country.

"The administration has now discovered, not only that there is enforceable law against the giving of rebates and law adequate to check illegal combinations, but that the persons engaged in its violation can be punished for it. The recent decision of the courts, the large fines imposed in case of conviction, the threatened proceedings in every section of the country, all demonstrate that the law is and long has been adequate to stop offenses against the public.

"The inference that Secretary Taft would have the public draw from his utterances is that these things are due to new statutes; that the vindication which the law is now receiving is due to congressional action since 1904. But that is not so. Not one of the successful prosecutions for which the existing administration is now entitled to credit is based on any new statute. Every single one of them down to this date rests solely upon the law as it stood in 1904; and it should not be lost sight of by a discriminating public that the law could have been enforced in 1904, and in 1903 and 1902, just as well as today. Had it been, the wrongs from which the people have suffered would not have been so multiplied.

"There was some excuse for the efforts made by the partisans of the administration in the year 1904 to create the impression that nothing could be done without new law, for an admission of the fact would have satisfied the public that the criticism levelled against it was justified. The political exigency might, therefore, have been pleaded at that time, as an excuse for the denial of the charge that all that was lacking to put an end to the abuses from which the public was suffering was an administration that should enforce the law. But there is no excuse at this time for the claim of Secretary Taft that my assertion in 1904, that existing law is adequate to put an end to all trust and corporate abuses, was inaccurate.

"The decisions of the United States courts, both civil and criminal, during the past year, are appealed to as decisive of the question as to whether Secretary Taft or myself is right."

Slump In Tinned Meat Trade

London, July 12.—In June last year there arrived at the Albert docks from Boston and New Orleans 27,000 cases of tinned meats; in June of this year the receipts were only 4000 cases. In July, 1905, 24,000 cases were received, but thus far this month no tinned meats have arrived from the United States.

COASTING BARROOM

Man and Shipload of Liquor Landed by a Maine Deputy

Ellsworth, Me., July 12.—High Sheriff Mayo is rejoicing because his deputy at Stonington has captured Captain Robert S. Hedtler, a Massachusetts man, who is the possessor of an able sloop with a gasolene engine. Almost since the ice left the little harbors along the Maine coast he has been sailing up and down the eastern shore, and, it is alleged, selling liquor freely to crews of coasters and fishermen.

At Southwest Harbor, Tremont and Quarryville, where many hands are employed, there have been numerous complaints that the men were in no condition to work and this always following the arrival of the little sloop in the harbor. Wives and mothers have become concerned that so much of the men folks' wages went for rum, and the approach of the sloop has been generally dreaded by the women.

Captain Hedtler is a man between 50 and 60, and that he is shrewd is apparent from the fact that he has eluded the officers so long. But he grew careless, and at Stonington the deputy caught him red-handed.

Seventy-two quarts of whisky were found in the sloop, which was fitted up like a floating barroom. Boat and man are now held by the sheriff. The captain is in Hancock jail, with a fine of $100 and 60 days staring him in the face.

Missing Man Found Dead

Chelsea, Mass., July 12.—The body of William Marsh was found in the basement of 427 Broadway. Marsh had been missing from his home since June 25, and no trace of him was discovered until the finding of his body yesterday. The body was found by R. S. Wentworth, who has charge of the property where Marsh was found. Marsh was employed by Wentworth as a general man, and it is supposed he went to the cellar on the evening of June 25 and fell in such a way as to fracture his skull. The body was badly decomposed. Marsh was 54 years old and leaves a widow and children.

Poverty Aids White Plague

Burlington, Vt., July 12.—"The principal enemies to be fought in the suppression of tuberculosis are poverty, ignorance and carelessness. Alcoholism plays a prominent part in the spread of the disease, statistics showing that out of 100 patients 98 percent are addicted to the drink habit." So stated Dr. Bryant, member of the state tuberculosis commission, before the convention of Vermont health officers. Bryant said there are about 2000 consumptives in Vermont, and last year 500 died from the disease.

Shipwrecked Men Reach Home

Boston, July 12.—Eight members of the crew of the Boston fishing schooner Mary G. Powers, which sank off the Grand Banks a week ago, arrived here last night from Halifax. They told tales of hardship and privations. During a gale their vessel foundered and the men took to the dories. For 36 hours they were tossed in a rough sea before sighting land. They finally beached their dories on Great Island and thence reached Halifax.

River Blocked by Logs

Greenfield, Mass., July 12.—Among the indictments returned by the grand jury of Franklin county was one against the Connecticut River Lumber company, alleging the maintenance of a nuisance at Turner's Falls. The indictment alleges that the company has floated so many logs down the Connecticut river that the ferry could not be operated at Turner's Falls and the river has been closed to all pleasure craft.

Woman Justified In Killing

Richford, Vt., July 12.—After telling her story before Judge Mulvina at Sherbrooke, P. Q., Eva B. Tracey, accused of the murder of Forest Howard, whom she shot and killed, was acquitted, it having been shown that she was compelled to shoot Howard in self-defense. Howard had entered her house and made an attack upon her during her husband's absence.

Baby's Life Saved by Mother

Woonsocket, R. I., July 12.—Mrs. J. B. Trudel climbed down a 10-foot wall bordering a mill trench and saved her 3-year-old child, who had fallen into the water. If the mother had not come to the rescue the fast current would have soon swept the child into the deep waters of the Blackstone river, but 50 feet away.

Suicide In Shallow Water

North Grafton, Mass., July 12.—Mrs. Etta G. Briggs, 28, recently an inmate of the Westboro insane asylum, committed suicide by drowning in Hopkins pond. She was found with hands and knees on the bottom and her back out of the shallow water.

Cabinet Crisis on Naval Question

London, July 12.—The Express says the cabinet is in the throes of a serious crisis, "split in twain on the vital question whether the navy shall be maintained in a condition of invulnerable efficiency or shall be weakened considerably and rival nations permitted to out-distance us in the race for naval supremacy."

Central Americans at War

Washington, July 12.—Hostilities between Salvador and Guatemala have broken out anew on the border between these countries, where peace was supposed to have been established pending a settlement of the trouble between the two countries.

Colon Has Smallpox Outbreak

Colon, July 12.—Several cases of smallpox have developed at Colon. The medical staff of the canal zone is isolating and quarantining the infected district.

BAY STATE MEATS

Result of Wide Investigation by Board of Health

ACID IN CANNED STUFF

Very Little Meat In Highly Advertised Brand of "Boned Chicken"--Slaughter Houses Generally Conducted In an Admirable Manner

Boston, July 12.—In order that the general public of Massachusetts may know the truth with regard to the nature of the canned meat prdoucts which are sold in this state the state board of health has made public the result of an investigation which it has been conducting into this matter.

The board caused to be collected and examined nearly 150 different kinds of canned meat, from every possible source. The examination included tests not only as to the presence of chemical preservatives, but also as to the actual materials used in "potted" and "devilled" meats and meat "loaf." In a general way, the results of the investigation are favorable to the manufacturers, but it was found that many of the preparations contained a large amount of foreign matter. Of one brand of potted ham, prepared by a western firm, the report states:

"This was found to consist of a small amount of normal muscle, considerable epidermis in large pieces, numerous blood vessels and nerves and salivary gland, ground to a paste. Quality poor, the material being largely scrap."

Of another western potted ham the report says: "Abundant muscle fibre, considerable epidermis, much granular debris, some fat and corn meal. Quality fair, but inasmuch as there appears to be no excuse for the presence of corn meal, it must be regarded as adulterated."

An eastern potted ham is described as follows: "Appearance good; muscular fibre abundant; contains neither epidermis nor salivary gland. Quality excellent." A number of the other products, the board of health states, contain corn meal. The board says:

"Devilled ham is or should be ham to which seasoning has been added. The majority of devilled hams in the market, however, contain added material which in no way can contribute to a sharp taste, or indeed to any taste. Corn meal, for example, adds nothing to the flavor, but it is cheap and enables a meat product to carry considerable additional water."

Several brands of prepared meat were found to contain either boric acid or borax as a preservative. One western "chicken loaf" is thus described:

"Very little muscular fibre; much connective tissue and corn. It is preserved with either boric acid or borax. The label states that the material is of superior quality, 'having been carefully selected and inspected according to the law enacted by congress March 3, 1891, relating to the inspection of meats.'"

The board says: "Most of the specimens of boned chicken examined proved to be of excellent quality; some were fair and some were distinctly inferior, both in appearance and color." Of the brand of boned chicken which has been widely advertised as of the highest quality, the report says:

"Two specimens examined bad in color and appearance; they contained small fragments of meat and large pieces of skin which contained pinfeathers, fragments of legbones and an occasional black feather."

The investigation was conducted under the direction of the secretary of the board, Dr. Harrington, who also directed an examination of "all the large, and a considerable number of the small establishments" for meat packing in the state. Regarding these, the report says:

"The large establishments were found to be conducted in all particulars in a scrupulously neat and clean manner. At one establishment, for example, there is a force of 60 to 70 men who begin cleaning the establishm at from top to bottom as soon as the day's work is done. Of 25 smaller establishments, only five were found to be entitled to grade 'excellent.'

"Judging from the returns submitted, the great majority of slaughter houses in the small towns would be found to be conduceted without decent regard to ordinary cleanliness. In a majority of cases (of the small establishments) the offal and blood are thrown below to the swine. When one considers the susceptibility of swine to infection through tubercular matter, one may easily question the advisability of feeding swine on whatever entrails, whether from healthy or diseased animals, happened to be at hand, and then killing them later for human food and selling without proper inspection.

"In most of the smaller establishments in the country the chief business is the slaughtering of calves, many of which are immature, and make 'bob veal.'

"The investigation went far enough to show that local authorities may well give careful attention to the slaughter houses within their several jurisdictions.

"A number of sausage factories and canning establishments in Boston and vicinity were examined and with few exceptions were found to be conducted in a proper and thoroughly sanitary manner, careful attention being paid to cleanliness of floors, benches and machinery."

Chouknin Receives a Wound Which May End His Career

Sebastopol, July 12.—An attempt was made yesterday afternoon to assassinate Vice Admiral Chouknin, commander of the Black sea fleet. The admiral was wounded and taken to a hospital. The wound-be assassin is a sailor, who hid in the bushes and shot at the admiral as he was walking in the garden of his villa. The culprit has not been apprehended. Doctors hold out no hope of Chouknin's recovery.

The act of the admiral's assailant is supposed to be in revenge for the execution of Lieutenant Schmidt, the revolutionary leader. Chouknin was universally hated by his sailors and at the time of the execution of Schmidt the revolutionists condemned him to death.

This is the second attempt since Schmidt"s execution March 19 of this year. The first attempt was made by a woman, and after her effort had failed Chouknin ordered her to be killed on the spot and his orderlies brutally carried out the sentence in the courtyard. For this the admiral was again condemned to death by the revolutionists. His name was never mentioned among his sailors unless it was accompanied by curses on account of his overbearing and severe manner.

Railroad Must Pay $40,000 In Fines

Chicago, July 12.—Judge Landis, in the United States district court, sentenced the Chicago and Alton road, which was recently convicted of granting illegal rebates at Kansas City, to pay a fine of $20,000 on each of two counts, or a total of $40,000. John Faithorn and F. A. Wann, former officials of the road, who were also convicted, were sentenced to pay a fine of $5000 each on two counts, or a total of $10,000.

Legislative Document Held Up

San Juan, P. R., July 12.—The lower house of the insular legislature adopted a resolution asking Secretary Root to use his offices on behalf of Porto Rican citizenship and an elective insular senate. The document was not presented before the sailing of Root, the authorities not desiring to interfere with his enjoyment of his visit, but the legislature has been assured that the document will reach Root.

Machinists Legally Imported

Washington, July 12.—Secretary Metcalf has rendered a decision in favor of three alien machinists who were imported from St. John by a horse nail company, holding that they come under the exception where labor of any kind unemployed cannot be found in the United States. It was held that mechanics with requisite knowledge of the machines could not be found in this country.

To Add Six Steamers to Fleet

New York, July 12.—The International Mercantile Marine company is preparing to build six trans-Atlantic liners to add to its present fleet, according to an announcement made by President Ismay of the company, who has just arrived here from England. The new vessels will be completed in three years. The steamers probably will be constructed at Belfast, Ire.

London Comes to Its Own

Bristol, July 12.—At the sanitary inspectors' conference here a delegate named Bottomley said if the British public only knew a quarter of what was going on in the slaughter houses of this country the Chicago scare would become insignificant by comparison. He knew, he said, of a cow suffering from pulmonary consumption that was sold for $15, killed and eaten.

Uprising of Blacks Imminent

Johannesburg, July 12.—The disquieting rumors that the blacks of the Rand contemplated an uprising July 17 are borne out by the fact that native servants have warned their mistresses to retire to places of safety. A paper read at a conference of the Ethiopian church, embodying reports from the various districts, says an uprising has been openly advised.

Miners Get an Increase

Mahanoy City, Pa., July 12.—Commissioner of Labor Neill, acting as commissioner to compute the wages of the anthracite miners under the scale, has found that the average price per ton of coal at tidewater for June was $4.57, entitling the workers in the anthracite mines to an increase of 1 percent on their wages for July.

Roosevelt Asked to Visit Hawaii

Honolulu, July 12.—Governor Carter has written to President Roosevelt, inviting him to visit the Hawaiian islands in connection with the expressed intention of the president to go to Panama. Carter suggests that the president return by means of a triangular trip from the isthmus to Honolulu and thence to San Francisco.

Crude Petroleum as Disinfectant

Bombay, July 12.—Dr. Turner, health officer of Bombay, has successfully demonstrated the extraordinary efficiency of crude petroleum as a plague disinfectant. It is believed that his experiments have materially advanced the prospects of the extirpation of the plague.

No Chance For Harvesting

Lodz, July 12.—The factory strike in this city is extending, and in the surrounding districts harvesting has become impossible owing to the agrarian strike. The situation is critical.

BOSTON LETTER.

Several Congressional Contests Are Likely This Fall.

BOSTON AND THE SHIPPING BILL

The Pony Express Bill and Its Probable Effects.

Now that the summer solstice and the Fourth of July are passed, the heated term is upon us. It might be expected that politics would be for a few weeks, at least, decidedly quiet. There are indications, however, that is is not to be the case.

There are several things which are likely to conspire to make this a remarkably active summer in a political way, for already there are abundant signs of activity in several directions. One of these directions is the office of the district attorney of Suffolk county, John B. Moran, who is already the nominee for governor of the cold-water people, although it has startled his friends to hear that he is a total abstainer, and he is vigorously pushing a campaign for the Democratic nomination for the head of the ticket.

Of course the Republican nominees for governor and lieutenant governor will be the same as they were last year. Governor Guild has done such splendid work as chief executive that the nomination will be given him with the most unbounded enthusiasm. Lieutenant Governor Draper has occupied his post with singular fidelity and acute business ability. There is no question about his renomination, although it has been hinted as a possibility that Eugene N. Foss of Roxbury might be in the field as his opponent for the nomination. There is, however, not the slightest grounds for making a change in the second place, and if Mr. Foss should run he can hardly hope to make very much of an impression in the caucuses or the convention. All other state officers below the first two places will unquestionably be renominated. There is not a whisper of any disposition to displace any of these men. They have generally filled their positions with careful attention to the interests of the commonwealth, and no names have been suggested in opposition to them.

Congressional Contests Likely.

There are several Republican congressmen who may be obliged to fight for a renomination. In the Fifth district, Congressman Ames is to be opposed by a prominent Republican of Lowell, Lawyer Dunbar, and a sharp contest is likely. The district is ordinarily Republican, and with good work will undoubtedly remain so in this election. Congressman Roberts of the Seventh district will be opposed by two candidates in Lynn, Lawyers Johnson and Allen. In the Thirteenth district there is a disposition to oppose a renomination for Congressman Lovering and it will require a considerable campaign to decide the nomination.

It is agreed on all sides that President Roosevelt has done a tremendous work in securing the enactment of legislation regulating rates on the railroads, requiring cleanliness and healthful conditions in the meat-packing industry, and official inspection, forcing through the denatured alcohol bill, and putting the consular service on a merit basis.

There are many other reforms which he hopes to be able to accomplish during the remaining two years of his term of office. He will be able to succeed in this if he has the assistance of a Republican congress. If the people do not see fit to return a Republican congress, his efforts in behalf of these reforms may be futile and his work in this direction count for nothing. The whole matter rests with the people of the United States. The voters of Massachusetts have a great responsibility in so far as the election of members of congress is concerned. It rests with them to say whether they will send Roosevelt Republicans to congress or whether they will return opposing Democrats.

The Shipping Measure.

One of the very important measures which he advocated was defeated owing to tremendous Democratic opposition. This was the merchant marine bill, by which it was expected that New England would be enabled once more to regain her supremacy as a shipping section. This measure was earnestly supported by every Republican representative and all the senators from the New England states. It was strenuously opposed by Democratic members from the south and from other sections of the country as being a measure in the interests of New England. Those members of congress far from the seaboard were unwilling to do anything that should aid in the upbuilding of New England, even though indirectly and strongly it might redound to the benefit of the entire country. That is one of the measures which the next congress may take up and push to enactment. If that congress is Republican the measure will undoubtedly be passed. In that event, Boston, and for that matter the entire New England coast, will be enormously benefited. Shipbuilding will receive an impetus which will give employment to many thousand skilled workmen permanently, and many other thousands will be kept busy on the new ships which this legislation will bring into existence.

Our commerce imperatively needs a large number of new American ocean lines between our principal ports and various important foreign ports. Today a great deal of our merchandise is of necessity shipped on foreign vessels by circuitous and indirect routes, taking a long time in transportation and costing heavily in freight charges. England and Germany both have their own direct lines of steamships to practically all the important foreign ports of the world. This gives their merchandise a great advantage over American goods, in that it insures the quick delivery of such goods, and that fact many times decides where the order shall be placed.

Lawyer Johnson and Moran.

Lawyer Melvin M. Johnson of Waltham, legislative counsel for the Massachusetts Total Abstinence society, of which ex-Governor John D. Long is president, and legislative counsel also for various other temperance organizations in the state, is not much struck with the public career of John B. Moran up to the present time.

Mr. Johnson has this to say about the district attorney: "Mr. Moran has made a big furor about enforcing the screen law in five of our best hotels. That same law has been violated by hundreds of saloons and other hotels, holding liquor licenses, which he has not prosecuted. Mr. Moran may say he stands for impartial enforcement of the law, but impartial enforcement should hit the high and low, the rich and poor, alike. I do not believe in enforcement against the poor and lowly and not against the rich and mighty. On the other haud, I don't believe Mr. Moran's enforcement is impartial when he proceeds only against such places as are well known, and not against those places where enforcement will fail to get him advertised in the newspapers.

"I must confess I was a little amused to see the chairman of the Prohibition state convention, who for years refused to buy his groceries at a Boston grocery store where liquors were sold, standing for the nomination for governor of an attorney who made a considerable income before his election as district attorney, from the defense in the courts of men charged with violation of the liquor laws. In the old days Mr. Moran was well known as a rumsellers' counsel."

When Mr. Johnson was asked about the pony express bill, so-called, enacted during the present session of the legislature for the purpose of wiping out saloons on wheels, he said: "For many years in no-license places anybody could conduct such a business. It was the custom of those who did it to drive into Boston, load up with packages of liquor, beer and ale, and transport them back to the town where they disposed of the stuff. These packages were labelled, and these expressmen would drive around through the city, and when they found someone who wanted beer or other liquors, they took off the label and address and sold them whatever amount they desired."

TOUGH PAPER.

Not an Easy Feat to Twist a Bank Bill In Two.

"The paper that is used by the government in its currency is manufactured by a secret process and has characteristics with which the average man is not familiar," said a Minneapolis man.

"Recently I was in a small Minnesota town and witnessed an incident that demonstrates this. A well to do farmer living in the vicinity came into the bank to transact some business. In the course of the conversation the cashier began twisting a five dollar bill. The farmer watched him with interest and finally asked the man back of the counter if he wasn't afraid of tearing the bill.

"'Here is an easy way for you to earn money,' said the cashier. 'Here is a thousand dollar bill and I will give it to you if you will twist the bill in two. You are simply to twist it and not tear it.'

"The farmer seemed dumfounded at first. He seemed awed at the thought of mutilating a thousand dollar bill. Upon further assurance by the officer of the bank, he timidly took the money and started twisting it in the middle. He tugged away for some time without being able to twist the bill in two. Finally he gave up, and he was certainly a surprised farmer. It is impossible to twist a bill in two, so firm and elastic is the paper used."—Exchange.

IMMUNE TO POISON.

Practical Methods of the Snake Charmers of the Orient.

For many years it was regarded as one of the East Indian miracles that the snake charmers of the orient could encounter the cobra in an arena, allow the serpent to bite them time and again and survive the deadly poison. This dangerous feat puzzled the doctors of the British army and was never quite understood by scientists generally until within recent years, when the secret of these jugglers with fate leaked out. The East Indian snake charmer begins at an early age to make himself immune from the venom of the cobra. He takes the infant serpent and allows it to bite him. This injects into his system a very mild dose of the poison. He repeats the operation many times, and then ventures to allow a cobra somewhat older to bite him. Gradually he permits himself to become inoculated with the venom of younger serpents until he has become so accustomed to the poison that his system is immune. By the time he grows up he has become so thoroughly accustomed to the spell that it has practically no effect upon him. It is like the drug habit—one can work oneself to a pitch of enduring a dose that would be sufficient to kill several persons unaccustomed to the influence of the drug. Thus the seemingly audacious trick was exposed as a very practical thing, after all.

The Quincy Yacht club is growing very rapidly in membership, fifty new members having been admitted the present season.

Mrs. George J. Edwards of Old Colony street, Atlantic, sailed from Boston Tuesday noon on S. S. Halifax, on a visit to her parents in Asichat, Cape Breton, to be gone until September.

Wm. Robbie of 82 Goddard street, has gone for a three weeks' vacation through New Hampshire and Vermont, passing a part of his time at the Y. M. C. A. camp at Sandy Island, Lake Winnepsaukee, N. H.

Charles Hogan, graduate of the Quincy High, Class of 1906, has accepted a position with the Beacon Trust Co., Boston. Ernest McConnell, graduate of the same class, is also waiting developments in the field of finance.

Court Changes.

Some attractions are to be made in the arrangement of the ante-rooms at the District court. The present Probation officers and consultation rooms are to be made into one large room which will be used by the clerk as his office, and the office of the Probation officer will be moved to the room now occupied by the clerk.

—If you wish to have the clothes look more glossy, use soapy water in making starch. This also renders the iron less likely to stick.

—India has 1,064 widows under one year of age, and 15,000 under five years. In the country there are over 25 million widows.

—A portrait of the late Thomas B. Reed was hung on the rotunda of the State House, at Augusta, Me., this week. This portrait, by Frederick Vinton, of Boston, was presented to the state by Mrs. Reed. It is considered an excellent likeness of the late statesman.

—Bids for armor plate for the battleships Michigan and South Carolina were opened this week at the Navy Department. All show a remarkable decrease in the price asked, and this decrease is attributed to the resolution passed in Congress, last year, calling for an investigation of the cost of armor for warships.

—There was no opposition before the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners, Tuesday, to the petition of the Beverly Gas and Electric Company to increase its capital stock $200,000. Treasurer Andrew [illegible] Rogers, of the concern, appeared in behalf and declared that the additional capital stock is required because of the rapid increase of business.

Death of County Commissioner

Hon. James Hewins of Medfield, who was serving his tenth year as a member of the board of Norfolk County Commissioners, died suddenly at his summer home at Nantucket on Tuesday.

Mr. Hewins was elected in the fall of 1897 to succeed Melville P. Morrell of Hyde Park and was longest in service on the board, being chairman at the time of his death. His associates have been Edwin D. Wadsworth of Milton, Thomas Blanchard of Stoughton, Marshall P. Wright of Quincy, Sumner H. Foster of Brookline and John F. Merrill of Quincy.

The term of chairman Hewins would have expired next January, and he would probably have been reelected, being a very valuable man on the board. The remaining members of the board are Messrs. Foster and Merrill.

Mr. Hewins was one of the leading lawyers of the country and was born in Medfield April 27, 1845. He was educated at Amherst college and the Harvard law school. For a number of years he was one of the county's trial justices, and in 1884 represented his district in the general court.

Mystery Over A Robbery

The Daily Ledger received a dispatch this morning stating that Mr. Perkins, a Quincy cobbler, had been relieved of $175 on an electric car while en route to Boston this morning. The dispatch says that Mr. Perkins made an early trip, and he reported that a crowd of toughs jostled him.

When interviewed by the Ledger at noon, Mr. P. Perkins of Granite street denied that he had been robbed. He admitted taking the trip to Boston, however.

Out for Congress.

Friends of James P. Magenis of Dorchester have secured his consent to enter the field for the Republican nomination in this Congressional district. He was born in North Adams May 23, 1868. He entered a newspaper office there and advanced from printers devil to compositor, reporter, and editor. Later he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1899.

Mrs. Minnie Neidhart.

Mrs. F. P. Loud, of Washington street, has the sympathy of her many friends and acquaintances in the loss of her sister, Mrs. Minnie Neidhart whose death occurred at the home of her sister, Mrs. George A. Bailey at Weymouth this morning, while there on a visit from New York. Besides two sisters, she is survived by three daughters, who were with her at her bedside.

New Charter.

The Quincy Quarries Company has been chartered at Portland under the laws of Maine. Capital stock $250,000; nothing paid in. The officers are: President, William M. Payson of Boston; treasurer, C. O. Barrows of Portland, Me.

—In order to test a chinese witness' qualification for taking the oath an English Magistrate asked him the other day where he expected to go when he died. He replied, "Pekin," and was disqualified. Once in another English court a little girl in answer to that question said, "I don't know." The horrified counsel called the Judge's attention to the answer. "Oh, I don't know, either," said the Judge; "swear the witness."

—The Chicago Board of Review, made a formal demand Tuesday upon the attorneys for the Marshall Field estate to show cause why back taxes should not be paid on the $17,500,000 of the Field personal property scheduled in the Probate Court, amounting to $1,678,000 in eight years. Attorney William G. Beals, representing the Trustees, asked for a continuance and it was granted.

—Oregon's new senator, Jonathan Bourne, of Portland, represents a new order of things both in his State and in the nation. He is the first senator ever elected by a popular vote. Senator Bourne will be a business Senator. He is a millionaire. He will be one more Harvard Senator and one more Bay Stater, for he was born in Boston a little more than 50 years ago. Thirty years ago he went to Oregon and has lived there ever since.

THE ISLAMIC WORLD.

Its Two Divisions and Its Attitude Toward the Sultan.

The Islamic world is divided into two great divisions—the Sunni Mohammedans, who occupy the Turkish empire, Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Tripoli, Afghanistan, Egypt and the Sudan, and the Khanates of central Asia, and the Shiah Mohammedans, who occupy Persia and are scattered all over the Mohammedan world, some 5,000,000 of them being in India. By the doctrine of the latter the caliph must be a lineal descendant of the prophet. The Sunnis, on the other hand, do not insist on this, but it is an article of necessary faith in Sunni theology and law that the caliph must be an Arab of pure blood belonging to Mohammed's tribe. On this point there is absolutely no difference in the Mohammedan world, barring one or two insignificant sects out of the hundreds of sects into which Mohammedanism is divided.

One proof test is the Friday prayer. In no country out of Turkey is prayer offered up for the sultan of Turkey. To do so would be an act of sedition and treated as such. I would not give much for the life of the mollah who dared to offer up prayers for the sultan in any mosque in Afghanistan or Persia. The Arabs repudiate with scorn the idea of the sultan being caliph; nor, indeed, has he ever dared formally to appeal to the Mohammedan world in that character. He was never acknowledged as caliph in India, and if he publicly claimed the title formally even in Constantinople it is probable that he would find himself deposed by a fetva of the Sheikh ul Islam.—London Times.

ANCIENT ARTISTS.

Wonderful and Lasting Work of the Greco-Egyptian Painters.

The methods of the artists of ancient Greece and Egypt were totally different from those of the present day and were evidently vastly more durable. Panels of wood were used to paint on—sycamore and cypress—also panels or papier mache, and occasionally they were formed by gluing three thicknesses of canvas together. These panels were usually about fourteen inches long by seven inches wide. The artist used liquid wax instead of oil to mix the colors, which were made, not from vegetable, but from mineral substances, and were of marvelous brilliancy and permanence—blue powdered lapis lazuli, green malachite, red oxide of iron, etc. The colors were laid on in patches, somewhat after the fashion of a mosaic, and afterward blended with an instrument called the cestrum, which appears to have been a lancet shaped spatula, long handled, with at one end a curved point, at the other a finely dentated edge. With the toothed edge the wax could be equalized and smoothed, while the point was used for placing high lights, marking lips, eyebrows, etc.

The final process, which gives the name encaustic to this kind of painting, was the burning in of the colors. This was done by the application of a heated surface to the panel, though in Egypt the heat of the sun was probably all that was needed to complete the artist's work.

Each Man's Share of the Globe.

There is no immediate prospect that the landed surface of the globe will be divided up and allotted in equal shares to each of its human inhabitants, but if such a time ever does come it will be found that each will get a little truck farm of 23½ acres. The landed surface of the globe contains, as near as it is possible for the geographers to ascertain, 33,600,000,000 acres, which, divided among the 1,500,000,000 inhabitants which the world contains, roughly speaking, would give each of them a tract of land of the area mentioned above. Taking the entire population of the world into consideration, there are almost exactly twenty-eight inhabitants to each square mile.

A Startling Motto.

A traveling salesman died very suddenly in Pittsburg. His relatives telegraphed the undertaker to make a wreath; the ribbon should be extra wide, with the inscription, "Rest in peace," on both sides, and if there is room, "We shall meet in heaven." The undertaker was out of town and his new assistant handled the job. It was a startling floral piece which turned up at the funeral. The ribbon was extra wide and bore the inscription, "Rest in peace on both sides, and if there is room we shall meet in heaven."

Ten Good Things.

There are ten things for which no one has ever yet been sorry. These are: For doing good to all; for speaking evil to none; for hearing before judging; for thinking before speaking; for holding an angry tongue; for being kind to the distressed; for asking pardons for all wrongs; for being patient toward everybody; for stopping the ears to a talebearer; for disbelieving most of the ill reports.

Too Valuable to Lose.

Mrs. Clinton Streeter—John, wake up! The cook is screaming "Burglars!" Mr. Clinton Streeter—Great Scott! I'll go right down. Mrs. C. S.—No, don't; they might shoot you. Mr. C. S.—That's a small risk to take. My goodness, woman, suppose they should steal the cook!—Kansas City Independent.

Paradoxical.

Suburban Patient—Doctor, I am sorry you have had to come so far from your regular practice. Doctor—Oh, it's all right. I have another patient in the neighborhood, so I can kill two birds with one stone.—Judge.

Action from youth, advice from middle age, prayers from the aged.—Hesiod.

Your Sick Child

can't tell you what it has or how it feels—it only shows it is sick and miserable. If it is restless and peevish, doesn't sleep well, has pains in the stomach and bowels or has an erratic appetite the trouble undoubtedly is stomach or pin worms. Give the little one a few doses of that famous old life saver

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

IN USE 54 YEARS.

If worms are present they will be expelled. If no worms exist this wonderful medicine acts gently, yet positively, in toning up the whole system to rugged health.

CENTRE ABINGTON, MASS.

DR. TRUE.

DEAR SIR:—I wish to inform you of the success I have had in using your Elixir. I gave it to my children and after the third dose, one of them, a boy six years old, passed a long round worm which I believe is more than six inches long, what you call a stomach worm. I also wish to say it is one of the safest and best medicines to have in the house for children. I would not be without it now. Sincerely yours, Mrs. Henry C. Joy.

The Huscarls In Military Camp

Our boys' club, the Huscarls of the King, are in camp this week, at Great Hill park, North Weymouth, under the discipline of a military company, with the following officers and soldiers:

Major,—Mr. Edwin Lee.
Captain,—Rev. A. R. Atwood.
1st Lieutenant,—Charles French.
2d Lieutenant,—Clarence Metcalf.
1st Sergeant,—William French.
2d Sergeant,—Edward Lee, 2d.
3d Sergeant,—Tom Skinner.
1st Corporal,—William Artis.
2d Corporal,—Daniel McQueen.
3d Corporal,—William Staples.
4th Corporal,—Carlton McNeil.
5th Corporal,—David Newcomb.

Privates,—Albion Bonney, David Melville, Roy Wales, Myron W. Cummings, Bertrum Pierce, A. Monroe, G. Monroe, Warren Liley, Harold Proctor, Joseph Bennett, Samuel Marsh, Robert Alvard, Jack Knight, Joseph Lincoln, Louis French, Herbert Harting, Russell Oliver, Isaac Abraham and William Thayer.

Wednesday and Friday were visiting days and about 150 parents and friends climbed the Park Hill to the barrack to visit the Huscarls of the King and inspect their seven tents. The week was an enjoyable one; each person cooking his own rations, army fashion, using the rest of his time in games, contests and athletic sports. The success of the enterprize was due largely to Major E. D. Lee, the pastor and Mrs. Harry L. Alvord.

College Colony.

The Y. M. C. A. dormitory has become a veritable College colony. Several of the winter occupants left in June, leaving room for the influx of college students employed for the summer at the shipyard. There are two Cornell men, two from Brown, two from Harvard, one from University of Maine, and two men who expect to enter technical schools in the fall. They all express themselves delighted with their summer home and are having a good time together. Every room in the building is occupied, including one which was used for a class room during the winter. The total number living in the building now is twenty-two.

Arrested for Assault.

There was a lively row early Thursday evening in the Syrian and Armenian colony on South street. There was a large number of both these nationalities quartered in a large boarding house. An argument started and as it grew to fever heat it is alleged that Hamid Hassid struck Moses Hassid on the back of the head with a club. The blow was given with force enough to cut his head open, the cut requiring several stitches which were put in by Dr. Hallowell. A warrant was sworn out against Hamid and he was placed under arrest.

Boys in Camp.

Seven Y. M. C. A. boys are having the time of their lives in Camp Becket, the inland camp conducted by the State committee under the direct guidance of Mr. H. W. Gilson, the State boys' secretary. They went before the Fourth, and some of them will stay through the entire summer, to September. They are: Aaron H. Gould, Jr., Fred L. Gross, J. Carlton Lewis, W. C. McConnell, Ernest V. Pletch, Harrold S. Tuck and Herbert S. Barker, Jr. Camp Becket is within a short distance of Dalton, is superior to any and at a moderate cost. Other boys may go by applying at the local association.

Ex-Selectman of Braintree.

J. Franklin Bates of Washington street, Braintree, died suddenly Thursday evening in his 74th year. He had served the town several years as selectman, overseer of the poor, highway surveyor, and assessor, and was a member of Puritan lodge No. 179. I. O. O. F. For the past ten years he has conducted a hardware store on Railroad street. Mr. Bates leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters.

Contracts Awarded For Battleships

The Fore River Ship Building Company and Francis T. Bowles were turned down by the navy department today, says a Thursday dispatch from Washington to the Boston Herald, when that concern was ignored in the award of contracts to build the two battleships South Carolina and Michigan. One was given to the Cramps of Philadelphia and the other to the New York Ship Building Company of Camden, N. J.

Secretary Bonaparte made these awards in accordance with the recommendations of the navy board on construction, which advised against the turbine system. The Fore River Company offered the lowest bid for a vessel equipped with turbines, and did not bid on any other type. In certain circles the ignoring of turbines, which have been adopted by Great Britain and other powers, on the part of the United States is regarded as a failure on the part of this government to keep abreast in naval construction.

Admiral Bowles is disappointed at the failure of his company to obtain contract for one warship, which, he says, will effect the entire shipbuilding industry of New England. It would have given employment for three years to about 700 mechanics of Boston and Quincy. The award ends a long fight to have one of these vessels, at least, built at a government yard.

Work is so scarce among the big contractors that they will not consent to a navy yard getting the next warship without a tremendous struggle. As a matter of fact, the private builders have had a very fierce fight for the contracts of the South Carolina and Michigan, and much bitterness has been aroused over the contest.

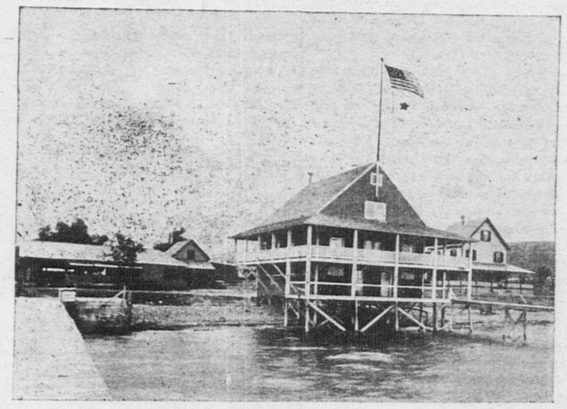
Ladies' Day Quincy Yacht Club

Thirty-Three Yachts Take Out Hundreds Of Guests for Sail Dance in Evening



Never in the history of the Quincy Yacht club was there a more largely attended, more enjoyable or more successful in every way "Ladies' day" than on Thursday. The weather was ideal; bright skies and a good easterly sailing breeze. Just enough to make the yachts skim along under whole sail and not take aboard any wash.

There was a large fleet of boats out, the sail and power craft numbering thirty-three. All had their full complement of guests, although the committee could have cared for more if there were any who desired to sail.

The guests of the day began to arrive shortly after 2 o'clock, the ladies for the most part gowned in white which formed a pretty contrast to the blue worn by most of the yachtsmen.

Several large launches had been secured by the club for the use of its guests. Each of these was in charge of some member of the committee who saw to it that the comforts of his particular party were looked after.

By 2.45 the club house piazzas and floats were alive with guests, but they were quickly transferred to the yachts and at 3 o'clock the boom of a gun from the deck of the Iris, Commodore Crane's flagship, gave warning for the yachts to get ready to pass in review.

The flagship was gaily bedecked with the international code flags and looked very pretty. At 3.15 there was another gun and the fleet began to pass in review, the power craft bringing up in the rear. As each yacht passed it dipped its colors and the Commodore replied with a salute.

As the yachts and power crafts sailed away toward the Weymouth shore it made a very pretty sight. There was scarcely a ripple on the water, yet just enough wind to fill the sails. Course No. 1 was sailed and took the yachts nearly to Hull. The new steamer South Shore built at Quincy also passed in review.

The sail continued until 5 o'clock, and although the wind flattened a little at the last it held up sufficiently for the sailing craft to get in.

While the sail was in progress Handley's orchestra was giving a pleasing concert which was greatly enjoyed by those who from choice remained on shore.

At 5.30 or thereabouts, after all the craft had got in, a lunch was served, and for the first half hour the members of the committee inside the rope were kept busy passing out plates of sandwiches, cakes, ices, etc; to the guests whose appetites had been sharpened to a keen edge by the sail.

By 8 o'clock all traces of the lunch table had disappeared from the hall, and there was dancing until 10 o'clock At dusk Japanese lanterns were hung about the balconies, making the scene a very pretty one from the shore.

At the conclusion of the dancing, cars were in waiting to take the party to Quincy.

It had been an ideal day, the arrangements had gone on like clock work and not a thing had occurred to mar the pleasures of the Quincy Yacht club ladies' day of 1906.

The yachts to participate in the review and sail with their guests were as follows:

Flagship Iris,—Commodore F. F. Crane, Mrs. F. F. Crane, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Morton, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Saville, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Sheppard, Mrs. W. G. A. GOOD AFTERNOON.

A remarkable change has taken place in the board of Norfolk County Commissioners within nineteen months. These boards often continue for years without a change, the members being reelected for three years. With the death of Mr. Hewins this week, Sumner H. Foster of Brookline becomes the senior member, and he went upon the board in January of last year. On January of this year John F. Merrill of Quincy entered the board, and now it will be necessary for these two and the Clerk of Courts, Louis A. Cook, to elect a man to fill the vacancy. Why not Wilbur H. Powers of Hyde Park, a gentleman well acquainted with Norfolk county?

Every effort should be put forth by the Mayor, the Commissioner of Public Works and City Council, to have the enlarged High schoolhouse ready for occupancy on the opening of the fall term. The pupils at this institution for the past three years have been seriously handicapped in obtaining an education, and the School Committee and teachers have worked to great disadvantage. Not only must the building be completed, but an appropriation should be made for furnishings.

If the Metropolitan water district was enlarged the expense would not come so heavily upon the municipalities now included. Within thirty years Brookline, Cambridge, Dedham, Wellesley, Lynn and other cities will need a new source of water supply, and they should contribute to the cost of construction of the Metropolitan system if they are later to enjoy the benefit.

It develops now that "Farmer" Coburn, who refused the appointment as senator from Kansas, does not drink, smoke, chew nor swear. Now we know why he refused the appointment. A man like that would be worse than lonesome in the Senate.

One listens in vain for any pertinent comments from the corporation magnates, who were prophesying last December that a railway rate bill would never be permitted to become a law.

King Edward, Czar Nicholas, and Kaiser William all having agreed that President Roosevelt is a great man, Charlie Towne may as well forget his grouch, and help make it unanimous.

With labor entering politics, the future begins to look dark, indeed, for the man who took to politics to avoid labor.

Locals and City Brevities

The Rosebud club realized twenty-five dollars at the lawn party that was held in June. This sum they contributed to the Charitable Society connected with St. Mary's church.

St. Ambrose Ct. 172, M. C. O. F. held their annual outing at Nantasket Wednesday. Dinner was served at Wade's. The party visited Paragon park, staying until evening for the illumination.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wood of No. 8 Trafford street left on Tuesday on the Cunard steamship "Ivernia" for a two months' sojourn through England and Scotland. During their stay abroad they will visit their old home in Aberdeen, Scotland, and renew acquaintances of 24 years ago whom they have not seen since 1882. The balance of time will be spent in visiting friends and viewing points of interest in London, Liverpool, Inverness, Glasgow, Dunbarton, Dalbeatie, Dundee, Perth, Salisbury and elsewhere. A large number of their friends and relatives here called on them Monday evening last to bid them a pleasant journey and safe

JUSTICE AT LAST

Twofold Vindication of Captain Alfred Dreyfus

OLD VERDICT ANNULLED

Victim of Monstrous Conspiracy Is to Have Advanced Rank In French Army--The Fate of the Chief Conspirators

Paris, July 13.—Alfred Dreyfus was completely acquitted of the charges on which he was condemned as a traitor, dismissed from the army and imprisoned on Devil's island, and regarding which France has been torn for years by the most bitter political and racial agitation.

His vindication is twofold, the supreme court first announcing its decision establishing the entire innocence of the accused man, and the ministry later deciding to present an urgent bill in parliament restoring Dreyfus to the army with advanced rank and otherwise giving the government's most ample reparation.

The decision of the court was a foregone conclusion, as exhaustive inquiries had completely demolished the fabric of the accusation against Dreyfus, showing that the real culprit was Major Count Esterhazy. The decision, therefore, annulled the condemnation of the Rennes court martial and ordered that the acquittal be posted and published throughout France.

Last night the ministers held a protracted special session at the Elysee palace under President Fallieres and determined on the government's course in carrying out the decision. The text of two bills was formulated, which will be introduced in the chamber of deputies, concerning respectively Dreyfus and Colonel Picquart, with the object of restoring both to the ranks they would have held if they had continuously served in the army.

Dreyfus consequently will be nominated a major, with eventual early promotion to a lieutenant colonelship. Picquart will immediately become a brigadier general. Dreyfus' name will also be inscribed on the list for the Legion of Honor, but he will not be directly nominated to that distinction, though probably a decree placing him on the list will shortly appear.

Discussion of the bills will be taken up immediately and the ministers will endeavor to have them pass both houses today, the cabinet desiring to settle the matter before the parliamentary vacation in order to avoid a recurrence of the agitation of the country.

Deputy Pressense's interpellation relative to the government's intentions regarding the officers who were witnesses before the court martial will follow the passing of the above mentioned bills.

Alfred Dreyfus was born in Alsace in 1859. After the Franco-Prussian war he went to Paris to study. In 1880 he became a cadet sub-lieutenant of artillery. After graduation in 1882 he was transferred to the horse batteries of the First Independent cavalry division at Paris. On Oct. 12 he received first commission as captain in the Twenty-first regiment of artillery. He prepared for the school of staff officers and entered in 1890 and was married on April 21 to Lucie Hadamard. In 1893 he took service in the general staff of the army. In 1894 he was named for service in an infantry regiment stationed in Paris.

On Oct. 13, 1894, he was arrested on a charge of high treason, it being alleged that he had sold military secrets of France. The first court martial began on Dec. 19, 1894, and he was found guilty. He was degraded from all rank on Jan. 5 following and sentenced to death, a year later receiving a commutation to life imprisonment on Devil's island.

After being confined a number of years there he was granted a new trial by the court of cassation, which acquitted him.

If Dreyfus was the martyr of this famous case, Colonel Picquart was the hero. Although not friendly to Dreyfus, upon discovering the forgeries, he made them known. For this he was hounded by the conspirators for years and driven from the army, but he has prevailed.

This is what became of the chief perjurers and conspirators against Dreyfus:

Major Esterhazy, the real traitor and author of the bordereau, tool of the conspirators, died in exile and wretched poverty in London. Colonel Sandhern, chief of general staff, who first accused Dreyfus of writing the bordereau, was dismissed from the army in disgrace. Major Du Paty De Clam, who placed Dreyfus under arrest, was dismissed from the army. Colonel Henry, chief of general staff succeeding Picquart, confessed that he forged documents used as proof against Dreyfus and committed suicide in prison. General De Boisdeffre, chief of general staff, who had charge of the "dossier," was retired from the army in disgrace. General Mercier, minister of war, who blocked revision by telling parliament the publication of the "dossier" would plunge France into war with Germany, was retired from the army in disgrace.

Thaw Case In Jerome's Hands

New York, July 13.—District Attorney Jerome has returned to New York from his summer home and plunged into the Thaw murder case. It is rumored that important developments soon are expected.

Neglected Rheumatism Causes Paralysis

A Uric-O Treatment Will in All Cases Remove the Cause.

Paralysis is a disease whose cause is shrouded in mystery. If you were to investigate carefully all cases of Paralysis you would find that at some time previous to the attack, the patient suffered from some form of rheumatism. Possibly like so many others, he thought it was only a slight matter of temporary inconvenience and paid no further attention to it. Rheumatism is not to be neglected with impunity. The Uric and poisonous Rheumatic Acid must be neutralized and driven from the system as soon as they put in an appearance. Do this with Uric-O.

It is a harmless vegetable preparation and does not contain a single drop of alcohol. It operates by its action upon the blood, muscles and kidneys and cures Rheumatism to stay cured. We might give you testimonials from thousands of people in all parts of the country, but we would rather have you talk with some one whom you know and can believe. Next time you are down town, just drop into the store of E. J. Murphy, Quincy's popular druggist, and ask him about Uric-O. We won't predict what he will say, but we have confidence enough in the remedy to leave it to him.

Uric-O is not a cathartic, nor does it affect or distress the stomach in any way. Uric-O is a cure for Rheumatism and for Rheumatism only. That is why it is such a great success. It does one thing and does that one thing perfectly. Most druggists sell Uric-O at 75c and $1.00 the bottle, but you can have a sample bottle free if you cut out this advertisement and send it with your name and address to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y. Sometimes they send an order on your druggist for a 75c bottle free of charge in reply to those requests for a sample.

KILLED IN BATTLE

Fate of General Regalado, the Former President of Salvador

Washington, July 13.—Regalado, former president of Salvador and the leader of the Salvadorean troops in the present conflict with Guatemala, was killed in battle yesterday.

The announcement of his death reached the state department through a dispatch from United States Minister Merry at San Salvador. The dispatch did not indicate what the result of the battle was.

New Orleans, July 13.—An official cablegram to the Guatemalan consul here says the battle in which Regalado was killed was fought Wednesday afternoon at El Jicaro, about five miles from the frontier in Guatemala and 25 miles from the Pacific coast. The dispatch says that the Salvadoreans were defeated.

One Auto Less In the Race

Geneva, N. Y., July 13.—The steam car entered by Webb Jay of Buffalo, in the tour for the Glidden trophy, was completely wrecked near here. When the car pulled into one of the special supply stations Jay warned the supply man to take his time, but he forgot to turn off the burner in filling the tank and the gasolene caught fire, and an explosion followed. George Grant, the supply man, was badly burned. The Jays escaped injury, but lost all their baggage.

Medical Journal's Beef Criticism

London, July 13.—"Why should officials appear before the public as if they held a brief on behalf of the Chicago packers and seem desirous of defending the packers rather than the cause of hygiene, which it is their business as health officials to endeavor to promote? asks The Lancet's special sanitary commissioner, in answering the United States department of agriculture's report, in which the descriptions of the Chicago stockyards are criticised.

Fruitless Ballots For Bishop

Fredericton, N. B., July 13.—The Church of England synod ballotted eight times yesterday in an effort to choose a coadjutor bishop for the diocese of New Brunswick, but neither the supporters of Archdeacon Neales nor those who espoused the candidacy of Canon Richardson were able to elect their candidate. It was agreed to postpone further balloting until Oct. 10, to which date the synod adjourned.

Union Men Lose Their Jobs

Cleveland, July 13.—According to employes, the Cleveland Electric Railway company discharged about 100 of its 2500 motormen and conductors yesterday, following the organization here of a local of the Amalgamated Street Railway Employes of America. President Stanley of the street railway company said: "We do not propose to let labor organizers tell us how we shall run our business."

Bomb Hunting In Italy

Rome, July 13.—Three more bombs have been found at Ancona, where the police recently discovered in the house of a man named Gabbianelli a quantity of explosives in process of manufacture and three completed bombs. In consequence of the earlier discovery King Victor Emmanuel abandoned his intention to go to Ancona to lay the cornerstone of a new hospital.

Investigated Alleged Defects

Philadelphia, July 13.—An investigation by a board of inquiry appointed by the navy department into alleged defects in the coverings of the boilers in the cruisers Pennsylvania and Colorado has been concluded here. The inquiry may have an important bearing on future construction work. A report will be turned in to the navy department by tomorrow.

Up to the Sultan of Turkey

Washington, July 13.—Turkey must accept a United States ambassador or diplomatic relations will be broken off. This, in effect, is the unvoiced ultimatum that is offered the sultan, who has been procrastinating in characteristic fashion in acknowledging the new diplomatic position created by the session of congress just closed.

Died on Unmarked Grave

New York, July 13.—Kneeling on an unmarked grave in Evergreen cemetery, Brooklyn, in which was buried the body of a woman said to have committed suicide, a man, supposed from naturalization papers found in his pocket to be William Bird of Rockdale, Eng., aged about 40, strangled himself.

A Christian Science Denial

New York, July 13.—H. C. Wilson of the Christian Science publication committee declares to be incorrect the report from Middletown which stated that Mrs. Margaret King, who died at Montgomery of cancer, was a well known Christian Scientist and among the first to adopt the faith.

Strikers Hold Government Camp

Cody, Wyo., July 13.—One hundred strikers have taken possession of the government camp at Corbett tunnel, on the Shoshone reservation works, eight miles from Cody, and have created a reign of terror. They threaten the lives of 500 other men if they return to work.

Jews Returning to Warsaw

Warsaw, July 13.—Yesterday passed quietly here and, convinced that a massacre here is out of the question, the Jews are returning to their homes.

LOVE FOR SISTER

Caused George Mitchell to Kill "Holy Roller" Leader

SHE SOUGHT VENGEANCE

Took Life of Brother Who Had Been Charged With Murder of Man Who Was Alleged to Have Wronged Her

Seattle, July 13.—George Mitchell, a youth who recently shot and killed Franz E. Creffield, a "Holy Roller prophiet," and was acquitted a few days ago of the charge of murder on a plea of insanity, was shot and killed by his sister, Esther, in the Seattle Union station yesterday afternoon.

Esther Mitchell joined the "Holy Rollers" sect at Corvallis, Ore., and was one of the most ardent of Creffield's followers. When her brother pursued the leader of the "Holy Rollers" to Seattle and shot him in the street, he pleaded in justification that Creffield had deluded and wronged his sister. George Mitchell was acquitted of the charge of murder on Tuesday, and nearly all of the following day he spent in searching for Esther in Seattle lodging houses. She refused to be comforted after the death of Creffield.

Esther Mitchell, when found, finally agreed to see her three brothers off to their homes in Oregon. The Mitchell brothers, George, Perry and Fred, were sitting with Esther on a bench in the station waiting room, apparently on the best of terms. When the Oregon train arrived George Mitchell arose and started for the door. His sister stepped to his side, and, pointing a revolver at his head, fired a fatal shot before anyone else in the room realized what was happening.

Miss Mitchell was arrested shortly after her brother fell dead by her hands. She had refused to have anything to do with her brother since he shot Creffield to avenge Creffield's treatment of Miss Mitchell. Yesterday was the first time the brother and sister had been seen together on apparently good terms.

Wednesday night Charles Mitchell, the father, and his daughter, Esther, reached a reconciliation, the girl for several days having refused to see even her father. Hearing that her father was about to return to his home in Illinois, she consented to see him, all the family being present except George.

Esther Mitchell and Mrs. Creffield, widow of the "Holy Roller" preacher, announced their intention of making Seattle their home. The three brothers were going to Oregon to work.

After the shooting Perry and Fred Mitchell were arrested as witnesses. They were found together on a bench in the station, sobbing on each other's shoulders.

Discrepancies of $145,000

Augusta, Ga., July 13.—Revelation of the financial embarrassment of Alexander & Alexander, one of the largest firms of cotton factors in the state, developing discrepancies of about $145,000, followed the disappearance of Thomas W. Alexander, head of the firm. The manner in which money was secured has not been made known by three banks who are the losers, except that it was in the shape of loans. Alexander left letters stating that he alone is responsible; that his brother knew nothing of the financial end of the business and had nothing to do with it.

Did Not Leave Great Fortune

New York, July 13.—The net value of the estate left by the late John A. McCall, former president of the New York Life Insurance company, was $40,835, according to the report of the appraisers of the estate. This document shows that McCall died possessed of property valued at $74,000, but this has been reduced by the payment of debts, administrative expenses and other disbursements to the extent of $33,165.

Express Train Struck Auto

New York, July 13.—Robert Shaffer, uncle of John S. Phipps and brother-in-law of Henry Phipps, the Pittsburg steel millionaire, was instantly killed when an express train smashed the automobile in which he and a chauffeur were riding at a crossing near Sayville, L. I. Andrew Peters, the chauffeur, was so badly injured that it is believed he will die.

City Almost In Ruins

El Paso, Tex., July 13.—A cloudburst and landslide at Ocampo, Mex., almost completely destroyed the city and killed seven or more persons. Many others were injured and it is expected some of them will die. All the killed and injured are Mexicans. The American residents are alleviating the suffering of the wounded.

Drowning of Seven Girls

Cedar Rapids, Ia., July 13.—Seven girls were drowned in Cedar river while wading. The smallest child slipped into a deep hole and in trying to rescue her, six others were drowned, four of them being sisters. Ruth Kiersey was the only one of the party to escape. The girls ranged in age from 7 to 16 years.

Alleged Dealers In "Green Goods'

New York, July 13.—On information supplied by the postal authorities, detectives from this city arrested in a hotel at Fishkill Landing Charles Sherwood, 35 years old, and Michael Ryan, 60 years old, who are alleged to be experts at the "green goods game."

VIEWS OF BRYAN

He Makes Them Public From a "Conservative" Standpoint

SILVER ISSUE IS SHELVED

Fight Against Illegitimate Combinations of Business Will Be the Slogan--Platform Should Be Plain and Strong

London, July 13.—William J. Bryan, having had the opportunity of reading American newspapers, consented to discuss some of the questions which have been raised since he has again become prominent as a presidential possibility. He said:

"I notice that I am now described by some as a conservative and, in order that there may be no misunderstanding on that subject, permit me to say that in one sense I always have been a conservative. The Democratic policies are conservative in that they embody old principles applied to new conditions. There was nothing new in principle in either of the platforms on which I stood.

"If, however, by the word conservative they mean that I have changed my position on any public question or moderated my opposition to corporate aggrandizement, they have a surprise waiting for them. I am more radical than I was in 1896 and have nothing to withdraw on economical questions which have been under discussion.

"The only question we discussed in 1896 upon which there has been any apparent change is the silver question, and that has not been a change in the advocates of bimetallism, but in conditions. We contended for more money and urged the free coinage of silver as the only means then in sight of securing it. The increased production of gold has brought in part the benefit we expected to secure from the restoration of silver and I recognize, as do all other bimetallists whom I have met abroad, that the unexpected and unprecedented increase in gold production has for the present removed the silver question as an issue.

"While the money question has waned in importance, other questions have been forging to the front, and to these questions we must apply the same principles we applied to the money question and seek to secure the greatest good to the greatest number by legislation which conforms to the doctrine of equal rights for all and special privileges for none. On the new questions many will act with us who were against us on the money question for, notwithstanding the discussion of that question, millions did not understand it and were frightened into opposition.

"We cannot expect the support of anyone who is interested in taking advantage of the people either through trusts or through any other illegitimate form of business. Our efforts should be to distinguish between those corporations which are legitimate and those aggregations of wealth which are organized for purposes of public plunder, and appeal for support to those only who are willing to have the government protect each person in the enjoyment of his own earnings.

"The newspapers have been trying to create friction between what they call 'old friends' and 'new friends' in politics. Those are friends who are working toward a common end, and each campaign brings to some extent a new alignment. In 1896 the party lost many Democrats and was recruited by a great many who had been Republicans up to that time, and we welcomed them. In 1900 some came back who were against us in 1896, and we did not shut the door against them. I have no idea that the party will require tickets of admission in the coming campaign. While the question is one of purpose, a man who recognizes the dangers that threaten our country and is anxious to avert them will not find it difficult to establish friendly relations with those who saw the dangers at an earlier date.

"If the differences between the sincere and the pretended friends of reform cannot be discovered before, they will become apparent when the platform is written; for, if present indications count for anything, that platform is likely to be so plain that no one can mistake it and so strong that no enemy of Democratic principles will be drawn to the party."

Mr. Bryan added that he would discuss the trust, tariff, railroad and labor questions, imperialism and other issues at length when he reached America.

Tennessee Leadership Changes

Nashville, July 13.—Henry C. Evans, former commissioner of pensions and recently American consul general in London, was nominated for governor by the Republican state convention. The nomination came after an exciting session and marks the transfer of Republican leadership in Tennessee from Congressman Brownlow to Evans.

A Connecticut Invitation

New Haven, July 13.—W. J. Bryan will be invited to address the Democratic state central convention on Sept. 11 and 12 at Hartford, if it be possible for him to come to Connecticut at that time, according to a vote of the state central committee. Bryan will be in New York about Sept. 11.

Stalwart Faction In Control

Jamestown, N. D., July 13.—The Republican state convention was dominated by the Stalwart faction of the party. A full state ticket was nominated, headed by Governor Sarles, who was nominated for re-election.

Sensations In Hartje Trial

Pittsburg, July 13.—Mary S. Hartje, who is contesting a suit for divorce brought by her husband, Augustus Hartje, the millionaire paper manufacturer, yesterday flatly contradicted her testimony of last week and denied that she ever wrote the Susie Wagner letter, known as exhibit No. 6. The sensation thus produced was further heightened when David N. Carvalho, the handwriting expert, testified for Mrs. Hartje that the torn and mutilated exhibit No. 35, on which the case is in part based, was a "forced and mutilated document." He said he had noted three distinct handwritings in the exhibits.

President Keeping Hands Off

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 13.—President Roosevelt will take no part whatever in the Republican political situation in New York, according to reliable information obtained here. The news of the recent line-up of the Odell-Platt-Black combine on the one side and Governor Higgins, backed by state officeholders, on the other, is viewed here with more than passing interest. To the requests for audiences at Sagamore Hill, which have come from state leaders, the president has replied in the negative and will continue so to do.

Russian Capital Heavily Guarded

St. Petersburg, July 13.—Contrary to expectation, no case of disorder in St. Petersburg yesterday was reported. The streets throughout the day were heavily guarded with patrols and the workmen's quarters were crowded with troops. From the provinces the news is less satisfactory. Everywhere collisions with the police are reported.

May Become Complete Wreck

Louisburg, C. B., July 13.—The wreckers who have been endeavoring to save the steamer Angola, which went ashore near this port on Tuesday, report that in all probability the vessel will be a complete wreck. The crew abandoned the steamer yesterday afternoon. The Angola lies in a very dangerous position.

Negro Swung From a Tree

Shreveport, La., July 13.—The body of an unknown negro was found hanging to a tree in the northeastern part of Clayburn parish, having been lynched by a mob who took him from officers near Junction City, Ark., where the negro attempted a criminal assault on the sister of Ned Thompson, a farmer.

LOOKING FOR "HOPE"

Bogus Scion of British Nobility Got Money Dishonestly

Boston, July 13.—A telegram which was received in this city from Silver Bros. of Salt Lake City is believed to have been the means of cutting short the career of "Sir" Beresford Hope, now sought by the police, and who claimed to be of the English nobility, and it is believed that the timely action of the Salt Lake City people prevented Hope from wringing many dollars from the pockets of the unsuspecting Bostonians, as well as preventing him from decamping with $150,000 worth of bonds, which he had arranged to receive in this city.

While awaiting the date on which he was to receive the bonds Hope proceeded to make good with many of the leaders of Boston's select society in the Back Bay and West End, and in this matter he was a decided success.

Chief of Detectives Watts is informed that a charge of forgery of a Colorado millionaire's name is laid against Hope. At present his whereabouts are unknown to the police, but they are keeping up their search for him. The Boston police have been instructed to arrest Hope on sight.

Four of Her Crew Missing

Boston, July 13.—With flag at half-mast to indicate that four of her crew were missing, fishing schooner Buema, Captain Herbert Nickerson, arrived at T wharf. Anthony Nickerson and Harold Nickerson, brothers of the captain; Jerry Clements and William Pierce, the missing men, went out in single dories 75 miles southeast of Highland light on Monday. A heavy fog settled and they drifted away from the Buema. Captain Nickerson has strong hopes that the missing sailors were picked up.

Wage Agitation at Lowell

Lowell, Mass., July 13.—The Textile Council last night appointed a committee with full powers to formulate a request for an increase in wages in all the cotton mills in this city. The request will be mailed to all of the mill agents today. The committee will hold a meeting later to fix upon the amount of increase to be asked and to set the date upon which the advance will go into effect.

Kidnapping Charge Failed

Boston, July 13.—Joseph O'Brien, a farmer, was acquitted in the superior criminal court on the charge of kidnapping John Mulkern, a young South Boston boy. It was found that the boy had followed O'Brien on June 17 of his own free will, and that the man was partly in ignorance of the boy's action.

Wrongfully Obtained Money

Providence, July 13.—For obtaining sums of money by falsely representing themselves to be acting in the interests of the Mormen and Conductors' Mutual Aid association, W. R. Thompson and M. J. Conklin were sentenced to jail for 30 days and also to pay fines of $50 and costs.

No Funds For Creditors

Boston, July 13.—William W. Kimball of Arlington has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy here, scheduling his liabilities as $166,192 and assets as only $10. The petition states that he has "no occupation." The liabilities consist of two judgments and 11 unsecured claims.

Lockjaw From Blank Cartridge

Randolph, Vt., July 13.—The discharge of a blank cartridge in his hand on July 4, inflicting an apparently minor injury, resulted last evening in the death of Clarence Prince, 14 years old. The lad was seized with lockjaw last Tuesday.

Metcalf Loses His Case

New York, July 13.—That the manager and proprietor of a theatre has a right to say who shall enter his place of amusement and who shall not, his playhouse being a private and not a public place, is the gist of a decision handed down in the appellate division of the supreme court, which dismisses the complaint of J. S. Metcalf, the dramatic critic, against Charles Burnham for excluding Metcalf from Burnham's theatre.

Heavy Fines For Rebating

Las Vegas, N. M., July 13.—On the ground that their violation of law in granting rebates on coal shipments was technical and not wilful and that, therefore, only a moderate penalty should be imposed, Chief Justice Mills, in the United States court, imposed a fine of $16,000 and costs each on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad company and the Colorado Fuel and Iron company.

Widow the Lawful Beneficiary

New York, July 13.—That a widow is entitled to be the beneficiary of her husband, although her husband's father may be named as beneficiary prior to the son's marriage, was decided by the appellate division of the supreme court. The case was that of Catherine Davin, the widow, vs. Patrick Davin, the father, and the Knights of Columbus.

Death of Hated Admiral

Sebastopol, July 13.—Vice Admiral Chouknin, commander of the Black sea fleet, who was shot Wednesday, supposedly by a sailor, died without having regained consciousness. Chouknin had long been a marked man on account of his activity as commander of the Black sea fleet in repressing disorders.

Decision Against Hummel

New York, July 13.—Abraham H. Hummel has been suspended from further practice at law, pending the appeal against his conviction on a charge of conspiracy, in connection with the Dodge-Morse divorce case, by a decision handed down by the appellate division of the supreme court.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

Colored Shoes Not For Women With Large Feet—Irish Lace Slippers.

Girls whose feet are not of the smallest proportions will do well to leave colored shoes severely alone. Brown and black shoes are by far the safest mode for a girl who takes any size bigger than a small four. There is something very fascinating about a tiny red shoe peeping out beneath a white muslin frilly frock, while blue footgear allied to a blue gown is almost equally as dainty, but the whole effect becomes absurd if the foot is not built on the smallest lines.

The craze at present for evening shoes of Irish lace mounted over pale colored satin is one of the chief features of the season, the heels being carried out in colors to correspond with the linings, while solitaire paste buttons take the place of bows. Brocade slippers for boudoir wear carried out in the richest brocade in old French patterns represent another fancy.

To darken brown boots they must be brushed with a weak solution of ammonia or soda in warm water. After drying apply with a brush a warm solution of bismarck brown, repeating till desired shade is obtained. Linseed oil will also darken. Finish with clean tallow or mutton fat, stiffly brushing. Tan boots may be renovated by mixing a little ammonia water with half a pint of milk and bottling it. Shake well, apply with a sponge and allow to dry and then polish with a soft duster.

The lingerie blouse illustrated is tucked in tiny groups to form a pointed yoke. Below this point is an elaborately worked rose design.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

ORIGINAL NEW ENGLAND.

It Is Said That It Was Located on the Pacific Coast.

There is a common saying that if the pilgrim fathers had only landed on the Pacific coast a large portion of the Atlantic seaboard would never have been settled. Californians, Oregonians and Washingtonians believe this implicitly. In other words, the charms of the Pacific coast in the way of climate are so appreciated that, having once experienced them, men are unwilling to live elsewhere contentedly. Now, not one man in a thousand living on the Pacific coast knows that as a matter of fact the accents of our mother tongue were heard on the beach not far from San Francisco forty-one years before English was spoken on Plymouth rock.

More amusing still is the fact that the original New England was on the Pacific coast, for Sir Francis Drake in 1579, at the close of a month's stay, took possession of the country for his sovereign, Elizabeth, and named the new acquisition Nouva Albion (New England) because he thought the white cliff near what is now Point Reyes resembled the chalk cliffs near Dover.—Alexander McAdie in Outing Magazine.

The Osprey.

In the highlands of Scotland at the present time the osprey usually makes its nest in the flat top of a pine tree, but formerly it just as frequently selected a battlement or a chimney of some ruin, generally on an island. The nest is a pile of sticks as much as four feet high and as many broad—the accumulation of many years—intermixed with turf and other vegetable matter, lined with finer twigs and finally with grass, much of it often green.—Glasgow Times.

Easy.

"Did you sell horses to those two customers yesterday?" we ask of our friend the horse dealer.

"Yes."

"Make anything?"

"Off of Jones—yes."

"Jones? Why, Jones was the one that said he knew all about horses."

"I know. He was easy. The other fellow didn't know a thing about them and brought around three or four experts before he would buy."—Life.

Sad.

"Poor Mrs. Wilkins! She is so young and her wedded life has been such a bitter disappointment!"

"In what way?"

"She married that wealthy old Wilkins under the impression that he had heart disease, and the doctor says he's perfectly well."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Contrary.

Hicks—But what makes you so sure that your boy will go to the gymnasium this afternoon? Wicks—Because I told him not to.—Somerville Journal.

Don't Slip Up On Quality.

It's easily done, but the results are not laughable. It is better to pay a little more for a suit, and feel sure of it, than to pay too little and take chances. Our Suits from $15 to $20 are garments with the risk of the slip-up taken out, but with all the styles of expensive tailor-made put in. Other good suits as low as $7.50.

STRAW HATS ARE NOW RIPE.

So are Outing Suits and Outing Trousers.

The Latest Local Brevities

Yesterday's weather was made to order for the Quincy Yacht club.

Ten new members of the Squantum Yacht club at the last meeting.

Five City Council Committee meetings were held Thursday night.

Showers are predicted for Saturday. Of course; they are expected every Saturday.

There was a good picture of Vice Commodore Sawyer's yacht Eleanor in Thursday Evenings Herald.

The Quincy yachts will participate in the interclub race of the Columbia Yacht club of Saturday.

George E. Adams has been officiating as clerk of the court this week during the absence of Clerk Churchill.

Ned Savin has sold his yawl Spray, and has his eye on a big one that will be quite an addition to the Squantum club fleet.

Rev. A. B. Tyler of the West Quincy M. E. church has been called upon to officiate at five weddings since the conference of April 10.

Among the new local souvenir postal cards is one of the Y. M. C. A. building on Washington street, printed in colors and published by L. A. Chapin.

Officer Donovan is getting quite a reputation as a liquor officer. Not only does he figure in Quincy cases but he has assisted Weymouth officers.

There was a large crowd of women and children in City Square all the morning waiting for the circus parade to appear.

Rev. W. S. Perkins, the pastor of the Universalist church, will by request, repeat his address on Congregationalism at the Quincy Point church on Sunday evening.

The Sunday School of the West Quincy M. E. church is planning a picnic to be held at Randolph grove, Wednesday, July 18. They are to have a special car leaving East Milton at 9 o'clock.

City Solicitor Thomas has written an extended communication on Metropolitan Park assessments which will appear in the eight-page Saturday Daily Ledger.

The Epworth League of the West Quincy M. E. church held a successful lawn party on the parsonage grounds Wednesday evening. The singing by the young people's choir, which sings regularly at the Sunday evening service, was especially appreciated.

Clifford Taylor, Roy Cobb and John Maloney have enlisted in the Massachusetts, and will leave Boston tomorrow morning on the U. S. S. Maryland for Rockland, Me., where the Maryland will join the North Atlantic squadron and start on the cruise to Baltimore and the South.

Fire Inquest.

George C. Neal of the State Fire Marshall's office, held an inquest at the district court this morning to determine the cause of the fire in the Keating building on Canal street on the morning of July 4. A large number of witnesses were summoned and they were examined separately. The result of the inquest was not made public.

Trial Trip of Auk.

The Auk built for Charles Francis Adams 2d, as a challenger for the Quincy Yacht Club cup, now held by the Manchester Yacht Club, as well as to participate in the German races was tried out Thursday off City Point for the first time under sloop rig.

The boat was designed to carry cat rig, but that rig was pronounced a failure by the owner after a brief trial. The Auk is one of the most extreme boats built for the German-American trial races, and is said to be over the maximum 32 feet allowed under the German rule for the total of water line, breadth and draft. She was designed by E. A. Boardman.

Bisson—Hayward.

Miss Ada G. Bisson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O. Bisson of Quincy, and Mr. Elmer E. Hayward of Brockton, were united in marriage June 30 at Salem, by the Rev. C. H. Puffer of the First Universalist church. They will make their home in Campello.

—Police Commissioner O'Meara, of Boston, is setting the machinery of his department at work to aid the Licensing Board in furnishing to it information concerning the conduct of licensed places, and also in the matter of prosecution of violators of the license laws. He has sent out secret instructions to the police to keep to a strick performance of their duties and a public general order instructing them as to their duty especially with reference to the screen law, —Half a lemon dipped in salt will do all the work of oxalic acid in cleaning copper boilers, brass teakettles, and other such untensils.

Picnic of the Orangemen

The two Quincy lodges of Orangemen made a good showing Thursday morning when they paraded previous to their departure far Centennial grove, for the annual picnic of the order. Arriving in Boston they joined with other lodges and held a short parade to the North station.

Arriving at the grove they were received by State Grand Master George Stewart, who made an address of welcome. Other addresses were made by ex-Grand Master James Chambers, Past Grand Master John McDonald, Past Supreme Grand Master of the United States Thomas Milligan, and High Past Masters Frank Tinney and Alexander Johnson.

Later there were a large number of athletic events in which Quincy members of the order took an active part.

Animal Show Arrives Late

Owning to an unavoidable delay at Plymouth this morning it was not until 10 o'clock that the trained animal shows of Washburn & D'Alma started for Quincy. The result was the train did not arrive in Quincy until noon.

For this reason hundreds who had gathered in City Square to see the parade for 10 o'clock went home disappointed. It was understood that there would be a parade late this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

The show remains in Quincy two days. It is located on the River street grounds.

Quincy Souvenir.

Frederick W. Tirrell, exalted ruler of Quincy lodge of Elks, leaves today for Denver, Col., to attend the National Elks' convention. He carries with him a box of souvenirs of Quincy to exchange among other delegates. The souvenir that Mr. Tirrell carries is a pretty affair. At the top of a blue ribbon is a bar pin, upon which are emblems of the order and the number of Quincy lodge. From the centre of this there is suspended a small polished granite ball. The word souvenir also appears on the bottom of the ribbon. The badge is enclosed in a neat box on the cover of which is a picture of the birthplaces of the two Presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams. The badge was gotten up by T. L. Williams.

Fined and Sentenced

Officer Bradley and Donovan, dressed in citizens clothes, visited the Fore River district Thursday evening. Officer Donovan called upon Andrew Clements, a cook in a boarding house on East Howard street and readily purchased a pint of whiskey for which he paid 65 cents.

Clements then went into the street where he met Officer Bradley, who also purchased a pint of whiskey of him, for which he paid 65 cents. Bradley placed Clements under arrest.

Clements was arraigned in court on two complaints for illegal sale. He was fined $50 on one complaint and sentenced to three months in the house of correction on the other.

Lawn Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolster gave a lawn party Thursday evening in honor of their guest, Mrs. Wilbur of New Bedford, at their home, 172 Franklin street. The house and grounds were brilliantly illuminated with lanterns. Flags were flying and the scene was very pretty. An orchestra discoursed nice music on the lawn, afterwards playing in the barn for dancing. Piano playing by Mrs. Curtis and other guests, singing by Mrs. Pierce and choruses by all served to pass the evening, while some of the men played pool in the billiard room. Guests were present from New York, Naugatuck, Conn., Jamaica Plain, Dorchester, and Quincy.

Y. M. C. A. Boys On a Clambake

A hiking trip and clam bake was held at Houghs Neck Thursday and was enjoyed by twenty boys of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association.

The party left the Y. M. C. A. building at 9 o'clock under the leadership of H. M. Hodgkinson and hiked to Houghs neck, arriving at Hawthorne farm at 10.15 A. M. At the farm a quanity of vegetables were secured and taken to the beach for future use.

The party then began the clam digging contest and the prize for the largest quantity of clams dug was awarded to Joseph Pinel.

A clam bake was enjoyed after which a dip was taken in a brook near by. The sports of the day concluded with a base ball game. After the base ball game the party left Houghs Neck and hiked home arriving at the Y. M. C. A. building at 5.30 P. M., after a very enjoyable day's outing at the beach.

Records by Fire Apparatus

Exhibition Given By the Three Companies at Central Station

If anyone has doubted the efficiency of our fire department, and the quickness with which apparatus can get out on the sounding of an alarm, the doubt would have been dispelled had they witnessed the drills that have been held at the several stations during the last few weeks.

Good time has been made by all of the companies. This was especially true of the companies at the Central Station which gave an exhibition last evening. There are three pieces of apparatus at this station and an exhibition was given by each. The drill was witnessed by a large number of citizens.

Among those present as guests of Chief Litchfield were: President Piper of the City Council; Councilman Stone, chairman of the Committee on Fire Department; Councilman Spargo, Assistant Engineers Packard and O'Brien, and several newspaper men.

The first exhibition was given by the Combination truck. The gong was sounded. Out came the horses. A hitch was made and Lieut. Corcoran was in the driver's seat almost before one had time to think. The doors opened and the big machine crossed the threshold with its three-horse hitch in 26 and 1-5 seconds.

The apparatus was run down High School avenue. A 45-foot extention ladder was taken off and raised to the roof and Foreman Merritt ran up the ladder to the roof. The time consumed from the striking of the gong being 1 minute and 20 seconds.

A long ladder equipped with the Hayward brace, was then raised, and five men were placed in the centre of it. The ladder stood as firm as a rock with hardly a bend, while a shorter ladder without the brace attachment buckled quite a good deal with three men on it.

The Combination hose gave the next exhibition. Driver Faircloth crossed the threshold with his three-horse hitch in 22 and 4-5 seconds from the sound of gong. This also included snapping out and making the hitch.

A line of hose was run from the hydrant opposite the station down High School avenue; a nozzle coupled on; the line taken up a ladder to the roof of the station, and water thrown on the roof in 1 minute 14 seconds from the sound of the gong.

Two other lines of hose were laid, one down Quincy avenue to Williams corner, and another down High School avenue to take the place of the first line laid, which had blown out a coupling; water was turned on all lines. Then Driver Faircloth drove to the station and backed in. All this was done in 5 1-2 minutes.

The Steamer exhibition was one of the thrilling features of the evenning. Capt. Costa, the engineer, Fireman Griffin and Driver Connell were placed in bed. At a signal from the Chief, the gong sounded. Almost before the spectators realized it, Connell came sliding down the pole while Costa and Griffin came down the back stairs.

The horses were hitched and the steamer crossed the threshold in 28 seconds from the sound of the gong. Before the steamer left the station a

DUEL AS SEQUEL

French Deputies Excited Over Reinstatement of Dreyfus

STATE SECRETARY HURT

Receives Sword Wound In Lung on "Field of Honor"--Dreyfus and Picquart Receive Army Promotions From Parliament

Paris, July 14.—The scene of tumultous disorder which marked the enactment of the law restoring Alfred Dreyfus to the army was followed by a bloody duel last night in which Under Secretary of State Sarraut was dangerously wounded by the sword of M. Pugliesti-Conti.

The duel assumed the aspect of a veritable combat between the government and the opposition, as Sarraut's seconds were Ministers Clemenceau and Thompson, while Pugliesti-Conti's were Millevoye and General Jacquet, who were drawn from the elements which bitterly resist the government's rehabilitation of Dreyfus.

The meeting followed a fight on the floor of the chamber of deputies in which Sarraut sprang from beside Minister of the Interior Clemenceau, sitting on the ministerial benches, on Pugliesti-Conti, who had been heaping denunciation on the members of the government as scoundrels. Sarraut struck Pugliesti-Conti a stunning blow in the face.

A scene of the wildest uproar ensued, compelling the suspension of the session. It was after the close of the session that the duel occurred. Sarraut is suffering from a deep wound in the right breast, penetrating the lung.

Despite this sanguinary conflict, laws were finally enacted by the chamber of deputies reinstating Dreyfus, who obtains the rank of chief of squadron of artillery, and Picquart, who is made a brigadier general. Both houses were overwhelmingly favorable to Dreyfus and Picquart. Throughout the day feeling was stirred intensely between the Dreyfus and anti-Dreyfus elements. This was heightened by fierce attacks by Dreyfusists against General Mercier and other prominent officers who were responsible for Dreyfus' condemnation.

Minister of War Etienne presented the government bills restoring Dreyfus and Picquart to the army. The army committee quickly and unanimously reported the bills, and then debate was decisive, Dreyfus securing 473 votes against 42, and Picquart 467 votes against 26.

The feeling then became very strong. The storm broke when M. Presense, socialist, urged a supplementary proposition for the punishment of the officers who had accused Dreyfus and Picquart and whom he designated as a gang of malefactors and forgers who deserved branding with red-hot irons. It was at this moment that the Sarraut-Pugliesti-Conti encounter occurred.

Pandemonium immediately broke loose. Deputies gathered in groups in the center of the house, fighting, their blows raining indiscriminately. President Brisson ineffectually endeavored to quell the tumult, but, finding his efforts in vain, he left the chair and suspended the sitting for a quarter of an hour. The public galleries were cleared.

During the interim the excitement continued, but at the resumption of the sitting the members were somewhat more calm. Pugliesti-Conti and Sarraut were both present, surrounded by friends. Several speakers on the government and opposition sides exchanged threats. Eventually, after the premier had promised that the government would take the necessary measures to deal with the officers who had been witnesses against Dreyfus, and requested that the house terminate the conflict that had been dividing France, a motion was passed expressing confidence in the government. The chamber also voted to transfer the body of Emile Zola to the Pantheon.

The senate also had an exciting session in connection with the Dreyfus rehabilitation bill, which was passed by 183 votes against 30. The result was greeted with enthusiastic applause. The Picquart bill was passed by the senate by 185 to 26.

General Mercier, in the midst of constant disorder, attempted to vindicate the Rennes court martial. He declared that proofs were then shown which were suppressed in the supreme court. Senator Delpech replied that Mercier deserved to be sent to Devil's island in place of Dreyfus. The bill for the transferrence of Zola's body to the Pantheon also was enacted by the senate.

Both houses have adjourned until autumn.

President Fallieres last night signed the enactments for the rehabilitation of Dreyfus and Picquart, and the decrees of promulgation appear in the Official Journal today and also the nomination of Dreyfus to be a chief of squadron and Picquart to be brigadier general, the time elapsed since both men were dismissed from the army to count as full service. The Official Journal also contains the inscription of Dreyfus on the list for early nomination to the Legion of Honor.

Bullets Missed General and Hit Wife

Warsaw, July 14.—An attempt was made to assassinate General Schweikowsky, a member of the military tribunal. He escaped without injury, but his wife was wounded by two bullets.

USED KNIFE IN QUARREL

Boston Man Causes Death of an Unknown Visitor In His Home

Boston, July 14.—During a quarrel at the home of Dennis McSweeney in South Boston last night, an unknown man was killed by a knife wound in the breast. McSweeney, whose jaw was fractured during the encounter, was placed under arrest, charged with causing the man's death. Both men had been drinking. McSweeney is 60 years old, while the dead man appeared to be about 30.

McSweeney's daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Bloom, said that she found her father being assaulted by the unknown man and that she also was attacked. The father then struck the assailant in the breast with a knife, killing him almost instantly.

Planning Reception to Bryan

New York, July 14.—Plans for the reception to be tendered to W. J. Bryan in this city upon his return in August have been mapped out by the plan and scope committee appointed by the Commercial Travelers' anti-Trust league. Governor Folk of Missouri is chairman of the reception committee on which Democratic senators and congressmen, governors and mayors and chairmen of Democratic state and national committees will be invited to serve as honorary members.

Malarial Fever Aboard Ships

Washington, July 14.—The Columbia has sailed from Monte Cristi, Santo Domingo, for San Juan, P. R. Some of the marines aboard the ship have suffered from the low type of malarial fever at times prevalent on the Isthmus of Panama, and it was deemed desirable to have these men made comfortable in the general hospital at San Juan, rather than keep them aboard the Columbia while that ship is engaged in patrolling the Dominican coast.

Woman Brutally Assaulted

New York, July 14.—Mrs. Elizabeth Melia was found in the Bronx in a dying condition, with her throat cut and her face terribly bruised. She told the police that a man whom she knew well had asked her to take a walk with him. Once out of the sight of passersby, she said, he had attempted to kill her. She gave the man's name to the police, who began a search for him. Mrs. Melia is expected to die.

The Pope's Palace Unsafe

Rome, July 14.—It has just been discovered that the Vatican is practically falling to pieces. Even the corner where the pope's apartment is situated needs strengthening, and the pontiff is moving out. The walls, which are cracked, bulging and leaning outward, will be temporarily strengthened immediately. To make the building safe will require more than $100,000.

Laundries Raised Prices

Cincinnati, July 14.—Thirty-nine laundry companies and laundry proprietors were indicted individually by the grand jury on a charge of maintaining a combination in restraint of trade. An advance of ½ cent each in the price of laundering collars and cuffs was made recently. This was brought to the attention of the grand jury and the indictments followed.

Miners and Operators Compromiss

Harrisburg, July 14.—The operators and miners of the central Pennsylvania bituminous coal field have reached an agreement, with but slight change in scale. The agreement provides for open shop, arbitration and check-weighmen's fund and an advance of 5.55 percent on scale paid prior to 1906. The agreement is regarded as a compromise.

Agrarian Troubles Increase

Voronezh, July 14.—The whole of the province of Voronezh is affected by excesses arising from the agrarian movement. The peasants are rising everywhere and burning estates. In Bobrovsk district more than 20 estates have been burned. The trouble northward is increasing. Troops have been sent to the disturbed districts.

Murderer Dean Convicted

Springfield, O., July 14.—The jury in the case of Edward Dean, the negro charged with the murder of Mark Davis, a railroad brakeman, which led to the recent race riots in this city, last evening brought in a verdict finding Dean guilty, but recommending mercy. By this Dean gets a life sentence in the penitentiary.

Russian Premiership Goes Begging

St. Petersburg, July 14.—It is learned from a reliable source that Emperor Nicholas has offered the premiership to Dimitri Shipoff, but that the latter refused the post on the ground that the only possible cabinet in the present crisis is one composed of Constitutional Democrats.

Bribery Charge Against Aldermen

New York, July 14.—The grand jury handed down indictments charging bribery against four members of the board of aldermen of New Rochelle, Messrs. Rado, Rivers, Hallenberg and Hildring. Judge Rosalsky directed that bench warrants be issued.

Temperance Advocate's Great Gift

London, July 14.—The will of John Crowle, a merchant of London, gives $1,250,000 for the promotion of temperance in England under the direction of the Wesleyan Methodist conference, conditioned on the church raising a like sum within five years.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, July 15.
Sun rises—4:20; sets—7:20.
Moon rises—12:22 a. m.

Man or Mouse?

By Martha McCulloch-Williams

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment

The water, laughing and lapping, invited. The day was giddy May, and the invited young Lorena, moreover, owned all the folly normal to nineteen. So altogether it would have been a miracle if things had gone exactly as they should. A proper young woman of course would have reckoned chances before baring her feet and dancing joyously in midstream, where the pebbles lay smoothly bedded in fine sand and gleaming jewel-wise wherever a sun ray struck through the ripples.

Lorena did not let herself remember that the ford was but fifty yards higher up or that this special shallow reach of the creek lay between the two lakes that gave the finest fishing. They were not true lakes, of course—only water mirrors, still and deep, impounded by dams of the winter flood's building. Lorena did not love them. They were so placid they reminded her somehow of Johnny—and whatever did that put her out of temper.

She loved glitter, motion, excitement. It was ecstasy to her to dance all day long and half the night after, footing it as lightly, as featly, as wind blown thistle seed. If only she could dance alone! But since that was out of the question she naturally preferred partners who kept step and were nimble. Johnny was neither, yet all the time she had been engaged to him he had felt it his right to say, if she did not dance with him, she must dance with hardly anybody else.

And not at all with Granville Gore, the very prince of partners, who was handsome and slender and light hearted, with money in both pockets and a trick of spending it with both hands. Johnny hated him, without reason so far as Lorena could see—at least he gave her no reason—only said, "If you are goin' ever to belong to me, Lolie, you must be barely civil to that fellow."

Somehow the emphasis on the last word always made Lorena shiver when she recalled it. How could she help it, when Johnny was toward other folk the soul of kindly justice? Still she had felt that he was unfair. If he really knew anything he might let her know it likewise.

If Johnny could have brought himself to tell her the break might not have come. But he was too proud and masterful for that. His wife must believe in him enough to understand that he had reasons for any and everything. Besides he was afraid of seeming envious and jealous of a man so much richer and better looking. Moreover, he did not really know much that could be told categorically—it was Gore's general air and manner, conjoined to words dropped here and there, that made Johnny certain he had no real reverence for anything feminine. A girl, any girl, was fair game to him. If she hadn't sense enough to look out for herself he was not bound to look out for her. Yet Gore was not distinctly vicious—rather, inordinately vain. He did not mean worse by womankind and girlkind than to make love to them, then ride away. Marry! Not he! Not the finest girl alive!

If Lorena had known that! Unknowing it, she had thought a great many times and a great many things of the fascinating Granville in the three months since the break. He had been away for two of them, and since he came home she had seen him only in crowds. But he had used his eyes so eloquently as to set her heart wildly fluttering. But, oddly enough, it had fluttered even more when by chance she had encountered Johnny, in his working clothes, driving his wagon to mill.

They had barely nodded to each other, and she had ridden fast afterward, but not fast enough to get away from a sense that Johnny, old Johnny, although his face was impassive, had turned to look after her as long as she was in sight.

Today she was not thinking of him—hardly even of Granville. Wading was such pure joy. The water came above her ankles. She lifted her skirts lightly in both hands and balanced to her shadow upon the rippling stream. Such a funny shadow—dancing grotesquely even when she stood still.

Rapt in contemplation of it, she did not hear footsteps or anything until a throaty, chuckling voice cried: "Oh, ho! A mermaid! Gore, if the variety is indigenous, understand, I shall settle in your neighborhood just as soon as I can buy a place."

Lorena flushed scarlet. She let fall her skirts heedless of water—heedless, indeed, of anything but escape. There were men on either bank, also one in wading approaching her midstream. Gore was the farthest of them—a Gore she had never seen. He looked her over as though she were a part, a curious part, of the landscape with which he had no sort of acquaintance.

It was the man in wading who had spoken. He was striding on toward her, his rod over his shoulder, a broad grin upon his flat, red face. Her sunbonnet, her faded print frock, above all her present case, had nearly made him believe her some hoidenish milkmaid rather than mermaid.

"Didn't I tell you fellows the finest fish were here in the shallows?" he bellowed at the men on the bank. "Never yet made such a catch," he added, making to fling an arm about Lorena's waist.

She evaded him, springing to one side and trying to gain the bank, but the sportsmen there set up a laughing shout which warned her not to trust them. Desperately she fled upstream, cutting her feet on sharp stones, but never faltering. It was not easy to run against the current—the rock bottom was slippery in places and her wet skirt hampered her terribly.

Still she kept out of reach until she was twenty yards off the ford. The flat faced man, laughing and panting after her, caught her there and said as he gave her a resounding kiss: "'Pon my soul, Undine, it was worth it. I haven't had such a lark since I was a boy."

Lorena broke from him, crying wildly: "Granville! Mr. Gore! Kill this creature!"

At that the men laughed louder than ever. Granville had discreetly disappeared. He was sorry for Lorena; also angry with her, even angrier than with his friend of the flat, red face. There were millions back of the flat, red face—millions that might mean much to Gore's future. Was he to risk their help, to invite everlasting chaff, to make himself the butt of the grill rooms next time he was in town, by championship of a girl, a silly country girl, who should have known better than to put herself in such case?

Mullen, he of the flat, red face, was not a bad sort, only full of uncouth spirits. Lorena would come to no harm. And if she had sense enough to keep her mouth shut he (Gore) would see to it that she was handsomely made up to for her present fright. But of course he could not acknowledge her as an acquaintance when she looked such a guy and had let herself get caught in such a plight.

Lorena, noting his absence, stumbled blindly toward the bank and half fell upon it, covering her eyes with both hands. Mullen scrambled out beside her and tried to lift her to her feet, the rest jeering him, pretending to say things aside and singing in cracked chorus, "Where is my wandering boy?"

They were laughing so loud, watching so intently, Johnny fell upon them like a thunderbolt from blue skies. Johnny was still in working clothes—he had, in fact, started to the blacksmith's shop in a mad hurry in hope of getting a dulled plow point sharpened. So he had come to the ford in the very nick of time to see that a woman was in need of help and to rush to give it.

"Gentlemen," Johnny's voice cut like ice, "you must show me your warrant for taking a prisoner. Unless you do"—He stopped short there, his face white, his eyes two points of flame. Even yet he did not know, but a second later Lorena was beside him, clinging to him, burying her face in his rough sleeve, and sobbing out: "Johnny! Save me! Take me away! Don't stop to fight them—only take me and go!"

"Not yet," Johnny said, putting her gently away.

The events of the next five minutes are better left unchronicled. Suffice it that Mr. Granville Gore and his sportsmen friends from the city went away on the night train, at least two of the visitors carrying beautiful black eyes. As to how the eyes had been achieved there was discreet silence. But when in the fall Lorena and Johnny were married there came to the bride a chest of massive silver, along with an unsigned note which ran: "Please accept this in token of forgiveness. Remember, you owe me something—in that I gave you occasion to find out the difference there is between a man and a mouse."

Lorena was for sending it back, but Johnny laughed and said: "Mullen is right. He is a man. You can drub a man into decency, but a mouse always runs away."

"And I hate mice of every sort," Lorena added with a pensive smile.

They Had Escaped That.

A young disciple of Blackstone who had worked his way through college and taken a full course in the study of law besides was making a trip through the southwest in search of an eligible location for the practice of his profession. A thrifty young city, with a considerable body of water on one side of it and a forest on the other, attracted his attention, and he decided to make a few days' stay there and investigate.

"Putting up" at what seemed to be the best hotel, he ate his dinner, then strolled into the office and proceeded in a careless way to interrogate the clerk.

"There is a good deal of business done in this town, isn't there?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," answered the young man. "In one way and another there's a good jag of business going on here."

"Healthy place, isn't it?"

"Middling."

"Is there much litigation here?"

"No, I haven't heard of any cases of that, but there's a lot of chills an' fever and occasionally a pretty bad case of the grip."

Dewey and the Powder Boy.

Many stories have been written and told about Admiral Dewey and his heroic deed at Manila bay, but none show the kindness of heart of which this modern hero is capable as the following, which has just come to light: When the order was given to strip for action just before the battle of Manila Bay a powder boy on the flagship accidentally dropped his coat overboard. He asked permission to jump after it, but was refused. In spite of the refusal he dropped overboard, recovered his coat, was caught and arrested for disobedience of orders, a serious offense in the navy, especially under this commander. The boy was brought before the admiral, who kindly but firmly demanded an explanation. Breaking into tears, the lad said the coat contained his mother's picture and he could not bear to see it lost. For once the admiral relaxed in his discipline. "Release him," he said. "A boy who loves his mother enough to risk his life for her picture cannot be kept under arrest in this fleet."

Comedian Ross Has Confessed

Was Once a Bold, Bad Man In Old Days of Deadwood, S. D.---He Learned to Be an Actor While Dodging "Critics'" Bullets.

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

Charles J. Ross, leading comedian of "The Social Whirl" at the Casino theater, New York, who is known as one of the most versatile actors in the country, being equally clever at burlesque and serious acting, was asked the other evening how it was that there was so much variety in his work.

"Because I began as a variety actor," answered Mr. Ross.

"When I went on the stage there was no such term as 'vaudeville.' Back in those days a man played anything that came to hand, whether in the 'legitimate' or in that part of the business that corresponds to what is now known as 'two a day.'

"In the latter we were known as variety actors because we did a variety of things.

"When I was little more than a kid I began performing out in Deadwood, S. D. That was when the Black Hills mining excitement was at its height and Deadwood was the toughest town on the map.

"'Deadwood Dick,' 'Calamity Jane' and other celebrities since famous in lurid literature were then living facts, and the halls in which the shows were given were filled with red shirted miners with bristling belts and trousers tucked into the tops of muddy boots.

"Those were exacting audiences, I can tell you.

"If not pleased, a man would begin to shoot.

"Amid those surroundings in course of an evening I would do a song and dance, play the hero in a one act melodrama, go in for a burlesque comedy turn and box four rounds.

"In fact, I had to adapt myself to any circumstances that arose, and the excitement attending the performances was such that I was constrained to do my level best in each.

"I got into habits in those days of doing anything that came to hand, and if I have attained any success in my maturer work I ascribe it largely to that.

"I could not be happy doing the same old thing over and over again. Such a thing as playing the same part 2,000 times would be a physical or nervous impossibility for me.

"I was raised in 'variety,' and variety I must have."

HOW TO PITCH CURVES.

Expert Describes Execution of Leading Twirling Twists.

A well known National league pitcher describes the delivery of various curves as follows:

The incurve is pitched with a side arm motion, the ball being released over the tips of the first two fingers, the arm being swept around with a lateral motion. Some pitchers throw an incurve by grasping the ball with all four fingers and permitting it to slip over the tips.

The outcurve is produced usually by grasping the ball with the first two fingers and the thumb, with the back of the hand turned downward. The fingers are pressed firmly against the ball, which is gripped tight.

When delivering the spit ball the first and second fingers are moistened on the tongue, and the ball slips over the ends of these fingers.

In the drop the ball rolls over the side of the first finger. Some pitchers give the hand a snap as the ball leaves it.

A Miracle!

Joe Kelley has reformed. He is the most docile of men with the umpires.

Taggart Repeats Bryan's Statement

French Lick, Ind., July 14.—National Chairman Taggart, asked for an interview on Mr. Bryan's' London statement, in which he reiterated his bimetallism views, said: "I never have had any doubt that under the same conditions that prevailed in 1896 Mr. Bryan's views would be the same as they were then. Bryan has not changed, but conditions have. Gold discoveries have increased the volume of money and have justified Mr. Bryan's contentions that the country then needed more money."

Much-Discussed Visit Postponed

St. Petersburg, July 14.—The visit of the British channel fleet to Russian waters has been postponed until a more propitious time. The initiative in this decision came from Russia, which pointed out that the projected visit had been welcomed with lively satisfaction by the Russian government, but that certain political parties in Great Britain and Russia fomented a sharp agitation with a view to connecting the visit with questions of Russia's internal policy.

Confidence In Business World

New York, July 14.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that midsummer quiet conditions are more in evidence than at any previous time this season, although trade continues far in excess of earlier years, and preparations for fall and winter are unabated. Confidence in the commercial sentiment is introduced by exceptionally favorable crop reports and the absence of any distinctly adverse factor.

Mrs Carter Denies Marriage

Boston, July 14.—The Herald says that Mrs. Leslie Carter, the actress, was married to William Payne at Portsmouth, N. H., yesterday. The ceremony was performed, it is said, by Rev. Dr. Emerson Hovey, an Episcopal clergyman. The license is said to have been issued in Mrs. Carter's maiden name. Mrs. Carter, when seen in this city last night, denied that she and Payne had been married.

Roosevelt's Program Mapped Out

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 14.—According to present arrangements, President Roosevelt will remain at Sagamore Hill until late in September, when he returns to Washington. He will not leave Washington until after the votes are counted in the November elections and will then proceed immediately to the Isthmus of Panama, returning to Washington just in time for the opening of congress.

A delightful dancing frock for a young girl is of painted muslin. The design is in pale yellow roses and foliage and hemmed with soft ivory duchess satin. Above the hem are inch wide kiltings both of muslin and satin.

New linens for suits and dresses and a dozen purposes now come bleached instead of the half bleached kinds formerly used.

So popular is the princess model that even the bathing suits are being made up after that style, and so faithfully has it been copied that with the exception of the abbreviated skirt there is comparatively little difference noted.

The new watches are gayly enameled to match the gowns. Colors that do not harmonize with sartorial outfit are not smart. The works are less important, the time keeping qualities not generally considered if tones blend.

"Colibre," or hummingbird, is the newest shade of pink. It has a soft, dull tone with a suggestion of brick red in its makeup. In soft silk it is very effective trimmed with venetian lace or point d'alencon. It is much used for summer evening cloaks.

The pinafore frock illustrated is developed in the fashionable blue and white peking silk. Little quillings of plain blue silk are effective as trimmings. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Nutriment In Leaves.

Most leaves contain some nourishing properties, in particular those of the acacia tree. It would be quite possible to subsist on leaves if the supply were not stinted, and the shipwrecked mariner will keep in very fair condition if he chew them as he would his quid of "baccy."

Chameleons.

Chameleons always change their color on the approach of a storm and assume a neutral hue, darker than their customary tint.

The Irish Language.

The Irish language has only eighteen letters. The chief difficulty in learning it is that there are innumerable abbreviations for words and phrases. The words, too, are rarely a key to the correct pronunciation.

Cigarette Smoking.

Cigarette smoking in England dates back to 1844. The great impetus to their increased use was caused by the Crimean war of 1854-56, when numbers of military and naval officers adopted this method of smoking from the inhabitants of Russia, Turkey, Malta, the Levant and other parts of Europe.

Ostrich Eggs.

The largest egg is that of the ostrich. It weighs three pounds and is considered equal in amount to twenty-four hen's eggs.

Origin of Bush Fires.

The discovery has been made that recent great bush fires in New South Wales and Victoria were caused by phosphorous paste laid out to kill rabbits. As soon as the mixture dried the sun's rays set fire to it.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

It is noticeable that a large proportion of the houses are decorated by the brilliant crimson rambler rose bushes. Although the season of these flowers is very short, they make a beautiful and effective house decoration, and are surely worth all the care and trouble bestowed upon them during the rest of the year.

Quincy has a particular interest in the Boston Custom house which it is proposed to replace or enlarge, from the fact that the grand old granite pillars were quarried and cut in Quincy each of which were drawn to Boston by forty yoke of oxen. This event was an interesting one in its day and impressed itself upon the public mind.

The will of the late Nathanel H. Hunt provides liberally for Thayer Public library of Braintree and Rural Lodge of Masons at Quincy. We are not sure of the amounts yet but Thayer library will get at least $10,000 and Rural lodge $5,000. There are several bequests of about $1,000 each. Braintree certainly appreciates Mr. Hunt's interest in the town library.

The loss of the battleship contract by the Fore River company will probably be a severe blow to Quincy. At present the only department affected is the drafting room, where it will be necessary to drop several.

The Ledger is informed that the men in the yard will not be affected for some time, as there is more work on hand than can be done by the present force in six months.

Two of the attractions of Quincy, which many do not fully appreciate, are the seashore and yachting. It is always a pleasure, we note, to become guests of the local yacht clubs on "Ladies' day." People who are fortunate enough to live near the seashore are often thoughtless of how much better they are situated than those who reside inland.

Quincy's three flourishing yacht clubs have made it possible, by their frequent social events, for those residing inland to visit the sea shore and partake of the hospitalities so freely entended. They are grand good organizations for the city and should be encouraged in over possible way.

George S. Morrill chief engineer of the Plymouth Division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co., is directing the excellent work of Simpson Bros. corporation, in skirting the station at Atlantic with an artificial stone walk, and the work is proceeding with such accomplishment that vacationists returning to Atlantic the lattter part of July, will alight from the train upon a radically changed surface and view the long hoped for improvement which the Patriot has urged; and finally, through the heroic effort of George T. Taylor, Supt. of the Plymouth Division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co., succeeded in establishing. A. R. Poquett the new station agent is much pleased with having his convenience considered by the chief engineer.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Decreases in tax rates seem to be the fashion in Massachusetts this year. Our own promises to drop thirty or forty cents; Haverhill's at $17.40 is twenty cents less than last year, and Lawrence makes a record by reducing eighty cents, or to $16. Lawrence is growing very fast, the valuation increasing nearly $5,000,000 in the year, with a gain of 1541 in polls. With such an increase in wealth the city could afford to raise more by taxation and buy things it really needs—better streets, for instance. But how happy Lowell would be with a $16 tax rate! It would seem like old times.—Lowell Citizen.

City Solicitor Explains the Milton and Quincy Assessments

Editors of the Quincy Daily Ledger.

In the issue of your paper of July 10th an article appeared under the caption "Why! Why! Should Milton's park assessment be but one-half that of Quincy?" This article contained a list of cities and towns showing the amount which each paid for Metropolitan park purposes for the year 1905 and the assessment for the year 1906, and concluded with the following piece of logic,—"Had Quincy had as able representatives and shrewd financiers before the commission as Brookline and some other towns, the rich towns might not have escaped with a reduction in their assessments. Certainly Quincy should pay no more than Milton." While the spirit of the article is somewhat unfair, as the impression conveyed is entirely erroneous, I feel compelled to reply.

Taking the figures as published in your paper I desire to call special attention to the assessment on Boston for 1905 which was $360,279.74 and compare that with $608,794.96 the assessment for the year 1906: Again, take Everett's assessment, a city of almost identical size with Quincy, $8,707.18 in 1905 and $16,917.68 in 1906, or almost double: Also in the cases of the cities of Cambridge, Chelsea, Lynn, Melrose and several towns the assessment for 1906 is considerably larger than in 1905. I would respectfully ask the writer of the article referred to, whether he believes these cities had "able representatives and shrewd financiers before the Commission."

I will now confine myself to answering the question, "Why should Milton's Park Assessment be but one-half that of Quincy?"

The Commission to apportion the Metropolitan Park Assessments sat during the early part of the year 1905 and in September of that year filed its report into court, which was duly accepted by the Supreme Judicial Court on November 10, 1905. The apportionment as made by the Commission holds for five years of which the year 1905 was to have been the first. As the report was not filed in time to permit the State Treasurer to set forth in his warrant to the cities and towns the amount which each should pay upon the new basis, an act of the Legislature was passed being chapter 457 of the Acts of 1905 providing that in case the apportionment for Metropolitan Parks shall not have been determined by July 1 of any year the last apportionment shall remain in force for the purpose of assessment during such current year. The Act further provided that any difference between the apportionment as so made and that under the new apportionment shall be adjusted by the State Treasurer in the assessment of the succeeding year by a deduction therefrom, or an addition thereto, as may be required to give effect to the said apportionment when made.

Therefore the amount which the City of Quincy paid last year was based on the apportionment of the preceding five years with the understanding that in case the payment was too large as shown by the apportionment a deduction would be made on the amount paid in 1906, and vice versa if the proportion of Quincy should have been more, then the difference was to be added to the 1906 payment.

A glance at the figures tells the story.

On Metropolitan Parks, Quincy receives this year a deduction from its assessment of $787.56 overpaid last year. On the Nantasket Beach Reservation, Quincy receives a deduction of $60.48. On Metropolitan Boulevards, Quincy pays additional over its assessment for this year $1,055.21. This makes a difference to Quincy of $207.17 additional on the basis of the new apportionment over what it would have been had the Commission adopted the rule of the prior Commission, and is accounted for by the fact that for the first time betterments were taken into consideration against those municipalities which had been favored by having boulevards constructed within their limits. Had Quincy no boulevard its burden of the expense would have decreased appreciably from the amounts paid heretofore.

The same facts apply as well to Milton, but Milton had overpaid last year under the old basis almost $10,000. So Milton's portion to pay this year instead of being about $16,000, was reduced by its reduction due to the overpayment last year to $6533.55.

In the communication the following paragraph appears:—"Milton has practically the same valuation as Quincy and has received much greater benefits both from reservations and parkways, yet her assessment is only one half that of Quincy." A comparison of the award of the Commission will readily show how misleading is this statement.

The comparative percentages of the cost fixed upon Quincy and Milton for the ensuing five years are as follows:—

PARKS.

Quincy,	.01165
Milton,	.01240

showing Milton's as the larger.

BOULEVARDS.

Quincy,	.02064
Milton,	.04158

the proportion of Milton being more than double that of Quincy.

NANTASKET RESERVATION.

Quincy,	.01161
Milton,	.01236

again showing Milton's percentage the greater.

Reduced to dollars and cents the amounts assessed upon Quincy and Milton for the year 1906 upon figures of the State Treasurer are:

PARKS.

Quincy,	$8360.38
Milton,	$8898.60

BOULEVARDS.

Quincy,	$3259.03
Milton,	$6565.42

NANTASKET RESERVATION.

Quincy,	$646.66
Milton,	$688.44

These are the amounts which Quincy and Milton would have paid this year but for the deductions and increases mentioned.

Assuming that the valuation of both Quincy and Milton were to remain as now for the remainder of the five year period, Milton would annually pay several thousand dollars in excess of Quincy toward Metropolitan parks and boulevards, and so far from her assessment being one half that of Quincy it is in every instance greater.

The foregoing figures may be verified by the report of the Commission and by the State Treasurer.

Respectfully yours,
William R. Thomas,
City Solicitor.

Would Turn It Upside Down

Editor of Daily Ledger:

I much pleased to read in your paper a short time ago, a statement from the Commissioner of Public Works, explaining why the burlap around the trees were turned up sometimes and down at others, and think that a letter, asking another question which is in the minds of many of the Ward Three residents, if published in your paper, might be answered, I venture to write.

On the corner of Franklin and Water streets there stands a drinking fountain which was presented to the city a few years ago. Although it has proved a blessing to children and to older persons and to the poor dog, cat and bird, who have a hard time getting a drink in dry weather, it has not had the water turned on this year. Here it stands rusting out, and in its present condition, is an eyesore to any one.

Now, what I would like to know is, whose duty it is to care for it, and might suggest if it is anyone's duty, that it be so arranged that it can be turned upside down every other week, that we may know if that duty is being performed. If it is no one's duty I hope that the city will have it taken down and thrown in the dump, giving the gang on the corner a little more room, also ridding our city of this seemingly objectionable gift.

Resident of Ward Three.

Claim There Was No Evidence

Exceptions were filed yesterday in the case of Robert G. Proctor by his attorneys Herbert Parker and John W. McAnarney. After reviewing the evidence at length they asked the court to rule as follows:

"First—That there is no evidence upon which the jury would be authorized to find a verdict of guilty, and that the jury must be instructed to return a verdict of not guilty.

"Second—On the entire evidence the defendant is entitled to an acquittal and that a verdict of not guilty must be directed by the court. The court declined so to rule and the defendant duly excepted to the court's refusals to give the said rulings requested. That the court submitted the case to the jury and the jury returned a verdict of guilty. The defendant being aggrieved by the said refusals to rule by the said court, prays that this his bill of exceptions be allowed."

Mr. Proctor, who was formerly secretary of Senator Lodge, was sentenced to ten months in the house of correction for larceny from John G. Bestgen of Quincy. Execution of the order was suspended pending arguments on exceptions.

—The 167 women of Sharon who have petitioned the chief of state police to send some men to drive out the illegal liquor sellers from their town deserve credit. They show commendable public spirit. The local officials are squirming a little under the publicity showered upon them.

Locals and City Brevities

The John R. Graham place has been let through the office of Charles H. Burgess to Mrs. Barnard of Quincy.

The Carr estate on Adams street has been leased through the office of Charles H. Burgess to W. M. Vermilye of Boston.

Miss Georgiana Michael of South Quincy has been the guest of Miss Edith M. Hill of Squantum the past few days.

There has been a rush at the Tax Collector's office for the past few days to pay poll taxes and thus save expense of a summons.

A warrant to kill all unlicensed dogs has been placed in the hands of the police. Dog owners who do not desire to have their pets killed should have them licensed.

It is well to keep good watch on the burlap bands on the trees just now as the gypsy moth caterpillars are crawling. We saw a burlap band this week with fifty or more of the little crawlers. They were about half an inch long. Tanglefoot or printers ink put on thick would not only catch them but kill them also, whereas with the burlap they have to be killed.

Mr. G. Hillman Eggleton formerly of Quincy, while bathing in Lake Erie last Sunday afternoon rescued a young man from drowning. Mr. Eggleton saw the man struggling in the water and swam quickley to his assistance as he was about to go under the water the second time. He carried the man who was in an exhausted condition, out of the water.

MONTCLAIR.

Mrs. D. O. Spinney and children of Roxbury are staying with Mrs. E. F. Parlee for a few days.

Mrs. J. E. Orr and children are visiting relatives in East Braintree.

Mrs. Jane Pope of Squantum street is very ill with malaria.

Mrs. Mary A. Spencer of Squantum street has sold her house to Joseph McCabe of Boston. Mr. McCabe and family are to move in by August 1.

Mr. F. G. Kessler of Pope street, Montclair, has gone to Springfield on business for his firm.

Miss Mamie Murphy of Boston is visiting Mrs. Gross for a few days.

Mr. Melanson of Squantum street suffered a painful accident while repairing the engine of his motor boat. In some way he got his right foot caught and lacerated two toes. He has been confined to the house since the accident.

While Mr. Kessler and family were away for the day, some mischievious person poured acid on their rose bushes and cut several climbing vines almost to the ground. Mr. Kessler has spent much time and expense in beautifying his grounds and therefore such vandalism is unpardonable.

Leo De Lung cut the end off his thumb this week while chopping wood. A doctor was called at once.

The Misses Porter of East Boston, who have been staying with Mrs. E. F. Young this summer, have gone to Orleans for the remainder of the month.

Trained Animals And Cute Ones

The street parade of Washburn & D'Alma's trained animal show was given again this morning and was viewed by crowds in City Square. Owing to the delay of the train which brought the show from Plymouth, the parade advertised for yesterday morning was held in the afternoon.

One of the cutest things in the parade was the little pony, "Prince." Although he is 3 years old, he stands 14 inches high and weighs but 57 pounds.

There was nearly fifty handsome ponies in the parade, as well as three baby elephants, numerous dogs, cage of monkeys, miniature chariots and a fire brigade.

The late arrival yesterday obliged the giving up of the afternoon performance. The evening performance was given, however, and there was a crowd present. Everybody went away well pleased with the performance and the show should draw good houses this afternoon and evening.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquors seized from Paul Panchanco of Quincy, M. Delasandro of Weymouth, and Samuel F. Chase of Braintree were forfeited.

The continued case of Isaac Calter for assault at Quincy was called. Case placed on file, satisfaction having been acknowledged.

Hamid Hassid was arraigned for assault on Moses Hassid at Quincy. Case continned until next Wednesday.

William A. McCabe was fined $10 for assault on Samuel Castleman at Quincy.

—Mrs. Sarah Callender of Hanson, the "adopted grandmother" of the King's Daughters and Sons, died at her home on Thursday aged 88 years.

Interesting Papers At Science Club

The Social Science and Literary club of Atlantic held its closing meeting of the season at the home of the retiring president, Mrs. Chase, 192 Davis street, Wollaston.

A specially interesting featue of this occasion was the consideration of the calendar; subject "Household Economics," different members presenting the various phrases as follows: "The arrangement of Rooms for comfort and convenience," Mrs. Chase; "Furnishing the home," Mrs. Thompson; Food and cookery," Miss Tarbell; "Sanitation," Mrs. Conway; Beauty as a factor in household economics" Mrs. Eastman; "High moral qualities as factors--patience, endurance, generosity, sympathy," Miss Turner; "Intelligence, discretion, frugality," Mrs. Baker.

The result of this interchange of thought was indeed gratifying, so much of value can be given in a few sentences when well chosen and condensed.

Among the invited guests present was Master Albert Coffin, Q. H. S. '06, who read, by request his essay on "Civil Service Reform" for which he had been awarded the prize offered by the club, with the permission of the High school committee, for the best essay written on this subject by the members of the senior class and the post graduates of the Quincy High school. His presentation of the vicissitudes and progress of this important reform under the different administrations of our national government proved most instructive. His paper was evidently the result of much study and preparation, the definitions were clear and concise, and the historical statements systematically arraigned.

At the close of the reading he received the prize, several volumes of the Temple edition of Shakespeare, and the club members felt that in honoring him, they not only honored themselves, but the school system of which he is the product.

A collation closed the afternoon's entertainment, and the guests bade a lingering farewell to their hospitable hostess in her "beautiful home by the sea."

Press Ladies Visit Wonderland

Wednesday afternoon by courtesy of three of its members, Dr. Eunice D. Kinney, Mrs. Edgar Fox and Mrs. Ernest H. Pierce, the N. E. Woman's Press Association enjoyed an outing at Revere beach. A special car conveyed the party from Boston to the beach. The state bath house was inspected under the guidance of the head officials after which a few of the shows were visited, one of the most interesting of which was the trained ponies, dogs and monkeys. The intelligence of these small animals was remarkable. The two fat boys were wonders and attracted much attention. A group picture was taken of the party, after which all found their way to the home of Dr. Kinney where the hostesses served an appetizing lunch of fried clams, sandwiches, coffee, chocolate, salted nuts, punch, etc.

After a restful half hour the evening was passed at Wonderland, where many courtesies were extended. The incubator with its little babies was one of the first places visited. Fire and Flame was one of the biggest attractions and every available seat was occupied. It alone is worth a visit to Wonderland. Trixie, the little white mare, did most wonderful tricks, gathering large audiences at each performance. Hell-Gate created considerable amusement and was not half as bad as some water trips.

The day was delightful as to weather and enjoyment and the fifty press women attending feel much indebted to the three members who planned the outing. Mrs. Bishop of Wollaston and Miss Annie L. Prescott of this city were of the party.

The August Delineator.

A wealth of suggestions for the newest Summer gowns is to be found in the August Delineator, which is interesting not only from the standpoint of fashion, but for its reading as well. Among the fiction of the number is the second instalment of "The Chauffeur and the Chaperon," the delightful motor-boat romance by the Williamsons, authors of many automobile stories. There are numerous articles devoted to the interests of the home;—The kitchen, house furnishing, needlework and dressmaking; and the children's pages include a variety of features having for their purpose the entertainment of young folks.

Miss Turner's Will.

We are informed by Mr. Peter Turner that the statement published in the daily papers that his sister, Miss Mary J. Turner, had made bequests to hospitals, churches, etc., is incorrect. By the will all the property is left to her brother but in case of his death, she left certain instructions for the executors.

BRAINTREE.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester French of Franklin street are summering at Houghs Neck.

Mrs. Harry Newell of Lawrence is visiting Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Brett of Summer street.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Heath of Franklin street spent the first of the week with Mr. and Mrs. Webster Fitton of North Easton.

Friends of Mrs. A. R. Gillette will be sorry to learn of her recent severe accident. On the morning of the Fourth she slipped on a wet board walk, fell and broke her left hip and wrist. She is doing as well as can be expected.

Friends of Miss Nellie McInnis of Calais, Maine, who spent months with her cousin Mrs. George Welsh of Tremont street, will be interested to know that she has entirely recovered her health. It will be remembered that it was found necessary to insert a silver plate in the young lady's heel. Miss McInnis appeared before the convention of doctors recently held in Boston.

Captain Frank Hayward entertained the members of the Lenox club aboard his new 25-foot yacht the Gleaner last Sunday.

Mr. F. O. Wellington of Quincy avenue left on Wednesday for a business trip to Brunswick and Savannah, Georgia.

Rev. R. H. Cochrane of Union church is contempulating a vacation trip to Scotland in August. He will sail for Glasgow and expects to be gone seven weeks. His many friends wish him a pleasant voyage and a delightful season of travel.

A large number from this village attended the wedding of Miss Mabel S. Nash daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Nash of 104 Front street, Weymouth and Frank H. Walsh which took place at the home of the bride Thursday evening. Rev. Melvin S. Nash performed the ceremony. A reception followed. Both the young people are well known in this village.

The Unity Circle of King's Daughters enjoyed an outing last Tuesday. There were thirty-two in the party. At Nantasket Point Wade's famous fish dinners were relished. Following the dinner a short business meeting was held. The party then took the electric car to Nantasket to enjoy the attractions there.

The annual picnic of the Union Congregational Sunday-school will be held on Wednesday, July 18th, at Nantasket beach. Further particulars will be announced at the church next Sunday, the 15th. If stormy the 18th, the picnic will be postponed until the 25th.

Louis W. Chandler and family returned last Sunday from a week's outing at Onset.

Mrs. H. A. Holmes and Miss Mina Hale of Plymouth spent Sunday with Mr. F. H. Sanford and family.

Members of the Pine Tree State club and friends who are going on the basket picnic to Glen Echo park, Wednesday, please leave names with John N. Rodgers of Bridgham Bros., Tuesday morning. Car leaves Braintree at 1.40, South Braintree at 1.50.

State Board Agency.

In order to be ready for business under the new law whereby the State Board of Education is to act as a kind of substitute for a teachers' agency, Secretary Martin has prepared two documents for distribution. In addition, according to the custom of the office, there will be sent to all the public school superintendents and secretaries of school committees in the State, as soon as the supply comes up from the State printers, a copy of the new laws regarding to education. This will bring the law officially to the attention of all the authorities of the public schools. Applications will then be in order.

Call Accepted.

The Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, who has been the popular assistant at St. Chrysostom church for the year past, has been called by the vestry to become the rector. He has accepted the call. Mr. and Mrs. Clattenburg expect to be occupying the rectory next week. Mr. Clattenburg is already making plans for a lawn party to be held soon, the proceeds to be used in helping to pay off the mortgage on the church.

Presidential Boom of Secretary Taft Is Revived

IT WILL SHOCK OTHERS

Proposed Trip to Philippines Leads to Belief That the Secretary Has Given Up Idea of Going to the Supreme Bench

Washington, July 14.—Secretary Taft will make another trip to the Philippine islands next year, if he carries out his present intentions. He has accepted an invitation to attend the opening of the first Philippine assembly, which convenes in the early summer of 1907. According to the tentative program arranged for the secretary he will start for the islands next spring, sailing from San Francisco on a government transport.

Mr. Taft's going may mean the sacrifice, and for the third time, of a seat on the supreme bench, an honor which Secretary Taft believes to be scarcely surpassed by that of the presidency. Associate Justices Day and Holmes today occupy the seats which Taft in the past forfeited in the interest of the Philippines.

Announcement of Taft's intentions will probably give a shock to Fairbanks, Shaw, Cannon and the other aspirants for the presidency. They will at once infer from the secretary's purpose to visit the Philippines again next year that he has given up all idea of ever going on the supreme bench, and that he has resolved to stay in politics with the ultimate ambition of becoming the Republican candidate for the presidency in 1908. It will probably be impossible for the other candidates to read anything else in this move of Taft's.

The president has heartily approved the decision of the secretary to attend the opening of the native assembly and make the address on that occasion. It is a well known fact that Mr. Roosevelt wishes Taft to succeed him in the White House. The president believes firmly that his secretary of war would prove the strongest candidate before the Republican national convention and that he is probably the only man in the country available for the nomination who could defeat Bryan, if the Nebraskan is once more nominated by his party.

Aware of these views of the president, those Republicans who class themselves as possibilities for the presidency will naturally be disconcerted by the announcement of Taft's contemplated trip. The best informed of them had about reached the conclusion that Taft was not to be a candidate.

That Taft is well to the front in the list of probable candidates to succeed Roosevelt there can be no doubt. He would go into the nomination convention backed by the entire weight and influence of the administration.

President Roosevelt has rigidly refrained from attempting to induce Taft one way or the other as between the supreme justiceship and the Republican nomination in 1908. On competent authority it is learned that the president so recently as the week of the adjournment of congress told a friend of his that he was glad the problem was Taft's and not his own; that there were weighty considerations on both sides of the question and that Taft must solve his own problem.

Traveling Students Are Stranded

Antwerp, July 14.—Fifteen American students are stranded here and destitute. The students, desiring to visit Europe, accepted engagements as cattlemen and paid a Philadelphia employment agent $5 each to secure their return passage on any vessel. The cattle shippers declare the contract is not binding on them and decline any responsibility for the return of the students. The latter threaten to prosecute the agent.

Cornell Loses Famous Coach

Ithaca, N. Y., July 14.—Charles E. Courtney has tendered his resignation as coach of the Cornell crews. Courtney has held this position in the Cornell navy 25 years. His present contract has three more years to run, but Courtney has asked for his release from contract. Courtney feels that the Cornell management has been niggardly with the navy and discourteous in its treatment of him personally.

Poles to Study In Austria

Vienna, July 14.—The ministry of education, owing to numerous applications from Russian-Polish students who are unable to continue their studies in their own country, in consequence of revolutionary conditions there, has given permission to pupils of six Russian-Polish cities to enter the University of Lemberg.

Labor Paper's Life Was Short

London, July 14.—The Morning Majority, which describes itself as "the organ of all who work for wage or salary, and bound by no party, no league and no association," and the first number of which was issued the morning of June 10, died with today's issue, "owing to want of sufficient funds."

Martial Law In Guatemala

Panama, July 14.—Private advices received here from Guatemala report that martial law has been declared throughout the whole of that republic and that all male persons above 21 years of age have been called to arms.

As In Dreamland

Idle Hours at Restful Santa Barbara, on the California Coast.

A Stroll on the Hills—The Smiling Channel and the Crescent Beach—Life In the Town — A Land of Flowers Forever.

By MARK BENNITT.

YOU awoke this morning in Santa Barbara. True you came yesterday, but to alight from the train in this old town is very different from coming newly to life from the oblivion of sleep amid such enchantment.

The morning is cool and fresh, and you go forth to new scenes. You have slept late, but it is the fashion here. As you walk down the main street of the town, for all the business is on one long, long, wide thoroughfare, you find the little stores still unopened. The market men and the grocers may have anticipated you, but for other tradesmen early hours were not created. Why, indeed, should they especially bestir themselves when nobody expects it. Besides, there are so many days to follow in which to do business. All the days are alike in Santa Barbara, but such sweet tempered days are they that no one becomes perturbed. A little fog may float in from the ocean, the wind may blow at times, but the sun shines on and on with such amiableness that one lives as in dreamland, a dreamland where all is pleasure and vexation comes not.

Santa Barbara is without factories or industries of any sort visible to the casual wayfarer, unless the care of visitors may be set down as an industry. But who would wish to be industrious in such an atmosphere? Why work when nature demands it not? Why bend the back to wearisome toil or yield the hand to the harsh tools of labor? Let's have a volume of poetry to scan or a guitar to thrum and some old songs to sing. And between the verse and song and melody of strings we'll talk of nothing—nothing but the luxury of idleness, the pleasure of pleasure seeking.

One needs not to enumerate the items that make a city such as this, for each has its complement of banks and churches, schools and business houses, its public library and parks, its railroads and telephones. But every town has not the wide white beach for ocean bathing nor the famous "La Cumbre" trail that leads you to a height of 4,000 feet, there to look down on valley and ocean.

One new dwelling a day is the average of Santa Barbara's growth, says the statistical sharp, and you are glad for those who can shut out the world and dwell in such an Eden.

It is four miles through the base of the Santa Ynez mountains to the little valley on the north of the range. Through this ridge of rock the Santa Barbarans are driving a four mile tunnel to enlarge the water supply of the valley. It is but one item of the great development of the Pacific coast country from British Columbia to the Mexican line. Reservoirs to impound 12,000,000,000 gallons are to be a part of this stupendous water system. The present water supply comes from a tunnel a mile deep, driven into the mountain range. When this new system is done the 12,000 people of the city will have enough for domestic uses and a large area of tillable land will be generously watered for a variety of crops.

There are forests, too, behind the hills, for you noted when you came through Ventura county that the north slopes of the hills were clothed with trees and often thickly wooded. So it is all through the million square miles known as the Great American desert; the northern slopes and canyons are generally forested, while the south exposure, where the sun beats hot and the moisture is soon gone, may be as bare as a bone.

Behind the bare round promontories of the Santa Ynez mountains that stop the north winds that might chill Santa Barbara are cattle ranches and short grass ranges, and the ranchmen drive their animals to Santa Barbara for shipment. Upon the limited area of flatlands around the little city are many gardens and very small farms that are busy the year round. Santa Barbara has but one season—eternal spring. Deciduous trees put forth new leaves in the calendar spring, grow to full leaf in the calendar summer and shed their foliage in the calendar fall. Then they sleep in warmth the calendar winter through. All ages have marveled at the strange processes of life and all the marvelous forces of Nature. One would think it a better economy for all the trees in this mild climate to wear the same garb the year round, but Nature knows not economy, for does she not give, give, give generously always to the sons of men? For a little labor we have much. With a few acres and water enough to moisten them the family that is content to live in summerland and put forth enough effort to till those few acres may live in comfort or even luxury to the end of its days. But the Anglo-Saxon race softens under summer skies. Santa Barbara is a pleasure to be tasted, and should not constitute the whole feast. Horticulture, gardening and the grosser agriculture are industries near by and help to make prosperous the little city of 12,000, but the best crop is the tourists that come in midwinter. The permanent population then applies itself to reducing the often bulging pockets of the visitors and by early summer have cleaned up a nice profit from their willing guests.

When you have breakfasted it is quite the thing to take a walk on the slopes of the Santa Ynez mountains north of the town. These hillsides abound in scenery, yet have but little else. The holly leaved oak with its long acorns and other low growing trees are the principal decorations, except where man has chosen to build a cottage and beautify its surroundings with comely exotics. Naturally you follow the roads that go zigzagging up the tilted landscape. One needs not go far to get a broad view. The city is perhaps three miles long, and presently you have attained a height that commands the whole place from bay to western suburb with one sweep of the vision. The morning sun is brilliantly reflected on the broad, still channel which the Pacific sends around the long group of islands that lie thirty miles off shore. These islands as well as the sheltering coast formation are responsible for the peculiar freedom of Santa Barbara from violent winds. Here the winds have been tamed so effectively that the average movement is less than three miles an hour, a mere breath, sufficient to keep the oxygen in circulation among the quiet trees.

The streets of Santa Barbara are shaded at all times of year with trees that recognize no season. The city is in such full leaf as you look at it from above that the streets seem to have lost their continuity, so hidden are they in the wealth of fresh foliage. White houses with gray roofs accentuate the greenness, and bright colors enliven the general picture. No scene needs be prettier than Santa Barbara bay with its crescent shore and broad promenade, which runs safely beyond the swells that break on the sands. The twin towers of the old mission are prominent in the right foreground, the daily shrine of the penitent for considerably more than a hundred years.

Santa Barabara lies in a little valley that is open at both ends. It is close to the foothills, and its eastern streets run to the bay. South of the town is a high promontory that gives the city additional protection from the ocean during its harsher moods. This range of hills extends westerly several miles before it breaks away and the railway comes again to the ocean cliffs. The city might live without the tourist, but not so happily. She gives generous measure of charm and pleasure for all she exacts in products of the mint. The place was sought by tourists long before a railroad invaded the sanctity of these venerable hills. Steamers touched at the pier or stood at anchor in the offing years and years before the iron horse pranced along the cliffs and snorted his steaming nostrils behind the green hills of this pleasure spot in defiance of any wish of the old padres and friars to live thus out of the profane world. Santa Barbara was thus courted in her youth by many admirers, and it was inevitable that with her many irresistible charms she should become the bride of the world, wedded with the ring of steel. She is a matron now, the hostess of all whose opportunities take them along the southern coast of California.

From the sun bath on the hills and the dreamy contemplation of manifold beauties you return to the city, now gay with pleasure seekers. Smart rigs go by. Equestrians on stylish mounts pass you, chatting. Even the auto vehicle is here, and you twist your neck to note a conveyance so out of harmony with all else. This is no place for the strenuous.

Now you are among the shady lanes. The Monterey pine spreads his long symmetrical branches above you. The eucalyptus, or blue gum, springs a hundred feet aloft. The acacias, magnolias, pepper trees, the Australian silk oak and Norfolk island pines give pleasing variety to the embowerment of the city. So many are the flowers and so little considered are they by the natives that to pluck one would be equivalent to saying, "I am from the land of the snows." But many eastern people have homes and grand gardens here, and in them the plants and flowers seem to thrive best, perhaps because more prized and petted. The poinsettia, with deeply scarlet terminal leaves, is strongest of the color decorations. Here it has the stature of a small tree. The datura, with its swaying, delicate bells and large, soft leaves, also grows tree-like. Of the many vines that climb over porch and fence and trellis the most brilliant is the bougainvilea of Australia, with many magenta flowers. The lantana grows rank and bears thousands of beautiful, delicate flowers in many shades. Here are the white and purple solanum, the Bignonia venusta, the jasmine, honeysuckle and trumpet vine and the Tacoma vine, with purple, white centered blossoms. Of palms there are many in the yards and by the roadside, the date palm, the seaforthia, the large and small fan palms and the cocoa palm, or Cocos plumosa.

ON THE PACIFIC SLOPE.

Specimens of asbestus have been brought to Boise from the Thunder mountain region.

A syndicate of Philadelphia capitalists is buying a number of electric lighting and power plants in the Willamette valley, Oregon.

In the smaller cities of Oregon the pay of grade teachers in the public schools is from $40 to $50 a month. A superintendent of schools receives about $85 a month.

Certain towns in the state of Washington have imposed a tax of $100 upon merchants who use trading stamps. On payment of the sum a license certificate is issued.

Harry Thaw Awaiting Funds From Maternal Purse

INQUIRY INTO PAST LIFE

A Woman Has Suits Pending Against Him, One Specific Charge Being Assault--Insanity Plea to Be Abandoned

New York, July 14.—Harry K. Thaw, in the Tombs for the murder of Stanford White, is reported to be without funds, and it is stated that the elaborate plans which have been made for his defense cannot be put into execution until the prisoner's mother arrives from Europe and approves the necessary expenditures.

Harry Thaw's income under his father's will is but $2500 a year, and all that he has spent above this amount has come from his mother's purse. It is said Mrs. Thaw has allowed her son as high as $80,000 a year, none of which he has available now in the hour of his need.

What money the young man has had since he has been in jail has been supplied personally by his counsel, pending the arrival of Mrs. William Thaw. The prisoner has been lavish in his tips since he was confined, and the Tombs caterer has orders to supply him with everything he wishes. Upon a physician's order Thaw is allowed champagne with his dinner.

In prosecuting his inquiry into the past life of Thaw, Assistant District Attorney Garvan had an interview with Joseph A. Shea, a lawyer of this city, and obtained papers in a case in which Shea is counsel for a Miss Ethel Thomas, who has several suits pending against the prisoner. The suits grew out of alleged former relations existing between Thaw and Miss Thomas. One specific charge is that of assault, for which the plaintiff asks $20,000 damages. While the suits have been pending some time, it is said, the subject matter is of such a character that it has never been published.

For the next few days there will be a lull in the prosecution of the Thaw inquiry, as District Attorney Jerome, accompanied by Assistants Garvan and Vandiver, leaves today for a short trip to the south.

It is reported that Thaw's counsel have decided to abandon the insanity plea, although no verification of the statement can be obtained. It is said that this was the "good news" Mrs. Evelyn N. Thaw took to her husband in the Tombs. Thaw is reported to have said that he preferred death in the electric chair to life in an insane asylum. He prefers to have his acts judged as those of a sane man, and is confident that he will not be convicted.

Robbery Was Motive For Murder

Minneapolis, July 14.—The motive for the National hotel murder was fully explained when the safety deposit box of the railroad conductor, F. M. Riggs, was opened. In it were found two $1000 bills which Miss Ellison owned and a gold ring which Riggs had torn from the hand of his victim and a watch which she had worn. After having killed Miss Ellison in her room at the hotel, Riggs took out his train for Elroy, Wis., where he committed suicide after being arrested.

Dead Girl's Companion Not Found

Utica, N. Y., July 14.—The body of Grace Brown of Otseli, who was drowned in Big Moose lake, has been identified by her father, who states that the young man last seen in the company of his daughter was Chester Gillette. Whether Gillette was Miss Brown's companion on the lake has not been ascertained, but the authorities are conducting an investigation. No trace of the man has yet been found.

No Light on Kinan Tragedy

New York, July 14.—The coroner's inquest into the death of Mrs. Alice L. Kinan, who was found beaten to death at the home of her mother, Mrs. Louise M. Stenton, in the Bronx, was adjourned last night until Monday next. Neither the coroner nor the lawyers could get a coherent statement from Mrs. Stenton. Nothing of apparent importance has been developed.

Czar Mourns For Chouknin

St. Petersburg, July 14.—Emperor Nicholas sent the following dispatch to the widow of Admiral Chouknin: "I am heartily touched by the distressing news of the death of your husband. His loss is a great one to me and to the fleet. I divide your misfortune and sorrow, which God strengthen you to support."

Cruiser Rests on Mud

Kingston, Jam., July 14.—The Italian cruiser Umbria, from Porto Rico, grounded on a mudbank coming up the channel. She is still ashore, but resting easily. The wrecking steamer Premier has gone to her assistance.

London Social Season Closed

London, July 14.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra last evening held at Buckingham palace the fourth and final court, marking the close of the London season. The attendance was not so large as at former courts.

Russia Loses Torpedo Boat

Helsingfors, July 14.—During maneuvers in the Baltic sea a Russian torpedo boat struck a mine sunk off Bjorko last night. The boat was completely demolished, but all of the crew were saved.

Bank Money Orders

We have been selected by the American Bankers' Association to guarantee their new Bank Money Orders, and are the only Company authorized to furnish such guaranty.

These Orders are the newest convenience in sending money. Instead of going to the Post or Express Office, apply for money orders to a bank that is a member of the Association.

Our selection for this responsible duty is further evidence of the preference accorded our suretyship by the leading financiers of the country.

TEN YEARS IN PRISON

Sentence of Woman Who Performed an Illegal Operation

Boston, July 14.—Ellen Bickford, 56 years of age, was sentenced to 10 years in the reformatory for women at Sherburne as the penalty for having caused the death of Elizabeth Cosgrove by an illegal operation.

When Mrs. Bickford was placed at the bar she seemed to be a mental and physical wreck, and it was stated by a medical man who took the stand in her behalf that this was the consequence of her own immoral conduct.

Dr. Good of the city hospital said that Miss Cosgrove had told him that she had taken an oath on a Bible, in the presence of the woman who had performed the operation, that she would not divulge any of the facts.

The defendant in her own defense said that she and several doctors had established a dispensary at 9 Paris street, East Boston, and that she went out nursing. The doctors dropped off one by one and then she ran the dispensary herself.

Scare on a Steamer

Boston, July 14.—Two boys' experiment of dropping the rudder pin into its socket on the steamboat Adelaide as she was coming up the harbor last night tied up the steering gear of the vessel and resulted in the collision of the steamer and two yachts. The latter were considerably damaged and there was great excitement on board the steamer until the cause of the mishap was discovered. No one was injured.

Murderer Sent to Native Land

Providence, July 14.—Pedro Jaswell, a murderer, who was pardoned by Governor Utter provided he return to Italy, went to New York last night with Deputy Sheriff Giran. He will sail from there today for Sonora, Italy, where he will be taken in charge by the authorities and confined in an institution for the criminal insane. Jaswell was sentenced to life imprisonment five years ago.

Delicate Surgical Operation

Bridgeport, Conn., July 14.—At the Bridgeport hospital a portion of the base of the brain of Mrs. Rebecca Moulthrop was removed for the relief of facial neuralgia. It is stated that there is every reason to believe that the operation was successful in every way, although this cannot be positively ascertained until a few days have elapsed.

Death In Runaway Accident

Bangor, Me., July 14.—Mrs. Sarah A. McLaughlin, aged 73, was killed at Hermon Centre by being thrown from her carriage. The horse took fright and ran away, Mrs. McLaughlin being thrown out and her skull fractured. Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Josiah McCobb, was also thrown out, but not seriously injured.

Attempt to Wreck Train

Keene, N. H., July 14.—Spikes were drawn from the outer rail of a curve on the railroad two miles north of Marlboro by an unknown man in an attempt to wreck a train. Discovery of the loose rail was made a few minutes before an express was due to pass and an accident was averted.

Old Woman an Alleged Firebug

Providence, July 14.—Alice Jones, 60 years old, was arraigned in court on a charge of setting three fires to the dwelling house of Walter V. McGinn. She pleaded not guilty and was committed to jail without bonds for trial next Friday.

Disaster Overtakes a Family

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 14.—After its father and one sister had been hurled to death by a train from a trestle near here last night and the mother and three other children fearfully injured, a nine-months-old baby of Elijah Norris was found between the ties unhurt. Norris, his wife and five children had been visiting at Jacksonburg and were walking home on the railroad. The mother and three of the children will probably recover.

Deputy Sheriff Killed by Italians

Prescott, Wis., July 14.—Deputy Sheriff Hammil and City Marshal Isaacs of Prescott went among 50 Italians employed in railroad track work near here and served warrants on several men wanted for violations of the game laws. Six of the Italians attacked the officers with shovels, beating Hammil to death and wounding Isaacs so badly that he was left for dead. The assailants of the officers escaped. Posses are in pursuit.

Prisoners Harshly Treated

Yelisavetgrad, July 14.—Trouble broke out here last night when a convoy of political prisoners which had arrived during the day refused to go further. The guards beat the prisoners with the butts of their guns. One of the prisoners was shot dead. A peasant, for remonstrating with the guards, was killed on the spot. Order was finally restored.

Four Thousand Already Killed

Lisbon, July 15.—According to intelligence received here the insurrection in Matto Grosso, Brazil, is swelling to huge proportions. The insurgents, it is reported, have organized a large army and are marching on Rio Janeiro, and already have captured several cities. Fearful carnage is reported and the killed are said to be already more than 4000.

Unreliable Stories From Russia

Washington, July 14.—The American vice consul general at Warsaw has cabled the state department that foreign press correspondents have been misled by erroneous reports into informing their papers that there was reason to fear massacres in Warsaw and Lodz.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Go Between First Selling Plater to Win Classic Suburban Handicap. Annette Kellerman's Astounding Swimming Exploit---Golfer Braid.

Go Between, the winner of the Suburban handicap of 1906, held, as usual, at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., is the present sensation of the turf year. Go Between, originally a member of the despised "selling plater" class, was never ranked better than a second rater until this season, when he surprised the talent by winning three races out of six or seven starts.

In these three races he defeated such well known horses as Kiamesha, Proper and Inquisitor. But as Kiamesha and Proper were not then in any kind of good shape Go Between's Suburban chances, based on those performances, did not appreciably brighten.

Go Between won in the fast time of 2:05 1-5, one-fifth slower than the record established by Hermis in 1904.

Annette Kellerman, the phenomenal young Australian girl swimmer, has broken all records in a trial swim, making a distance of about twenty-three miles in 13 hours in the Danube river, aided by the current for a part of the distance.

Miss Kellerman, who is now twenty years old, bids fair to establish her claim to the title of champion long distance woman swimmer of the world. At the age of fifteen she won the amateur championship for a mile swim and has since secured all of the Australian amateur records. She has an exceptional muscular development for her age and is five feet seven inches in height and weighs 148 pounds.

James Braid, the Huddersfield golf professional, at the Muirfield links recently won the open golf championship of Great Britain for the third time.

On the last day Braid opened with par 3 at the first hole, but he made a slight mistake at the next, which cost him 5. Afterward he played steadily and did the outward journey in 38. His play on the return journey was equally good. With two holes to play he had ten strokes to win, and then, to the delight of the spectators, he ran down fifteen yards, put at the seventeenth and, taking the last in 4, won the championship with three strokes to spare.

Braid's victory gives him rank as the world's greatest golfer.

When You've Got All.

An advertiser quits advertising because, he says, "I have all the business I can handle." That is an extremely short-sighted view to take of the matter. If the business is getable, it would pay to enlarge the house, borrow money, hire more people, or lay in larger stocks. Nobody in this day and time should rest content with the business already being done. This is an age of expansion and progress, and advertising is the lever which lifts the new business out of its hiding place and brings it to light of day. The fellow who continually advertises and then makes sufficient arrangement to take care of the business that is brought thereby, is the one who makes the biggest success.—Press and Printer.

—Lighting at Terrys bridge Connecticut, Wednesday, struck a bed, in which the young son of Harvey Johson was sleeping, splintered the headpost, but the child unharm. A bed in which Mrs. Johson was lying was also struck and she escaped unhurt. At J. W. Warner's farm barways were splintered and thrown into a hay field, and another bolt made a long furrow in a row of potatoes, exposing the tubers.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The general average of the vaudeville shows offered at Keith's during the summer months are fully up to the standard of those presented during the winter seasons. The variety program announced for the week of July 16 contains a number of attractions new to that playhouse, including several European features. Prominent in the former will be found Gus. Edwards' School Boys and School Girls, nine youthful singers, dancers and comedians, who present a "young" comic opera, entitled, "Primary No. 23". The scene is laid in a schoolroom and all the songs are of the decidedly "catchy" order. The surrounding show is capitally balanced and includes Jehan, skilful European juggler and his funny assistant, Arthur; Josselyn trio of aerial acrobats; Nat LeRoy and Minnie Woodford, mirth-provoking crossfire conversationalists, and the Hickman Brothers, grotesque acrobats. The Fadettes will make their usual weekly change of selections and the customary list of motion pictures will be exhibted in the kinetograph.

Highland Park.

The well known opera bouffe, "Girofle-Girofla" will be the attraction at Highland Park next week. For summer amusement, nothing appeals to the public fancy more than light opera. What is more refreshing than to sit in a comfortable summer park and see a good comic opera interpreted by an A1 company of artists with an excellent chorus. This presentation of LeCocq's familiar "Girofle-Girofla" will no doubt please the most exacting.

Rev. George Crediford of Sandwick has accepted a call to the East Milton Congregational church and will assume the pastorate the first of September. In the meantime Rev. Edward Norton will supply during July and the church will be closed during August.

fire had been lighted under her boiler, and as she flew down Quincy avenue, great clouds of black smoke and sparks came from her stack.

The run made by the steamer was as follows: Quincy avenue, Scammell, South, Sumner, Main, Union South Walnut and Elm streets to Quincy avenue, thence to the hydrant on the corner of Water and Quincy avenue. The route taken was fully a mile and a half, and but eight minutes had been consumed from the sonnding of the gong until Water street had been reached. The guage on the steamer registered ten pounds.

Two hundred feet of hose was laid and coupled to the steamer, and it was ready for water, but it was necessary to wait for more steam. It was not a long wait, however, for in 11 minutes, 18 seconds, from the sound of the gong she had made her run, got up steam and was working.

Everybody who witnessed the drill were very much pleased and high in their praise of the efficiency of the men. Everybody worked in harmony, and as harmony among firemen is what is needed for good service the citizens can congratulate themselves that such conditions exist in the department today.

After the exhibitions the guests and members of the companies repaired to the rooms on the second floor of the station where a lunch was served.

Railroad Fatality

David Work Killed at Midnight at Quincy Adams

John Erwin and Arthur Kelley, two Penn street young men, made a ghastly find at midnight Saturday night on the railroad tracks at South Quincy near the sheds of Long & Saunders. The young men were crossing the tracks from Franklin to Penn street on their way home. As they stepped onto the track they were horrified to see the body of a man lying on the tracks. Examination showed that the body had been cut in two.

The police were notified and the body taken to Hall's undertaking rooms.

From papers found in the clothing, the man was identified as David Work, formerly of Quincy but recently of Milford, N. H.

Mr. Work was a stone cutter, and lived in Quincy for a number of years. He had been at work recently at Milford and was on a visit to Quincy.

Just how the accident happened will probably never be definitely known. From investigation made by the police, however, it is believed that he came from Boston on the late train. Alighting at the Quincy Adams station he is thought to have started to walk up the tracks. There are two freight trains due about this time. One known as the "Double Iron" an outward train, and the other as the Whitman freight, the engine of which backs in.

It is thought that Work stepped from the outward rail to allow the Double Iron to pass, and stepped directly in front of the Whitman freight.

Mr. Work who was about 40 years of age was a member of Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., and Manet Encampment. He leaves a widow and one child.

Funeral of Richard Prout

On Saturday the funeral took place of the late Richard Prout, from his residence on Granite street. The deceased was a member of the Sons of St. George, (Anglo Saxon lodge No. 13, of Philadelphia) and having been under the care of Granite lodge 193, of Quincy, the members of Granite lodge turned out in large numbers to pay a last tribute to their late brother, under the leadership of Worthy President Bro. Edward Warmington.

A service was held in the home by the Knights Pythias of which order the deceased was also a respected member, after which the cortege proceeded to Mount Wollaston cemetery. The pall bearers were three past presidents of Granite lodge and three members of the Knights Pythias.

On arriving at the cemetery the Sons of St. George took charge, and an impressive service was held at the grave. The funeral service was read by President E. Warmington, and a prayer offered by Past President T. J. Smith, after which the Sons of St. George quartet rendered "Farewell my Brother" in touching strains, while the remaining "sons" each cast into the grave a piece of evergreen, as a last token of esteem for their departed brother. Great sympathy is felt for the widow and family, who are left to mourn the loss of one from whom it was hard to part.

Interclub Race.

The Mellwood owned by L. O. Crocker was the winner in Class D at the interclub race in Dorchester bay on Saturday. Several Quincy cats were in this class and they followed the Mellwood in this order: Arawak, Marvel, Josephine, Iris, Hustler and Argester. The Alpha won in Class A, the Poor Boy in Class B, the Violet in Class C and Dr. Davis' Warwenock in the special class.

South Quincy Raid.

Chief Burrell, Lieut. McKay and Officer Thorne raided the premises of John McFarland at 61 Franklin street early Sunday morning, and seized a pint of whiskey. McFarland and Robert Whiteacre were arrested for violation of the liqour law.

Dr. Wales Goes to Indiana

After several years of successful practice in Boston and vicinity Dr. Ernest De Wolfe Wales of the Harvard Medical school has been elected to the faculty of the Indiana college of Physicians and Surgeons. Dr. Wales has accepted the position and will leave Aug. 1 to enter upon his new duties.

Dr. Wales has made a specialty of diseases of the ear, nose and throat. For some years he has had an office at 282 Berkely street and another office at his residence at Braintree. He resigned from his position at the Harvard Medical school on July 1 and also severed his connections with the Eye and Ear Infirmary. He is 33 years old, married and has two children. It is said that the College of Physicians and Surgeons is about to be amalgamated with the University of Indiana and that many changes are contemplated in the two institutions.

Dr. Wales is a son of Mr. George O. Wales of Braintree, and well known in this vicinity where he still resides and passed his boyhood. He is consulting specialist on the diseases of the ear, nose and throat at the Quincy Hospital.

New City Hall.

A beautiful new City Hall is dedicated at Marlboro today, to replace the one destroyed by fire. There are three floors and a basement each covering about 7000 square feet. It is constructed of light Roman brick with terra cotta trimming. C. F. Knowlton, formerly of Quincy, is superintendent of streets in Marlboro, and has an office in this building.

Base Ball

Merrymounts Defeat the Boston Unions Makaria Win

The Merrymounts won from the hard hitting Boston Unions at Merrymount park on Saturday by a score of 8 to 4.

The hitting of the two teams was about even, but the Merrymounts did the better fielding and ran bases with plenty of dash.

MacIntyre and Thompson did the best hitting for the visitors, and Cartland did some good fielding. For the home team Kappler had plenty to do, and did it well. Bennett and Baker made catches of difficult flies.

Boston Union started off with a rush in the first inning. Gartland was hit by an in shoot and took first; Jones bunted and was safe on Baker's wide throw; Smith hit to Cole who threw to home too late to get Gartland; Foley walked and McIntyre singled, scoring Jones, but Smith was nailed at the plate by Osgood's throw to Taylor. Kendrick singled and was doubled up when Attridge lined out to Kappler.

For Merrymount, Baker was thrown out by Smith, Osgood sent an easy roller to Kendrick, who let it go by; Osgood stole second and Stevens hit to Kendrick who again foozled. Kappler fanned but Cole singled and Taylor was passed to first. Gram, Bennett and Kolson singled and Baker closed the inning by popping up a fly to Jones.

With two out in the second Gartland doubled, and scored on Jones single. In the third Ring, who replaced Kendrick, singled and stole second, but was left.

In the eighth, McIntyre registered his third safety. Ring fanned but Taylor missed the third, strike. Attridge hit to Kappler who threw to Baker, who tagged McIntyre. Callahan fanned but Thompson doubled scoring Ring. Gartland was thrown out by Kappler.

The visitors were quickly retired in the ninth. Jones was thrown out by Baker, Smith hit a fly to short left which Bennett got after a narrow escape of collision with Kappler, and Foley popped up a fly for Kolson.

Merrymounts scored one in the third on Bennett's safe bunt and steal; Kolsons single and Bakers fly to centre. In the seventh Cole was safe on a scratch; Taylor laid down a bunt that Jones juggled. Gram was thrown out by Thompson and Bennett flied to Smith. Cole and Taylor scored on Ring's error on Kolson's tap. Kolson went to second on the throw home but was left when Baker fouled to Attridge. It was one, two, three for the home team in the eighth, but no runs were needed, and Merrymount had scored its fourth straight victory over the Boston Unions.

The full score.

South Quincys Win in Ninth

At the Ward Three playgrounds on Saturday the home team and the Burnham A. A. played a very exciting, interesting and close game, the result being in doubt until the last man crossed the plate for South Quincy in the ninth inning on a hit by Kiley.

The score stood 1 to 1 after the eighth. In the Burnhams half of the ninth they scored one run, but the South Quincy scored two. After Duffy had been put out they were hits by Spargo, Dunn and Kiley.

The features of the game were the hitting of Forbes, Spargo, Dunn and Kiley, the pitching of Collins, who allowed the Burnhams only four hits, and the three double plays of Duffy, Kiley and Birnie.

For Burnham the whole infield put up a snappy fielding game.

The score by innings was:

Umpire, Craig. Time, 1 hr., 30 min.

Next Saturday the South Quincy club will meet the strong Neponset-Dorchester team, and with Kelly of South Boston and Forbes as the battery for South Quincy against Patterson of South Quincy and Murray for Neponset-Dorchester, a very interesting game may be expected.

Makaria Win In Close Game

Makaria defeated the Washington Social club at Merrymount Park, Saturday afternoon, 8 to 7 in one of the best games of the season. The Makaria won by bunching their hits at the right time. The score:

Fourteen Innings.

One of the most interesting ball games of the season was played on the Owl field at Quincy Point on Saturday when Quincy Point A. A. team defeated the Married Men by the score of 9 to 8. At the end of the ninth inning the score was 8 to 8 and it took five innings for the Quincy Point A. A. to win. In the 14th inning, with two men on bases, two out and two strikes called Alfred Thayer made a safe hit bringing in the winning run. The batteries were Smith and Brown for the winners and R. Newcomb and Richardson for the losers. The score by innings:

Democrats at Squantum.

The Ward 20 Democratic club of Boston, known as the "red devil" democracy, held an outing on Saturday at Squantum. Speeches were made by ex Mayor Quincy, Gen. C. W. Bartlett, ex-Congressman John R. Thayer, ex-Mayor McNamee of Cambridge, and Senator Cussick. Joseph F. O'Connell was boomed for Congressman in the Tenth District, but the candidacy of John B. Moran was not looked upon with favor.

Miss Gertrude Hearnline, the genial saleswoman in Miss Gorham's store, Wollaston, is spending her vacation in Newburyport.

Order Signed

Atlantic Will Have New $61,000 Schoolhouse

Mayor Thompson has signed the order calling for an appropriation of $61,000 for a new school building at Atlantic, and there is great rejoicing in the sixth ward over the prospect of having a new twelve-room school building in the near future.

COUNCILMAN SAWYER

The building will be located on the Newbury avenue lot purchased by the city a few years ago at a cost of $15,000.

All of the Atlantic councilman, particularly Councilman Sawyer, chairman of the Public Buildings committee, have worked hard for this building and deserve great credit for the final passage of the order. Councilman Sawyer has worked diligently from the first, getting plans for the building and then not allowing matters to drag.

The pen with which Mayor Thompson signed the order will probably be presented to Councilman Sawyer. The Mayor did not sign the order until satisfied that the financial condition of the city would warrant the expenditure.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Milton and Quincy are not the only issue in the Metropolitan park apportionment. The City Solicitor has enlightened Quincy people considerably, but the fact remains that the new apportionment is much more favorable to the rich towns like Brookline, Milton and Newton, while Quincy, Everett, Chelsea and others must pay larger assessments.

Milton's assesment in 1905 on the old basis of apportionment was $21,897.46. Under the new apportionment in 1906, before any addition or deductions, it was $16,152.46, a cut of about 25 per cent.

At the same time Quincy's assessment increased from $9,448.80 to $12,266.07, over 30 per cent.

For the next three years Milton will pay but $4,000 more annually for Metropolitan parks than Quincy, yet it receives far greater benefits from reservations and boulevards. Have you seen the work done in Milton near Mattapan?

Mrs. Thaw has announced that she intends to "tell all" and those of us who haven't forgotten how, may as well prepare to blush.

One of the Toledo ice dealers who got squeezed, is named Lemmon. The addition of a few other ingredients, would now add considerably to the enjoyment of the occasion.

Does Mr. Bryan expect the common people to continue to toss their $1.98 hats for him, if he puts in his time in London, hobnobbing with lords and riding in automobiles.

The City Council should not adjourn for the summer without making an appropriation for the High school furnishings. Too great an injustice has already been done to present pupils by delay on enlargement.

Locals and City Brevities

There are no scheduled events for this week by either of the local yacht clubs.

George Troupe of Cranch street is visiting relatives and friends in Carmel, Maine.

Miss Bessie Pratt of Independence avenue is spending the summer at Lyndeboro, N. H.

Mrs. James H. Penniman and Miss Ruth Penniman of Hancock street are at the Cliff House, North Scituate beach.

Quite a party of Quincy people visited Plymouth on Sunday, making the trip by boat from Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Shorter of Wyandotte, Mich., are the proud parents of an eight pound baby girl. Mother and daughter are doing well.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. It is probable that an adjournment will be taken for the summer vacation.

Mrs. Ella Hayden, president of W. R. C. sewing circle, will have a meeting of the circle at her home, River street, on Friday afternoon.

The street railway did an unusually large business on Sunday. Every car the company had, both open and closed, was in use and two and three cars were run on every trip on all lines.

On Sunday morning the pastor of the Point church preached from the subject of "Boys." The boys club of the church, together with the Baraca boys from South Weymouth and their parents and friends, were present.

Sought to Settle the Dispute In Central America

INVASION OF TERRITORY

Time For Arbitration Between Belligerents Passed With the Death of Regalado, Leader of the Salvadorian Troops

Washington, July 16.—Both Guatemala and Salvador have accepted the tender of the good offices of this government looking to a settlement of their differences. This information is conveyed in official dispatches received at the state department from the American diplomatic representatives in Guatemala and Salvador, announcing that the two belligerent countries have availed themselves of the tender of the good offices of the United States looking to their approaching each other in a conference having in view an adjustment of their differences, the cessation of hostilities and the bringing about of peace.

The advices to the state department, it is stated, make no reference to the question of declaration of war, regarding which President Bonilla of Honduras yesterday announced that Honduras had made no declaration of war and that "Guatemala invaded territory without previous declaration."

It is stated that while both Guatemala and Salvador have accepted in principle the proposition for a peace conference, the question of arbitration would be a subject of future consideration. A fortnight ago there was a disposition on the part of the belligerents to arbitrate. The question then was whether Guatemala had injured Salvador by harboring insurgents on her territory or whether Salvador, by doing the same thing, had injured Guatemala.

But the recent battle, with the death of General Regalado, the former president of Salvador and the leader of the Salvadorean troops, changed the situation. It is pointed out that, as no territorial or boundary question is in dispute, the matter of indemnity for invasion of territory would be a main question before the peace conference.

So far no advices have reached this government regarding the battle which took place Saturday night, regarding which, it is stated in Salvador advices, the Salvadorean army defeated the Guatemalan forces at Platanar.

The advices regarding the Central American situation were forwarded to the president at Oyster Bay by Acting Secretary of State Bacon, who is in charge of state department affairs during the absence of Secretary Root.

Mr. Bacon made arrangements to leave Washington for Oyster Bay on the midnight train last night. It is understood he is carrying dispatches and other papers bearing on the situation to lay before the president. All that Bacon would say regarding the situation was that everything is progressing favorably.

The navy department had no advices from Central America yesterday in connection with the troubles there.

It is stated that the next step looking to peace negotiations is the fixing of the time and place for a meeting of conferees and that while these matters are being determined the American diplomatic representatives in Guatemala and Salvador will be the mediums through which communications will be exchanged. This procedure may consume some time.

Washington officials are now hopeful of a peaceful adjustment of the differences which have brought the Central American governments to a clash at arms.

Two Thousand Lost In One Fight

San Salvador, July 16.—Saturday night the Salvadorean army again attacked the Guatemalan forces at Platanar and obtained a victory over them, the Guatemalans suffering a loss of 2000 men in killed, wounded and prisoners.

The Guatemalan army, which invaded by way of Santa Fe, was repulsed by the Honduran army.

Honduras is making common cause with Salvador.

Settlement at Any Moment

New York, July 16.—The following dispatch has been received from Leocadio Gramajo, private secretary to Manuel Cabrera, president of Guatemala:

"It is possible that the efforts of President Roosevelt to secure a peaceful settlement of the difficulty between Guatemala and Salvador may result successfully at any moment."

Gave Worthless Securities

Pittsburg, July 16.—William H. Hooper, 44 years old, of New York, was arrested here last night at the request of the New York police. The charge on which Hooper is arrested was not made known, but it was said that several weeks ago he negotiated a loan with Mrs. Hunter Blair, amounting to $25,000, for which he is alleged to have given worthless securities.

Havoc by Lightning

Chicago, July 16.—A boy was killed and four others were seriously burned by lightning while seeking shelter from a rainstorm under a tree on the Lake Shore drive. Several buildings in Chicago were struck by lightning and set on fire, the most seriously damaged being the residence of Archbishop Quigley, on which the loss is $10,000.

RATHER SUDDEN STOP

Express Train Crashes Into Empty Coal Cars on Sidding

Lawrence, Mass., July 16.—A Bar Harbor express, due here at 9:32 last night on its way to Boston, unexpectedly took a siding in the freight transfer yard at South Lawrence and crashed into a line of empty coal cars at full speed. None of the passengers was hurt. Though the engineer and fireman were somewhat scratched and bruised, their injuries were not severe enough to make medical attention necessary. Their escape was fortunate, as the engine, after ploughing its way through half a dozen freight cars, turned over on its side.

The coach next to the engine was empty. This received the full impact of the collision and was completely crushed, while the seven coaches following it escaped injury, and the passengers in them had no worse experience than a severe shaking up, due to the sudden stop.

A Much-Needed Cleansing

New Orleans, July 16.—A remarkable city house-cleaning party last night placed 150 negro men and women on board a passenger train at Lake Charles, La., and shipped them out of the town. The negro tenderloin, known as the "hole in the wall," was invaded by several hundred white men. House after house was visited, the inmates not being even given time to dress. The motley group was marched under guard of pistols to a water tank about a mile from town and a passenger train was stopped and the negroes put aboard.

Favor Paying Poll Tax

Boston, July 16.—Several hundred delegates to the Central Labor union yesterday lent their assistance to Garrett W. Scollard, city collector, in his efforts to get the poll taxes into the city treasury, by passing a motion to have the delegates take back to their unions a request that every citizen of Boston should see to it that his poll tax is paid up to date. This action was taken in answer to an appeal from the city collector.

Narrow Escape of Four Men

Portsmouth, N. H., July 16.—The sloop Bothfeld of Boston, with dredging apparatus owned by the Eastern Dredging company, working at Henderson's point, went down in 45 feet of water. Four men escaped with no clothing and had just reached the shore when the sloop sank. The accident was caused by either a leak or the sloop may have hung up on her spuds.

Officials' Death Called For

Baku, July 16.—A new terroristic party, styling itself "The Red Squadron," is spreading anarchistic propaganda in this section. The members of this party say the present is no time to bandy words, but to answer the repressions of the government with the death of officials. The circulars call upon workmen to "speak the language of the cartridge and the bomb."

From Frying Pan to Fire

Boston, July 16.—In trying to avoid running down a crowd of boys by his automobile, Frank J. Hill of Stoughton drove into collision with an electric car and also ran over a boy at the corner of Humboldt and Bluehill avenues. Mr. and Mrs. Hill were thrown out and injured, but not dangerously. Isaac Leskinky, 10 years old, has internal injuries and a scalp wound.

Changes In Battleships

Provincetown, Mass., July 16.—The battleships Illinois and Missouri arrived here after undergoing repairs at the Boston navy yard. Both ships have had important changes made in their turret mechanism with a view to safeguarding the officers and crew from the liability of explosions of ammunition during gunfire.

Postoffice Robbed of $1000

Baltimore, July 16.—The postoffice at Glenburnie, eight miles from this city, was robbed of about $1000 last night. Postmaster Wingert had just opened the safe doors to put in the day's receipts when he was knocked senseless. When he recovered consciousness later he was bound hand and foot and gagged.

Vanderbilt Horse Won

Paris, July 16.—The prize of the president of the republic, valued at $20,000, was won easily at Maisons-Laffitte by W. K. Vanderbilt's Maintenon, with the American jockey, Ransch, in the saddle. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth witnessed the race.

Duelist Needs Repose

Paris, July 16.—The surgeons in attendance upon M. Sarraut, who was wounded in a duel with M. Puglicsi-Conti, say that their patient's condition is considerably improved. The dangerous period, they say, has been passed, but complete repose has been ordered.

One of Czar's Officers Killed

London, July 16.—A dispatch to a news agency from St. Petersburg says that General Kozlov of the headquarters staff was murdered in a park at Peterhof. The murderer has been arrested, but not identified.

Workmen's Demands Rejected

St. Petersburg, July 16.—The strike in the naphtha industry is spreading. The employers have rejected most of the demands of the workmen. The manager of the works at Bibieibat was murdered yesterday.

HAS NEW COUNSEL

Unexplained Change Made by Stanford White's Slayer

STORIES FOR THE PRESS

Whatever Is Given Out by Thaw and His Wife Must First Pass Muster at the Hands of Lawyer Hartridge--No Hint of Defense

New York, July 16.—Mrs. William Thaw was prohibited yesterday by the prison rules from visiting her son, Harry K. Thaw, in the Tombs, but she will see him some time today, probably this afternoon. It will be the first meeting of mother and son since the tragedy on the Madison Square roof garden, when Thaw shot down Stanford White. Mrs. Thaw returned from Europe Saturday.

Mrs. Thaw is stopping at the Hotel Lorraine, where Mrs. Harry Thaw, her daughter-in-law, has been making her home since Thaw was arrested. There was a conference in the elder Mrs. Thaw's apartments yesterday afternoon at which Clifford W. Hartridge, who has become chief counsel to the prisoner since the latter's unexpected dismissal of the law firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, was present. What transpired is not known.

In speaking of the case, Hartridge said that while he realized young Thaw was in "an awful hole," he did not believe that any jury would ever convict him of anything. "I feel as sure of that," said the attorney, "as I do that I am standing here. I would stake my soul on it."

As to the reasons leading up to the decision on the part of Thaw to dispense with the services of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, Hartridge said he could not speak at this time. He added: "Judge Olcott is a personal and professional friend of mine and it would not be fair to him or to Harry to talk about that phase of the case until I shall have had an interview with Judge Olcott." Hartridge then said to the reporters:

"I want a full and frank understanding with the men who are going to follow this case for the newspapers. I wish first of all that nobody shall be misled, and that no stories detrimental or untrue as to either side shall get into print and be credited to the counsel for Harry Thaw. As it is, many stories have been printed that have hurt the case in the minds of the public and the friends of both persons most concerned in the affair. All that we want is the truth. It will come out in good time."

From a suggestion made by Hartridge it is evident that both Thaw and his wife are anxious to make some kind of a statement, for the new chief counsel said that among other plans he had in mind was one providing that Thaw and his wife should write out for him whatever they think or feel that the newspapers should know and he would pass on the articles and if he approved them would give them out to the newspaper men. It is known to those who have talked to Thaw and his wife that there are several subjects on which both wish to speak, but their lips have been sealed hitherto by counsel. These subjects deal in great part with their early life and family relations.

Mr. Hartridge was asked by one of the reporters if he was in a position to outline what the defense might be, particularly what the attitude of the present counsel would be on the "insanity" theory, in view of Thaw's strong determination not to be tried with that defense. Hartridge said:

"I will not now nor at any future time before the trial give even a hint of what the defense will or may be. Such a proceeding would be unfair to my client as well as unprofessional. It will be months before he will be brought up for trial anyway. I do not look for the trial before November or more probably December."

Former Turnkey Locked Up

Boston, July 16.—Charles E. Kidder, 34, formerly turnkey in the house of correction at Fitchburg, spent yesterday in Charles street jail. It is alleged that he obtained $200 from a prisoner, Joseph Saarl, without giving security. The police claim that for nearly a year they have been chasing him. In reply to the allegations of the police, Mrs. Kidder said: "My husband is innocent of all wrong. The statement that he is a thief is surely a mistaken one."

To Relieve Hungry Peasants

St. Petersburg, July 16.—The council of the empire's acceptance of parliament's bill appropriating $7,500,000 for famine relief came as a surprise, but has occasioned jubilation in the camp of the lower house, as it is regarded as a vote of lack of confidence in the Goremykin ministry on the part of the upper chamber.

Umbria Sticks to Mudbank

Kingston, Jam., July 16.—The Italian cruiser Umbria, which grounded while coming up the channel here last Friday, is still hard aground on a mudbank. Her guns and the coal in her bunkers have been removed in order to lighten the vessel and hopes of saving her are entertained.

Rum, Fire and Death

Allentown, Pa., July 16.—During drunken rows among Slavonian laborers at Fogelsville at midnight an oil lamp was upset, setting fire to a boarding house. Eight frame houses were destroyed and three persons were burned to death.

COVERED WITH BOUGHS

Foul Play Suspected In Death of a Housatonic Lad

Great Barrington, Mass., July 16.—Carefully covered with boughs of hemlock, the body of John Streub, 12 years old, of Housatonic, was found under a tree in the woods near that village, and, although decomposition had set in to such an extent as to conceal the exact cause of death, the circumstances, in the opinion of the medical examiner, point strongly to foul play. Streub had been missing from his home since last Monday, when he started out with another boy named Benjamin White to go to Torrington, Conn., where they expected to secure work in a factory.

Upon reaching Great Barrington the boys separated and White kept on to Torrington, while Streub announced his intention of returning to Housatonic. Streub is said to have been seen in Great Barrington a short time after he left his companion, but his later movements have not been traced. White is understood to have secured work in Torrington.

Dr. J. D. Beebe, the medical examiner, said the superficial examination which he had thus far been able to make showed nothing conclusive about the manner of the boy's death. Streub is a son of Emil Streub, a machinist employed in a shop in Housatonic.

Panic In Apartment Houses

Boston, July 16.—Forty-five horses and a dog were rescued from death, and nearly 50 families in nearby apartment houses were stampeded by a spectacular two-alarm fire which partially destroyed the sales stable at 120 Dover street last night. Although replete with sensational incidents, that included the rescue of frenzied animals by a handful of officers and citizens, the stampeding of the horses among hundreds of people, the fire was extinguished without a single accident. The fire, which illuminated the sky for a half hour, could be seen for miles about. The damage is about $1000.

Brother May Contest Will

Providence, July 16.—Lawyers and society people here are expecting a bitter court contest when the will of Mrs. Lucy M. Smith is opposed by her brother, George A. Rice, whom she cut off with $2000. Mrs. Smith's estate, variously estimated at from $500,000 to $750,000, is left to her husband of little more than a year, and to her adopted daughter. Rice alleges that the property willed away belonged to his mother and that his sister was under undue influence when she made her will.

Lost Fishermen Are Safe

Boston, July 16.—Four dorymen of the fishing schooner Buema, who were lost in a fog on Clark's banks, 75 miles southwest of Highland light, last Monday, were picked up in an exhausted condition by the fishing schooner Balbina Domingos and landed safely here yesterday. The rescued men are Anthony Nickerson, William Pierce, Harry Nickerson and Jeremiah Nickerson, all of Boston. A long row about the banks in an effort to find their vessel brought exhaustion to the fishermen.

Moran Announces His Candidacy

Boston, July 16.—District Attorney Moran has broken his silence regarding the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and in a lengthy statement announces that he is a candidate for party standard bearer in the coming state campaign. He says that the reason for his announcing his candidacy so early is because he is familiar with the mental attitude of the party leaders toward him and because he knows that they discourage present activity, and encourage a policy of delay.

Mrs Burke Roche Weds

Newport, R. I., July 16.—The fashionable set of Newport received almost a shock with the news that Mrs. Frances Burke Roche, one of the handsomest women in America, one of the most prominent social leaders and one of its best horsewomen and dog fanciers, had married Aurel Batonyi, the society coaching instructor, who became a professional whip in America on coming from his native Hungary.

Street Fight Results In Death

Boston, July 16.—Patrick McQuade, 59 years old, is under arrest, charged with causing the death of Walter Ewing, 28 years old. The men are said to have had a dispute at the corner of Harrison avenue and Dover street, which resulted in blows, McQuade, it is alleged, having struck Ewing to the pavement. He received a fractured skull and other injuries, from which he soon died.

Wholesale Vaccination

Boston, July 16.—Steamship Cymric arrived from Liverpool early yesterday, but was not permitted to dock until late in the afternoon on account of the presence of smallpox on board. A steerage passenger and a member of the crew had the disease and 689 other passengers of the crew had to be vaccinated before being permitted to land.

Gun Cotton Unfit For Use

Newport, R. I., July 16.—The supply of gun cotton stored in naval magazines and on warships along the Atlantic coast is said to have shown such evidences of deterioration that orders have been issued for its return to the torpedo stations, and the issuance of a new supply.

Horses and Hogs Burned

White River Junction, Vt., July 16.—The livery stable of Gibbs & Wheeler was burned, 14 horses and 40 hogs perishing in the flames. It is supposed that the fire was set accidentally by a tramp who was smoking in the barn. The loss is about $15,000.

PAY NO DIVIDENDS

No Profit In Brazilian Gold and Diamond Mines

CONSUL ISSUES WARNING

Certain Companies Soliciting Subscriptions In United States to Stock of No Value--Many Fraudulent Enterprises

Washington, July 16.—Consul General George E. Anderson, in a report to the bureau of manufactures from Rio Janeiro, charges that while some bona-fide Brazilian diamond mines may result profitably, that country is full of schemes which are either out-and-out frauds, or which are based upon claims and facts so slight as to make them little less than frauds.

The report says the United States and Great Britain, especially New York, Chicago and London, are the chief fields of operation for a number of promoters who have never done any mining, and that there are a number of so-called mining companies now soliciting stock subscriptions in the United States whose officers are not even certain where the land they claim as property lies. The president of a diamond company, having its offices in New York, wrote the Rio Janeiro consulate asking how far a city of Brazil, near which his company claims property, is from a railroad.

Diamond mining in Brazil is attended with great difficulties, and while the reports of mining experts indicate that diamonds and gold are to be found in a large area there, yet the diamonds are not found as in South Africa, in certain large pockets, but in small pockets covering many thousand square miles of territory, difficult of access. The report states that the experienced men in Brazilian mining fields say that not a single mining company operating in the gold and diamond fields of Brazil has paid a dividend.

The consul general adds that it is a lamentable fact that a large proportion of Brazilian mining enterprises are frauds and that there are now men in the United States with enterprises which represent nothing more than the money they can get from the American public.

Brethren Not In Accord

Newport, R. I., July 16.—On account of a dispute between two parties of members of the Zion A. M. E. church in this city, the church was closed yesterday by the trustees. Rev. W. H. Thomas was assigned to the Zion church pulpit at the recent conference of the A. M. E. church, to take the place of Rev. Mr. Gibbons. The change displeased part of the congregation and Thomas was obliged to hold his first service under his new pastorate out of doors, in front of the church.

Explosion on Boat Caused Panic

New York, July 16.—Three firemen and a water-tender on the ferryboat Richmond were badly scalded by the explosion of a steam pipe as the boat was about to start for Staten Island. A small sized panic among the 1500 passengers on the boat followed the explosion and the noise of the escaping steam, but the discipline and coolness of the crew, coupled with the fact that the boat was immediately backed into her slip, prevented any serious results.

Defeat of Zulus Was Complete

Johannesburg, July 16.—The Sunday Times, describing the destruction of a Zulu impi in the Mome valley, says the loyal levies so thoroughly completed the work of the Transvaal men that they did not let even a wounded Zulu escape. Finding that the Zulus would not believe that Chief Bambaata was dead, his head was cut off and exhibited to them for two days. It was then buried.

Lost For Many Days

New London, Conn., July 16.—Solomon Lefkowich, 3 years old, who strayed away in Montville Tuesday and for whom search has been made ever since, was found yesterday in the woods about a mile from his home. The child was entirely naked and very weak from exposure. In spite of his lack of food and exposure the boy seems to have no permanent harm from the experience.

Blocked at Burglary--Killed Himself

Baltimore, July 16.—Interrupted in an attempt to commit burglary, Alfred G. Hudson, aged 27, fired a number of shots at his pursuers while running from the police and when they finally surrounded him, committed suicide. Hudson was detected in an attempt to enter a grocery store. He is said to have been driven to burglary by need of money, following an unhappy marriage.

Father and Children Killed

New York, July 16.—Samuel Meanley, a hotelkeeper of Brooklyn, his 14-year-old son and a 9-year-old daughter, accompanied by Max Rubin, 12 years old, were driving when struck by a Manhattan beach express. The father and son were instantly killed and the girl died within a few hours. The Rubin boy may be fatally injured.

French Swimmer Took First Honors

Paris, July 16.—An international swimming contest at a distance of nine miles was won in the Seine by the French swimmer, Bougmin, in 3:06. Among the swimmers were three women.

Past, Present and Future Paint

The best "past" paint is the paint which has worn down evenly, leaving the surface ready for repainting without the need of expensive scraping and "burning-off."

The best "present" paint is the paint which is applied with least labor, covers the most surface per gallon, and looks the best when on.

The best "future" paint is the paint which lasts without cracking or peeling, affording perfect protection for the greatest number of years.

Viewed in any of these ways,

Miners and Operators Compromise

Columbus, O., July 16.—The operators and miners' officials, who have been in conference here for two days endeavoring to settle differences that have arisen over the scale recently signed for this state and as a result of which the miners in the Hocking valley suspended work, last night reached a basis of agreement. Concessions were made by both the miners and the operators, but neither side would state the exact terms of the agreement. The controversy involved a fraction of 1 cent a ton for mining.

Chapter of Drowning Accidents

Halifax, July 16.—Alex McKenzie, aged 24, and Leo Fraser, aged 7, were drowned at Stellarton. McKenzie was swimming with the boy on his back and they sank. Mrs. Henry Artz, aged 50, lost her life while attempting to rescue a little girl from drowning at Middleton. The child was saved. George Lanville, aged 11, perished while bathing at Truro.

Friendly Toward Christians

Tokio, July 16.—A remarkable instance of the feeling of Buddhists and Shintoists towards Christians is furnished by the action of their leaders, who have decided to contribute voluntarily to the cost of rebuilding the Christian church which was destroyed during the disturbances in Tokio last September.

EXPLOIT OF THE LAKE

Submarine Boat Traveled Over Three Hundred Miles Alone.

NOT ANY MISHAP ON THE CRUISER

Engines Stopped Only Twice on Trip From Norfolk to Atlantic Highlands, Once For the Crew to Watch Whales—New Craft Can Detach Her Leaden Keel.

After persons ashore had begun to think hard about the Lake, a little submarine cruiser, and wonder whether she had succumbed to the severities of the trip up from Norfolk, the striped mast or flagpole of the diver was seen by an observer the other day about noon and soon afterward the latest production in submarines anchored off the steamship dock at Atlantic Highlands, N. J., says the New York Herald. She was built by the Lake Torpedo Boat company, and as she lay practically flush with the water she attracted general attention.

Orders were for the Lake to stop at Atlantic City, and it was her failure to do so on account of bad weather that caused fears for her safety. She made the run from Norfolk, a distance of 325 miles, at a speed of more than seven knots. It is the longest continuous sea trip ever made by a submarine. She is driven by a gasoline engine of 250 horsepower and has auxiliaries for electric lights and other purposes of 130 additional horsepower. All the food eaten on board is cooked by electricity and the interior is brilliantly lighted.

During the long voyage up the coast the Lake was unaccompanied by any vessel and ventured into the open sea entirely alone. Captain G. M. Evans reported that although comparatively heavy weather was encountered, the run was accomplished without the slightest mishap, and said it undoubtedly marked the beginning of an advanced era in submarines.

On board the Lake is a crew of eight men all told, who find plenty of room for their simple wants within the steel pod, which is built to withstand the pressure of the sea at a depth of 130 feet. Even when steaming on the surface her decks are submerged by the wash, so that the navigator handles the craft from the top of the conning tower; but when she settles beneath the surface and begins the duties for which she was constructed he steers from within the tower, whence, although several feet beneath the surface, he is enabled to sweep the horizon by means of a periscope or omniscope, which projects somewhat beyond the water and reflects below what is going on above.

Electricity is the auxiliary motive power of the Lake, but the batteries are used only when she is submerged. She can carry sufficient gasoline to last her on a much longer voyage than the one she has just completed. She is equipped with three torpedo tubes and has storage capacity for five torpedoes. In the bow is a diving chamber whence a diver can issue forth into the sea when the boat is beneath the surface, and this will be a valuable adjunct in war time in cable cutting and the laying of mines.

When diving the Lake does not descend on an inclined plane, but sinks vertically, being thus possessed of the power with which the imaginative Jules Verne equipped the Nautilus. She can be submerged in a wonderfully short space of time in spite of her size, for with a length of eighty-five feet she is the largest submarine ever built in this country.

By an ingenious arrangement the lead keel of the Lake can be detached at any time. Should the vessel fail to rise to the surface for any reason a turn of a wrench will let the five tons of lead on the keel fall off and thus give to the vessel five tons more buoyancy.

She left Newport News at a quarter past 2 o'clock in the afternoon of June 25 and stopped off Cape Henry to signal Mr. Lake. She got under way again that evening at half past 7 o'clock and did not stop her engines again during the passage except on Wednesday morning, June 27, when off Barnegat, when she shut down for a short time to watch the antics of some other submarines in the form of a school of whales.

Flowers In Place of Crests.

One more fad has seized upon girls who have so much pocket money they can afford to spend it on stray fancies, says a correspondent of the New York Press. The new idea is to select a favorite flower and use it in lieu of a crest on stationery and other personal belongings. Miss Mathilde Townsend has selected the violet, and to her chums she indites notes on highly perfumed paper of violet tint with a few petals of the flower on its surface. Miss Harriet Wadsworth is partial to moss rosebuds, and these are seen on her special note paper. Pansies, heartsease, heliotrope, all figure in this new fashion. The fad should be encouraged as a step away from the all too prevalent snobbishness and toward democracy, for it certainly is more American to have a simple flower for a crest than to copy the family bearings of some lackey or thief who was enhobled by some complaisant king centuries ago.

Missouri's Banana City.

Nevada, Mo., is becoming famous as a city of flowers and fruits, says the Kansas City Journal. Its soft, equable climate suits not only the vegetation of the temperate zone, but many tropical plants also flourish there. It is the only city in Missouri where bananas have been grown in the open air.

Caught In a Trap

[Original.]

Juan Walker was a Cuban born of an American father and a Spanish mother. He was dark enough to pass anywhere for an Aztec. Juan married a Cuban girl and went to South America, finally finding himself stranded at Rio with a young wife and two little children, a boy and a girl. He wished to get back to Cuba, but had not the wherewithal to pay his fare and that of his family. He found a vessel about to sail that was short of hands and made a bargain to work in exchange for the passage of himself and family.

Mrs. Walker and the children were given a room in the main cabin, but Juan bunked with the crew in the forecastle, taking his turn at the watch. The vessel touched at Bahia, taking aboard ten of the worst looking men in the two Americas. They were all Spanish or a mixture of Spanish and native. They wished to go to Havana, but as they had no money the captain agreed to take them in the forecastle, provided they would help work the ship, which was not more than half manned.

The regular crew besides Walker consisted of Germans, Swedes and Irish, seven in all. The Spaniards left these men to themselves, but attempted to make friends with Walker, who, not liking their looks and fearing to have trouble with them, pretended to accept their confidence. They soon told him that they were going to seize the ship, take what they wished and go ashore on some lonely coast. Walker agreed to join them if they would make him their leader and give him a third of the plunder. This they assented to, and Walker, having slipped away from them, went to the captain and told him the story.

Captain Kinsella was frightened out of his senses at the prospect. He had an equal number of men to the mutineers, but this did not allay his fears. Juan Walker, fearing especially for his wife and children, told the captain that if he didn't show himself a man and take measures for their safety he would put himself at the head of the crew and defend the ship himself. The coward captain gave up the command to Walker, giving him full authority to act for the general safety. The new commander withdrew the crew from the forecastle one by one, and as each man reported aft he was armed to the teeth. The mutineers, noticing that none of the men returned and suspecting that their plan had been discovered, resolved to put it into operation at once. They marched, or, rather, scuffled aft, armed, to demand the surrender of the ship. Walker advanced to meet them. Pointing to a chalk line he had drawn across the deck amidships, he told them that any man passing this dead line would be shot instantly.

Surprised to see their confidant in command, they withdrew, consulted and opened a desultory fire on the crew, the crew responding in kind. There was not much damage done, for both parties were concealed. The mutineers were at an advantage, for they prevented the crew from properly working the ship. So long as the weather was fine the vessel could be kept on her course, but if it should change there would be trouble. The crew were kept on watch for two days and nights, when they were completely worn out. The captain insisted on running the ship near to the shore, though he did not make his reasons plain for doing so. Walker, who had a plan of his own and because the crew seemed to wish it, consented.

On the third night of the mutiny, while the vessel was moving slowly within a short distance of the coast, Walker selected half the crew, armed them and tied a strip of white about the left arm of each, lowered a boat, put his men into it and noiselessly lowered it into the water, having oiled the pulleys to prevent creaking. Then he spoke to the mate, a pretty good man, whom he left in command:

"We shall make the bow, get into the anchor chains and on to the fo'castle. We hope to either batten down the fo'castle, penning them in, or surprise and overpower them. As soon as you hear any noise rush forward with the rest of the crew. But be careful not to strike us through mistake. It is to prevent such mistakes that we wear the strip of white on our left arms."

There was a paddle aboard with which one of the men kept the boat's nose into the vessel, and they worked her slowly forward with their hands. They had gained a point amidships when suddenly they heard a splash foreward. They paused. There was another splash, and another, till they had counted ten splashes. Walker knew the mutineers were endeavoring to save their necks by attempting to swim ashore, a distance of over a mile. He smiled. If ever a rat was caught in a trap these men were. When he had counted the ten splashes he gave orders to take up the oars which were stored in the bottom of the boat and give way in the direction he heard the mutineers swimming. One by one they picked up the swimmers till most of them were in the boat, then putting a rope around the mutineers' shoulders under the arms they took them all to the ship, where they were obliged to climb a rope ladder or be shot.

That ended the mutiny. When Juan Walker went to his wife's cabin and told her that they were safe she fainted in his arms. The crew, having put the mutineers in irons and shut them up in the forecastle, all sank to sleep. Fortunately the weather was fine, and Walker took the wheel till they had gained a little rest.

The mutineers were all hanged at Havana. BRUCE PARKER.

The degree team will perform the work on three candidates and will entertain as their guests D. D. L. L. Eldridge, G. P. G. W. Viles, and members from Brockton, Boston and Charlestown. An enjoyable time is anticipated.

If parents would take as much interest in the matter of their children learning to swim as they do in having them learn the art of dancing, fewer deaths by drowning would be reported. Already many fatalities have been reported thus far this summer. Every father should insist upon his children learning to care for themselves in the water. Instructions in swimming should be considered as essential as lessons in any other line.

Who is who?

Miss C. S. Hubbard returned Saturday from a two weeks' sojourn at Albany, N. H.

Mrs. Mary E. Powers of Bigelow street has been the guest of relatives at Framingham the past week.

Hoodlums on Midnight Car

A gang of young hoodlums whose homes are said to be in Atlantic, undertook to run things to suit themselves on the late Neponset car Saturday night. The young fellows were smoking on the front seats. The conductor remonstrated with them and they threw him off the car.

The moterman went to the conductor's rescue, and it is reported that he was also used roughly. He says however, that he left his mark on one of the fellows with the controller lever.

On the trip back to Quincy the same gang again boarded the car, but at the approach of two police officers they ran away.

The first trouble took place near the corner of Hancock and Woodbine streets and the second at the corner of Hancock street and Billings road.

Animal Show Delighted All

The animal show of Washburn & D'Alma delighted large audiences on Saturday afternoon and evening. There were talking ponies, musical ponies, dancing ponies, military ponies and ponies who have been taught to accomplish tricks hitherto thought impossible by animal trainers. The military march by 16 ponies was the big feature. Then there were trained dogs, monkeys, elephants and other animals.

Most everybody stopped for the entertainment which followed the main show, when the crowning feature, was the ride of a monkey in a little automobile. He looped the loop to perfection.

No other Animal Show in existence allows such a privilege to its juvenile patrons, and it is no wonder that the advent of the Washburn and D'Alma Shows is so eagerly awaited by thousands of the boys and girls,

All the objectionable circus features are omitted. There were no clowns, no hobos, etc., but a refined show with good music, polite attendants, and clean exhibits.

Archie Thayer To Be Evicted

Patrons of the Houghs Neck line of electric cars who have been amused all summer by queer speeches and exhibitions of mud turtles, etc., by Archie Thayer, proprietor of the variety store on Saville street, are awaiting with interest to see what Tuesday will bring forth.

Thayer has been served with a writ of ejectment, and has been given until Tuesday to move his effects and mud turtles to new quarters. If not moved by himself before Tuesday they probably will be by an officer.

All day Saturday and Sunday Thayer told his tale of woe to all that would listen to him. He declares that he will be on deck when the officers come. If put out, he says, he may not be able to provide a seat for the weary or a drink of ice water for the thirsty, but he declares that he will continue to smile and to quench the thirst of the multitude if he has to peddle in a wheelbarrow.

UNSUSPECTED WORMS

are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When they are sick you rarely think their sickness is caused by worms. They are rarely treated for worms. Yet worms are the cause either directly or indirectly of over 75 per cent. of the ailments of children. They are also frequent cause of illness in adults. The familiar symptoms of worms are disturbed health, deranged stomach, furred tongue, variable appetite and bowels, increased thirst, itching of nostrils, indolence, malaria, irritability, disturbed sleep, grinding of teeth, slow fever and often in children, convulsions—is the only safe, sure, entirely vegetable worm remedy ever compounded. It not only expels worms but all waste matter, leaving the blood rich and pure and the whole system strong and healthy. Known and used successfully for three generations. This testimonial came with an order for more Elixir.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

Another Vacancy

C. H. Smith The County Treasurer Passes Away

Last week Norfolk county sustained a great loss in the death of James Hewins, the chairman of the board of County Commissioners, and on Monday, only six days later Charles H. Smith, the efficient and popular County Treasurer passed away, at his home on Church street, Dedham.

The death of Mr. Smith was anticipated as his condition had been critical for several days. He held the office for seventeen years with never a criticism.

Mr. Smith was the son of Abner L. and Mary W. (Howe) Smith, and was born in Dover, Mass., April 5, 1850. He received a common school education, and in 1868 entered the employ of the Grant Locomotive works, Paterson, N. J.

Later he returned to his native town, where his ability and character were quickly recognized by his fellow townsmen and he was chosen to serve them as town clerk (holding office for 13 years) selectman, overseer of the poor and board of health, in all of which offices he continued as long as he would consent to remain.

He was for six years treasurer of the Norfolk county Republican committee, and was one of the originators of the Norfolk Republican Club.

January 29, 1889, he was appointed treasurer of Norfolk county by the county commissioners to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of C. C. Churchill. He had held the office for each term since, receiving the votes of all political parties.

Serious Illness.

A morning paper says that George P. Keith, who is with the Boston Yacht club fleet in Maine, has been seriously ill. He was stricken with an attack of ptomaine poisoning, which for a time was feared might result fatally, but is now pronounced to be out of danger. Mr. Keith is a son of City Clerk H. A. Keith, and a well known resident of Hudson. He is also well known in Quincy. He is one of the regatta committee of the Boston Yacht club.

Sudden Death of Business Man

Augustus J. Richards, one of Weymouth's prominent citizens and a business man of Quincy and Weymouth, died suddenly Monday night at his home on Commercial street. Mr. Richards had not been feeling as well as usual for several days. He was able to be about, however, and went out to ride Monday afternoon. He was taken ill during the evening and quickly passed away.

There was probably no man more closely identified with Weymouth town affairs than was Mr. Richards. He has held almost every office in the gift of its citizens, and has always successfully fulfilled the trust imposed upon him, giving the town's business the same thoughtful consideration that he did his own business.

He has served as one of the board of Selectmen, and at the establishment of its municipal water service was made one of the water commissioners, which office he held for many years. He was identified with the local banks, and at the time of his death was one of the trustees of the Tufts Public Library, and one of the Commissioners of the High school sinking fund.

Mr. Richards business was that of a dealer in coal, wood, hay and grain. He had offices on Commercial street, Weymouth. Some years ago he became proprietor of a hay and grain business in Quincy which he has since maintained. His Quincy office and storehouse being located on Saville street near the depot.

He was affiliated with the Masonic fraternity. He leaves a widow and daughter. Two sons, Harry and George, passed away some years ago.

Five Arrested for Car Disturbance

Five of those whom it is alleged created a disturbance on the late car to Neponset Saturday night, and who it is also alleged made an assault on the car crew, were summoned into court this morning.

The men were: Thomas Radley, Edgar White, James Gillon, Charles Edwards and John Gillon, Jr.

Each of the five were arraigned upon two complaints. One for disorderly conduct on a street car, the other for assault. They pleaded not guilty and the cases were continued for a hearing until August 4.

Upon motion of Councilman Crane that of DePanfolio was laid on the table until later, when Councilman Crane offered an order granting the license. Adopted.

The New England Telephone Co. peiitioned for a location for poles on Central avenue and Prospect street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

The New England Telephone Co. petitioned for permission to attach its wires to poles of other companies on Davis, Miller and Atlantic streets. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received for an incandescent light on Avon way. Referred to Executive department.

REPORTS.

The Committee on Licenses and Special Committee reported leave to withdraw on the application of Gerardo Capo Bianchi for a permit to transport liquor.

Councilman Ferguson moved to lay of table. Voted.

Later the report was taken from the table, when Councilman Ferguson offered a minority report granting the license. The minority report was accepted.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains reported ought to pass on the order for $14,000 for sewers on Appleton, Webster and Bayfield streets and part of Boulevard. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Committee on Fire Department reported ought to pass on the order for $2,100 to place some of the fire alarm wires underground. Referred to Finance Committee.

Appropriating $350 for grading Hall place. Referred to Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Finance reported no legislation necessary on the order appropriating $1,000 for Assessors plans for Ward Four, the same having been provided for.

The Committee on Finance reported a substitute order for the order for $15,000 for furnishings for the High school. The substitute order appropriated $13,000 for that purpose. Rules suspended and order passed.

TROLLEY FREIGHT.

Councilman Ferguson moved that Rule 1 be suspended, and when the Council adjourned it be for two weeks.

Councilman Nichols opposed. He asked why the motion was made.

Councilman Ferguson replied that certain members of the Citizens' Association desired to ask some questions about the trolley freight orders.

Councilman Nichol—these orders are now on the table. He saw no reason to call the members together in two weeks to consider the trolley freight matter. There was no haste, and it could be considered next September as well as now. It had been the custom for the council to take a vacation and he hoped it would this year.

Councilman Fergerson said that he had been asked to make the motion by a member of the Citizens' Association so that they could look into the matter.

Motion lost. Vote doubted. Upon verification the motion prevailed, 9 voting in the affirmative and 8 against.

Councilman Nichols moved reconsideration. September would give these gentlemen all the time desired to look into the matter.

Councilman Bass moved that the Council go into a Committee of the whole with the President as chairman of the Committee, and the clerk of the Council as clerk, to enable the gentleman to appear before the Committee.

Councilman Nichols raised point of order that as there was a question before the Committee the motion was out of order.

The president declared the point well taken and declared the motion out of order.

The motion to reconsider was then carried, 9 voting in favor and 9 against.

Councilman Chase moved to suspend

Trolley Freight

Order Will Lay on Table Until September

rule 1. Motions lost, 10 voting in favor and 7 against.

NEW ORDERS.

Councilman Polk offered an order for $200 for advertising, printing, etc., of the City Council to be charged to unappropriated receipts. Adopted.

Councilman Polk offered an order authorizing the Mayor to sell at his judgment the buildings on the Coddington school lot. Adopted.

Councilman McGilvray offered an order changing an electric light from the east to the west side of Roger street. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Polk offered an order appropriating $1000 to pay bounty on seal tails. To Finance Committee.

CALENDAR.

The following orders took their second reading and were passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules:—

Granting the Electric Light Co. a location for poles on Bigelow street.

Granting the New England Telephone Company attachments of wires to poles of other companies on various streets.

Appropriating $321.23 to be paid to the City Hospital for services rendered to patients having no settlement in Quincy.

Councilman Gilson moved to reconsider vote whereby Nazzarino DePanfolio was granted a license. He did not believe in overriding the committee. He felt it his right as a member of the Committee to have the application referred and take its usual course.

Motion lost.

Councilman Hobbs moved to suspend rule 1. Motion lost. Vote doubted. Upon verification the motion prevailed 14 voting in favor and 2 against.

Councilman Hobbs then moved and it was voted that when the council adjourn it be until Sept. 10.

Adjourned at 8.45.

—A treasury warrant for $34,920.85 has just been issued at Washington in settlement of the claim of Massachusetts against the federal government for expenses incurred during the Spanish war. The warrant was prepared just as soon as the Auditor for the war department had formally stated the account of Massachusetts to the officials of the warrant division of the Treasury Department.

The yacht Agillis has taken a crew out for two weeks to enjoy the sailing privileges along the north shore. Captain "Quin" was at the helm as usual.

There is no cause for many of the rumors relative to our shipyard, because of the loss of the battleship contract. The company is advertising for machinists, and blacksmiths and offering steady employment. There is work enough ahead for several months; meanwhile other contracts may be obtained.

From now on it will probably be necessary for President Roosevelt to step out every few days and throw a bucket of cold water on his still smothering boom for a third term.

ON WARSHIP DECK

Salvador and Guatemala Will Talk of Peace

TO MEET ON MARBLEHEAD

Our Ministers Ready to Give Advice In Friendly Way--Honduras Wants to Be Considered In the Negotiations

Washington, July 17.—The navy department has been informed by cablegram from Commander Mulligan of the arrival of his ship, the Marblehead, at La Libertad, from Panama, which port he left last Friday night. Before sailing Mulligan was instructed by the navy department to report to the American minister, Mr. Combs, at La Libertad, which is the port near San Salvador, the capital of Salvador.

In the absence of Combs, who is detained at Champerico, Mr. Brown, the American secretary and charge in Salvador, will communicate with Mulligan and that officer will place his ship at the disposal of the American legation, so that Brown will be in a position to carry out the instructions which were cabled him yesterday from Washington to proffer to the governments of Salvador and Guatemala the use of this American warship as a place of meeting for the peace commissioners.

Acting Secretary of State Adee has not attempted at this great distance from the scene of trouble to arrange all the details of the meeting of the peace commissioners, but will leave that task to the American legations. It is stated that neither Minister Merry nor Messrs. Combs and Brown will act in the capacity of a peace commissioner to either country; they are charged simply as good friends to both parties to endeavor to bring the hostile nations into friendly relations without further loss of blood. To that end they will interest themselves in the selection of peace commissions by the governments to which they are respectively accredited and will probably conduct these commissioners to the Marblehead and go with them beyond the three-mile limit to sea and, if called upon, will advise them in a friendly way.

This is not the first time the deck of a United States man-of-war has been the scene of a peace conference. The Marietta was thus employed six or eight years ago in bringing about peace between Costa Rica and Salvador, the Philadelphia played a similar part at Panama during the revolution there about 10 years ago, and more recently Commander Dillingham brought the Monti Cristi insurgents and the Dominican government agents together off Monti Cristi and secured peace on the deck of the Detroit.

It is believed that the Marblehead will take on the Salvadorean commissioners at La Libertad and then proceed to the nearest Guatemalan port, San Jose, where the agents of that government will board the ship, which will then go to sea beyond the three-mile limit until the conference is over.

The important development of the day aside from the offer of the Marblehead was an assurance to the state department from President Cabrera that Guatemala would refrain from further hostilities if Salvador would undertake to do the same, which news was promptly communicated to Minister Merry at San Salvador in order that he might transmit the proposition to the government at that place.

Another point developed was that Salvador and Honduras had entered into an alliance, the nature of which is not certainly known, but it is believed by the officials here that the purpose is to agree upon the terms of peace that shall be proposed by the two countries to Guatemala. This news came to the state department from Charge Brown, at Guatemala City.

Still another cablegram, this one from Minister Merry, informed the state department that the government of Honduras insisted upon being considered along with Salvador in the peace negotiations with Guatemala. Altogether the prospect of the peaceful termination of the present difficulty is believed to have brightened considerably.

Keeping Guatemala Busy

San Salvador, July 17.—Guatemala is fighting Salvador and Honduras at four points on Guatemalan and Honduran territory. Both sides fight bravely, with uncertain results. Peace is possible in the near future through the efforts of the United States government, efficiently aided by Mexico.

Must Combat Fanaticism

London, July 18.—The correspondent at Cairo of The Express learns on the highest authority that on account of the rapidly increasing fanaticism of the natives elaborate plans for strengthening the army of occupation have been prepared by Lord Cromer.

Sunken Cruiser Floated

Tokio, July 17.—The Russian cruiser Novik, which, after breaking out of the harbor of Port Arthur in July, 1904, sought to reach Vladivostok and was so badly damaged by two Japanese cruisers that she sank off Sakhalin, has been floated.

Three Killed in Train Wreck

Macon, Ga., July 17.—A freight train was wrecked near Marshalville last night, causing the death of three trainmen. Officials of the road here state that it is thought the derailment was plotted.

"NECESSARIES OF LIFE"

Many Thousands Are Inclined to Evade Payment Therefor

Boston, July 17.—The state bureau of statistics on labor has just made public its report on the indebtedness of the citizens of Boston. The investigation on which the report is based was made into the non-collectable accounts on the books of 1183 grocery, provision, clothing, furniture, real estate and undertaking establishments of the city for one year. The report shows that there are many thousands of people in the city, including all classes, who do not pay for the "necessaries of life."

The debts included in the report total $1,064,384 for one year among 72,540 debtors, making an average of about $15.08 for each debtor.

It further appears from the report that during the year on Saturdays and Mondays of each week there was a total of 40,313 pledges of clothing, upon which $58,350.58 was loaned by the pawnbrokers, and other large totals of pledges on furniture, jewelry and various articles.

Held For Manslaughter

Boston, July 17.—Patrick McQuaid, a longshoreman, was arraigned before Judge Brown, charged with manslaughter in having caused the death of Walter Ewing, 35 years old, in a street brawl. In a quarrel over the loss of $10 by Martin Flaherty, a companion, who claimed he had been robbed of that amount, it is alleged, McQuaid struck Ewing a heavy blow, knocking him against a metal railing at the corner of Dover street and Harrison avenue. Suffering from a fractured skull, Ewing died two hours later. McQuaid went to jail in default of $1000 bail.

Boy Was Murder Victim

Great Barrington, Mass., July 17.—John Streub, 12 years old, whose body was found Sunday afternoon hidden under boughs, near the Rising woods, was murdered. Medical Examiner Beebe, assisted by Dr. Peterson, performed an autopsy and found two fractures, one at the top of the skull and one at the base. District Attorney Noxon was notified and he put Detective Wood on the case. The police are now looking up clues, and Benjamin White, who was last said to have been with Streub, will be asked to tell of their actions.

Unhappy Lad Dead at Last

Kennebunkport, Me., July 17.—William Littlefield, 10 years old, was drowned in the Kennebunk river while bathing. The fact that the boy had made two previous attempts at suicide within the last year, once by cutting his throat and once by taking paris green, led to the report at first that the drowning was intentional. The boy's father committed suicide some years ago.

Warships Gathering at Rockport

Rockport, Mass, July 17.—Headed by Rear Admiral Evans on the flagship Maine, the North Atlantic squadron began to rendezvous in this harbor in preparation for the naval war maneuvers. One of the social features of the fleet's stay in these waters will be a banquet planned by the members of the North Shore summer colony on the night of July 20.

Yachtsman Succumbs to Apoplexy

Portland, Me., July 17.—Henry H. Rogers' steam yacht Wild Goose arrived here last night, having on board, in a dying condition, Charles D. Brown, rear commodore of the Boston Yacht club. Brown was taken to a hospital, where he died. Brown suffered a stroke of apoplexy while the fleet was on the way to Cape Porpoise.

Fear of Spread of Rabies

Adams, Mass., July 17.—The selectmen of this town have decided to issue an order that all dogs be restrained or muzzled within 48 hours. This action followed the recent killing of two dogs at Renfrew who were found to be suffering from rabies. Yesterday several dogs were bitten by a dog which is supposed to have rabies.

Guild's Resting Place Concealed

Boston, July 17.—Governor Guild will not be at the state house this week, having decided to take a week's vacation. At the executive department it was stated that the governor's whereabouts would not be made known during the week, as he desires to be relieved entirely of his official duties during his vacation.

Accident Overtakes Canoeists

Oldtown, Me., July 17.—A canoe containing four persons was overturned in the Penobscot river near here last evening and one of the occupants, Miss Eva Vachon, aged 20, was drowned. Her companions managed to reach shore after a hard struggle on the part of the two men to rescue both girls.

Transportation Company to Dissolve

Hartford, July 17.—Stockholders of the West Indies Transportation company met here and voted to wind up the affairs of the company, which was incorporated in 1905. Its capital stock was $125,000 and it was formed for the purpose of conducting transportation in Cuba and other locations.

Humidity Causes Prostrations

Boston, July 17.—Although the maximum temperature in Boston registered only 80 yesterday, the humidity was oppressive and resulted in the prostration of three men in the city. They were removed to hospitals and it is expected that they will recover.

Mishap to Express Train

Stamford, Conn., July 17.—An express train ran into an open switch at Riverside, the express and baggage cars leaving the tracks. No one was injured. The train was running slowly, signals in the tower having shown that something was wrong.

OPINIONS OF THAW

Will Be Ignored by Counsel Retained by Mother

THE PLEA OF INSANITY

It Was Insisted Upon by Former Judge Olcott, Who Again Has Charge of the Case--Thaw's Mother and Wife at "Outs"

New York, July 17.—Immediately following her first interview with her son, Harry K. Thaw, in the Tombs yesterday, since her return from Europe on Saturday, Mrs. William Thaw assumed full charge of the defense and arranged to retain the services as counsel of the firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, who were dismissed by young Thaw a few days ago.

This action is taken to mean that Harry Thaw's desires and opinions regarding the defense will be ignored, and that reliance will be placed on the plea of insanity, insistence on which by Olcott resulted in the rupture between himself and his client. Whether or not an application will be made for the appointment of a committee on lunacy to determine Thaw's mental condition will probably be determined at a conference to be held by Mrs. Thaw and the counsel today.

The meeting between Mrs. Thaw and her son at the Tombs was a most affecting one. After the first greeting they were left alone together to converse through the bars of the cell for half an hour. During the interview the prisoner's wife stood in silence in the corridor a few feet away from the cell door awaiting her turn to speak with her husband. No words were exchanged between Mrs. Thaw and her daughter-in-law.

From the Tombs Mrs. Thaw was driven directly to the office of Lewis L. Delafield, where, after consultation, arrangements were made for former Judge Olcott's firm to resume charge of the case. When a note was sent to Harry Thaw asking whether he concurred in the new arrangement the reply was returned that "Mr. Thaw had nothing to say."

Mrs. Thaw, accompanied by her son, Josiah, and her son-in-law, George L. Carnegie, last evening went to the latter's country seat at Roslyn, L. I.

No Easy Mark For O'Brien

Philadelphia, July 17.—Sam Berger, the California heavyweight, last night gave Jack O'Brien the hardest six-round battle of his career. Notwithstanding O'Brien continually sent his left to the chin and wind, Berger came back and forced the fighting in every round. When the fight ended both men were covered with blood and the referee's shirt was crimson from his efforts to separate the men. No decision is allowed in the bouts in this city, but it seemed that O'Brien had a slight advantage.

Special Favor Turned Down

Havana, July 17.—President Palma has ordered that advertisements for bids for the construction of the 12 projected railroads named in the so-called Van Horne law, which gives a subsidy of $6000 per kilometer for the roads, shall be made in the newspapers of Havana, 30 days to be allowed for the submission of proposals. The purpose of the Cuban congress to give the benefits of the subsidy unreservedly to the Van Horne company is thus defeated.

Immigrants Have Smallpox

Boston, July 17.—Two more cases of smallpox have been discovered among the steerage passengers of the steamer Cymric, from Liverpool. Immigration doctors made a close examination of every passenger at the Hoosac tunnel docks. A number were severely ill on account of being vaccinated. When smallpox was discovered on the ship every steerage passenger and member of the crew was vaccinated.

Rockefeller Will Help

New York, July 17.—Secretary McCoy of the San Francisco Y. M. C. A. announced in this city that he had received an offer from John D. Rockefeller to give $250,000 toward rebuilding the San Francisco Y. M. C. A. buildings provided an equal amount was secured from others. McCoy said he has already obtained $105,000 in addition to the Rockefeller offer.

Rocksand Arrives From England

New York, July 17.—Rocksand, winner of the English events, the 2000 guineas, the Derby and the St. Leger in 1903, recently purchased by August Belmont for $125,000, arrived here from London on the steamer Minneapolis. Rocksand's winnings in his three years on the turf amounted to $228,000.

Considered New Help a Menace

Danville, Va., July 17.—As the result of the employment in the Riverside cotton mills here of a number of German immigrants 60 of the weavers went on strike. While the introduction of the foreigners was not intended in any way to supplant any of the old men, the weavers considered it as a menace.

Torch Applied to Crown Lands

Kostroma, July 17.—In the village of Kunikoff 200 houses have been burned in disturbances incident to the agrarian movement, which has been gaining in force. The crown forest lands have been set on fire in 16 different places. Guards are working night and day to extinguish the fires.

PLATFORM BUILT

Granite State Lincoln Republicans Ready For the Fray

WANT PURE LEGISLATION

Favor Publicity of Campaign Receipts and Expenditures and Enforcement of Prohibition Law--Acceptable to Churchill

Concord, N. H., July 17.—A platform was adopted by the Lincoln Republican club at a meeting here and was later accepted by Winston Churchill of Cornish, who has been named as a candidate for governor of New Hampshire. The platform sets forth:

1. The desire for enactment of laws prohibiting the giving of free railroad transportation and device of passes, mileage books or other special contracts to delegates of political conventions, governmental officials or any other persons not properly entitled thereto.

2. For the election of railroad commissioners by the people.

3. For the ascertainment of the true value of the property of the railroads and of the other public service companies in the state which shall furnish a just basis for taxation.

4. A corrupt practice act for securing honest legislation, which shall prohibit political contributions by corporations and require publicity of campaign receipts and expenditures by communities, candidates and individuals.

5. A law suppressing the evils of lobbying by requiring public registration of attorneys and agents and the publication of their fees and all other expenditures made to secure or defeat legislation.

6. A primary election law which shall permit the members of all political parties to nominate candidates for office by direct vote.

7. A law creating a commission to revise the past laws of the state and to report to the legislature what amendments of these laws are now necessary and proper to equal the burden of taxation.

8. Stringent enforcement of the conditions attached to liquor licenses in towns and cities where licenses exist and a like rigid enforcement of the provision of the prohibitory law in all towns and cities adopting the prohibitory system.

9. The enforcement of the present laws against gambling, including bookmaking at the Salem race track and elsewhere, and the passage of such additional laws as may be necessary.

In his letter of acceptance, Churchill says, in part: "I subscribe without reservation to the several propositions today set forth by the Lincoln Republican club of New Hampshire and would suggest that they be submitted to the other candidates for governor. If they will all assent, the success of the cause is assured, and that is more to me than any personal consideration. In any such event, if thought desirable, I would gladly efface myself in behalf of such one of the other candidates as the Lincoln Republican club thought fit to endorse."

Remembered Brother Fisherman

Chicago, July 17.—Joseph Jefferson, in remembrance of the many fishing trips he enjoyed with Grover Cleveland, recognized the former president in his will, dated Oct. 27, 1899, and filed yesterday in the recorder's office. In a codicil, dated five years later than the will, Jefferson wrote: "To my friend, the Hon. Grover Cleveland, I bequeath my best Kentucky reel." This reel is said by those who knew Joseph Jefferson in life to have been one of the actor's most treasured possessions.

Appeal In Rebate Cases

Chicago, July 17.—Judge Grosscup has granted the Chicago and Alton Railway company, J. N. Faithorn and F. A. Wann writs of supersedeas staying the execution of a fine aggregating $60,000, assessed against the three defendants a short time ago by Judge Landis on charges of granting illegal rebates to meat packers. At the same time, a bond of $60,000, pending an appeal of the case to the United States circuit court of appeals, was filed by the defendants.

Religious Celebration by Italians

New York, July 17.—One hundred thousand Italians from New York and other large cities celebrated the feast of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel here. The streets were thronged with devotees carrying presents and candles of every size and kind as offerings to be placed on the altar. At frequent intervals masses were said at the Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel. There was a continual procession of celebrants to and from the church.

Bogus Money Made In Italy

Trenton, July 17.—Judge Cross sentenced Lugi Zambino, an Italian counterfeiter, to six years in state prison. Zambino was one of a number of counterfeiters operating in and about New York and Hoboken. The spurious money was made in Italy and brought over here.

Child Labor Bill Passed

Atlanta, July 17.—By a vote of 125 to 2, the lower branch of the Georgia legislature passed the so-called child labor bill. This measure already has the approval of a majority of the upper house. The provisions of the act are to become operative Jan. 1, 1908.

Collins Is Laid Off

Boston, July 17.—For his desertion from the club for the whole of last week James Collins has temporarily been relieved of the management of the team and Chick Stahl will act as manager for the present. While the above statement, issued by the club last night, is rather ambiguous, it states plainly that Stahl is in charge of the team. The fans regard the statement as a suspension of Collins and also as a "stall" until President Johnson arrives here.

Verdict In Railway Disaster

Salisbury, Eng., July 17.—The coroner's inquest into the cause of the wreck of the Plymouth steamer express, whereby 27 lives were lost, resulted in a verdict that the derailment of the train was due to the high speed at which it was running and which was contrary to the company's orders. It is declared that drivers of trains not stopping at Salisbury should have their attention drawn to the regulations, which was not done in this case. The jury considered that a certain amount of blame attached to the company as well as to the engine driver.

Strike of Iron Workers

Lebanon, Pa., July 17.—All tonnage men in Lebanon working under the jurisdiction of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers have stopped work in response to a strike order issued by the national body which affects all mills in the east. The demand upon which the strike is based is for an increase from $4 to $4.50 a ton for puddlers and a proportionate increase to finishers.

Wreck of Texas Elks' Train

Trinidad, Col., July 17.—A passenger train carrying Texas Elks to the convention in Denver was wrecked by a landslide three miles north of Forbes Junction. Engineer Cullen was killed and Fireman Garrell badly hurt. That the whole train was not carried into the deep arroyo is probably due to the fact that it was running slowly on account of recent heavy rains.

Milwaukee Makes 22 Knots

San Francisco, July 17.—The builders' trial trip of the cruiser Milwaukee, built at a cost of $1,500,000 by the Union Iron Works, was made in San Francisco bay. The weather was so foggy that it was decided not to take the vessel through the Golden Gate to the ocean. The vessel must make 22 knots an hour. The trial was satisfactory.

Where Shakes Are Frequent

Santa Fe., N. M., July 17.—Considerable property damage was done at Socorro, San Marcial and nearby settlements by an earthquake shock, which was the severest of the 200 shocks that have occurred in that part of New Mexico during the past two years. The shocks are caused by earth slides in the Magdalena mountains.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Charles K. Smith, aged 56, treasurer for Norfolk (Mass.) county during the past 17 years, died at his home at Dedham from a general physical breakdown.

John A. Aylward of Madison has announced himself as a Democratic candidate for governor of Wisconsin.

John Devonshire, 40 years old, was drowned in the Merrimac river at Newburyport, Mass. He was in a boat with two other men ready to go bathing, when the boat capsized.

Secretary Taft is on his way to Canada on an extended vacation.

OPENS WAR ON MORAN

Sullivan May Be "Old Line" Leaders' Candidate

Boston, July 17.—Congressman Sullivan has been practically decided upon as the candidate of the "old line" leaders to fight John B. Moran for the gubernatorial nomination, and in a statement issued by him last evening the congressman opened war on the district attorney.

Congressman Sullivan says the claims of Moran for the nomination are no better than those of the "highwayman who claims your purse by holding a pistol at your head." He calls Moran a "dictator" who would "force his own nomination, write the party platform, and seize the party machinery." He says the Democratic party would have a good chance to win on the tariff issue but that Moran would make the campaign on a "personal issue" and make it a "Moran fight" all through.

The congressman closes his statement by saying that "if the Democratic party has one red corpuscle in its blood it will reject the bold demand and fight for its principles to the last ditch."

Persecution of Americans

Havana, July 17.—American residents of the Isle of Pines are excited over the imprisonment in jail at Nauva Gerona of Miss Millie Brown, 19 years old; L. C. Giltner, and William Augustine, all Americans. The three, for their own instruction and amusement, had constructed a telegraph line 1800 feet long. They were arrested for the violation of an old military order prohibiting other than government telegraph lines and sentenced jointly to pay $500 fine or to a joint term of imprisonment of 100 days. All refused to submit to the payment of the fine and were taken to jail to serve 33 days each.

Had a Fortune of $35,000,000

London, July 17.—Alfred Beit, the South African financier, died yesterday. He had been in poor health for some time. He was born in 1855 at Hamburg. He was reported to have been implicated in the famous Jameson raid on the Boers. Early in 1903 Beit had an apoplectic stroke while at Johannesburg. Since that time he had lived in London. Beit was worth $35,000,000 to $50,000,000, yet he was seldom seen in public and was hardly known outside of the circles of scientific finance. He controlled the output and price of the world's diamond industry.

Aeronauts Sailed Into Sloop

New York, July 17.—Leo Stevens, Charles Levee and James Hare made a balloon ascension from Clifton, S. I. After crossing New York harbor at high elevation, the aeronauts descended over Flushing bay and began experiments with a sea anchor. While thus engaged their balloon was blown against the mast of the sloop Adaline. A hole was ripped in the bag, which collapsed, leaving the three men clinging to the rigging, from which they descended to the deck of the sloop.

Collapses on Charge of Murder

Utica, N. Y., July 17.—Chester Gillette of Cortland, who was arrested in the Adirondacks, charged with the murder of his sweetheart, Miss Grace Brown, and who is now confined in the county jail in Herkimer, is in a state of physical and mental collapse. Gillette admitted that he had been intimate with Miss Brown for about a year, and that he was aware of the fact that she had been in a delicate condition since April.

New Theory of Deluge

Berlin, July 17.—Between 780 and 1170 inches of rainfall caused the deluge some 12,000 years ago, according to a new theory launched by Professor Reim of the Royal observatory, one of Germany's greatest meteorologists. This theory has caused a great stir not only among scientific men but among theologians. He maintains that the flood was universal and that water covered the whole world.

Chinese Railway Ready For Business

Shanghai, July 17.—The Suchow (53 miles) and Wusieh (26 miles) sections of the Nanking railway were opened yesterday. Trains from Shanghai and Wusieh met at Suchow. It is anticipated that the line will be completed to Nanking by March, 1908. Traffic on the completed sections will begin on July 18.

Sick Marines Coming North

San Juan, P. R., July 17.—Cruiser Columbia has sailed for Boston with 300 marines on board, of whom 165 are suffering from malaria contracted at Panama, where they were stationed in anticipation of trouble during the recent elections there. Nineteen of the marines are seriously ill.

Music Copyright Bill Advanced

London, July 17.—The musical copyright bill passed the committee stage in the house of commons at 3 o'clock this morning. The bill is framed with the purpose of putting an end to the extensive and long established piracy of music and to ensure the protection of foreign composers.

Asked to Account For $2,000,000

New York, July 17.—Richard A. McCurdy, former president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, has been served with papers in a suit which calls upon him to account for about $2,000,000 of the policyholders' money, disbursed through "yellow dog" funds during his regime.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, July 18.

There will be showers in New England.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Miss Helen Gould has a superb library of the best works of modern English and American authors.

Mrs. Clara B. Arthur of Detroit is one of the most active suffrage workers in Michigan. It is largely through her efforts that public baths have been provided for the poor there.

When Miss Angela Burdett-Coutts was created a baroness by Queen Victoria, thirty-five years ago, there was not a single peeress in her own right in the kingdom of Great Britain. Now there are a dozen.

Mrs. Margaret Irving, who was one of the few remaining survivors of Miss Florence Nightingale's companions during the Crimean war, is dead. Mrs. Irving, who was in her seventy-fifth year, was the widow of Charles Irving, artist, of Liverpool.

Miss Helen Kimber of the real estate firm of Kimber & Howard of St. Joseph, Mo., is one of the very few women real estate agents in the world and the only one, with the exception of her partner, who is also a woman, who handles railroad lands.

The only woman who edits, owns and manages a newspaper in the state of South Carolina is Miss Virginia Young of Fairfax. She not only carries on her newspaper successfully, but finds time to take part in frequent and interesting controversies on the subject of woman suffrage.

Mrs. Hetty Green says: "I don't think any woman has enjoyed her life more than I have. I began with $1,000,000, and for every dollar I started with I have made fifty. Women differ. One finds her pleasure in society, another in her conquests, a third in family life, and so on. But not one of them all has found greater happiness than I have in proving that a woman can make millions as well as a man."

BASE HITS.

Rube Waddell has more shut outs than any other American league twirler this year.

Manager Stahl of Washington will now probably stand pat for some time in the matter of outfielders.

Pitcher Christy Mathewson, New York Nationals, seems to have regained much of his old time form.

Manager Collins, Boston Americans, is gradually changing his mind about Catcher Peterson, whom he thought would not do.

In Schafly and Altizer the Washingtons have picked up a couple of good ones. Altizer suggests the former Washington short fielder, Fred Ely.

The Boston physician who has Catcher Lou Criger of the Boston Americans under treatment declares that he hopes to be able to cure the clever backstop.

The Boston American club has filed with President Johnson a written agreement by Pitcher Skillen of Dartmouth to play with Boston if he decides to play professional ball.

LAW POINTS.

The fact that a tenant is summarily ejected from a building for nonpayment of rent is held, in Bergh versus Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe company (C. C. A. 2d C.) 70 L. R. A. 756, not to deprive him of the right to remove his trade fixtures.

That one cannot be a fugitive from justice, subject to interstate rendition, unless he was in the state from which the demand comes at the time the crime is charged to have been committed, is decided in Farrell versus Hawley (Ct.) 70 L. R. A. 686.

The fact that building materials lying in the street may be so arranged as to be attractive to children as a place to play or as a resting place during or after play is held in Friedman versus Snare & T. Co. (N. J. L.) 70 L. R. A. 147, not to impose upon the landowner the duty so to arrange and maintain the materials as to render them safe for such use.

SCIENCE SIFTINGS.

Lightning clouds are always near the ground. They are seldom at a greater height than 2,000 feet.

It is said that a French chemist has discovered a method of making celluloid incombustible. His method consists of adding perchloride of iron to an ether-alcohol solution of celluloid.

It has long been known that smokers are not liable to certain diseases. It is now held that this is due to the presence in the tobacco of formaldehyde, one the strongest of the disinfectants.

The brightness of the corona or ring of light encircling the sun was measured by Charles Fabry during the last total eclipse. He found the light of a point a twentieth degree from the sun's edge to be equivalent to about 720 candlepower, or a little more than a fourth of the brightness of the full moon. The sky near the uneclipsed sun is 2,000 times as bright.

THE COOKBOOK.

Good macaroni is of a yellowish tint and does not break readily in cooking.

Do not butter a cake pan for angel cake. Do not use sour milk, buttermilk or any so called prepared or self raising flours.

Venison has a delicious flavor when properly cooked, but is extremely apt to be tough. A roasting piece should lie in a marinade of oil and vinegar at least twelve hours before cooking time. Twenty-four hours is better still.

The washing of meat is detrimental to its quality. In some cases it may perhaps be necessary. As a rule, however, scraping the outside and trimming it carefully are all that will be needed, except occasionally in summer, when it may be desirable to wash it.

The lost child call was sounded at .30 Monday afternoon to summons aid to search for the 9 year old son of ex-Councilman Eugene F. De Normandie, of Highland avenue, Wollaston. It was thought at first that the boy might have gone to Paragon Park. The boy turned up all right at supper time. He had simply taken the electric car ride to Neponset, and returning from there strolled Wollaston beach.

LIGHT TEST FOR GEMS.

How to Prove Genuineness of Precious Stones.

"It has frequently been asserted," says J. A. Key, a jeweler, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "that there are certain kinds of artifically made gems —in fact, I believe the statement has been made to cover all kinds of such stones—that it is not only impossible, practically, for the layman to detect them, but that even experts are often deceived. This is a mistake, however, for by the simple light test any gem except a pearl may be proved false or real by the variest tyro at such an undertaking.

"I assume that the light test as regards diamonds is comparatively well known, and this is the same test that may be applied to emeralds, rubies and so forth. It consists of holding the gem directly on a horizontal line between the eye and a light held at a distance of about a foot from the stone, and preferably this light should be a candle. In the case of a diamond but one light will be seen clearly through the stone, whereas if it is bogus, no matter how much expert care may have been bestowed upon its making, a hundred lights may be observed, none of them clearly defined.

"With other gems the best method of making them is by superimposing a top cutting of garnet on a base, often mere colored glass. When it is held between the light and the eye, therefore, this line of juncture, impossible of detection under ordinary circumstances, will appear like a black line. That's just how simple it is to detect fake stones of any kind except pearls, and with these I confess it is hard to make a detection without tests that are not convenient for the layman to undertake. As a rule, however, a pearl of generous proportions and exceptionally good color is always open to suspicion."

How to Wash Blue Flannel Dresses.

The little blue flannel dresses that are so serviceable and that are a part of the wardrobe of every small girl may be washed satisfactorily if these directions are followed, says the New York Mail:

Boil a quarter of a pound of yellow soap in three quarts of water, slicing the soap into thin shavings and letting it boil until it is all dissolved. Fill a tub with lukewarm water and add enough of the hot soapsuds to make a good lather. Dip the dress in and rub it well, but do not rub any soap on it, for it will leave a white mark. Wring it out with the hands, not with a wringer, because it creases it badly. Wash in another water with a little more of the soapsuds if it is much soiled. Then wring it again and dip into lukewarm water to rinse it, and make it very blue with the blue bag. Shake it out thoroughly after wringing it and dry in the shade until damp enough to iron on the wrong side. It must not be dried entirely before it is ironed. Colored woolen or cotton stockings can be washed in the same way and rinsed in strong salt and water to keep the colors from running instead of blue water.

How to Starch Thin Waists.

In these days of thin shirt waists and delicate neckwear it is sometimes a problem for the housewife to know just how to treat the waists and laces so that they will not be too stiff, says the Philadelphia Press. The following rule is an excellent one: Dissolve a tablespoonful of gum arabic in about three quarts of water and dip the articles to be starched into this liquid. Wring them out and dry them where they will not freeze. After drying sprinkle them, roll them up and iron as usual. The gum arabic will not stick to the iron, and it gives to the muslins and lawns only the same amount of stiffness that is found in new goods. Once tried you will not use starch in your delicate fabrics again. The gum arabic can be bought for 35 cents per pound and much cheaper at the wholesale druggists. An inferior grade is as good for this purpose as a high priced quality.

How to Remove Warts and Corns.

So far I have never seen a wart that would not yield to this simple home treatment if persevered with for a few weeks, and, in fact, stubborn corns will be relieved if not entirely cured in the same way. Buy of your druggist 10 cents' worth of the very best and freshest "cold pressed castor oil" and moisten thoroughly the wart (or corn) three or four times a day if possible (or oftener) with a clean toothpick wrapped with a little absorbent cotton dipped in the oil. Should the part feel sore discontinue the treatment a day, then start again, and you will be much pleased with the result.

How to Get Rid of Large Stones.

To get rid of a large stone make the stone very hot on one side only; pour water on it to make it crack and help it along with a heavy hammer, says Tom Watson's Magazine. Another way, in the winter is to bore a hole pretty well into the stone, fill with water and plug it firmly shut. The force of the water as it freezes will crack the stone. Still another way is to make a hole in the direction of the veins or cleavage of the stone, put in a cleft cylinder of iron, then drive an iron wedge between the two halves of the cylinder.

How Lace Can Be Cleaned With Flour

Cream colored lace can be cleaned and made to look like new by rubbing it in dry flour. Rub as if washing in water, then take it outdoors and shake all the flour out. If not perfectly clean repeat the rubbing in a little more clean flour. The flour must be very thoroughly shaken from the lace or the result will be far from satisfactory. White knitted hoods can be cleaned in this way; babies' socks also if only slightly soiled.

Quincy Men For Treasurer

The death of County Treasurer Smith having been anticipated, and it being important that the office shall be filled promptly the County Commissioners have been looking over the county for a worthy successor.

Two in Quincy have been mentioned, Hon. John O. Hall, the ex-Mayor, and H. Walter Gray, the former City Treasurer. Mr. Hall is said to be a candidate, and his acquaintance with public affairs and the fact that he is an expert accountant are good qualifications.

Mr. Gray's service for the city as treasurer and in National banks has given him a practical knowledge in negotiating loans and the money market which would be of value.

County Commissioner Merrill of this city says the office will not be filled for a few days, as his colleague Commissioner Foster of Brookline is away.

Pinel—Bower.

A simple but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bower of Water street, on July 11th when their only daughter Miss Nellie was united in marriage to Mr. William E. Pinel, by Rev. Mr. Brady of the Calvary Baptist church. The happy couple left Quincy Adams amid showers of rice and confetti for Gloucester, where they will spend two weeks.

TODAY'S COURT.

George S Vining and James H. Smith were arraigned for drunkenness at Braintree. Cases continued until Aug. 23.

Thomas Radley, Edgar White, James Gillon, Charles Edwards and John Gillon were arraigned for disturbance on a street car, and for assault. Cases continued until August 4.

The St. Swithin day saying did not hold good. There was a smart shower early this morning.

Compressed Air for Quarrying.

The expansive force of compressed air is employed in a very interesting way by the North Carolina Granite Company. On a sloping hillside composed of granite, which shows no bed plans, but splits readily in any direction when started, a 3-inch bore is sunk about eight feet deep, and the bottom is enlarged bp exploding a half-stick of dynamite. A small charge of powder is fired in this hole, which starts a horizontal crack, or cleavage. Charges increasing in size are exploded until the cleavage has extended over a radius of 75 or 100 feet. Then a pipe is cemented into the bore, and air is forced in under a pressure of from 80 to 100 pounds. The expansion of the air extend the cleavage until it comes out at the surface on the slope of the hill. A horizontal sheet of granite several acres in extent may thus be separated.

A NATION OF CRIPPLES RHEUMATISM BEYOND CONTROL

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Suffers is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation of cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself, and if neglected, is bound to grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twinges of Rheumatism go to E. J. Murphy's drug store right here in Quincy, and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatic Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thoroughly. Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it because it is in the end by far the cheapest method. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will send you a free sample which you can test and try free of charge.

Chief Litchfield Makes Several Appointments Under Civil Service

Chief Engineer Litchfield has appointed the following as members of the permanent fire force of the city, from the names certified to him by the Civil Service Commission, the appointments to date from Saturday, July 21:—Michael E. Scully, Andrew T. Scully, William Carroll and James F. Malone.

Michael E. Scully, was born in Quincy Feb. 28, 1872, and has always resided in this city. He was educated in the Coddington and Adams schools. Leaving school he entered the employ of T. A. Whicher & Co., by whom he was employed for six months. He then accepted a position with R. P. Higgins making fancy leather goods, with whom he remained ten years. Since that time he has been employed as a motorman and at the factory of A. B. Packard. At the present time he is employed as a motorman. He has been a call man in the fire service of Quincy for eight years previous to 1905.

Andrew T. Scully was born in Quincy July 31, 1875, and has always made his home in this city. He was educated in the public schools graduating from the Adams school. He was employed for several years in a boot and shoe manufactory and later as driver for Assistant Engineer Packard for ten years. He served as a call man in the fire department 1889 to 1903.

William Carroll was born in Quincy Nov. 2, 1880, and has always made Quincy his home. He received his early education at the Willard school. After graduating he entered the employ of his father as a driver. After working for his father eight years he entered the employ of John Cashman and later was made a driver in the fire department, being stationed at the Central station for the past sixteen months. He is considered one of the best drivers in the department.

James F. Malone was born in Boston March 15, 1865 but has lived in Quincy since a boy. He entered the Washington school at the age of five years. He attended school until 16 years of age and then worked for several years on a farm. He then served his time as a stone cutter at which he worked four years, since that time he has been employed as a teamster. He has been a member of the call fire service in Quincy since May, 1887.

A GHOST AND A LAWSUIT

[Copyright, 1906, by I. D. Marshall.]

In one of the west counties of England, on one of the highways leading into and out of a good sized town, there used to stand on the brow of a hill a house familiarly spoken of as the house with the red wing.

By and by there was a lawsuit and the place was sold to Squire Henderson. He in turn sold it to one Saunderson. Saunderson made some of the rooms habitable, secured the services of an old woman for housekeeper and one March day became a resident.

A month passed away without any unusual incident. Mr. Saunderson made repairs to the fences, had the trees trimmed up and arranged to repaint the house later on. He testified in a court of law later on that he plumed himself on having made a good bargain, and that he was perfectly satisfied with the place until a queer circumstance happened. Mrs. Scovill, the housekeeper, was nearly fifty years old, and was known as a sensible woman and one educated above her station. Her room was on the second story back, and one morning she notified the master that on the night previous, at about the hour of midnight, she was awakened by some noise she could not make out. It was a moonlight night, and on looking from the window she saw a man carrying another man on his back and crossing the open ground, to disappear in a spinny or thicket. There was an outdoor entrance to the cellar, and the man and his burden seemed to have come from there. The man with the burden did not seem to walk, but rather to glide. She was certain that the man on his back was a corpse. She admitted being too frightened to call the master, but jumped into bed, covered up her head and was all in a tremble until morning.

Mr. Saunderson laughed at the woman and gave her story scant attention. On the third night she saw the same sight again, and next morning she was for leaving her place. The master promised to watch from a rear window in the red wing, and for three nights he did watch, and nothing happened. The moon was fulling all the time, and on the fourth night the grounds in the rear of the house were almost as light as day. It was testified by others that they had read print outdoors that night. At exactly a quarter past 12 and without the slightest preliminary warning there issued from the outdoor entrance to the cellar a man with another man on his back. Mr. Saunderson could not see the face of the living man, nor could he well make out his form, but the face of the burden was plain to him. It was that of a young and well dressed man, having black hair and a mustache of the same color. The body was rigid, as if life had departed some hours before.

The man with the burden did not walk like a living man. As the housekeeper contended, he seemed to glide. In making for the thicket he passed over a bit of ground which the spring sun had softened up, and if a live man he must leave footprints there. When he had disappeared into the thicket Mr. Saunderson went out to look for traces. He testified that he found the footprints of a rat, a hare and a bird in the soft soil, but of nothing else. You may believe that he was startled and puzzled, but, being a hard headed man, he was not rattled. Next day he got a young farmer to come and sit up with him for the night and observe and corroborate him. Mrs. Scovill was also present. At a quarter past 12 the same thing happened as on the night before.

Next day a workman with a pick went over the cellar bottom and investigated until sure that it did not hold a grave. Then the thicket was searched foot by foot without uncovering any horror. Next night the master, housekeeper and three persons of good standing witnessed the carrying away of the dead man. Then Mr. Saunderson went to the squire and demanded the return of his money on the ground that the house was haunted. The squire was just able to hobble about, but not to put in a night at the house with the red wing. He sent two persons of his acquaintance, however, but, lo and behold, nothing whatever happened. They were there on the second and third night, but nothing came of it.

Mr. Saunderson and his witnesses insisted that they had seen what they had seen, the housekeeper refused to stay another day, and as the squire intimated that the purchaser of the place was trying to work some sort of swindle on him a suit at law was instituted against him.

From the day the suit was begun Mr. Saunderson had two men in the house every night. In order to be fair with the squire he allowed him to have the same number. The owner had got the idea that the man with the burden appeared only at about the full of the moon, but was not going to miss any chances. Not a thing happened until a month had passed—a month from the date of the "things" first appearance. Then it reappeared and was seen for four nights in succession. When five or six people see a thing four or five times over and swear to it, what are you going to do about it? You can't call them liars and perjurers, can you? You may not believe it possible that they saw what they said they saw, but you are one to five.

Hundreds of people journeyed miles and miles to see the house during the proceedings at law, and the press of England published hundreds of opinions and theories regarding the ghost, but there was never any solution satisfactory to the public and never will be. What the witnesses saw they saw. How it came about that such a sight was presented to them you will have to figure out for yourself.

Silver Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hayden Mr. and Mrs. William Norrie

Assisted by many friends and neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hayden of River street observed their silver wedding anniversary on Tuesday evening very pleasantly. Their residence was attractive both outside and inside. The grounds were enclosed with bunting of National colors, and were lighted by Japanese lanterns. Inside, every room was decorated. White and green were the colors in the parlor, where Mr. and Mrs. Hayden received. They stood in one corner with a background of green. The dining room was known as the W. R. C. room and was elaborately festooned with red, white and blue, and decorated with flags. The stairway and upstairs rooms were also decorated.

The ushers at the reception were Miss Annie Dorley, Miss Christina Moodie, Miss Bessie Chisholm, Miss Viola Hayden, Miss Edith Stone and Miss Lulu Moody. The refreshments were served by Mrs. Annie Grignon, Mrs. Rita Waterhouse and others.

There was instrumental music indoors by Mrs. Selleck and Miss Irmina Cain, and vocal numbers by Mr. D. J. Seward McCurdy. Outside a street organ was kept at work almost constantly, and dancing on the lawn was enjoyed. A Virginia reel was one of the features. A patriotic exercise was given by young ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden were married July 17, 1881, by Rev. Samuel Kelley, a popular pastor of Quincy in those days. They have one son Forrest E. Hayden, and one daughter, Mrs. Albert M. McCurdy of Norfolk Downs, and recently became grandparents. The mother of Mrs. Hayden, Mrs. Augusta Hayden, was among the guests, and is smart for a great grandmother.

Mr. Hayden has for sixteen years been the engineer of the stone crusher of the city, and it would be difficult to find a better man for the position. Mrs. Hayden is an active member of Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps, and holds the office of musician.

The city men in the Highway department made the happy couple a present of money, the W. R. C. gave china and linen, the Jolly Twelve whist club a lamp, and there were several other gifts mostly of silver.

At South Quincy.

The other evening a merry party assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Norrie, 100 Centre street, to help that couple celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Norrie have been residents of South Quincy for the past twenty years. They have been blessed with a family of four, all living at home except John, the oldest and only son, who is serving "Uncle Sam" in the capacity of first class machinist on the cruiser "Columbia."

The guests were all from Quincy and vicinity with the exception of Mr. and Mrs. McConnachie of Milford, and Mrs. Thomas Carson and daughters Elizabeth and May of Barre, Vermont.

Mr. and Mrs. Norrie received some very beautiful presents, all suitable for the occasion.

A very enjoyable evening was spent, everybody wishing the host and hostess the best of health, and trusting that they would meet on some like occasion in the near future.

Success of Former Quincy Resident

Many Quincy people who remember John E. Parrott, formerly of Quincy Point, will be interested to hear that he is now one of the prosperous business men of Saltcoats, Sask, in western Canada.

Mr. Parrott left Quincy in 1886, enlisting in the army. After the expiration of his term he drifted to Saltcoats and has grown up with the country.

A recent issue of the Manitoba Free Press, Winnipeg, in a souvenir edition of Saltcoats, says:

One of the prosperous enterprises of the town is that conducted by Mr. J. E. Parrott, who came here in the early days when the country was sparsely settled and all were pioneers in agriculture. He had great faith in the growth of the west and especially in this fertile belt of park lands and concluded to invest in a small stock, and by adding to it gradually worked up a good business by close attention to and study of the wants of the settlers.

Year by year the business grew until he was forced to build a large stone store, which is fitted with such improvements as to make it complete. It is a store much admired by the travelling public and greatly appreciated by the local trade. It contains one of the best selected stocks in the district. As the country grew Mr. Parrott saw the need of a good stock of lumber, consequently decided to put in a stock which would embrace everything needed for first class building, including brick, lime and all kinds of building material.

His lumber shed is the finest in the province. It is two stories, two hundred and seventy-five feet long, facing on the Main street with a side track in the rear, enabling him to unload cars into the shed with one handling. The residence of Mr. Parrott is one of the finest in Saltcoats. It is finely finished and surrounded by large and well kept grounds. He also owns several other houses and lots in which he sees a profitable investment.

Some five years ago Mr. Parrott and others felt the necessity of a good flour mill and by his own energy and that of others, Saltcoats has now one of the best milling plants of the west, with the latest and most improved machinery, enabling them to make a reputation for turning out a very superior grade of flour. Mr. Parrott is manager of the milling company and the energy applied, with strict attention to the business, has rewarded him with a trade that may be envied and admired by any merchant in the west.

New Fire Orders Relative to Atlantic

When an alarm sounds from any of the boxes that are located in Atlantic do not be surprised if you do not see the Central station apparatus responding. Under a new rule the apparatus will not respond to first alarms from any of the sixties. It is a long run to these boxes from the Central station and Chief Litchfield believes that the apparatus at Atlantic and Wollaston is able to handle any ordinary fire. A second or general alarm would call the Central station apparatus.

Candidate for Senator.

The Randolph Register has a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator this year and one who is worthy of the honor, ex-Representative Fred M. French. The Register notes also that every city and town in the district has had a senator since Randolph was honored in 1875 and 1876.

Mr. French has had large political experience, having been a member of the Republican town committee for thirteen years, serving for five years as secretary and treasurer, and for the past eight years as chairman; he also served eleven years as collector of taxes, and has been a member of the Board of Selectmen, Assessors and Overseers of the Poor. In the fall of 1902, he was unanimously nominated as the Republican candidate for Representative from the Seventh Norfolk District and elected to that office, serving as a member of the important committee on insurance in 1903.

Abuse of Horses

More Humane Treatment Urged by a Correspondent

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

If several people were disgusted at the brutality mentioned in a local in yesterday's paper, more, I am sure must be amazed that any people with humanity alert in them could be satisfied to let the affair go with only an endeavor to in some way advertise the driver, and make no attempt to deal with the matter so that the condition of the animal abused might be bettered.

I know nothing further of the affair than was mentioned in the paper, but for the benefit of those who do not know anything better to do than send such an item to the press, I quote Section 70, Chapter 123 of our Massachusetts laws. "Whoever overdrives, overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, cruelly beats, mutilates or kills an animal, or causes or procures an animal to be so overdriven, overloaded, overworked, driven when overloaded, tormented or cruelly beaten etc., etc.,—shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or by a fine of not more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

If several people witnessed the abuse there is good chance to have a straight case against the offender. Appeal to the central office of the S. P. C. A. will bring additional help, and the local agent of the society, Mr. Furnald, might be called upon for assistance.

It will be a good step forward when every town and city has its own especial branch of the S. P. C. A. managed by alert, earnest, humane men. There is a carelessness in the treatment of horses and other dumb creatures that is cruelty in itself besides the out and out brutality that is evidencing itself more and more frequently and flagrantly.

Just consider for a moment the way the ice-cart horses are urged through our streets; the pace at which the Italians put their heavily loaded fruit wagons over the road with almost no respite on the return trip from Boston; count the number of times a day that you see small boys slashing horses through your street, or up and down the main thoroughfares;-then think of the horses you have seen standing out in the broiling sun these last warm days; step out yourself and stand for five minutes and see how it feels; then think how the horse feels that has to stand an hour or more in it. Is it strange that horses go blind? Do you wonder that horses have the blind staggers and plunge through plate glass windows, become unmanageable and run away?

Paris is called the "Horses' hell" and it is also known as the gayest city in the world—and a little thinking will disclose a very close analogy between the two names. The gayest city in which every thought is subordinated to that of pleasure and of self brings the bearings hard and cruel upon whatever feeds that gaiety and pleasure, and the horse is the animal that has to bear the greatest number and the heaviest demands. It was related not long ago that the horse of a Paris driver in some way became unmanageable, and in the struggle the driver was brought near enough to the horse for the animal to clutch the man, whereupon the horse threw him down between his fore legs and deliberately stamped the life out of him, and if you have any conception of the way that Parisian horses are ill-treated you will understand that the horse performed a very commendable deed, which some of our Quincy horses would doubtless be glad to imitate should circumstances permit.

The French people are not naturally cruel, they have become so through carelessness, and our own people in their united haste of America are getting the same taint upon themselves. A little thought, a little care for those unfortunate, weak, or dumb is going to help them much, but its sure to help those who give more than those who receive. Then for the sake of mutual help cannot each one feel his responsibility to have more care and thought, and manifest more concern for the dumb creatures, especially during this, our warm season? C. F. P.

Houghs Neck Haps and Mishaps

Robert Ferris, aged 9 years, of Bay View avenue, had a narrow escape from death by drowning Tuesday afternoon. The lad was in bathing near the Quincy Yacht club float when he was seized with cramps. He was going down the third time when Gayner Sturgess aged 14 years, grabbed him and brought him to the shore. The lad was unconscious and Dr. Montgomery Fitts who was called, worked over the boy for an hour and a half before he succeeded in reviving him.

The St. Mary's C. T. A. are to hold a dance at Brown's hall, Houghs Neck, this week.

Gertrude Price, aged 7 years, of Bay View avenue, Houghs Neck, fell on Sea street, Tuesday afternoon, cutting a deep gash on her head which required several stitches by Dr. Parker.

Ten young ladies hold a private dancing party tonight at the yacht club hall. Miss Corrinne LaBracque and the Misses Cavanagh have charge of the party.

For the Ledger.

When Vacation's Over.

(One Friday.)

Marie is in the mountains,
Bess is at the shore,
All my other sweethearts
(To state precisely—four)
Have flitted from the city
To some cool weather zone,
I tell you, boys, it's lonesome
To be left all-1-1 alone.

(The next Friday.)

Sunday last I trolleyed out
To hear a concert band,
The day was fine and dandy,
Music, too, was grand.
In the crowd beside me
Stood a perfect little peach,
Golden hair, blue eyes, you know
The kind seems out of reach.

Dropped her purse—I picked it up,
Saw her to the car,
Said, "The one I always take"
Didn't seem to jar.
Rode to town together,
Said her name was Nell,
Talked about the weather,
Other things as well.

Said she was an orphan,
Working every day,
Seemed so sweet and modest
I really liked her way.
Made a date for Wednesday,
Kept it, too, you bet!
Say! She had me going?
Guess I'm going yet.

(Two Fridays later.)

Well! I've gone and done it!
Nell and I are hitched.
Can't see how it happened,
Guess I was bewitched.
I never shall be sorry,
But won't I get thrown down!
There will be frosty faces
When the girls do get back to town!

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Some people think it an awful thing if they discover a little mistake in a newspaper, but the chances are legion. Others are more charitable. It was a minister who at a recent editorial convention offered the following toast:

"To save an editor from starvation take his paper and pay for it promptly. To save him from bankruptcy advertise in his paper liberally. To save him from despair send him every item of news of which you can get hold. To save him from profanity write plainly on one side of the sheet and send in your contribution as early as possible. To save him from mistakes bury him. Dead people are the only ones who never make mistakes."

A surprisingly large number of permits have been granted by the City Council under the new law for the transportation of liquors; altogether too many for a city which votes No license by such an overwhelming majority. The people generally did not know half the number were in the express business.

A three-year limit in which to connect with the sewer will work less of a hardship upon abutters than a one-year limit. It is an expensive job at best but economical in the long run, and will promote health and comfort, and remove unsightly outbuildings.

Announcements of engagements as well as all other news for publication should be accompanied by a brief letter signed by the writer. Anonymous news is received almost daily and consigned to the waste basket. People should be more careful, as it is a rule of all newspapers.

Lawyer Gibson Involved In the Kinan Murder Mystery

TESTIFIES BEFORE JURY

Tells of Part He Took as Counsel For Dead Woman and Her Mother--Charged With Being a "Suspicious Person"

New York, July 18.—Burton W. Gibson, formerly counsel for Mrs. Alice Kinan, who was mysteriously murdered on the night of June 8 in the old homestead in the Bronx, occupied by her mother, Mrs. L. A. Stenton, and herself, was committed to the Tombs by order of Coroner McDonald, in default of $25,000 bail.

The coroner's jury returned last night a verdict to the effect that the murder was committed by some person or persons unknown. Lawyer Gibson himself was yesterday a witness in the coroner's investigation of the murder.

Gibson testified that Mrs. Stenton agreed to give him 40 percent of her property to secure its release frm litigation involving the privilege of a squatter.

Gibson said he secured the release, sold the property to a dummy, acting for himself, and took 40 percent of the proceeds. The remainder, which he said he gave to Mrs. Stenton, was too small by $6000 to pay the arrears in taxes, leaving her $6000 in debt.

Subsequently, he said, he had the tax arrears reduced by $12,000, but gave none of the money so secured to Mrs. Stenton. Another lawyer, who was acting as associate counsel, however, gave her $6000 of the reduction.

Following the murder Gibson said he took from the Stenton house a note for $5000, signed by himself, and payable to Mrs. Kinan, "because he did not want it lying about the house." He said he kept the note and told the police that he had it. He declared that he gave the coroner some jewelry which he also took from the Stenton house.

Gibson said he was at the Stenton house the night before the murder. "I had two offers for her property," he said, "and wanted to tell her about it." Continuing his testimony, Gibson gave an account of his movements on the night Mrs. Kinan was murdered.

After an application by Gibson to be paroled in the custody of his counsel had been denied a delay of two hours was granted to enable Gibson's friends to procure bail. During this time the lawyer was closely guarded and as it was apparent that no bondsman was forthcoming he was taken to the Tombs and locked up. The specific charge on which Gibson is held is being a "suspicious person."

Guatemalans Quit Fighting

Mexico City, July 18.—A number of minor chiefs of the Guatemalan revolution, who made an invasion of the northern portion of that republic, have arrived here and say all movements of the revolutionists in Guatemala are brought to a temporary standstill awaiting negotiations for peace between Salvador and Guatemala. The revolutionists allege cruelties, executions, forced loans and general despotic conduct on President Cabrera's part.

Connecticut Has a Cyclone

Stamford, Conn., July 18.—A small cyclone struck the Stamford motor works, owned by Walter Ferguson, tearing off the roof of the building and with the roof carrying away to a distance of about 50 feet a part of the shafting of the plant, the whole weighing nearly a ton. The men who were at work on the upper floor escaped injury by getting under a long work table when they saw the cyclone coming.

Widespread Check Swindling

Reading, Pa., July 18.—James R. Mercer of this city has fully confirmed the dispatch from Chicago of the extensive swindling operations throughout the west by a forger who passed spurious checks on business men signed by the name of Mercer. At least 75 checks have turned up and the total sum is $1500. Mercer does not even have an account at the bank named.

Foreign Weavers Step Out

Danville, Va., July 18.—The 12 German immigrants whose employment at the Riverside cotton mills as weavers caused 60 of the old operators who objected to working with the foreigners to quit work have left their places in the mills. It is expected work will be resumed today.

Great Eruption of Stromboli

Palermo, July 18.—There was a violent eruption of Stromboli yesterday, incandescent material being thrown to enormous heights and causing serious fires on the island. Fortunately no deaths resulted. The eruption was attended by loud detonations.

Defense of Mrs Hartje

Pittsburg, July 18.—Perhaps the most important development in the Hartje divorce case yesterday was the outline of the defense that was disclosed. Testimony was gathered for the first time what plan for accounting for the disputed love letters will be followed by Mrs. Hartje's counsel. That she had written two or three envelopes addressed to "Tom" Madine, the coachman co-respondent, at the request of Annie Lutz, one of the maids, and that she also had given Annie sheets of her paper, were among the significant statements made.

No Oil Indictments In Ohio

Cleveland, July 18.—The federal grand jury reported that no indictments had been found against the Standard Oil company and the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railway in connection with the charge of violating interstate commerce laws. This action was decided on because of lack of jurisdiction. The case and all the evidence submitted before the grand jury here will be transferred to Chicago, where proceedings will be instituted in the federal court.

Battleship In Collision

Newport News, Va., July 18.—During a violent wind and rainstorm which swept over the harbor here last evening the Norwegian turret steamship Guernsey dragged anchor and crashed stern-on into the starboard side of the battleship Rhode Island. Several plates on the side of the Rhode Island are said to have been slightly bent and a hole was stove in the side of the tramp. It has been impossible to get an interview with either captain.

Rogers and Rockefeller Out

New York, July 18.—The committee of trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance company appointed to nominate a new board of trustees to be voted for at the annual meeting of the company in December made its final report yesterday, and in doing so disclosed the fact that Henry H. Rogers and William Rockefeller had withdrawn from further connection with the committee.

No Organization of Food Men

Chicago, July 18.—At a meeting of manufacturers of different articles of food held here an attempt to form a national food manufacturers' association proved futile. The meeting also failed to approve the appointment of a committee to draw up a form of guarantee to be used by all food manufacturers as designated by the law.

AN UNUSUAL MOVE

Thaw's Counsel Seeks to Check District Attorney's Office

A WRIT OF PROHIBITION

Alleged Illegal Use of the Grand Jury Subpoenas In Taking Depositions--Olcott Is Certain That His Client Is Insane

New York, July 18.—The defense in the case of Harry K. Thaw, accused of the murder of Stanford White, made an unusual and unexpected move when a writ of prohibition was secured from Justice Blanchard in the supreme court restraining the district attorney and the July grand jury from taking further evidence under oath against the prisoner.

Application for the writ was made by John Gleason, of counsel for Thaw, and the order to show cause why it should not be continued was made returnable today. The district attorney's office will request an adjournment because of the absence of District Attorney Jerome and his assistant, Mr. Garvan, who so far has had charge of the Thaw case.

Counsel for Thaw allege that through the illegal use of grand jury subpoenas, the district attorney is summoning all possible witnesses in the case to his office, putting them under oath there and taking depositions which may be detrimental to the prisoner's interest. It is further alleged that, as Thaw is already under indictment, and no new indictment for the murder of White is contemplated, the district attorney has no right to use the grand jury as a cloak for his own inquisition.

Almost every person who can appear as a witness in the case, 47 of them so far, have been sworn by the district attorney, it is asserted, and depositions made for use at the trial. Through all of this counsel for the defense has not been allowed to be present.

Mrs. Harry Thaw visited her husband in the Tombs yesterday and afterward went to the offices of Judge Olcott's law firm, which has been re-engaged in the case by Thaw's mother. The conference continued for nearly an hour.

It is reported that Thaw has been under the close scrutiny of an alienist, disguised as a prison attendant, ever since the possibility was raised of an insanity plea being urged.

The World today says: "Harry Thaw will never be placed on trial for the murder of Stanford White. An application will be made for the appointment of a commission to inquire into his sanity. There is no doubt but that he will be declared insane and sent to the hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan.

"This authoritative statement was made to The World last night immediately after the conclusion of a conference at the Hotel Lorraine by one who had been present. At this conference were Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry Traw; Lewis L. Delafield, her personal counsel; W. M. K. Olcott of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, young Thaw's former counsel; Josiah Thaw and George L. Carnegie, son and son-in-law of Mrs. William Thaw. Mrs. Evelyn N. Thaw was present, but took no part in the conference.

"Mrs. William Thaw met Olcott for the first time and insisted upon his reassuming the defense of her son, which she said he could direct in any manner he saw fit. Olcott promised to take the matter under advisement, but said he could give no final answer until he had conferred with the other members of his firm. The probabilities are that the firm will again take up the direction of the defense of Thaw.

"Mr. Olcott gave Mrs. Thaw information he had collected which convinced her that her son was mentally unsound."

Relics of Centuries Ago

Aix-La-Chapelle, Prussia, July 18.—The sarcophagus of Charlemagne was opened at Emperor William's wish for the purpose of examining two precious cloths. These and other relics were found to be in good condition. Three documents were found, dated 1481, 1483 and 1581. The older of the two fabrics dates back to the 10th century and contains figures of four elephants. The other is of the 12th century. The sarcophagus was first opened in the year 1000 by Emperor Otto III.

Vast Fortune Left by Belt

London, July 18.—Friends of Alfred Belt, the South African financier who died July 16, estimate that he left a fortune of between $125,000,000 and $150,000,000, and expect that it will be found when his will is published that legacies aggregating many millions, if not the bulk of his fortune, will be devoted to public benefactions in England and South Africa.

To Serve as Training Ship

Washington, July 18.—The gunboat Bancroft has been transferred to the treasury department and her name will be stricken from the naval list. In the future she will be used as a training ship for revenue cutter cadets. The Bancroft was launched in 1892. She has a tonnage of 839 tons and is a miniature warship in every detail.

Jamaica Guards Against Smallpox

Kingston, Jam., July 18.—Quarantine against Panama has been decided upon, owing to the outbreak of smallpox on the isthmus.

RISE AS ONE MAN

Russian Peasants Burn Estates and Murder Proprietors

Province of Voronozh, July 18.—The troubles in the whole of this district, covering 135 miles square, are becoming more serious daily. The peasants have risen as one man and last night over 20 estates were burned and several landed proprietors killed.

This town is filled with terror-stricken proprietors who were able to escape yesterday's carnage by fleeing from their estates. Ten miles from here 15 estates were burned and many of the proprietors killed. The governor has arrived with Cossacks, but order has not been restored.

Organization of Assassins

St. Petersburg, July 18.—The assassin of General Kozloff of the headquarters staff, who was murdered in the English park at Peterhof on Saturday last, has been identified as a Lett belonging to an organization the members of which have sworn to kill General Trepoff, General Prince Putiatin and 13 other persons intimately connected with the court. The assassin was chosen by lot.

Police Chief Loses Leg and Arm

Tiflis, July 18.—Chief of Police Martinoff, while driving in the street, was mortally wounded by a bomb. His leg and arm were blown off. The bomb was thrown from the Georgian Nobles school. Martinoff was much hated on account of the severity of the measures he adopted in putting down meetings and for the maltreatment of natives.

Sebastopol Workers on Strike

Sebastopol, July 18.—The workmen employed at the arsenal of the admiralty here have struck and have been joined by the store employes and street car drivers. The streets are being patrolled. It is stated that the agitation and strike are in sympathy with the Otchakoff mutineers, whose trial has begun.

Seizure of Arms In Sweden

Copenhagen, July 18.—Russian revolutionists are trying again to import arms by way of Sweden and Finland. The Swedish authorities have seized not far from Stockholm 20,000 rifles that had been destined for a Finnish town. The weapons were hidden in casks, the tops of which were filled with fruit.

Must Stay Indoors Nights

Baku, July 18.—In view of the terrorized state of the population the governor general of this province has ordered all people to stay in-doors from 9 o'clock p. m. till 5 o'clock a. m. Persons on whom arms are found will be imprisoned for three months.

Violence In Smolensk District

Smolensk, July 18.—The agrarian movement has assumed a violent phase in this district. The estates of Count Sheromatieff, a prominent reactionary, and Prince Lubanoff Rostoffsky, and three other large estates have been completely destroyed.

Show Tents Blew Down

Bayonne, N. J., July 18.—A wild stampede occurred during the performance of Pawnee Bill's Wild West show here when a wind storm blew down 10 of the tents. An audience numbering about 1000 persons became panic-stricken. Only two persons were injured. The horse tent blew down and 400 horses ran helter skelter. Cowboys rounded up the frightened animals, while police quieted the badly scared audience, which consisted mainly of women and children.

Verdict In Hooker's Favor

Jamestown, N. Y., July 18.—Judge Hazel of the federal court last night directed the jury in the case of the receiver of the Fredonia National bank against Justice Hooker of the New York state supreme court to find a verdict for the defendant, thus dismissing the case. The action against Hooker was to recover $16,000 on a note alleged to be due the bank. Hooker showed that the bank had accepted stock certificates from Mrs. Hooker to liquidate his indebtedness.

Big Tramp Has $2,000,000 Cargo

Boston, July 18.—The British steamer Tronto, the largest tramp steamship ever in this port, has arrived from Calcutta on her maiden voyage. She is 400 feet long, 52 feet beam, 27 feet depth to hold. Captain Carruthers said that the passage was the dampest he ever made in his 30 years' experience. There was almost continuous fog and mist hanging over the water. The cargo includes East Indian goods valued at $2,000,000.

Prison Doors Thrown Open

Washington, July 18.—Advices received at the Venezuelan legation here confirm the report that General Castro, in commemoration of his resumption of the prisidency, has pardoned all offenders sentenced by the state courts. The prisons have been completely cleared. Castro has not yet formed his new cabinet.

Cavalry Captain Fatally Hurt

Boise, Ida., July 18.—Captain Yates, Fourteenth cavalry, ranking captain at Boise barracks, was probably fatally hurt by being thrown from his horse on the drill ground, while engaged in drilling raw recruits. Yates graduated from West Point with the class of 1893.

Boy's Murderer May Soon Be Placed Under Arrest

WHITE TELLS HIS STORY

It Eliminates Suspicions That Were Entertained Against Him--Dead Boy's Father Is Closely Questioned by Police

Great Barrington, Mass., July 18.—The investigation into the death of John Streub, whose body was found in the woods near Housatonic Sunday, concealed under boughs of hemlock, continued yesterday, but without producing any definite results.

Joseph White, the young man who was said to have been young Streub's companion when the latter left his home in Housatonic a week ago, returned to Housatonic from Torrington, Conn. White was questioned by the police as to his movements after leaving home and told an apparently straightforward story. He denied that Streub was with him when he left Housatonic. White said he left his own home alone and went directly to an electric car and rode to Great Barrington. He did not see Streub that day and had not seen him for several days previous to that time.

His statement about his trip to Great Barrington by trolley has been corroborated by several persons who were on the car at the time. They say that Streub was not with White. From Great Barrington White went to Torrington, where he procured work.

It has been said in Housatonic that White and Streub started together for Torrington to look for work, the latter, who was only 12 years old, having become angry because hi father would not allow him to work in Housatonic during his vacation from school. White declared that there was no truth in this report as far as he knew.

Carefully guarding the name of the person under suspicion, the police say that they believe they have established a motive for the crime. Theory after theory was run down and exhausted. The discovery of a cord about the body led to the belief that an automobile had struck the lad, killed him, and that the occupants of the car to conceal the crime had dragged the body to the woods. After an investigation this theory was abandoned. Likewise the police came to the conclusion that there was no reason that tramps should have killed the little fellow.

State Officers Rhoades and Wood visited the home of Emil Streub, father of the dead boy, in Housatonic, and had a long talk with him as they did with other members of the family. It is said that they learned a number of important facts.

Streub was asked about the boys' disappearance, and why it was that no more active search was made for him. The father said that he believed the boy had run away to find work, and that he would hear from him within a few days.

The father was also asked if it were not true that he had had considerable trouble with his son, who was inclined to be wayward.

In their investigations the officers discovered that John Streub had on one occasion been struck by the person who is believed to be under surveillance. It is said that the discovery of the assault was what started the police on their present line of inquiry.

Excitement over the rumored arrest of a suspect has stirred the whole town. Inquiries of the officers at work on the case were not productive of information as to who the suspect might be. It is known, however, that they are closely watching one person.

The new theory of the police department eliminates the suspicions that were entertained against White.

Went to War at Age of Ten

Washington, July 18.—The officials of the pension office think they have discovered in Lyston D. Howe of Streator, Ills., the youngest volunteer of the Civil war. He enlisted first in 1861 when only 10 years and 9 months old, and served for four months, when he was discharged on account of his age. He enlisted again in 1862, when 11 years and 5 months old, and served until the end of the war. The record was developed in connection with an application for increased pension, which was granted.

Cloudbursts In Keystone State

Pittsburg, July 18.—Heavy rains throughout western Pennsylvania have caused considerable damage and in a number of places showers were veritable cloudbursts. Over an inch was recorded as the precipitation. In a number of the smaller towns the creeks and rivers flooded factories. At Greensburg a 6-year-old boy was carried away by a stream while trying to cross a footbridge.

Injury to Canned Goods Trade

Birmingham, Eng., July 18.—At a meeting of the Grocers' association here it was stated that the canned meat scare was having the most serious effect on trade in all canned goods. American firms are now flooding the country with literature.

Californian Leads the Elks

Denver, July 18.—Judge Henry Melvin of Oakland, Cal., was unanimously elected grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in the convention last evening.

Positions of Trust

Every man is likely, at some time, to be called to fill a position of trust requiring a bond.

You may be appointed guardian of a minor, or executor of an estate; you may be elected to public office, or chosen treasurer of some organization; you may be offered a fiduciary position with a bank, or may wish to guarantee a contract—in all these circumstances, and many others, we will act as your surety.

Being the largest Company in the world whose business is restricted to furnishing Suretyship Bonds, we can give you an absolute guarantee, and save you from annoying obligations. Apply to

In the Smart Little Trap

By VIRGINIA LEILA WENTZ

Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague

"And he has the smartest looking trap you ever saw, Madge! It's champagne colored and a perfect love. What do you bet I don't land him, trap and all, before the summer's flown by?"

Miss Irene Warden, a beauty (and aware of it), was writing to her girl chum concerning the bachelor who had just taken the big colonial house with the carriage road and iron archway which for several seasons now had abandoned hope of usefulness.

She was writing by an open window where the scent of the roses came up from the front garden. Beyond lay the pretty tree lined road over which the bachelor and his champagne colored trap had just flown by.

"Although I've told you his name is Horace Matlock," ran on Miss Warden's pen, "I haven't told you what he looks like. He's an old man, forty or fifty, I should say. His nose is rather too big, although people call him handsome, and he's a bit bald, but, then, I suppose most men who live in big houses and drive smart traps have big noses. What?" Miss Warden smiled a little soft smile into the glass above her dressing table and then bent over her portfolio again:

"Of course I'd prefer dear old Tom. He's young and stunning and sings college songs so beautifully, but, as you know, he hasn't a red! And I really must do something this summer, Madge. My already meager allowance will be cut considerably in the autumn, for in September pa's going to enter the matrimonial game himself—a horrid, designing widow too! So I must 'step lively,' in the parlance of street car officials.

"In point of fact, though," pursued the voluble pen, "it'll be pretty easy, plain sailing. I haven't a single good looking rival up in this out of the way place except old Professor Thornton's daughter, and she's the quietest poke of a girl—a regular stay at home. And as for dressing—well, Madge, you and I spend as much on our gloves and veils, I reckon, as she does on her whole outfit. That's what comes from having a bookworm for a father."

The next week in the little village postoffice a friend presented Mr. Horace Matlock to Miss Irene Warden. Apparently the meeting was by accident, but Miss Warden felt her smooth cheeks flush, and her habitual composure was rippled for a second, while, for his part, Mr. Matlock scarcely looked at her and, having passed a conventional "glad to meet you," lifted his hat politely and walked out to his smart little trap.

"I had on my chic volle, the one Aunt Tessie sent me from Paris, you know," wrote Miss Warden to Madge, "and my big white hat with flopping fuchsias. But it was all rank waste."

She couldn't understand it. Her dreams hadn't ended that way at all.

One day in the tiny idle little bank Mr. Horace Matlock stopped short as he recognized a stooped, gaunt figure with a patrician face.

"Why, it's Professor Thornton, isn't it?" he cried, stepping up to him with a cordially outstretched hand.

When Matlock years ago had entered Yale as a freshman Thornton had been tutoring, and quite a friendship had sprung up between them. Subsequently they had lost track of each other. But the satisfaction of the younger man in meeting the older one again was genuine.

"Poor old professor! How thin and worn and aged he's become!" thought Matlock as he drove the professor home to his modest little cottage.

Out in the cottage's side yard by the hollyhocks a girl was picking a great bunch of sweet peas for the lunch table. When she heard the smart little trap stop at the gate she looked quickly up from the blossoming vines and wondered. Who was the distinguished looking stranger? And where had he picked up dear daddy?

A few days later Matlock drove up to the cottage again. It was only decent, he told himself, that he should show the professor some attention and take him driving now and then. Perhaps some day also he would take the professor's daughter. He liked her. He liked the natural, unabashed way in which she had acknowledged her father's presentation of him, with her sleeves rolled up and her arms full of sweet peas; he liked the width between her eyes, the breadth of her brow, the lines of her mouth. She was less pretty than many young girls, but there was about her a freshness, a sweetness, that pleased him, and he had noticed that her figure in her simple little gown was well molded and slim.

One evening toward twilight, when out in the open lawn bats were whirling aimlessly and tirelessly, Matlock dropped in upon the professor to make him a little call. He had fetched him his afternoon mail as pretext. While they were sitting out on the porch from the shadowy little parlor came the first chords of Beethoven's beautiful "Moonlight Sonata."

"That's Cynthia," said Professor Thornton in answer to his guest's start of surprise. "She's never too tired, no matter how hard or long the day has been, to play that sonata for me in the evening. I love it above all other written music, and she never forgets."

Then while the tree toads droned their harmonies he told Matlock a little about his daughter—how four years ago he had suffered a paralytic stroke and she had been obliged to leave school in her graduating year and nurse him night and day with untiring sweetness; how, when their slender income was exhausted a year back, she had begun to make use of her musical skill and give lessons on the piano. And when the professor told of Cynthia's triweekly trips to Adams, the nearest town, his silvered head went down on his coat sleeve, and in the gloaming behind the honeysuckles the two men were silent.

Presently they smoked their usual cigars and indulged in their usual conversation—newspaper topics chopped fine by individual opinion, a good deal of politics, a little of art and science. Last of all, Cynthia came out.

"Delighted!" she said, going prettily up to Matlock with outstretched hands "While you two have been gossiping I've been remembering your weakness for tea and have drawn you a cup. Will you come in, or shall we have it out here?"

They went in. Near the little fern screened fireplace was a tea table, dainty in its array of polished silver and thin china. The hanging lamp shed the rich, soft glow of olive oil, and there was an air of intimate homelikeness about everything. Matlock had been a stranger to that sort of thing for so long that it sent a kind of thrill shivering through him. After all, to have a cozy tea table and a slim white hand to inclose in yours—Cynthia's hands were slim and white enough as they moved among the china in the half light. He pulled a chair close for the professor, and then sat down himself.

Before Mr. Horace Matlock went to bed that night he remembered that on the morrow Cynthia Thornton was to drive with him in his champagne colored trap. How it would harmonize with her soft hair before the ambitious sun touched it to gold! What a dear, womanly little treasure of girlish brightness she was, anyhow!

Cynthia only returned from Adams the next day a half hour before her drive and was, consequently, a bit tired. She was not one to make conversation, and the quiet and beauty of the scenes stretched out before her made her very silent. Matlock, as he handled the reins, watched both her and the landscape. There was a certain peace about them both. And peace was, above all things, what he wanted.

The next day Miss Warden wrote to her girl chum again:

"In the beginning of the summer, Madge, dear, I wrote you that a certain matrimonial venture would be 'easy, plain sailing.' Alas! I'm afraid I shall never find port—not, at least, with my bachelor up on the hill. And in the name of wonders, who of all people do you suppose has taken the wind out of my sails? Cynthia Thornton, the old bookworm's daughter! He had her out driving in that little beauty of a trap three times during the last week to my knowledge! I'm afraid Cupid isn't very kind to me. You'll find I'll die an old maid after all, unless Tom"—

At this point Miss Warden's pretty teeth absently caught the top of her penholder, while she looked dreamily toward the sunny, tree lined street. Then she began to hum.

As she started on the fourth bar of her song a champagne colored trap skimmed by. In it was the charming bachelor, and by his side was Cynthia Thornton.

A Mussulman's Ideas.

A respectable and honest Mussulman—and of course there are millions of Mussulmans entitled to that description—will not swallow alcohol if he knows it, even for the good of his health; will not lift "the harem veil," even if lifting it is essential to the life of his wife or daughter; will not take out an insurance, even when failure to do so is ruinous to him in a business competition, and will not in a country ruled by Mussulmans from any motive whatever short of a necessity such as destroys freedom of will accord equality to men of any other faith. In these respects he is a "fanatic"—that is, he will act upon the precepts of his creed as interpreted by its doctors without reference to any other consideration, and especially without reference to convenience or to the opinions, moral or otherwise, of men of any other faith. A Mussulman's creed is for him the operative law, as custom is for a Chinaman, or a caste rule for a Hindoo, or duty for a good Englishman, or that which is convenient for a respectable Frenchman, and, though there are points upon which he will break the law, especially for gain, there are also points, especially those we have mentioned, upon which he will not—rather will be chopped in pieces or chop you and take all consequences serenely.—London Spectator.

His Too Thoughtful Wife.

Several physicians were relating how carefully their wives looked after their interests and how diplomatic they were in saving them from doing unnecessary night work. One doctor gave an instance demonstrating how the best laid plans of men and mice oft miscarry.

"When I got home this morning at 3 o'clock, dead tired from attending to a trying case," he remarked, "I almost dreaded to look at the hall table, upon which my wife always leaves a note when there is an urgent call. I was naturally delighted to find that I did not have another call to make and at once hurried to my bedroom and, without lighting the gas, undressed in the dark and tumbled into bed.

"My head touched something on the pillow. I lighted the gas to investigate and found that my thoughtful wife had pinned there a note, so that I should not fail to see it, informing me that I was wanted at once without fail to call on a distant patient as soon as I arrived home, no matter at what hour."—New York Press.

WOMAN ELECTROCUTED

Had Tried to Rescue Others Shocked by a Live Wire

Fall River, Mass., July 18.—Trying to assist three other persons who had become entangled in the coils of a live electric wire, Mrs. Lizzie Dondis, aged 32, stepped on the wire and was instantly killed last night. Three other persons were rendered unconscious, but recovered under medical treatment.

The wire was a broken telephone wire which fell across an electric light wire so that its end hung down in the yard of a house occupied by a family named Tantra. Joseph Tantra, aged 23, ran out and seized the broken end of the wire, with the apparent intention of tossing it out of the yard. The shock he received knocked him down and rendered him unconscious and his brother, Antone, seeing Joseph's predicament, ran to assist him. Antone was severely shocked in his turn when he took hold of Joseph, and their sister, Maria, aged 22, who was the next to appear on the scene, was also knocked unconscious.

Mrs. Dondis was walking on the other side of the street from the Tantra house when she heard Maria scream and saw her fall. Mrs. Dondis ran into the yard and incautiously stepped on the wire. In her case the effect was fatal, though the others were only severely shocked. They were released when Frank Jean covered his hands with a shawl and drew the wire away from them. Mrs. Dondis leaves four children.

To Rejuvenate "Old Ironsides"

Boston, July 18.—The old frigate Constitution was moved today from her moorings at the Charlestown navy yard to a nearby pier. This was the first time that the historic "Old Ironsides" has been moved since she was brought here from Portsmouth, N. H., in 1897. By the recent government appropriation of $100,000 the ship will be thoroughly rebuilt. The pressure of water now prevents her rotten hull from falling to pieces.

Deputy Sheriff Knocked Out

Portland, Me., July 18.—Deputy Sheriff Emery was searching for an escaped prisoner in railroad freight yards here last night when he was assaulted and knocked unconscious by a man whom he found in a box car. The deputy was found two hours later and removed to a hospital, where he recovered consciousness after a time, though for several hours he was unable to give a coherent story of his experience.

Torrid Day at Boston

Boston, July 18.—One death and 16 cases of prostration due to heat tell in brief the story of Tuesday's oppressively sultry conditions in this city. Some relief came shortly before 6 o'clock last evening, when a slight fall of rain began, and continued for nearly two hours. The rain, however, did not bring the coolness and comfort expected, the total amount of precipitation being only .06 of an inch.

Paying War Debt to Bay State

Boston, July 18.—A warrant has been received at the governor's office from the treasury department at Washington for $34,921, as a partial supplementary settlement of the claims of the state of Massachusetts against the national government for expenses incurred in equipping regiments for service in the Spanish war and other expenses occasioned by it.

A Much-Wanted Man

Lewiston, Me., July 18.—Inspector O'Dowd of the Manchester (N. H.) police department and Chief of Police Lang of the Tilton (N. H.) police department last night positively identified Charles Riley, arrested by Deputy Marshal Leader for many breaks in Maine, as a person much wanted in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts.

Manchester Has Heavy Storm

Manchester, N. H., July 18.—During a heavy thunderstorm a dwelling house at 268 Walnut street was struck by lightning, setting fire to the roof. A flagstaff on the South Manchester engine house was also struck. The storm was the severest of the season and the telephone, electric light and trolley service was interfered with during the storm.

Ambassador Overcome by Heat

Boston, July 18.—Baron Speck Von Sternburg, the German ambassador to the United States, was overcome by the heat at the South station as he was about to take a train for New York. He was immediately taken to a hospital, where he was revived and discharged after a few hurs. The ambassador then continued his journey.

Ten Percent Increase Refused

Lowell, Mass., July 18.—The Lowell Cotton Manufacturers' association last night sent a letter to the Lowell Textile Council refusing to grant a 10 percent increase, but stating that all the cotton mills of the city would soon announce a revised wage schedule that would be a virtual increase of from 5 to 6 percent.

Perhaps a Providence Man

Saco, Me., July 18.—A man who is supposed to have fallen or jumped from a train died without having regained consciousness after he was found beside the railroad track a short distance from the railroad station here. It is supposed that he was John Cunningham of Providence.

Charged With Manslaughter

Woonsocket, R. I., July 18.—James Finneran, an alleged vagrant, was placed under arrest on the charge of manslaughter because of the death of Albert Pitcairn, aged 31, whose body was found in a field. Stab wounds were found in his body.

The Clams Not Healthy

Gathering of shellfish from the waters of Boston harbor will be brought to an end by action of the boards of health of Boston and Chelsea, says the Boston Advertiser, as soon as the forthcoming report of the state board of health furnishes good and specific basis for such action.

Dr. Durgin of the Boston board of health and Dr. F. E. Winslow, health officer of Chelsea, both express themselves as ready to begin active work for the suppression of this menace to health as soon as the substance of the state board's report is made known to them, giving them a foundation for specific complaint.

Other boards of health whose districts are mentioned in the state board's report are expected to take similar action, in case the state board's report shows that there is any need for it.

Warships on Parade.

The Government of the United States having appropriated last year two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and this year one million, three hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars, to aid the Jamestown Ter-Centennial celebration, one fact is settled beyond preadventure, and that is that in 1907 the most magnificient international naval rendezvous and military encampment that the world has ever seen will be on view at the Exposition near Norfolk, Virginia,

The President of the United States has invited all the nations of the world to be represented on that occassion by such of their naval vessels and such regiments of their soldiery as it may be convenient to send, all of the principal countries of the world have accepted the invitation.

By 1907 the United States will have in commission some of the finest battle ships afloat, and will also have a great fleet of cruisers, torpedo boats, destroyers, gunboats and submarines. It is probable that more than one half of these will be continuously at anchor in Hampton Roads, and it is unlikely that any country possessing a navy will be without a good representation during the entire period of the Exposition.

The Navy Department of the United States has appointed a distinguished commission to arrange a series of programs for the different days of the exposition, and the War Department will appoint a like board to superintend the military program. As many of the sea and land events will be international in character, it is possible that some changes from the original program may be necessary, by reason of conflict with the ideas of visitors, but in the main the official program will be carried out.

The funeral of Augustus J. Richards of Weymouth will be held on Thursday at 2.30 P. M. He was a member of South Shore commndery, K. T., Pentaltha chapter and Orphans Hope lodge, A. F. & A. M.

—Mr. Lewis Winslow Horne, a draughtsman at Bath, Maine, and Miss Nellie Russell Orchard of Washington were married on Tuesday in Washinton. They will reside in Bath.

ATTRACTIVE STYLES.

Handsome Embroidered Collar and Cuff Sets—Flower Stoles.

Turnover collars and cuffs embroidered by hand are still with us, and more beautiful than ever. The chief difference between those of the present and past seasons lies in the great depth of the cuff, which is adapted to the long, close sleeve, instead of the old time wristband. Offered in fine lawn and the finest linens, handsomely embroidered and inset with lace, are both these types of cuff. For the deep ones heavy linen is more practical than the very fine kind, which gets erumpled as soon as the cuffs are adjusted.

The latest accessory to smart dress is the stole made of flowers. Hitherto stoles have been seen in fur, crepe de chine and taffeta chiffon, but now the flower stole is all the craze. It is fashioned of silk, muslin, chiffon or fine silk and it is very lightly put together in the form of roses, daisies, buttercups, snowdrops or poppies. Between the flowers is an intervening arrangement of latticework, made of narrow satin ribbon of the same color as the flower. The edge is finished with a fringe of ribbon.

Some simple lingerie petticoats for morning wear are made of the favorite broderie anglaise, and are innocent of any supplementary frills. These are very economical from the laundry point of view, as they are not nearly so difficult to iron as the many frilled ones.

Veils seldom receive sufficient attention. Each time they are removed from a hat they should be pulled out and rolled up. The cardboard tubes which are used for sending photographs by post are excellent for this purpose, and many people cover these with wadding and again with silk, so that the veil may be pinned firmly when it has been stretched round it. Crumpled and limp veils may be successfully stiffened by dipping them in a little gum arabic and water.

Very smart is the pelerine ruche pictured. White chiffon ruffles edge the lace puffings, which in turn are finished with gathered black satin ribbon.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Pepper Berries.

When the berries on a spike of the pepper plant begin to turn red the spike is cut off and the berries gathered. If left too long, until perfect ripeness is attained, there is a great loss occasioned by the berries falling off, and the quality of the product is by no means so good.

Fire Bricks.

The first fire bricks made in this country were manufactured in Baltimore in 1827. They were manufactured for the backs of the old fashioned fireplaces, the limestone proving too friable.

Dew in the British Isles.

It is estimated that the total annual deposit of dew on the British isles amounts to something like five inches, or about one-seventh of the total amount received from the atmosphere. This means 22,161,337,355 tons of dew a year.

Peculiar St. Louis.

The city of St. Louis is not in any county. Under the Missouri constitution of 1875 the city was separated from the county. In 1876 it was created a separate municipality. It seems to be the only city in the country that is not within the limits of a county.

Our First Chemical Factory.

The first chemical factory opened in this country was in Salem, Mass., in 1811. At first great objection was made to the establishment of the factory, the persons living near claiming that the fumes of the chemicals poisoned the air and made life intolerable.

Unfeeling.

Mother (angrily)—The brute! He has dared to scold you? Newly Married Daughter (sobbing)—Not so bad as all that, mamma. I scolded him from the house five minutes ago, and the unfeeling brute hasn't come back yet!

Pleasant Place to Live.

A resident of Moscow or St. Petersburg cannot receive the visit of a friend who remains many hours without notifying the police.

Axle Broke.

Acting District Chief Duncan McLean and his driver, Robert H. Webber, narrowly escaped being killed or seriously injured at 9 o'clock last night, when they were thrown from their wagon on Tremont street, Boston, while responding to an alarm. Mr. Webber had injuries on the left arm, hip, side and knee, in addition to the shock. He was removed to his home, 1027 Tremont street. He is 29 and married and has been in the fire department three years.

—P. J. McCoy, secretary of the San Francisco Young Men's Christian Association, announced in New York Monday that he had received an offer by cable from John D. Rockefeller Sunday night to give $250,000 towards rebuilding the San Francisco Young Men's Christian Association building, provided an equal amount was secured from others. Mr. McCoy said he has already obtained $105,000 in addition to the Rockefeller offer.

—Jacob Abo, after lighting the fuse on a blast at the Fitchburg Granite Company's quarry, last Friday at Fitchburg, threw the match behind him and it landed in the powder keg he had been using. Abo was terribly burned about the head by the explosion and will lose the sight of one eye.

—During a performance at Bayonne, N. J., on Tuesday, ten tents of the Wild West show were blown down, and two or more injured. Horses were released and there was a stampede.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Don't Slip Up On Quality.

It's easily done, but the results are not laughable. It is better to pay a little more for a suit, and feel sure of it, than to pay too little and take chances. Our Suits from $15 to $20 are garments with the risk of the slip-up taken out, but with all the styles of expensive tailor-made put in. Other good suits as low as $7.50.

Thayer Evicted

Presented Flowers To the Officer And Candy To Children

The chattels of Archie Thayer, the Saville street victualler, were moved out of the building this morning by Constable Charles H. Johnson, for George W. Abele, to whom the building had been leased.

Thayer was served with a notice to get out last week and given until Tuesday of this week to do it. He refused to move, however, and this morning he was put out. It was 10.25 when Lawyer Abele and Constable Johnson arrived at the building. News of what was to take place had gone abroad and quite a crowd collected, expecting to see a circus. Thayer submitted quietly, however, and there was no excitement.

Mr. Abele walked into the store and took possession, and immediately helpers were called who moved the goods into the street. A tonic cooler was the first article taken out, and two little kittens were the last to leave the building.

While the men were at work moving the goods Thayer with a graceful bow presented the men with a spray of flowers, with a smile that would melt ice. He followed this up by presenting the children who had gathered with candy and flowers.

An enterprising photographer was present and took numerous pictures. It was all over in half an hour and the outer door securely fastened with a padlock. The goods were loaded onto a team and carried off.

Thayer says that although they put him from the building, that he shall continue to quench the thirst of people with a glass of ice water. He was not prepared at the present time to make public his plans.

Mr. Abel says that the building will be moved away immediately.

It seems that the water which Thayer has been giving away was taken from the standpipe of the city which supplies the watering cart. He was caught in the act by a policeman on Wednesday.

Reorganization of Fore River B. B. C.

At a mass meeting of the employees of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. held at the Shipbuilders' Club Wednesday evening, for the purpose of reorganizing the Fore River base ball club, the following officers were elected: President, Henry R. Curwen; treasurer, Nat. Frazier; secretary, Claude Patch; Directors, John Clinton, S. L. Durkee and J. T. Cogan.

The club is thoroughly reorganized and promises the employees and their friends good ball Saturday afternoons at their grounds in the rear of the Shipbuilders club. They have arranged to play this week the strong team from J. P. Squires Co.

The directors have appointed J. B. Bjorkland, of the Electrical department as manager. Mr. Bjorkland has had considerable experience in managing semi-professional clubs and will make a good man.

Odd Fellows Attend Funeral

The funeral of David Work, who was accidently killed by the cars at South Quincy Saturday night, was held Wednesday afternoon from the residence of W. C. Hart at 99 Independence avenue. The services were largely attended, Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., being present in a body.

The services were conducted by Rev. A. B. Tyler of the West Quincy Methodist church. During the services a quartette from the church sang several selections.

After the services at the house the remains were escorted to Mt. Wollaston cemetery by the Odd Fellows, who performed their burial service at the grave. There were many beautiful flowers.

Dancing Party At Houghs Neck

The invitation dance given at the Quincy Yacht club house Wednesday evening by the Misses Cavanagh, Brown Moller and Cannon was a very successful affair. It was attended by upwards of 200. Dancing was enjoyed until 11.30. A collation was served during the evening.

Annual Outing.

The annual outing of the Granite Manufacturers Association will be held Aug. 4. The committee in charge of the affair are President John L. Miller, H. S. Nicol, James Joss, Alfred O. Diack, P. T. Fitzgerald, James H. Elcock and W. T. Spargo. It has not been definitely decided as yet where the outing will be held.

The New Firemen.

The appointment of the new men in the Fire Department will make some changes in the location of the permanent men. Carroll will be assigned to the Central station, Andrew Scully is assigned to the Quincy Point station, Micheal Scully to the Atlantic station and Malone to Houghs Neck. John Dinneen who is now at the Atlantic station goes to West Quincy.

—A fire in the Newbury street Boston home of William J. Sholar, Norfolk County secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association destroyed wearing apparel, etc., to the value of $500, Tuesday evening. The fire started in a closet from some unknown cause.

—For the very best quality of ice cream you should go to the Weeks-Hill pharmacy on Temple street. It is rich and nice.

Veterans Exempt From Taxation

Representative Hultman furnishes the Ledger with a copy of the Act relative to the exemption from taxation of veterans of the Civil war and their widows. The generosity of Massachusetts to the veterans is further exemplified by this act, which reads as follows:

Section 1. Soldiers and sailors who served in the military or naval service of the United States in the war of the rebellion, and who were honorably discharged therefrom, shall, at their request, be exempt from the assessment of a poll tax, and the property of soldiers and sailors who served as aforesaid and were honorably discharged as aforesaid, but who would not be entitled to exemption under the thirteenth clause of section five of chapter twelve of the Revised Laws, and the property of the wives or widows of such soldiers or sailors, shall be exempted from taxation to the amount of one thousand dollars in the case of each person: provided, that the whole estate, real and personal, of the person so exempted does not exceed in value the sum of five thousand dollars; and provided, further, that only one thousand shall be exempted to any one family, and that the combined property of the family does not exceed five thousand dollars.

Section 2. The widows of soldiers and sailors who served as aforesaid and who lost their lives in the war of the rebellion shall be entitled to such exemption from taxation as is specified in the thirteenth clause of section five of chapter twelve of the Revised Laws.

TWO QUINCY MEN ON COMMISSION.

COL. C. H. PORTER.

Gov. Guild on Wednesday designated Dr. Henry P. Walcott of Cambridge and Charles H. Porter of Quincy, who are members of the state board of health, Charles H. Adams of Melrose and Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett of Boston, members of the state board of charity, and Dr. A. S. MacKnight of Fall River to serve as a commission to investigate and report as to measures for the relief of consumptives and to investigate sites for state hospitals for consumptives.

The passage of this resolve was the first real step taken by the legislature in recent years for the erection of hospitals for consumptives in advanced stages, the Rutland institution having given itself over only to incipient cases.

Col. Porter was the first Mayor of Quincy in 1889 and 1890. He has been a member of the State Board of Health since 1895, and has also served on the Civil Service commission. He is a member of the Quincy School Committee.

Dr. Brackett, another member of the same board, was born in Quincy, and was graduated at Adams Academy and Harvard College. He has been prominent in charitable work and is at the head of the new school founded by Harvard College and Simmons College for social workers.

ONE OF 20 WITH PERFECT SCORE.

The more roads of this kind the Pope-Toledo encounters on the Glidden Tour, the better will be its chances of winning the Glidden trophy. At the wheel is George Soules, who is driving in the tour. At his side is his brother, Will Soules, who is his assistant. This car is one of twenty which had a perfect score on arrival at Montreal on Wednesday.

George Soules of Toledo is one of the best road drivers in the country and is so recognized by the automobile populace. Perhaps, no other motorist has more motor records to his credit than Mr. Soules.

Soule's first trip of any note was when he drove a Pope-Toledo from New York to Chicago on the road exploring expedition several years ago. It was the first time four persons had made the trip without a mishap. The next year he won the Pittsburg endurance run without losing a mark. In this run to New York a terrific storm stopped railroad trains and trolleys, yet he drove his Pope-Toledo through and made every control. Again he won honors in the St. Louis run and this year he won the hill climbing contest at Minneapolis.

H. H. Kitson and his wife, Theo Alice Ruggles Kitson, have been awarded the contract for the memorial to the late Mayor Collins of Boston.

The monument, a central granite shaft about 16 feet high, surmounted by a bronze bust of the late mayor, will be erected on the Charles street mall of the Common, facing the Public Garden, as intended by the designers, instead of near the West street entrance to the Common, as suggested by the sub-committee. The final decision rested with the art commission, which decided in favor of the Charles street location.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Kindness to horses and other dumb animals, and kindness to people with whom we are brought in contact, cannot be overdone. It is well that the horses have such an able defender as "C. F. P." in the Daily Ledger of Wednesday. One reason today why there is so much more pleasure in a ride on the street railway is the fact that the motive power is electricity, and horses are spared. There is need for reform in the examples quoted by the writer. Over loaded picnic wagons, especially on Sundays when the horses should rest, also need overhauling. To crowd a one-horse wagon with people and picnic goods, and then urge the horses with a whip is cruelty to dumb animals.

This life is mostly made up of people who imagine they were intended to do something better than their present vocation.

John D. Rockefeller will have to bury himself in one of his vast estates again. The sheriff of Hancock Co., Ohio, has a warrant for him. He is suspected of organizing a trust or monopoly in oil.

Louisiana has declared for Bryan. Andrew Jackson will be getting jealous if this thing keeps up.

That there are today good opportunities in the West for young men with a little capital is again illustrated in the case of John E. Parrott, a former resident of Quincy. Probably Oklahoma is one of the best fields today.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The attempts of some of prominent professional and social folks of this world to conceal for a time their marriages lead to two thoughts. One is that when it comes to something on the romantic order some people are but one brief step from the madhouse. The other thought sweeps this one out of the way, and boldly holds the belief that these affairs are skilfully worked up to get the last possible line of free advertising that the editors will permit to be printed. The second thought really takes precedence of the first the longer you think it over. People over 21 and with no legal strings holding them back have a right to get married to whom they please, when they please, and every sane person knows it. When, therefore, two people in the public eye, players, authors or other workers for the general public, put up one of these nowadays numerous semi-elopements and try to surround the affair with secrecy, it looks like a commonplace attempt to get into the front pages of the newspapers, and inspire the reading public with the knowledge that the chief performers in the play are still in the world, and "will visit your beautiful city the coming season and gratefully receive a share of your kindly patronage." etc.—Brockton Enterprise.

A 5 PERCENT RAISE

Viewed With Suspicion by Lowell Cotton Operatives

CONSIDERED TOO VAGUE

Textile Counsel Thinks It Is a "Leveling Up" Process Which Will Not Prove Satisfactory--No Decision Reached

Lowell, Mass., July 19.—Declaring that the proposition of the cotton manufacturers of Lowell offering an increase approximating 5 percent in wages to the mill operatives was too vague to be understood, the Lowell Textile Council last night adjourned until next Monday evening, after a lengthy meeting at which the letter received from the Lowell Cotton Manufacturers' association was considered. The Lowell Textile Council represents all the unions of cotton mill workers of Lowell, while the Manufacturers' association numbers in its membership representatives of all the large cotton mills of the city.

The letter which was considered by the Textile Council last night was sent to the council by Secretary Southworth of the Cotton Manufacturers' association, and offered an increase of 5 percent in place of the increase of 10 percent which the Textile union had asked for. The 5 percent increase, however, it was understood, was not to be a flat raise, but was to be in the nature of a "levelling up" or revision of the schedule.

Chairman Duggan of the Textile Council committee issued a statement after the meeting of the council last night in which he said:

"The Textile Council could not understand the letter written by the Lowell Cotton Manufacturers' association because it was so vague. The agents have promised an increase to somebody at some time, but the Textile Council did not know when or to whom. The Textile Council has adjourned until next week Monday night without coming to any decision in the matter."

Secretary Southworth of the Manufacturers' association issued a statement last evening in regard to the letter to the Textile Council. He said in the statement: "There has been some misapprehension apparently over the manufacturers' letter. One newspaper, in an editorial upon it, said in substance that unskilled labor would not share in the proposed advance. This, of course, is not so. Two Boston newspapers intimated that some employes would find their wages reduced. This also is not warranted by anything in the letter and is out of the question."

Lewiston Falls In Line

Lewiston, Me., July 19.—Notices have been posted announcing an advance of 5 percent in wages at nearly all of the Lewiston cotton mills. This advance affects several thousand employes. At the Bates mill the advance will go into effect July 30, while at the Androscoggin the 5 percent increase will begin Aug. 6. A busy and prosperous year is promised.

Pepperill Mills Will Raise Wages

Biddeford, Me., July 19.—An advance in wages of 5 percent was announced to the 3800 operatives of the Pepperell mills in this city. The advance is voluntary on the part of the management and means a total increase in expenses of $60,000 a year. When other mills in New England reduced wages the Pepperell did not join in the reduction.

Will Benefit 10,000 Operatives

Manchester, N. H., July 19.—Agent Straw announces that the Amoskeag corporation proposes to raise the wages of the operatives on an average of 5 percent, the increase to go into effect July 30. More than 10,000 operatives will be affected by the raise, which is entirely voluntary on the part of the corporation.

Made Nothing by Striking

Warren, Mass., July 19.—After being out 10 days, the employes of the Sayles & Jenks woolen mill, who have been on strike for an increase of wages, have returned to work. The management of the mills made no concessions in the way of granting an increase, but agreed to take back all the strikers.

A Raise at Waterville

Waterville, Me., July 19.—Notices were posted in all departments of the Lockwood cotton mill yesterday, announcing an increase in wages, to take effect July 30. The amount has not been determined. About 1300 employes will be benefited.

Earthquake Scare Grows Serious

Santa Fe, N. M., July 19.—Two more earthquake shocks occurred at Socorro yesterday. The shocks were felt distinctly as far south as El Paso, Tex., where a street car was thrown from the track by a shock. One tremor after another has passed over the lower Rio Grande valley, keeping the people at the highest tension. But few have slept in houses for the past three nights.

To Abandon English Market

Montreal, July 19.—J. R. Fleming, manager of the Toronto street railway, has announced his decision not to purchase any more steel rails in England, going to the United States for them instead because the English works attending to home orders of another type delay the delivering of Toronto rails.

Squabble at Baseball Game

Lowell, Mass., July 19.—During the baseball game between Lowell and New Bedford here a controversy arose between Catcher Coveney and Umpire O'Brien, resulting in the arrest of O'Brien at the instigation of Coveney after the game was over. Coveney charged that O'Brien hit him twice in the face with his fist.

Protests by Policyholders

New York, July 19.—Four of the members of the international policyholders' committee of the Mutual and New York Life Insurance companies, who were included in the new board of trustees nominated by the Mutual Life Insurance company trustees as an "administration ticket," have declined to permit the use of their names in this connection. On their behalf a protest was forwarded to State Superintendent of Insurance Kelsey for the policyholders' organization. Despite this protest, however, it was stated by counsel for the Mutual that the trustees have a right under the law to nominate whomsoever they choose.

Hustling For Renomination

Lowell, Mass., July 19.—Congressman Butler Ames opened his campaign for renomination last night when he addressed 3000 people at an open-air reception at his home here. He reviewed his four years' service in congress and declared that he had kept his pledge to support the administration of President Roosevelt. He declared that his opponent for the nomination was the paid legal counsel and adviser of the large corporate interests of the city.

PERSONAL COUNSEL ACTS

Calls For Papers Held by Prisoner's Former Advisors--In Direct Opposition to His Mother's Plan of Action

New York, July 19.—The chaotic conditions surrounding the preparation of a defense for Harry K. Thaw, accused of the murder of Stanford White, has been accentuated and apparently the breach between the prisoner and his mother, Mrs. William Thaw of Pittsburg, as to the character of the defense, is wider than ever.

Following quickly upon a conference of two hours with Thaw in the Tombs, after his mother had twice during the day endeavored to gain her son's consent to the re-employment of the law firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, and to consent to a plea of insanity, Clifford W. Hartridge, Thaw's personal counsel, obtained from Justice Blanchard, in special term of the superior court late yesterday, an order directing Judge Olcott's firm to show cause next Friday why they should not turn over to Hartridge all the papers in Thaw's case. Hartridge based his motion on a petition signed by Thaw, which was placed on record in connection with the proceedings.

This move was a distinct surprise, being a contradiction of reports which had gained wide circulation earlier in the day to the effect that Thaw had consented to his mother's plan of action. The rumor that Thaw had at last bowed to his mother's will undoubtedly had its origin in the fact that Mrs. William Thaw and Mrs. Harry Thaw, who were in conference with Thaw at the same time yesterday, emerged from the prison arm in arm. It was the first time they had been seen together.

Thaw's wife has all along supported him in his demand for a trial on the issues of the case and has opposed the insanity plea. She has thus been arrayed against the elder Mrs. Thaw, who seems to feel that the only hope of saving her son from death in the electric chair is to depend upon a defense of insanity. This plea would avoid the further publicity and ignomy of a trial and has been insistently urged upon the prisoner, who, however, apparently remains obdurate.

Mrs. William Thaw had two long conferences with her son yesterday.

Belt May Have Left a Widow

New York, July 19.—Speculation as to whether the late Albert Belt, the South African financier and millionaire, left a widow, has been aroused by the discovery that in making an application to an American insurance company for insurance on his life in 1890, Belt named as the beneficiary of his policy "My intended wife, Elizabeth Bennet Belt." Although 16 years have elapsed since the policies were taken out, yet Belt has always been regarded as a bachelor.

Not Quite Ready For War Game

Rockport, Mass., July 19.—Boat drills and baseball practice were the special features of Wednesday's program for the sailors of the warships assembled in Rockport harbor, and both these forms of exercise were watched with interest by the thousands of civilian visitors. Thus far seven battleships have arrived, but many other vessels will have to join the fleet before the mimic war game will be ready for playing.

Bay State Folks Commended

Boston, July 19.—A set of resolutions commending the work of Miss Alice L. Higgins, Miss Bertha A. Freeman, W. H. Seabury and J. F. Moore, the Massachusetts representatives in San Francisco, has been received by President Lincoln of the Massachusetts state board of charity. Accompanying the resolutions was a congratulatory statement from President Moore of the California board of charities and corrections.

Cottonseed Oil Trust Sued

Little Rock, July 19.—Suit has been entered by the state against the five cottonseed oil mills of this city, charging them with being members of a combine in violation of the anti-trust law and alleging restraint of trade. The suits ask judgment in the sum of $5000 a day, aggregating $130,000 against each company, and asking also the revocation of their charter in this state.

Icemen Cheat In Weight

New York, July 19.—Seventy-eight sets of alleged fraudulent ice scales have been confiscated by the police at the instance of the bureau of weights and measures, which will be used as evidence in the prosecution of ice dealers. It is charged that 50 percent of the confiscated scales show from 20 to 40 pounds shortage in 100 against the purchaser.

Twice Robbed of Jewels

New York, July 19.—It is learned that the sufferer in the $50,000 jewel robbery which was reported to the police Wednesday and which is still surrounded with great mystery is Mrs. Halsey Corwin, wife of a young millionaire of this city. This is the second time Mrs. Corwin has been the victim of jewel thieves.

A SIX-STORY JUMP

The Sensational Act of a Young Woman at a Boston Hotel

Boston, July 19.—A young woman who was registered at the Hotel Touraine as Mrs. J. S. Piza of New York was terribly injured shortly before midnight by jumping from the window of her room on the sixth floor of the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Piza arrived at the hotel late yesterday afternoon. The room occupied by the couple was directly above the glass-covered porte-cochere at the main entrance. What caused Mrs. Piza to jump from the window is not known. As she fell her body struck on the roof of the porte-cochere. Her left leg and right arm broke through the glass and both these limbs were almost severed. The woman's body rested on the canopy for some time before it could be removed. As soon as possible the woman was lifted to the roof of a cab and then placed within an ambulance and hurried to a hospital.

Just as the ambulance was leaving the hotel the man who registered as Piza rushed down stairs and cried to the driver of the ambulance "Hold on." The police tried to restrain the man, but he eluded them and caught up with the ambulance, jumped inside and was carried to the hospital with the woman.

The hospital authorities hold out but small hope of the woman's recovery. It is understood that she had been at a sanitarium in Melrose, where she was undergoing treatment for some nervous trouble.

The man who registered as Piza refused to answer any questions regarding himself or the woman. He became hysterical and while being questioned collapsed.

Habeas Corpus In Gibson Case

New York, July 19.—Lawyer Burton W. Gibson, committed by the coroner to the Tombs prison in default of $25,000 bail, to await the action of the grand jury in connection with the murder of Mrs. Alice D. Kinan, appeared before Justice Blanchard on a writ of habeas corpus secured by Gibson's counsel. Argument on the legality of the commitment of Gibson was postponed until today and Gibson was returned to the Tombs.

Youngsters Trounced In Court

Ithaca, N. Y., July 19.—The Ithaca police court yesterday resounded with wailing. Eight mothers placed a stick given by Recorder Sweetland on the trousers of their offspring. The youngsters had been arrested for many car burglaries during the last month. Their parents were poor and Recorder Sweetland offered to remit the fines of $5 on condition that the parents administer corporal punishment in court.

Detectives Were In Evidence

London, July 19.—In connection with the meeting of the socialist and labor interparliamentary committee here this week a demonstration was held in Hyde Park last evening to express sympathy with the Russian revolution. The audience was extremely cosmopolitan, and among it were scattered hundreds of police detectives, who secured descriptions of many supposed enemies of society.

Murder Suspect In Custody

Middletown, Conn., July 19.—Henry G. Bailey, charged with the murder of George H. Goodale on July 6, arrived here last night in the custody of two officers of the local police force. On the journey from Niagara, N. Y., to this city Bailey declined to make any statement. He did not inquire the reason for his arrest and seemed to be in good spirits. He refused to talk upon his arrival here.

'Frisco Has 365,000 Population

San Francisco, July 19.—It was estimated that within three weeks of the fire on April 18 fully 335,000 persons left San Francisco. According to compilations just made, there are now in San Francisco 365,000 persons, with 50,000 more waiting in nearby cities for opportunity to return as soon as suitable accommodations can be had.

Bullet Grazed Czar's Aide

St. Petersburg, July 19.—An attempt was made to assassinate Count Todleben, aide-de-camp to Emperor Nicholas, at the engineer's camp at Tiora. The would-be assassin fired at Todleben with a revolver, the bullet grazing his head. He then made his escape in a boat which was awaiting him in the Neva.

TRADE OF ORIENT

Japanese Nation Itself Planning to Control It

TO BEGIN IN MANCHURIA

Railways, Mines and Forests Will Be Developed Under the Supervision of Mikado's Government--Great Cotton Guild

Washington, July 19.—According to advices received by the bureau of manufactures, the Japanese government has undertaken one of the greatest experiments in the world's history, indicating a purpose to protect, supervise, develop and nationalize all Japanese industries. It is stated that the provisions for the nationalization of the railways was but a single step in the great plan of industrial nationalization toward which the country fast is approaching.

The question of Manchurian development has received careful attention, and it now is proposed that a company should be formed by the government and private capitalists jointly for working and developing the railways, mines and forests in Manchuria. If successful along the lines Japan is now working, it is stated that individuals and corporations of America that are striving for the trade of the Orient will discover that they are not competing for this trade against individuals and corporations of Japan, but that they are in commercial conflict with the Japanese nation itself.

A great guild of cotton manufacturing companies of Japan has been formed to capture the Manchurian trade. In connection with the enterprise, the government has decided to make the loan through the Yokohama Specie bank, without limitations as to the amount, not only on cotton textiles, but on matches, cement, beer, marine products, lumber and other goods to be exported to Manchuria at the rate of 4½ percent per annum. As regards freightage, the government will carry out negotiations with the Chinese Eastern railway and the subsidized Japanese steamship lines.

The government will pursue a similar policy with regard to Korea. The bureau of manufactures has received reports from Ambassador Wright, at Tokio, and from other sources confirming this new movement in Japan.

Opposed to Moran and Fusion

Boston, July 19.—John B. Moran's suggestion for a fusion ticket this fall was promptly punctured by Andrew G. Webster, chairman of the Republican committee on reciprocity, of which Eugene N. Foss, urged to accept the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, is a most active member. Webster does not favor a ticket of Moran and Foss, and when asked the question he bluntly said so.

Proposed Reduction of Car Fares

Cleveland, July 19.—The proposition of the old line street railway companies of this city to the city council for an extension of franchises was formally decided on last evening. The railway companies offer to bind themselves to sell seven tickets for 25 cents and to give universal transfers. The proposition will come up for consideration before the council at its next meeting.

Large Inn Destroyed by Fire

Lancaster, Mass., July 19.—The Lancaster inn was burned late last night and its guests were forced to flee hurriedly from their rooms. All the inmates of the house escaped uninjured. It is thought that the fire started in the kitchen of the hotel. The loss is estimated at $75,000. Lancaster inn was one of the oldest hotels in this part of the state, having been built in 1800.

Armistice Pending Peace Talk

San Salvador, July 19.—The armistice between Salvador and Honduras on the one side and Guatemala on the other began yesterday. A treaty of peace is to be discussed in neutral waters on board the United States cruiser Marblehead. Tuesday afternoon the Guatemalan forces were defeated at Platanar and Metapam, with enormous losses.

Lady Curzon Passes Away

London, July 19.—Lady Curzon of Kedleston (who was Mary Leiter of Chicago), wife of the former viceroy of India, who had been ill for some days, died last evening. She never quite recovered from her serious illness in 1904, and the recent hot weather brought on a pronounced attack of general debility. She was born in Chicago in 1870.

Might Have Beaten Record "If"

Dover, Eng., July 19.—Jabez Wolffe of Scotland made a valiant attempt to cross the English channel, but had to abandon the undertaking when seven miles off the French coast, owing to an injury to his leg. It is believed that if he had not met with this accident, he would have beaten the record established by Captain Webb.

Bomb Missed Its Mark

Sebastopol, July 19.—During a session of the court martial which is engaged in the trial of men concerned in the Black sea fleet mutiny of last November, a bomb was thrown from the marine barracks at Colonel Dumbadze, the commander of the Brest regiment. Dumbadze was not harmed.

STRUCK FROM BEHIND

Heavy Stone May Have Been Used In Murder of Streub

Great Barrington, Mass., July 19.—As a result of his examination of the wounds which caused the death of John Streub, 12 years old, whose body was found in the woods near Housatonic last Sunday, Medical Examiner Beebe said that he believed it quite possible, and even likely, that the boy was killed by a stone thrown from behind when he was running to escape a pursuer. One of the wounds, which appear to have been caused by a heavy stone, is at the back of the head.

The investigation has shown that young Streub was last seen alive on the afternoon of Monday, July 9, by his young playmate, Walter Hatch. The Hatch boy at first set the day as July 10, but has since changed it to July 9.

Emil Streub, father of the murdered boy, says that he has no suspicion as to who killed his son unless it was the work of tramps.

Telegraph Operator Murdered

South Berwick, Me., July 19.—Lawrence Fairfield, 21 years old, telegraph operator on the Boston and Maine railroad at the South Berwick station, was found dead in a switch shanty about a quarter of a mile from the station at 1 o'clock this morning. A bullet wound in the back of the head led to the belief that he had been murdered by tramps. Fairfield had evidently gone to the shanty to throw a switch, according to his nightly custom. When a freight train due here at 12:35 a. m. arrived at the station and no operator could be found, an investigation was begun. The body of Fairfield was found lying in a hammock in the switchman's shanty.

Youth Slugged With Ice Pick

Waltham, Mass., July 19.—A running fight took place last evening on the lonely road which runs from the bleachery in Waltham into Watertown. The affair, which was between a squad of strike-breakers from the bleachery and a number of strike sympathizers, was the cause of much bloodshed, one of the number, Robert Walsh, 17, receiving probably fatal wounds from an assault with an ice-pick. Jerry Pelligrini, 19, is under arrest, charged with the alleged assault.

Rogers Must Give Up Profits

Boston, July 19.—Judge Putnam of the United States circuit court handed down a decision in the $3,000,000 suit of the Bay State Gas company of Delaware, by George W. Pepper, receiver, against Henry H. Rogers. The decision is against Rogers, for the court commands that he return the gains and profits accruing to him as trustee for the Delaware company of the four Addicks companies in Boston.

Increased Rates Declared Unjust

Fenwick, Conn., July 19.—At a special meeting of the directors of the State Business Men's association, held at Fenwick point, called to consider the advance in fire insurance rates in this state, a resolution was adopted condemning the increase as unjust and unfair to the policyholders and authorizing the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the increase and the reasons for it.

Industrial School Officer Shot

Vergennes, Vt., July 19.—William Maginnis, an officer in the Vermont Industrial school, was shot by Frank Ladri, a runaway boy whom he was trying to recapture. The bullet entered Maginnis' left leg and lodged just above the knee, inflicting a dangerous wound. His condition is reported as comfortable. Ladri was lodged in the town jail.

Electric Car Kills Providence Man

Providence, July 19.—John Kenny, aged 60, was struck by an electric car here last night, sustaining injuries from which he soon died. Eye witnesses of the accident state that the car was proceeding very rapidly at the time of the accident. The motorman, Harry C. Mayhood, was arrested.

Search For Escaped Prisoner

Biddeford, Me., July 19.—Deputy sheriffs from Portland, assisted by York county officers, have been searching in this vicinity for George Huston, who escaped from the jail in Portland. It is believed that the prisoner is hiding in the woods somewhere between this city and North Berwick.

Chinese Students at Harvard

Cambridge, Mass., July 19.—Thirty-eight Chinese students who have come to the United States to be educated, at the request of the Chinese government, have arrived and will be registered at the Harvard summer school. All the students are from the northern provinces of China.

A Mother's Terrible Deed

Hartford, July 19.—Mrs. Abraham Rabinowitz, aged 28, gave her 2-year-old child a dose of carbolic acid and then took a fatal draught herself. The woman died in a short time and the baby cannot recover. Family troubles are said to be responsible for the tragedy.

BOSTON LETTER.

Democrats Do Not Want Moran, but Fear Him.

BARTLETT WILL NOT RUN AGAIN.

Paint Bills In City Hall Have Been Cut Down Greatly.

There is a rather remarkable condition existing in Democratic politics in this state. There is every indication today that District Attorney John B. Moran of Boston will be the Democratic nominee for governor, and yet none of the Democratic leaders want him or would consent to his nomination if they dared do otherwise.

A number of weeks ago a leading Masachusetts Democrat declared that Mayor Fitzgerald would under no circumstances support the nomination of Moran or consent to it in any way whatever. This Democrat made the emphatic declaration that if it were necessary in order to prevent the nomination of Moran for governor, John F. Fitzgerald would not hesitate to go into the caucuses himself as a candidate and make a campaign from one end of the state to the other.

This man was clearly mistaken. He had an entirely wrong conception of the stuff composing the make-up of John F. Fitzgerald. When he stated that Fitzgerald was not afraid of any man that lived, he gave evidence of the fact that there were some things in the character of the mayor of which he was not at that time aware.

Fitzgerald on the Fence

Today Fitzgerald is teetering on the fence, uncertain whether to go over to Moran or drop off on the other side. Those Moran men who claimed some time ago that Moran was holding a club over Fitzgerald and that the latter would be compelled to support the district attorney for the gubernatorial nomination, are now patting themselves on the back and assuring themselves that they were not such bad prophets as some thought. Is Fitzgerald afraid of Moran? It certainly looks very much that way. Has the district attorney gone further into the McNary charges against the mayor and discovered that there is a substantial basis to those charges which would make it uncomfortable for somebody in case the probe was pushed and an investigation forced?

It is perfectly clear that something has caused Fitzgerald to waver in his determination to oppose the candidacy of Mr. Moran. The other day when it was announced in a Boston paper that Mr. Fitzgerald had been in consultation with former Governor Douglas for the purpose of urging him to allow the use of his name as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, the mayor lost no time in making frantic denials that he had done anything of the sort. He acted like a man in abject fear of being struck by lightning.

Others Also In Tight Place

Moran men say that some of the other Democratic leaders are in as tight places as that occupied by the mayor. It has been known for several years that Colonel William A. Gaston is in control of the whole Democratic state machine, and a good many prominent Democrats who believe that Moran is unfit to be governor have urged him to take off his coat and prevent his nomination. Thus far there have been no visible signs that Colonel Gaston will undertake anything of the sort. He has not yet announced his adherence to the Moran candidacy, but no one has heard him say anything in public in opposition to the nomination of the district attorney. There are some wise politicians who infer that Colonel Gaston will not care to antagonize Mr. Moran.

When Mr. Moran started out as a candidate for district attorney, among the planks of his platform was one which pledged him to hale before the grand jury the Boston Elevated Railway company, and he pledged himself that he would go into the subject of legislative expenditures to the fullest extent. Since then he has done nothing in that direction. It is intimated that he is holding this matter over the heads of certain men in order that they may not be disposed to oppose his candidacy for the Democratic nomination. A number of the Democratic leaders in Massachusetts have large interests in this corporation.

There is also a suspicion that the Democratic state committee will not be very strenuous in its opposition to Moran, notwithstanding the fact that nine-tenths of its membership would be extremely glad to consign him to Tophet if they were able by mere volition to do so. But they too do not care to be interrogated by the district attorney before the grand jury.

Some Other Reasons Given.

There are other reasons why many of the Boston Democrats who have no great regard for Moran are not tearing their clothes in an effort to prevent his nomination. When Moran built his platform last fall he incorporated a plank pledging him to investigate the padded payrolls at city hall. He has not taken a single step in that direction so far as anyone knows. A good many prominent Democrats are hoping and praying that he will not do so. They would be willing to support him for president if he would refrain, as he may in case they swear allegiance to his candidacy.

These are some of the reasons said to exist, offered as accounting for the non-resistance of the Boston machine to the self-originated and self-conducted candidacy of John B. Moran for governor. Today if one were to travel about the city, he would find very few leading Democrats who would privately give their assent to Moran's nomination, but not one of them has the sand or the courage to stand up in public and say what he actually thinks of Moran and his candidacy.

Such a situation has not been known in this state in 25 years. There are some of these Democrats who say they would prefer to have Moran in the governor's chair, notwithstanding the fact that they have absolutely no use for him whatever, than to see him remain in the office of district attorney, where he is in a position to make trouble for them at any moment. They seem to forget that if he were nominated for governor, and by any chance elected, he would still be district attorney until his inauguration into office at the state house, and that after taking his oath of office there it would be his privilege and his duty and doubtless his great pleasure to nominate his own successor as district attorney of Suffolk county.

Colonel Charles W. Bartlett of Boston, who led the Democratic forces to defeat last year as a candidate for governor, declines to be used by the Boston Democrats in their effort to prevent the nomination of John B. Moran. Mr. Bartlett knows well that the Boston Democrats could probably prevent Mr. Moran's nomination if they were not afraid to set about it. For that reason he does not wish to be a stool pigeon for such an aggregation of weak-kneed Democrats. If the defeat of Moran depends upon Colonel Bartlett, it will not be accomplished.

Publicity Did Some Good.

Some months ago six offices in city hall were painted under the direction of Mayor Fitzgerald. When the bills came in they were for the amount of $3500. When the newspapers got hold of the bills there was considerable criticism of the amount, it being stated that it cost about one-fourth as much to do practically the same work at the state house.

City hall Democrats, however, defended the bills as being moderate and reasonable and they were paid. The mayor was very much disturbed and there was much talk of having an expert painter come in, look over the work, and justify the expenditure. No reputable painter, however, could be induced to act as an expert in this connection, and consequently the plan fell through. Now, however, it has become very evident from recent events that the publicity given this painting graft has worked some good to taxpayers. Some 15 rooms in city hall have recently been painted and the total bill was but $1902.25. These rooms were nearly as large as those included in the original contract, and from the fact that they average but slightly over $100 each, it is plainly evident that there was very little graft in the contract for anybody; for it cost two-thirds as much to paint the mayor's private office last February as it did to paint the entire 15 rooms just now painted. The very fact that the bills for the recent painting were brought down to a reasonable limit is convincing evidence that there was a gigantic steal in the first job.

JEWELRY TIDBITS.

Novel Necklace of Dull Silver—Rings Match Gowns—Pink Quartz Pins.

Beautiful cut amethyst beads for the neck and turquoise matrix ones are just now being shown. A novel necklace of dull silver, consisting of a small silver chain around the neck and in front five quite plain silver disks set with large green stones and ending with three pendants of silver and green stones, is also being received with much favor.

Exposure to sunlight has a curious effect on some gems, and garnets lose much of their color in the course of time if they are worn continually. Topazes, on the contrary, become a shade darker, but part with a great deal of their pristine brilliancy after they have been exposed to a bright light for any length of time.

Some time ago fashion decreed that the finger that was adorned with a ruby should not have its beauty further enhanced by a ring of diamonds, that turquoise should not mingle with emeralds, and so on. Now, however, there is a new law, and the hand that carries one pearl ring must wear no other rings than those of pearls. According to the robe that is worn, the hands show a blaze of diamonds, a mass of rich red rubies or soft toned pearls, all quite unrelieved and showing as little as possible of their gold or silver setting.

As a rival to the huge hatpins of amber which have accompanied the winter millinery comes the pink quartz in delightful tones. Large balls, long drops and even simple flowers are cut out of the quartz to serve as hatpins, making effective touches of light coloring among the trimmings of spring toques and hats.

Low shoes when new often blister the heels by slipping just a little as the wearer walks. To prevent this it is well to rub the inside of the shoe at the heel with soap before putting it on.

Raised ribbon embroidery gives a touch of supreme elegance on silk or cloth Eton or empire jackets.

The necklace in the cut is a charming design carried out in amethyst and dull silver. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Hobbs School.

Some of the Atlantic people, who are friends of Councilman Ralph W. Hobbs, appear to be jealous of the success of Councilman George F. Sawyer who has received the pen with which the new school-house order was signed. They advocate that the new school be named the Ralph W. Hobbs school. Not a bad name, but it is not the custom in Quincy to name school-houses after men who are living, and Mr. Hobbs is very much alive. The writer has not heard that any change of name for the "Quincy school" was suggested.

Broke Two Wagons.

One of Fletcher's teamsters had hard luck Wednesday in transporting a heavy block of granite from the quarries to South Quincy. When near the corner of Water and Granite streets one of the wheels of the wagon broke. Another wagon was secured and after some difficulty the block of granite was loaded upon it. The second team continued down Water street and had reached a point near the Quincy Turning plant when one of the wheels of this wagon collapsed, throwing the block of Granite into the street.

Northcott--Sampson Home Wedding

At the home of Mrs. Alfred Sampson, 100 Revere road, on Wednesday evening was solemnized a pretty wedding, the bride being her daughter, Alice Farnum, and the groom Mr. John Warren Northcott. Rev. Edward Norton officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. Hardy of Bethany church.

At eight o'clock, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Charles Sampson, sister-in law of the bride, the bridal party entered the parlor. First came the ushers, Walter C. Sampson and Charles H. Hardwick; the two ministers; the groom and his brother, Mr. Sidney T. Northcott; little Gertrude Sargent Sampson of New York, niece of the bride as ring bearer; the maid of honor, the bride's sister, Miss Mary Frances Sampson, and lastly the bride and her brother. Mrs. Sampson gave her daughter in marriage.

An informal family reception followed the ceremony, during which Cuff's orchestra played continuously.

The bride's gown was white and she carried white sweet peas. The maid of honor carried pink sweet peas. The maid of honor was remembered by the bride with a pearl stick pin, and the flower girl with a gold buttercup pin set in a crescent of pearls. The ushers were also given scarf pins by the groom of gold crescents set with pearls.

Pink sweet peas and green were the floral decorations by Patterson of Wollaston.

There was a pretty display of gifts, and a wedding supper was served during the evening. Besides the bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Northcott were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Scammell, friends of the groom.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Northcott left amid a shower of confetti and good wishes. On the return from a wedding trip they will reside at Natick where Mr. Northcott is principal in the public schools.

The bride has taught successfully for ten years at the Coddington school, and was prominent in the work of Bethany Congregational church.

Wedded at The Seashore

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening at the Dewey cottage, Houghs Neck, the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Johnson, when Miss Vendela O. Granlund of Quincy became the bride of Otto A. Carlson of Braintree.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Anderson of the Swedish Mission church, and was witnessed by a large gathering of friends. It was followed by a reception during which Mr. and Mrs. Carlson were assisted in receiving by the best man and bridesmaid, Oscar Sandberg and Miss Carlson.

The grounds about the cottage were very prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns. A wedding supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson will reside in Braintree.

Accident to Bicyclist.

Wednesday afternoon a gentleman was in City Square inquiring for a Mr. Todd, but no one seemed to know him. Shortly after Todd Elwell of Greenleaf street, a boy of 12 years riding a bicycle, came in collision with a carriage and was thrown. He escaped with but little injury, but the wheel was disabled, and a china lamp shade which he carried was wrecked. No blame is attached to the driver of the carriage, who was solicitous for the boy. Young Elwell's grandfather is Mr. Todd.

Would-Be Congressmen.

John F. O'Connell of Boston is making an active campaign for the Democratic nomination in this district for Congress, now represented by W. S. McNary. Another candidate is Senator Edward L. Logan.

Alderman Linehan and ex-Representative Creed are also looking over the field.

Alfred J. La Croix has accepted a position with the low-priced furniture house of Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

BROUGHT BACK TO LIFE.

Barrel Rolling Used on Man Under Water Twenty-three Minutes.

The letter of Dr. N. Newham-Davis in the New York Times the other day on the folly of rolling apparently drowned persons on a barrel in the effort to restore them finds a singularly apt commentary in a report of Superintendent H. M. Knowles of the Third Life Saving district, which has reached General Supterintendent S. I. Kimball, says a Washington dispatch. Mr. Knowles tells of the rescue and resuscitation of Robert Mooney near Wakefield, R. I., on July 4.

There was a boat race on Upper Point Judith pond that afternoon, and Mooney went out in a flat bottomed boat to watch it. His boat was caught in a squall and overturned. Mooney was caught under the sail and could not get out. It was twenty-three minutes before he was taken from the water, and then his rescuers began the rolling process, to which Dr. Davis so vigorously objects. They expelled about a gallon of water "from the lungs," as they report, at the first rolling and at a second rolling, which immediately followed, got a pint more. Artificial respiration was begun at once.

"The patient was as purple as a grape," said the report. "Superintendent Knowles spread a small motor cover of canvas and removed the body to it, keeping up at the same time the bellows movement and friction by rubbing the limbs. A fire was built and stones were heated, which in the course of thirty minutes were rolled in jackets and applied to the armpits, heart and soles of the feet. The bellows movement was kept up while others worked at the arm movement.

"The first sign of life was observed after the life savers had worked on the patient for an hour and twenty minutes," says the report. "This was noticed when a hot stone was placed against the soles of the patient's bare feet. The constant rubbing and artificial respiration, with renewed applications of hot stones, showed marked development of the condition of the patient. About twenty-five minutes later a physician arrived and reported that there was an action of the heart and pulse. The patient was then taken in the launch to the boathouse, some distance away. All the time the bellows movement and rubbing were kept up. This had been going on for one hour and forty-eight minutes. The patient remained unconscious all the time. After arriving at the boathouse the patient was worked with for some time and later taken to his home, where he regained consciousness."

FOG WHISTLE FOOLS MOOSE

Excitement Among Big Game In the Woods Around St. John.

Whether or not the fog whistle at the entrance to St. John harbor should be compelled to take out a game license would seem to be a question to be decided by the game commission, says a special dispatch from St. John, N. B., to the New York Tribune. Partridge Island is situated about two miles from the city of St. John, and on it is one of the principal signal stations. A few months ago there was installed on the island a new fog whistle which has been the cause of much excitement among the moose which haunt the woods around the city. This whistle gives a long drawn out blow in a low note and ends the blast with a short sounding blow two tones lower. The whistle exactly imitates the call of a cow moose and is having the effect of such calls.

It is not uncommon for moose to find their way into the city and walk quietly through the streets during the earlier hours of the day. They are never molested and have grown bold. Since the new fog whistle was established these wandering moose have become more plentiful and there is no doubt that they are attracted by what they think is the call of their mates. The bull moose stroll calmly through Fairville and Lancaster to the water's edge and then attempt to swim to the island. None have ever swum the full distance, for before reaching the island they evidently become aware that things are not what they seem and that there is something wrong with the call. Huntsmen are anxiously awaiting the open season, when the moose are likely to be depleted in numbers.

Gilt Cornices In Vogue Again.

Any woman who has old fashioned brass and gilt cornices of colonial days stored in the warehouse may count herself lucky, for they are being restored to favor, says the New York Press. Inanimate objects have the charm of not resenting their relegation to the background. Even if they have been laid away, they probably will look as bright as ever when brought forth to view. The returning of the cornice and old fashioned curtains made itself felt last winter, when the rooms of a new hotel, which is supposed to represent "the last word" in tasteful and unostentatious decoration, were constructed with cornices covered with cloth just like that used in the window curtains.

A "Smoking Race."

An ingenious form of "sport" is now in vogue in Germany, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It is known as a "smoking race" and is said to have grown very popular. Specially constructed pipes, possessing immense bowls, are utilized, the size being identical for each competitor, and the tobacco is carefully weighed before it is put therein. When the starter gives the word the smokers, seated in a circle, begin operations in the presence of an interested assemblage of spectators and backers. The man who consumes his tobacco the quickest is, of course, declared the winner.

FATHER AND SON

Mother and daughter, old and young often need a good, reliable family tonic remedy. Complaints of stomach, liver and bowels —especially constipation—are common in every home at this time of the year.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

should be taken promptly when you notice any of these well-known symptoms: Furred tongue, variable appetite, disturbed sleep, irritability, malaria, poor complexion, costiveness.

Dr. True's Elixir is a pure vegetable home remedy with a wonderfully successful record. For three generations it has been in use. Its gentle laxative action keeps the stomach sweet, the bowels regular, the blood pure, increases the appetite, and gives rugged robust health. Given regularly it is a preventative of coughs, colds, fever and worms.

Portland, Me.

DR. J. F. TRUE & Co.:

I shall in future know just what to recommend to others who are not feeling well; stomach out of order, headache, poor appetite, or a bad cold. Your Elixir has helped me out of just this combination of bad feelings. I want to thank you for it, as it cured me of all these troubles and destroyed the cold I had.

Yours truly, MRS. E. A. SKOLFIELD.

Children's Party

The Juniors Of the Quincy Yacht Club Entertained

Commodore Crane of the Quincy Yacht club entertained a large number of the children of the club members at a children's party at the club house Thursday from 3.30 until 6 o'clock. A larger part of those invited accepted the invitation and there were upwards of eighty present.

He was assisted in receiving the young people by Miss Gerna Saville and Morton Smith, who with several of the older boys made it a most delightful afternoon.

During the first part of the afternoon there was a pleasing entertainment, consisting of violin solos by Harold Morse, piano solos by Miss Eleanor Whittemore and recitations by Miss Louise Harris. Another pleasing part of the afternoon's entertainment was a Japanese dance in costume by Miss Dorothy Lowe.

Following the entertainment there was dancing, with Miss Bertha Hanson at the piano, and Master Harold Morse as violinist. Ice cream was served during the afternoon.

At the close the children gave the salute to the flag and all joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

The afternoon was an ideal one and the children had a glorious time. The idea of a children's party is a new one, and Commodore Crane, by its introduction, has probably established a precedent that will be followed every year hereafter.

Bridge Hand Assaulted.

A row started for some reason this morning among a lot of Italians employed on the new railroad bridge at Atlantic. During its progress Joseph Jacobs was struck over the head with a pick axe handle cutting a deep gash. The police ambulance was called and the man taken to Dr. Hallowell's, where his head was sewed up. A warrant has been issued for the Italian who it is alleged committed the assault.

Shortly before noon Officer Bradley visited the place where the men were at work and arrested James Galant for the assault. His story of the affair was that they were on an electric car coming to work. The men began to fool and joke with Jacobs. Becoming angered at the taunts of his companions, Jacobs drew a knife and attempted to plunge it into the breast of Galant. The knife cut through the shirt, but did not penetrate the flesh.

Galant says fearing his life he struck Jacobs over the head with a hammer handle. The assault will be aired in court Saturday.

Houghs Neck Accident.

Miss May E. Dennin, employed at the Brockton cafe, met with quite a serious accident Thursday afternoon. She had returned from Quincy but alighted from the car before she reached her destination. She started to walk in front of the car. As she stepped off the track to let the car pass, she got caught between the car and a pole. She was thrown down and suffered a dislocation of the hip and numerous bruises.

Damage to Rhode Island

The battleship Rhode Island built at Quincy, evidently sustained some damage, as Asst. Dist-Attorney Robert H. Tally on Thursday drew up papers which led to the libelling by the United States government of the Norwegian steamer Guernsey, which drifted into the battleship Rhode Island off Newport News on Tuesday night. The government's claim is $5,347.50.

TODAY'S COURT.

Patrick McDermitt was find $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Thomas J. Allen was arraigned for drunkenness at Randolph. Case continued until Saturday.

F. J. Smith was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Charles E. Stephenson was arraigned for non-support at Quincy. The case was continued until Sept. 20, Stephenson in the meantime to contribute $5 a week to the support of his family.

Funeral of County Treasurer

The funeral of County Treasurer Charles H. Smith was held Thursday at his residence 29 Church street, Dedham. The services were attended by a large number of county officials including Clerk Churchill and Court Officer Marden of the Quincy court. There was a large number of floral tributes, including set pices from the sheriffs of the county and other employes at the county court house.

Constellation Lodge, A. F. and A. M., were also present. The services were conducted by Rev. Roger S. Forbes of the Unitarian church. During the services a male quartette sang "Lead Kindly Light," "Eternal Godness" and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." The burial was at Dover.

Granite Shipments.

Returns from the shipping terminals for the month of June show the total amount of rough and finished granite shipped to have been 13,207,717 pounds. Of this amount 5,560,912 pounds was forwarded from South Quincy and 7,646,805 pounds from West Quincy.

—Mayor Thompson, of New Bedford, instituted removal proceedings Wednesday against License Commissioner John W. Bannister, against whom 17 charges have been filed by Chief of Police Donaghy. The most sensational charge is that Mr. Bannister conspired with others to compel an applicant to pay a valuable consideration for a license, the licensee specified being O'Leary & Co., who were granted a license in 1905, after the State census.

May Party.

A May-pole dance was given to nine little girls Thursday afternoon by Mrs. William Johnson of Faxon road, in compliment of her niece, Miss Bessie Merrill of Los Angeles, who is visiting Mrs. Johnson, accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Hinkley. The yard was trimmed splendidly for the occasion and July was made to turn back to May with the aid of crepe paper and an abundance of flowers. After numerous selections on the graphophone, the May-pole dance took place, a feature pleasing to look upon as well as to be in. The dance was assisted by Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Hinkley and Miss Laura Coles. A general good time followed. Refreshments were served in the little summer house on the grounds, which is decorated by nature so that it made a charming retreat.

New Contracts

Fore River Co May Build Lightship Anemone

The Fore River Shipbuilding company is said to have received on Thursday the contract for a lightship for the United States government, and have requested some of the draughtsmen suspended to remain. The bid of the Fore River company for the contract was $155,650, which was the lowest.

A Washington dispatch of Thursday also reports that Assistant Secretary Reynolds of the treasury department, today awarded to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company the contract for repairing the machinery in the revenue cutter Gresham. The bid was $1,254.50.

Should be Good Game.

There promises to be the most exciting game of base ball that has been played in Quincy this season when the semi-professional team from the J. P. Squires Co., meet the reorganized Fore River team Saturday, at their grounds in the rear of the Shipbuilders' club, Quincy Point. The Fore River team has a fine record, losing but one out of the 13 games played this season. They have met some of the strongest teams in eastern Mass., including the Deweys, Fort Warren, Marines from the Navy Yard, and the South Quincys with whom they played a draw. They promise to give the spectators a good game Saturday. The team is under a new management who promises good results.

Mayor in Party.

Ex-Councilman Charles H. Burgess entertained a party of nine well known gentlemen on Thursday on his launch the Addie M. A delightful trip was made outside Boston light and on the return the Metropolitan Sewer plant at Nut island was inspected. In the party were: Mayor Thompson, Commissioner Burke, Treasurer Fay, Chairman Hallowell of the School Board, Dr. Gordon, W. H. Binnian, H. P. Kittredge, H. L. Kincaide and John R. Nelson.

Rheumatism Cannot Be Cured Unless Uric-O is Used

The Store of E. J. Murphy is the Home of Uric-O in Quincy.

The Rheumatic person is sceptical regarding the claims of almost any remedy advertised as a cure for Rheumatism and one can scarcely blame him for being so. All the plasters and liniments combined never actually cured a case of Rheumatism. They may relieve it one quarter, but it is sure to break out somewhere else. The only sure way to cure Rheumatism, is to drive it from the system, for as long as the Uric and Rheumatic Acid remains in the blood, one is never entirely free from the trouble. This is where the value of Uric-O as a permanent cure for Rheumatism comes in. It seeks out the Rheumatic poison in the blood, muscles and kindeys, renders it inert and harmless and drives it out of the system. That is why Uric-o is such an admirable and effective cure for Rheumatism.

The chief reason that Uric-o is such a wonderful cure for Rheumatism is, that it is designed and prepared to cure Rheumatism and Rheumatism only. It does not contain any alcohol or other so called tonics to make one "feel good" for the time being, but is composed of antidotes for the rheumatic acid poison in the system. That is the secret of its wonderful success. Rheumatism simply cannot exist in a person's system if Uric-O is used.

Uric-O is sold by E. J. Murphy, "The home of Uric-O" in Quincy, at 75c and $1.00 the bottle, but if you still feel skeptical about its efficacy you can test it free of charge by cutting out this advertisement and sending same together with your name and address to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., and they will send you a sample bottle free. Funeral of A. J. Richards

The high esteem in which Augustus J. Richards of Weymouth was held was shown by the very large attendance on Thursday at the funeral services. Business associates from Quincy, Braintree and all the South Shore towns were present. Rev. R. H. Cochrane of the Union Congregational church officiated at the house, and a male quartette sang "Rock of Ages," "Jesus Lover of My Soul," "Jerusalem, the Golden" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

South Shore commandery, Knights Templer, performed their impressive service led by Em. Com. Arthur W. Stetson of Quincy and Prelate Howard Poole of Weymouth. Orphans Hope lodge of Masons and Pentalpha chapter were also in attendance, and the committal service of the Masons was performed at the grave in the Old North cemetery at Weymouth Heights by Worshipful Master W. P. Denbroeder and Chaplain M. E. Hawes, assisted by the Albion quartette.

The honorary pallbearers were: Charles T. Crane, Charles P. Hunt, Francis H. Cowing, George H. Bicknell, Charles, A. Hayward and Granville E. Field.

The body bearers consisted of six of the faithful employes of Mr. Richards, who had served him for many years, viz: Edward Condrick, Patrick Kelley, Robert Condrick, Michael Coyle, Thomas Tracey and Michael Splaine.

The floral offerings were unusually numerous and beautiful, being sent by business associates, employees, town officials, bank officers, lodges, friends and relatives.

The taxpayers of the town of Peabody are hard hit with a tax rate of $22 per $1,000. The only consolation is that it was higher one year. The town has a population of over 13,000 enough to entitle it to become a city, but the valuation is only $9,142,797.50. One of the causes of the increase in tax rate is the fact that about $40,000 is exempt from taxation under the new law favoring Civil War veterans.

Drift of Opinion.

A consumer of ice who is accustomed to contract for a supply for the year received figures from three dealers. No. 1 put his price at 70 cents per 100 pounds, but next day asked permission to revise his figures to 55 cents, a cold drop of 15 cents. No. 2 named 50 cents as his idea of what was about right. No. 3 made the rate 40 and after he had got the contract admitted that he might have shaved the price and still made something. Consumers of ice who have heard the arguments put forward by the ice dealers can form their own conclusions.—Lynn Item.

OUT OF FOG BANK

Excursion Steamer Emerged and Crashed Into Another

PASSENGERS IN A PANIC

Impact Was So Terrific That Vessels Remained Interlocked, Thus Rendering Safety From Sinking--No One Badly Hurt

New York, July 20.—Two crowded excursion steamers were in collision last night in New York harbor off Staten Island, imperilling the lives of 1500 persons, but neither in the crash itself nor in the wild panic which followed was anyone seriously injured.

The vessels were the Perseus of the Iron Steamboat company, bound for Coney Island, with 500 passengers on board, and the Thomas Patten of the Patten line, bound from Long Branch to New York, carrying 1000 passengers. The shrill whistles of the colliding steamers soon brought assistance from boats in the bay and the frightened passengers were transferred as quickly as possible and brought to this city.

The lower harbor was covered with a dense fog at the time of the collision and the two vessels were running at reduced speed. When directly off St. George, S. I., the Patten crashed with terrific force into the port side of the Perseus, smashing the paddlewheel and box and tearing away much of the joiner work. The Patten's bow and upper fore-decks were badly injured. The impact was so great that the vessels remained fast together. No effort was made by the Patten to break away, however, so it was felt that safety from sinking lay in the vessels remaining interlocked.

When the Patten loomed suddenly out of the fog bank and it was seen that a collision was unavoidable, the passengers on the two vessels became frantic with fear. Just before the crash one man on the Perseus jumped overboard. He was quickly rescued, however.

The crews of the two vessels were summoned to quarters and then the captains and officers went among the passengers in an effort to restore quiet. A hasty examination indicated that neither boat was in immediate danger of going down and the excursionists were assured of this fact.

Meantime the whistles were calling assistance and, while the passengers were rushing about the decks, seeking relatives or friends, the excursion boat Commodore and a Staten Island municipal ferryboat ranged alongside. The transfer of passengers was quickly made and all were brought safely to the city.

During the panic many women fainted and some were bruised, but not seriously. One of the passengers who landed from the Perseus deck said that he had seen two men jump overboard and he thought both were drowned. There was no confirmation of this, however. A boat was quickly lowered from the Coney Island steamer and picked up the one man who did jump into the water.

Hot Weather Affects Cavalrymen

Hoosick Falls, N. Y., July 20.—The Fifteenth United States cavalry from Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., comprising 650 men and horses and a band of 28 pieces, pitched camp last evening at Hoosick The troops are enroute to the army maneuvers at Mount Gretna, Pa. Since the long march began the troops have encountered excessive heat and many cavalrymen have been prostrated. Two horses fell dead on the road and nearly all of the horses show the effects of the heat and long journey Several desertions are reported.

Guatemalans Claim Victory

Guatemala City, July 20.—The following official account of the fighting at Platanar and Metapam July 17 is made public: The last two battles, fought before 5 o'clock Wednesday morning, July 18, when the armistice began, were won by the Guatemalans, who defeated the Salvadoreans in Metapam, completely destroying them. If a few remained in the fortifications at Platanar it was because the armistice which found them there was respected. Reports contradicting these facts are false.

Tried to Bribe Aldermen

Des Moines, July 20.—George Hippi, general manager of the Des Moines street railway, and A. M. Hamlock, manager of a big farm belonging to the company, were arrested, charged with attempting to bribe Alderman Hamery in an effort to secure the latter's vote on a pending street railway franchise. They gave bond in the sum of $1000 each.

Snowballing on Hot Day

Denver, July 20.—During the Elks' parade here the marchers were showered with flowers and showballs, several carloads of snow having been brought from the Continental divide to show the diversity of the Colorado climate. The temperature on the street while the snowballing was in progress was 85 degrees.

Hit by Overhead Bridge

New London, Conn., July 20.—Philip Chovin, aged 25, and believed to be a native of Taunton, Mass., was found dead on the seat of a tableaux car of a circus train in the freight yards here. Chovin had probably been hit by an overhead bridge.

THE STREUB MURDER

But Little Light Shed by the Official Investigation

Great Barrington, Mass., July 20.—The selectmen of the town have offered a reward of $250 for information leading to the arrest of the murderer of John Streub, the 12-year-old boy, whose body was found last Sunday in the woods near Housatonic. This action was contemplated several days ago, but was postponed, as the selectmen had reason to think that an arrest would be made very shortly without the incentive of a reward. The developments of the official investigation of the last few days, however, have been of little value, so the decision to announce the reward was reached.

It is believed that the murder was committed on the morning of July 10. According to relatives of young Streub, he was absent from his home on the Monday night preceding, and the efforts of the detectives have been directed in part to finding out where the boy spent that night. This part of the investigation is conducted on the theory that the boy was killed by tramps, but the officers do not deny that they are conducting other lines of inquiry pointing in quite another direction.

Mother and Child Perished

Malden, Mass., July 20.—Mrs. Louis Cohen, 33 years old, and her 5-year-old son, Benjamin, lost their lives in a fire which nearly destroyed a tenement house on Bryant street. Three other children were handed out the window to neighbors by Mrs. Cohen and saved, but the mother, it is thought, was overcome by smoke while seeking her fourth child. Cohen, the father, was at his shoe store some distance off when the fire occurred, and was so overcome by the shock that he was taken to a hospital. It is thought that the fire originated from a can of gasolene on the first floor.

Woman's Nerves Were Unstrung

Boston, July 20.—The body of Mrs. J. S. Piza of New York city, who plunged to her death from the fifth story of Hotel Touraine Wednesday night, was taken by her husband to their summer home in Orange, N. J., last night. Mrs. Piza died at the city hospital as a result of her terrible cuts and internal injuries. Medical Examiner MacDonald declared there was no question of Mrs. Piza's death being due to anything but accident. She had come from a sanitarium in Melrose, where she had rested as a cure for her nerves.

Alleged Misuse of Mail

Boston, July 20.—On surety furnished by a former schoolmate, Fred H. Bridge of Arlington, who was arrested on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud, was released from jail last evening. Last Saturday Bridge was held in $200, charged with an offense against the postal laws committed in Boston. On Tuesday he was rearrested and held in another $2000 bail on charge of committing a similar offense in Cleveland. Both cases have been continued to next Tuesday.

Criticism of President Disapproved

Hartford, July 20.—Criticism of the methods pursued by President Roosevelt in connection with the investigation of the packers by Frank Thurber of New York was the chief feature of Thursday's session of the national pure food convention. He characterized as hysterical the publicity given to the reports concerning the packing houses by the president. A motion was later passed disapproving the sentiments expressed against President Roosevelt.

Used Razor on Officers

York, Me., July 20.—Slashed with a razor until their faces streamed with blood, Sheriff Preble and Constable Holland captured an alleged desperate highway robber, only after riddling his hips and legs with bullets and engaging in a desperate battle last night. Leaving blood stains on the lonely road, the two captors lugged their bloody captive two miles to the town lockup. The captured man refused to speak when landed in jail.

Three Deaths by Drowning

Bangor, Me., July 20.—Three drowning accidents occurred here last night. An unknown man fell from a wharf and was drowned. The body was recovered, but was not identified. Steamer Bristol reported having run down a rowboat just below Bangor. Two persons who were in the boat jumped overboard and it is believed that they were drowned. Their identity has not been established.

Hanged Herself From Attic Rafter

Lowell, Mass., July 20.—The body of Miss Mary A. Parker, aged 49, for many years a schoolteacher in Dracut, was found last night in the attic of her brother's home here. She had hanged herself from a rafter. Miss Parker had been an inmate of a Dracut sanitarium for a year and was despondent.

Timber Hit Passenger Car

Providence, July 20.—A projecting timber from a passing freight train struck a passenger car on an express train between Providence and New London and broke off a gas pipe attached to a tank under the car. No other damage was done and the train proceeded after a short delay.

Pockets Picked While He Slept

Franklin, N. H., July 20.—Ernest I. Griffin reported to the police last night that his home was entered by burglars and a purse containing $560 stolen. The purse was in Griffin's clothing, which hung in the bedroom, and was removed by the burglar while Griffin and his wife were sleeping.

A BOON TO LABOR

President Orders Strict Observance of Eight-Hour Law

AT INSTIGATION OF TAFT

Unions Who Have Not Money to Engage In a Legal Struggle With Powerful Interests Are Backed by the Government

Washington, July 20.—Action of the greatest importance to labor circles is contemplated in a direction given by the president to officers in charge of public works, at the instance of Secretary Taft. This is to employ the government's own officers to detect and punish violations of the law of 1892, providing that, except in cases of an emergency, work upon government buildings, ships and other properties shall be limited to eight hours each day for each workman.

An effort was made by the forces of organized labor during the last session of congress to secure legislation to this end, but so effective was the opposition of the great contracting firms that adjournment was had without any action, though the house committee on labor consumed many hours in listening to powerful arguments on both sides.

Heretofore it has been the practice of executive officers, when complaint was made by labor unions, that the eight-hour law was being violated by contractors building ships, constructing public buildings, engaged in river and harbor work and other public enterprises, to reply that it was not their business; that the law was binding upon the contractors and that if the labor unions felt aggrieved and knew of violations of the law they should proceed against the offenders. The labor unions asserted that it was almost impossible for them to secure the necessary evidence and that they had not the money to engage in a legal struggle with powerful moneyed interests.

Under the president's direction, every government officer in charge of or inspecting a public work in progress is to be directed to promptly report to the department of justice any violations by contractors of the eight-hour law, and prosecution initiated by and at the expense of the government is to follow.

The effect of the order upon the cost of government work is expected to be very great. It is known that it has been almost the rule for government contractors to work their men 10 and 12 and even more hours a day. If they cannot do this they assert that they must increase by 20 or 25 percent the amount of their bids, so that congress must either increase by like percentage the appropriations for public works or must correspondingly reduce the amount of work authorized.

It has been found that quite a number of employes are not subject to the operations of the eight-hour law, being neither laborers nor mechanics—the classes referred in the act. Such are lock tenders on the western rivers, watchmen on river and harbor works, captains and crews of the numerous fleet of vessels of various kinds employed in these works, draughtsmen, clerks, inspectors, paymasters and the like. Still, many thousand workmen in all parts of the country will be affected by the new order of things for which the executive officers are now preparing.

Mayor Johnson Turned Down

Columbus, O., July 20.—The Democratic state central committee met here and decided the state convention shall be held in Columbus on Aug. 21 and 22. Mayor Johnson of Cleveland wanted the convention held on Sept. 18 and 19. but his motion was defeated. Johnson also proposed the name of Mayor Dempsey of Cincinnati for temporary chairman, but the latter received only the votes of Johnson and the Cleveland member of the committee.

Two Feud Leaders Killed

Lexington, Ky., July 20.—John Thornberry and Richard Hall, leaders of the Hall faction of mountain feudists, were riding along a lonely mountain road when they were killed by a volley of rifle bullets poured at them from ambush. Their murderers escaped. Recently Thornberry married into the Hall family and his clansmen had sworn revenge, claiming that he had betrayed them.

Five Men Reduced to Pulp

Bluefield, W. Va., July 20.—As a result of an explosion in the Dixon mine at Huger last night five miners are dead and two were fatally injured. Their bodies were crushed almost to a pulp. The explosion was caused by the men having a gasolene light in the bucket while descending, the light igniting an accumulation of gas.

To Inquire Into Fire Losses

New York, July 20.—In compliance with a resolution adopted by the National Association of Credit Men, President Fessenden of that organization has appointed a committee to ascertain the adjustments of fire losses at San Francisco and whether the insurance companies deal justly with the victims of the recent disaster there.

No Political Ads In Barrooms

Boston, July 20.—The board of license commissioners has requested that no political signs and posters be displayed in the barrooms of this city. Notice to that effect has been sent to all licensees.

UNDER BITTER PROTEST

Judge Admits Testimony Favorable to Mrs Hartje

Pittsburg, July 20.—Following an attack on the character of Augustus Hartje, in which it was alleged that he had taken two women frequently to a questionable resort, a sensation in the Hartje divorce trial came yesterday afternoon when Judge Fraser admitted, under bitter protest of opposing counsel, testimony relating to the charges of conspiracy against John L. Welshons, a prominent merchant; Augustus Hartje, the libellant, and Clifford Hooe, the negro coachman now in jail on perjury charges for alleged false swearing in the case.

Welshons, who was called by Mrs. Hartje's counsel, told how the deposition was secured from Hooe and said that Hooe then left the city. The witness related that he had given Hooe various small sums of money at different times. He said he might have told Hooe that he would be sent to the penitentiary for perjury if he did not stick to the original story he told. This testimony is said to coincide with the statement of Hooe.

This was the first attempt during the trial to present evidence of an alleged conspiracy which Mrs. Hartje's counsel declares was formed to defame her. Welshons is a close friend of Augustus Hartje and is accused with Hartje and Hooe of conspiring against Mrs. Hartje.

Won't Investigate Grand Jury

Cleveland, July 20.—Government officials here make the unqualified statement that there will be no investigation of the records and personnel of the federal grand jury which recently met in this city to ascertain whether the Standard Oil company and certain railroads had violated anti-rebate and interstate commerce laws. Because of reports criticising the make-up of the jury a secret service agent came to Cleveland ready to institute a rigid investigation. He left last night to report that there was no necessity of taking any action.

Government Libels the Guernsey

Norfolk, July 20.—The United States government has libelled the Norwegian steamer Guernsey, which drifted into the battleship Rhode Island off Newport News on Tuesday night. The government's claim is $5347.50. In the bill of complaint filed by the government it is stated that the port quarter of the steamer struck the battleship and overlapped her on the starboard bow and that seven stanchions were demolished, that three three-inch guns were damaged and two gun mounts also damaged.

To Release Relief Fund

Boston, July 20.—The release of $400,000 of the Massachusetts fund for the relief of California earthquake sufferers, which has been kept back by the relief committee owing to lack of confidence in the San Francisco committee, will soon be turned over to the Rehabilitation company, a new corporation. It is expected that by the efforts of this new committee over $6,000,000 now held up in the east will be turned over for the relief of the stricken districts.

Russia May Have New Elections

Cologne, July 20.—The Gazette's correspondent at St. Petersburg asserts that the Russian government has agreed in principle to dissolve parliament and order new elections on the basis of universal and direct suffrage. The reason as given is that parliament is exceeding its prerogatives. The correspondent adds that if there should be an outbreak of a revolutionary movement the government has decided to establish a dictatorship.

Olive Branch Is Rejected

Buffalo, July 20.—The United Typothetae of America, in session here, flatly declined to confer with officials of the International Typographical union in regard to the strike inaugurated nearly a year ago for an eight-hour day and the closed shop. Officials of the Printers' union had stated that they were ready for a conference with a view to adjusting the differences that now exist.

Rowdyism on Baseball Field

Rochester, July 20.—Manager Dunn of the Providence baseball team pulled Umpire Moran's nose during the game with Rochester, because he did not like a decision. Moran swung his mask into Dunn's face and followed the attack with an upper-cut. Dunn's lap was cut. Dunn claimed a Rochester player had tried to bunt, Moran calling it a ball.

Ran In Front of Express Train

Lonsdale, R. I., July 20.—Hormidas Archambault, 17 years old, was killed by a train here last night. He had just had an altercation with some Polish people and was being chased by one of the latter when he ran in front of the engine of an express train.

Alleged Theft of $3500 Automobile

THE THAW PAPERS

Nearly All Turned Over to Prisoner's Personal Attorney

ONE BATCH IS RETAINED

Relates to Recent Reports of Private Detectives Engaged on the Case--Mrs Thaw Makes Another Long Affidavit

New York, July 20.—Peace apparently has been declared among the lawyers who at various times have represented Harry K. Thaw since the night he shot and killed Stanford White on the Madison Square roof garden. Former Judge Olcott, of the firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, yesterday turned over to Clifford W. Hartridge, Thaw's personal attorney, all the papers he had in the case with the exception of the reports of private detectives which have been made to him since the alleged murder was committed. As a reason for retaining these Olcott said there was a question in his mind as to whether they belonged to Thaw or to the person who paid for them. He did not indicate who the person was who paid for the detectives' services.

The turning over of the papers by Olcott undoubtedly will result in a dismissal of the writ issued against his firm at the instance of Hartridge to show cause why the papers in the case should not be relinquished to Thaw's present counsel. The writ is returnable today.

Justice McLean, in the supreme court, yesterday heard arguments on the application of Thaw's counsel for an absolute writ of prohibition directed against the district attorney and the July grand jury to stop the taking of testimony against Thaw without the prisoner being represented. Decision was reserved.

Mrs. Harry Thaw, after visiting her husband in the Tombs yesterday, went to the office of Hartridge and made another long affidavit, giving a history of her life since the time she came to New York. Mrs. Thaw had previously made such a statement to Olcott.

Mr. Hartridge called on Thaw late yesterday afternoon. When he came out of the Tombs he said: "There isn't much that I can say at this time. We have all the necessary papers and certain letters that were in the office of Judge Olcott, and I believe that now everything will move along smoothly. Harry is in a good frame of mind and apparently glad that his legal affairs have been straightened out at last.

Looking Into Icemen's Doings

Boston, July 20.—District Attorney Moran has summoned two stenographers, E. J. Morse and W. W. Collins, to report at his office on July 26, on which day he has planned to take up evidence to show that the Boston ice dealers have joined in an illegal combination to increase the price of ice. Morse and Collins were employed by the Massachusetts Ice Dealers' association to make a full record of all that transpired in the meeting at the American house on April 5, when it was decided to increase the price of ice.

Gambling Crusade Hurt Taggart

Indianapolis, July 20.—Close political friends of National Chairman Taggart say he will not ask a re-election to the Democratic committee, and that the campaign which he inaugurated three months ago will be abandoned. It is understood that Taggart has become convinced that he could not get the chairmanship for another four years without making an uphill fight. The opposition to Taggart has developed because of the gambling crusade at French Lick.

Fatally Stabbed by Son

New York, July 20.—Conrad Schirmer died last night as a result of being stabbed by his 19-year-old son, Conrad, Jr., at the home of the son's sweetheart, Miss Clara Lazarus. The stabbing followed a quarrel arising from the son's attentions to Miss Lazarus. The father was opposed to his son's courting. He refused to make a charge against his son. Young Schirmer is under arrest.

Showman and Assistant Killed

Greenwood, Ind., July 20.—While preparing for a stereopticon lecture on the San Francisco disaster in a tent last night, a 20-gallon tank of gas exploded, instantly killing Rev. D. I. Levis, proprietor of the entertainment, and his assistant, George McNeenus, and seriously injuring Harry E. Levis, a son of Rev. Levis.

Hibernians Have No Grievances

Saratoga, N. Y., July 20.—The national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians heartily applauded the official finding of the committee on appeals and grievances, which was to the effect that it had nothing to report, thus establishing a new record for the order.

Horse's Kick Proved Fatal

Boston, July 20.—Patrick St. John died at the city hospital last night from internal injuries received when he was kicked by a horse at a livery stable earlier in the day. St. John was 44 years old.

Cashier Relieved of $12,500

St. Petersburg, July 20.—Five armed men attacked a cashier on board a railway train between Rostov-on-Don and Voronezh, escaping with $12,500.

Old-fashioned Paint

The good paint which lasted so well a generation and more ago, was simply pure white lead and pure linseed oil. Paint made of these two ingredients alone is just as good to-day as it ever was.

The only point is to buy a brand which you can rely on.

Salem Pure White Lead

Sewer Pipe Trust's Admission

Jamestown, N. Y., July 20.—The Sewer Pipe Trade association entered a plea of guilty to the charges of a secret contract to limit the production and control the territory and prices of sewer pipe before the federal grand jury in this city. Counsel for the association submitted the proposition that rather than submit to a proposed investigation by the grand jury he would enter into an agreement whereby the association would be dissolved and go out of business. The proposition was accepted by the district attorney.

Naval Militia Off Rockport

Rockport, Mass., July 20.—Firing a salute of 13 guns to Rear Admiral Evans, the cruiser Brooklyn, which has on board a division of the Massachusetts naval militia, swept by Rockport. Their salute to the rear admiral was answered by seven guns from the flagship, the battleship Maine, and all the warships made a lavish display of fluttering signal flags as the cruiser went past.

Earthquake Reports Exaggerated

Santa Fe., N. M., July 20.—Mayor Bursum of Socorro has issued a signed statement saying: "The reports regarding the earthquake at Socorro have been exaggerated, the damage to date being limited to the falling and toppling over of loose chimneys and shaking of some of the walls of buildings not of a substantial character. The actual damage all round is very slight."

Big Whisky Warehouse Burned

Dundee, July 20.—A disastrous fire broke out last night in the bonded warehouse of James Watson & Co., the largest concern of its kind in Scotland. Large quantities of blazing whisky ran into the streets. The loss is estimated at $1,250,000.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Old Colony Insurance company of Boston has been authorized to conduct a fire insurance business in New York state.

The executive committee of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association of the United States adopted a resolution endorsing the new pure food law, with a determination to obey its mandates.

A five story brick building at Kansas City, occupied by the wholesale firm of Frankel, Frank & Co., was struck by lightning and a fire that resulted did $200,000 damage.

The marriage-with-foreigners bill, which is designed to safeguard the marriages of British subjects with foreigners in foreign countries, passed its third reading in the house of commons.

Members of the executive council of the International Structural Iron and Bridge Workers unite in declaring that there will be no let-up in the strike against the American Bridge company.

Danderine

GREW THIS HAIR.

And we can PROVE IT

Testimonial No. 570.

MRS. ANNIE E. SHEEHAN, Weir City, Kansas.

You must remember that failing hair and dandruff are signs of decay, or a diseased condition of the scalp, and you must not delay treatment. To do so simply means more loss of hair, and a greater impoverished scalp, and finally no hair. The wise thing to do is to correct it in the start. Danderine works wonders in all such cases. It will quickly regenerate the enfeebled tissues, and make your hair grow more beautiful than it ever was. NOW at all druggists, three sizes.

John D. Rockefeller was offered $1,000 for a fifteen minute conversation by the Paris Matin.

Champ Clark, the Missouri congressman, never writes his full name, James Beauchamp Clark, unless on important occasions.

M. Guesde, a French Socialist, says that when society is properly constituted nobody will have to work more than eleven minutes a day.

Adam Spies of Sterling, Ill., who twenty years ago left church owing people $50,000 and claiming he could not be a Christian under the conditions, recently paid the debt and rejoined the church.

The Duke of Hamilton was a great swimmer and diver in his early youth. When he was in the navy he often used to dive right under his ship, and once received a somewhat serious injury while performing this feat.

Amzi Smith, superintendent of the document room at the capitol, has a marvelous memory. He is familiar with all the countless bills and documents for many sessions back and can get the desired one at any time without consulting indexes or file lists.

Andrew Carnegie is believed to have been granted his "freedom" oftener than any other living man. A short time time ago he was granted the freedom of five English towns and cities in one week and altogether has been the recipient of about forty freedoms of this kind.

Former Judge Alton B. Parker and his law partner, former Judge Edward Hatch, have been admitted to practice in the United States circuit court and in the United States circuit court of appeals. Another motion is necessary before they can try cases before the United States supreme court.

Thomas B. Youngblood of Boonville, Ind., is the oldest justice of the peace in that state and will soon be eighty. He is famous for marrying people under unusual conditions, but says that he established his record when he united a couple suffering from smallpox and had to stand across the road from them to do it.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The peace movement in Russia appears to move crab fashion.—Baltimore Sun.

An Iowa farm product is a girl of thirteen who weighs 550 pounds. Talk about your eighteen foot corn and ninety bushels to the acre wheat!—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Although only one additional star goes on the flag, some people persist in thinking that Uncle Sam is entitled to congratulations on his first pair of twins.—Washington Post.

A Chicago university scientist believes it will be possible to develop a race of people without the vermiform appendix, which, he declares, is a rudimentary organ anyway.—Houston Post.

France proposes to levy an income tax on visiting foreigners. An addition to the tax already levied by hotel keepers and merchants might easily kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

The Chicago board of assessors has assessed the Chicago subway at $7,000,000.

An electric engine attached to nine heavy Pullman coaches made a record of eighty-three miles an hour. The trial was recently made on the New York Central railroad.

The Grand Trunk railway has instituted a new departure at handling the baggage of steamship passengers, and now a trunk can be checked in Chicago to be delivered to its owner at any European port to which the transportation reads.

On some Prussian railway lines hot and cold drinks are sold to employees at the price of 2 pfennigs (one-half cent) per portion of coffee or tea or for a bottle of mineral water. On some of the lines in Germany the employees have been forbidden to take any alcoholic drinks while on duty.

LABOR AND PROGRESS.

The total exportation of American boots and shoes in 1905 was $8,650,012, an increase of $1,340,237.

The largest pin factory in the world is that in Birmingham, England, where 37,000,000 pins are manufactured every working day.

The census reports show that in 1900 there were 357 cottonseed oil mills in the United States. In 1905 the number had increased to 717. The cotton states produced in 1905 133,000,000 gallons of cottonseed oil. North Carolina produced over 6,000,000.

Gas pipes are now made of paper in some cities of the United States. The paper is rolled in a receiver of fused asphalt and formed around an iron bar. It is then submitted to a great pressure and covered with sand. The outside is waterproofed.

STATE LINES.

There are 1,250 rural libraries in North Carolina.

Minnesota is larger than all New England and a much larger proportion of the land is tillable.

For a number of years Georgia has led in the production of peaches for the eastern market. The state has nearly 8,000,000 trees.

The enormous material wealth of the state of New York is in no way perhaps more clearly marked than in the fact that the total amount of real estate—lands and buildings—exempted from taxation is larger than the total assessed wealth of twenty-five of the forty-five states of the country.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

In an Ancient Setting.

I have a horse—a ryghte goode horse,

His Plea.

The private secretary of an eminent plutocrat had been held up and robbed by a lone highwayman.

"Gentlemen," said the victim of the outrage, addressing the detectives and reporters who a little later clustered around him, "I beg of you not to suspect my employer!"—Watson's Magazine.

No Brains Required.

A man may scowl and shake his fist
And raise a painful clatter;
A man can be a pessimist
Though minus all gray matter.

—Smart Set.

Judging by Appearances.

"Where are the life preservers kept, my man?" asked the passenger with the sunburned nose of one of the deck hands on the steamboat.

"Down on the lower deck for'ard you'll find the bar," replied the deck hand with a wink.—Yonkers Statesman.

Irrevocable.

More mighty than the fire is she,
More dread than earthquake tilt;
When Bridget burns a porterhouse
It cannot be rebuilt.

—Puck.

The Way of It.

"You see, he was whirled around a shaft at the mill and pretty seriously hurt. Now he's suing the boss for $500 damages."

"Well, that's the way of the whirled."—Philadelphia Press.

Remember This.

Good temper is a splendid thing,
But don't abuse it.
You never know how good it was Until you lose it.

—Houston Post.

Surprised Into It.

Custom Officer—Have you any smuggled articles in your baggage, ma'am?

Lady Traveler—Well, I declare!

Custom Officer—That's what we want you to do, ma'am.—Baltimore American.

SARTORIAL NEWS.

Pongee In Great Demand For Gowns and Wraps—Motor Costumes.

Just at present the material most in demand is pongee in all its different qualities and colorings. House dresses, handsome reception gowns, coat and skirt costumes, traveling dresses—it does not seem to matter for what purpose, so varied are the summer models in pongee and rajah cloth.

One girl who motors a great deal has costumes to match all through. For example, one is all lavender or mauve. Her long, loose storm coat is of mauve satin with big smoke pearl buttons. Her veil is an enormous mass of lavender chiffon, yards and yards of it, arranged upon a small automobile turban of mauve straw. Her suede gloves are mauve and her linen gaiters are the same color. Then she has gray, tan, rose, brown and white costumes.

Plaid belts in leather and silk are smart to wear with white linen shirt waist suits, and plaid stockings are rumored to be equally stunning worn with the dress.

There is a new shade which goes by the name of biscuit, but it must certainly refer to them in their uncooked state if the name is to be applicable. The prettier biscuit color is the palest shade of tan—just one remove from cream.

RAJAH SILK SUIT.

For a light weight traveling suit rajah is excellent. It does not show dust readily, and it will stand a tremendous amount of wear. There are a few models made up with the box rever semi-fitted coat, but the majority of designs have the Eton or bolero trimmed with ruchings of taffeta or lace.

The attractive suit in the cut is in chestnut brown rajah silk with vest and strappings of cloth a shade darker. The buttons are small enameled affairs, and the tie is of a lovely burnished copper color.

Mrs. L. P. Furlong of Dorchester, Miss Mary Conlon of Boston, Miss Anne Moker, Miss Sally and Master John Lennon of New York, are visiting Mrs. John J. Lennon, Bell street, Houghs Neck.

Fire at Weymouth.

A small cottage house on Church street, North Weymouth, owned and occupied by Henry Pratt, was totally destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. The loss on building and contents is estimated at $500. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

Good Shooting.

Dr. Gleason, the crack short of the Braintree Gun club, won the first prize in the 100 target handicap at the interstate tournament at Philadelphia on Thursday. At first he was tied with G. Hansell of Lebanon, Pa., at 94 and in the shoot off at 20 targets he won 20 to 18.

Compliment.

"Oh, Professor Wizzles, I do so admire your long beard!"

"Thank you, Miss Gushem. It is not often one finds a young person who possesses the proper veneration for the marks of age."

"But I do admire it. I often think it a beautiful muff it would make."—Chicago Tribune.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. David Work wishes to extend her thanks to her friends for the sympathy and kindness extended to her and her daughter, during their recent bereavement in the death of her husband.

Quincy, July 20 1t-lp

Rescued by Steamer.

The battleship New Jersey, built at Quincy, figures in the news nearly every day. A Thursday dispatch from Norwich, Conn., says Malcolm Blake, a sailor in the United States navy, was picked up by the steamer Chelsea of the New York-Norwich line off Goshen reef, just outside of New London Harbor, shortly after 2 o'clock A. M.

Blake said that, with six companions, all of the crew of the battleship New Jersey, he jumped overboard at 10 o' clock last night with the intention of swimming ashore. All took the precaution to fasten life preservers about them, which were hidden by their shirts.

Blake thinks that he lost consciousness for a time after being seized with cramps. On recovering his senses, he yelled lustily, as he could not locate the shore lights, and very soon after that he heard a steamer passing and was picked up. Captain Coleberg turned Blake over to the police at New London. Blake feels sure that his companions reached shore.

Who Is Who!

Guy S. Bridge, the "Who-is-Who man," who announced that he would give prizes in the Novelty contest in the Daily Ledger of July 14, is among the missing, and has not kept his agreements, therefore the prize-winners will not be announced tomorrow nor the questions answered. If Bridge puts in an appearance the award may be made Saturday July 28.

The Sothic Year.

The year of 365¼ days was known as the Sothic year, from the Egyptian name of the star Sirius, observations of which were of great use to the astronomers of Egypt in their efforts to arrange a calendar.

Bank of England Notes.

A Bank of England note is payable on demand after the lapse of any number of years since its issue.

Noses.

It is a somewhat singular fact that the rarest of all noses is that found where one would naturally expect to find it, in the middle of the face. Taking 100 heads at random, one will not find on an average more than three in which the bridge of the nose descends perpendicularly from a straight line drawn exactly between the eyes.

Baby Camels as Pets.

Baby camels are great pets in South Africa, and are nursed and tended and even carried about by their attendants. During the first few months they weigh no more than an ordinary dog.

Ancient Incubators.

It has been proved beyond a doubt that incubators were in successful operation among the ancient Egyptians. These original hatching machines were about nine feet high and were arranged with galleries for holding the eggs, which were heated from a central oven. About 400 incubators have been discovered in Egypt.

Babylon.

Babylon was burned by Cyrus when taken B. C. 538, but the city was rebuilt with greater splendor than before. Its final destruction was by fire after a siege and capture.

Sea Water Evaporated.

Every ton of Atlantic water, when evaporated, yields 81 pounds of salt; a ton of Pacific water, 79 pounds; Arctic and Antarctic waters yield 85 pounds to the ton, and Dead sea water 187 pounds.

Bombay.

In 1803 Bombay was visited by a fire which destroyed buildings to the value of $3,000,000. The Indians regarded the visitation as a mark of the anger of the god Siva the Destroyer, and penitential offerings were made while the fire was in progress to stay his vengeful hand.

—Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who at the age of 105 years and 9 months, pitched two innings in a ball game to the great amusement of some of her great-grandchildren, who took part in the contest, is on her annual trip to Connecticut. She is now in Shelton, Conn., and is going to Meridan, Conn. to celebrate her 106th birthday on Aug. 31, with her grand-daughter, Mrs. Frank W. Homan. The aged woman is reported to be in good health and thoroughly enjoying her outing.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

AT a Probate Court holden at Quincy, in and for said County of Norfolk, on the eleventh day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and six.

On the petition of John Joseph Ahern of Quincy, in said County, praying that his name and that of his wife, Julia C. Ahern, and minor children, Gertrude J. Ahern, Bertha E. Ahern, May Ahern, Lawrence F. Ahern and Leonard Ahern, by their next friend John J. Ahern, may be changed to that of John Joseph Herne, Julia C. Herne, Gertrude J. Herne, Bertha E. Herne, May Herne, Lawrence F. Herne and Leonard Herne, public notice having been given according to the order of Court, that all persons might appear and show cause, if any they had, why the same should not be granted, and it appearing that the reason given therefor is sufficient, and consistent with the public interest, and being satisfactory to the Court, and no objection being made.

IT IS DECREED that their names be changed, as prayed for, to that of John Joseph Herne, Julia C. Herne, Gertrude J. Herne, Bertha E. Herne, May Herne, Lawrence F. Herne, and Leonard Herne, which names they shall hereafter bear, and which shall be their legal names, and that they give public notice of said change by publishing this decree once in each week for three successive weeks in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, and make return to this Court under oath that such notice has been given.

VAUDEVILLE ON TRAINS

Innovation Erie Railroad Man Predicts For Expresses.

LOOKS FOR IT IN NEAR FUTURE

J. D. Brown, Assistant General Passenger Agent of the Erie, Believes Vaudeville Performance Feasible and Says All Big Lines Will Some Day Have It.

That the passengers on the fast express trains of the big trunk lines of the United States will be entertained by vaudeville performances, etc., while being whirled across the country is believed by J. D. Brown, assistant general passenger agent of the Erie railroad, to be an innovation that will be undertaken by railroads in the near future, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. He believes that this radical departure is practical and that the road that inaugurates it will fill a long felt want and will make a decided hit with the traveling public.

"For several years," said Mr. Brown recently, "all the big lines of the country have been constantly vying with each other in equipping their fast through trains with all modern comforts and conveniences in their effort to make the journeys of their patrons as pleasant and luxurious as possible. In this respect a number of the crack fliers have about reached perfection. But in spite of all the luxury and elegance with which some of these trains are equipped the traveler is obliged to provide his own entertainment and amusement. No matter how luxurious a car may be, most passengers usually find a long journey monotonous and tedious before they reach their destination and would hail with delight any form of amusement.

"Take, for instance, the trip from Chicago to the Pacific coast. That journey takes about three days. Very few passengers can amuse themselves all that time in reading, playing cards or looking at the scenery, and they would gladly welcome any diversion to break the monotony. It would be very easy to provide a theatrical performance or concert on a train. I have seen it done, and it proved a big success.

"It was on a special train in Texas in which a party of railroad officials were making a tour of the south. One end of a private car was fitted up as a stage, and the members of the party gave a minstrel performance. What was done to amuse those officials could be just as easily done to amuse regular passengers, and the expense attached to such a project would, in my opinion, be very small in comparison to the great amount of added patronage the road would derive from such an innovation. I am sure that many a talented actor and actress would often gladly volunteer their services in exchange for transportation. I am convinced that such a plan for entertaining travelers would meet with such success that in less than six months after it was inaugurated all the big trunk lines of the country would have it."

Garcia's Singing Lesson.

Stories of Manuel Garcia, the famous centenarian musician, who died a few days ago in London, are in order, says the Buffalo Commercial. An indomitable will power gave him great ascendancy over each pupil; his science and cleverness enabled him to know at once if he had to deal with a pupil of promise or not, and unlikely aspirants were not allowed to waste his time and theirs. An acquaintance describes a typical incident: "I remember a notable case in point. A very rich woman offered the master any price if he would only teach her daughter. He refused, knowing well he could never obtain serious work from her; but, as the mother persisted, he hit upon a compromise. He asked the women to be present during a lesson, and he undertook, if the girl still wished to learn singing after hearing it taught, to teach her. The lesson began. The pupil, who seemed to the listeners an already finished singer, had to repeat passage after passage of the most difficult exercises before the master was satisfied; he insisted upon the minutest attention to every detail of execution. Mother and daughter exchanged horrified glances and looked on pityingly. The lesson finished, the master bowed the women out, and, in passing the pupil, the young girl whispered to her, 'It would kill me!' Senor Garcia, returning from the door, said contentedly: 'They will not come again. Thank you, mon enfant; you sang well.'"

The New Naval Ration.

In the last naval appropriation bill provision was made for a change in the naval ration, and the bureau of supplies and accounts has prepared a ration in accordance with the legislation, says a Washington dispatch. It is now asserted that the United States navy has a better ration than any army or navy in the world. The advantages of the present ration are that it is more flexible and makes it unnecessary to issue commutations to sailors in place of a regular ration. Added to the former ration are preserved and fresh fruits, fresh milk, flavoring extracts, fresh fish and sauce. The amount of tinned vegetables has been increased, while a decrease has been made in macaroni, pickles, rice and sirup.

Horace appears in good humor while he censures, and therefore his censure has the more weight as supposed to proceed from judgment, not from passion.—Young.

THE BAY LEAF.

Famous For More Than Its Use For Culinary Purposes.

"Two-thirds of modern recipes seem to call for 'a bay leaf,'" said a young housekeeper the other day, "and somehow it is always the one thing in the whole formula that a housekeeper will omit. One never has a bay leaf, probably for the reason that they are so elusive. Other necessaries confront you on market stalls and shop counters, but the bay leaf rarely does.

"When I finally obtained mine (a small glass jar of them) a short time ago I had not the faintest idea of a connection between the little withered looking things in the glass and the laurel leaves of the poets. To my surprise I now find that they are one and the same. I believe most sister housekeepers would be amazed to find that when they send a bay leaf fluttering into the pot of soup or stew they are really consigning to it the historic 'bays' which wreath the brows of Homer and the bard of Avon. The scientific name is Laurus nobilis, and it belongs, according to my encyclopedia, to the laurel family, which includes the familiar sassafras. It is the 'green bay tree,' to which the wicked man is likened in the Scripture.

"My delvings into this subject have revealed amid much laurel lore the fact that Bacon and other celebrities appreciated (gastronomically) its spicy flavor."—New York Press.

LOVE OF HOME.

An Instinct That Is Remarkably Strong In the Horse.

The strongest instinct in the horse is that of home—all his thoughts and interests lie there—and the most wearing pain he suffers is that of nostalgia—the longing for the familiar stall and the well loved surroundings. What wonder that our pets almost invariably return to us from such unhappy experiences mere shadows of their former selves and in such wretched bodily condition that it is months before they regain their usual health and spirits. We blame the man in charge, poor feed, bad stabling, insufficient pasturage, etc., and overlook entirely the fact that it is our own fault and the direct result of heart hunger which no grass, grain or rooftree could entirely assuage. Of course the little used muscles have, from lack of exercise, shrunk and lost their firmness and plumpness; the crest has fallen from the same cause; "poverty lines" appear in the quarters and shoulders; the tail and mane are all out of shape or all worn away; the feet stubbed off; the coat dingy and sunburnt; the skin full of all manner of scars, cuts and abrasions; all these are the effect, not the cause, of the lack of bodily condition which is two-thirds due sheerly and solely, in the high bred, nervous, sensitive horse, to simple homesickness.—Exchange.

POOR LITTLE PENGUINS.

Many Are Nursed to Death by the Adult Birds.

An antarctic explorer writes: "I think the penguin chicks hate their parents, and when one watches the proceedings in a rookery it strikes one as not surprising. In the first place, there is about one chick to ten or twelve adults, and each adult has an overpowering desire to sit on something. Both males and females want to nurse, and the result is that when a chicken finds himself alone there is a rush on the part of a dozen unemployed to seize him.

"Naturally he runs away and dodges here and there till a huge 'emperor' falls on him, and then begins a regular football scrimmage, in which each tries to hustle the other off, and the end is too often disastrous to the chick. Sometimes he falls in a crack in the ice and stays there, to be frozen, while the parents squabble at the top.

"Sometimes, rather than be nursed, I have seen him crawl in under an ice ledge and remain there, where the old ones could not reach him. I think it is not an exaggeration to say that of the 77 per cent that die no less than half are killed by kindness."

"Red as a Sapphire."

To say that a young girl's eyes are as blue as sapphires is as absurd as it would be to say that her mouth is as red as velvet. Sapphires, no more than velvet, are exclusively one color. The sapphires of Ceylon run from a soft blue to a peacock blue, which last is practically a green. There is also a red sapphire, sometimes called a Ceylonese ruby, a stone as precious as a Burma ruby. Besides blue, green and red sapphires, many fine ones are yellow and white.

He Knew.

"Did you never," asked Miss Solefool earnestly—"did you never meet a person whose very presence filled you with unutterable feelings—whose lightest touch seemed to thrill every fiber in your being?"

"Oh, yes," responded Mr. Oldbatch; "you mean the dentist."—Cleveland Leader.

A Bowing Acquaintance.

Two young men met a woman and one of them raised his hat immediately. "Who was that, Charlie?" asked one of them. "I don't know," was the reply. "Don't know! You must know, for you raised your hat to her." "Yes, but, you see, I'm wearing my brother's hat, and he knows her!"—London News.

Unmatched.

Brooks—My dear fellow, you need not thank me so profusely for a mere box of cigars. Rivers—Oh, but you gave me a box of matches with them, you remember, and they were the best matches I ever used.—Tit-Bits.

Work is not hard; it is the eyes that are afraid of it.

Eight-Hour Day On Public Work

One of the Acts of the Legislatrue of 1906, which took effect on its passage was Chapter 517 to constitute eight hours a maximum day's work for public employes. Representative Hultman furnishes the Ledger with a copy which reads:

Section 1. Eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics now or hereafter employed, by or on behalf of the Commonwealth, or of any county therein, or of any city or town which has accepted the provisions of section twenty of chapter one hundred and six of the Revised Laws; but in cases where a Saturday half-holiday is given the hours of labor upon the other working days of the week may be increased sufficiently to make a total of forty-eight hours for the week's work.

Section 2. Every contract, excluding contracts for the purchase of material or supplies, to which the Commonwealth, or of any county therein, or of any city or town which has accepted the provisions of section twenty of chapter one hundred and six of the Revised Laws is a party which may involve the employment of laborers, workmen or mechanics shall contain a stipulation that no laborer, workman or mechanic in the employ of the contractor, sub-contractor or other person doing or contracting to do the whole or a part of the work contemplated by the contract shall be required to work more than eight hours in any one calendar day.

Section 3. This act shall apply to all laborers, workmen or mechanics engaged upon any works which are or are intended to be the property of the Commonwealth, or any county therein, or of any city or town which has accepted the provisions of section twenty of chapter one hundred and six of the Revised Laws, whether such laborers, workmen or mechanics are employed by public authority or by a contractor or other private person.

Section 4. Any agent or official of the Commonwealth of any county, city or town who violates any provision of this act shall be subject to a penalty of fifty dollars for each offence.

Section 5. The provisions of this act shall not apply to or effect contractors or sub-contractors for work, contracts for which were entered into prior to the passage of this act.

Section 6. So much of any act as inconsistent herewith is hereby repealed.

Rise in Bread Due to Strike

There was a sudden rise in bread at the Quincy depot this morning, owing to a strike. The striker was the locomotive of the inward Plymouth express which flies through Quincy at 8.02. The strike was of short duration and no lives lost. It gave Officer Crooker a chance however to show how good a dodger he could be when occasion required.

A lot of express matter had arrived on an outward train a few minutes before and had been taken across the tracks to the depot platform. One of the boxes, containing a consignment of bread, was carelessly left too near the edge of the platform.

Along came the Plymouth express. There was a sharp bang as the locomotive struck the box of bread. It went against a post and bounding back was struck a second time by the engine. This time the box was smashed and loaves of bread sent flying in all directions, some of it being carried as far as the Saville street crossing.

Officer Crooker stood near the Saville end of the platform, and was kept busy dodging the flying bread. The steps of one of the cars struck another box and were torn off.

Fortunately no passengers were standing on the depot platform as some one would have been injured.

Appeal for Less Hours.

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

I would like to make an appeal to the grocers and provision dealers of Quincy in behalf of their clerks for shorter hours of labor. In view of the fact that mechanics work but eight hours per day or forty-eight hours per week, it seems hard that the employees in question should be oblighed to work an average of sixty six hours per week or eighteen hours each week more than the mechanic. The tendency of the times is toward more time for recreation and shorter hours of labor for all laboring people and why should not this apply to clerks as well as mechanics. If it is a necessity to keep the stores open later than 6 o'clock two evenings a week, why not close at 1 o'clock on Wednesday as is now done in Wollaston, or better yet, make your closing hours five o'clock instead of six. Open your hearts gentlemen and give your clerks a little time for something besides work and sleep from seven o'clock Monday morning until 10 o'clock Saturday night.

Call Firemen.

Chief Engineer A. L. Litchfield has appointed the following from the civil service list as call men in the fire department service. The men will go on duty Monday and be assigned to the Wollaston, station: John F. Metherall, William J. Sands, Edgar F. Hayden, Jr., and Herbert S. McKay.

By these appointments all the men at the Wollaston station are civil service men. Messrs. McNally and Sparrow who have been acting as substitutes at the Wollaston station will be relieved from duty Monday when the new men go on duty.

Dreyfus, Martyr and Hero

History of One of World's Greatest Wrongs Righted After Twelve Years

How the "Syndicate of Treason," Which Condemned an Innocent Man to Devil's Island and All but Wrecked the French Republic, Was Foiled at Last by Men Who Sacrificed Themselves to the Cause of Justice

THREE conditions prevailing in France in 1894 led to the accusing and condemning of Captain Alfred Dreyfus for treason in the alleged selling of military secrets to the German government, says the New York World.

The first and underlying cause was a violent agitation against Jews.

The second was the discovery that somebody was furnishing information about army plans to Colonel Schwarzkoppen, the German military attache.

The third was the personal unpopularity of Captain Dreyfus among his associates of the general staff.

These things, combined with a ready unscrupulousness on the part of certain officers to manufacture evidence to bear out their prejudiced theories, led to a concentration on the brilliant Jewish officer, his accusation, his quick trial and his deportation to a horrible imprisonment.

The mills of justice grind slowly, but they grind sure. They have taken twelve years to formally establish an innocence in which the world at large long has believed. If it is any satisfaction to the suffering man he can look back upon the wreck of administrations and aspiring politicians, the convulsion of the whole French nation in violent disturbance, the disgrace of army officers of high rank and even upon the corpses of suicides that strew the path over which his "cause celebre" has slowly dragged to final vindication.

Two Heroes In the Cause.

Alongside of Dreyfus, the martyr, have stood two heroes whose names deserve to be indelibly linked with the love of truth and justice.

One of them is Emile Zola, most noted of modern French novelists, now, alas, dead and unable to join in this final triumph. For simple love of truth he dared to take up the cause of a condemned man and defy government and army in his famous letter beginning "I accuse." For that he was sentenced to heavy fine and imprisonment and the loss of his Legion of Honor button. He fled into exile.

The other man is Colonel Picquart, who sacrificed rank in the army, favor, fortune, fought duels and suffered months of imprisonment because he dared proclaim the guilt of his brother officers in condemning an innocent man. It was he who discovered the forgeries and the crimes that convicted Dreyfus and had the courage to stand for the truth. He was cashiered in disgrace, but the rehabilitation of the chief sufferer brings about his restoration. Without the discoveries made by Colonel Picquart while chief of the intelligence bureau of the army it is doubtful whether the innocence of Dreyfus ever could have been established.

Dreyfus Degraded.

At 9 o'clock in the morning of Jan. 5, 1895, 5,000 soldiers of the French army were drawn up in the Champs de Mars on the left bank of the Seine. In the city of Paris. Between a file of men Dreyfus, in uniform and carrying a sword, was marched before General Darras. The verdict of the court martial was read. An adjutant seized the captain's sword and broke it across his knee. Then the insignia of rank were stripped from the condemned man's uniform, and the general pronounced the words of degradation.

"Viva la France!" cried Dreyfus in a loud voice. "You have degraded an innocent man. I swear I am innocent."

Around the square they marched him to parade his ignominy. His last cry was:

"Tell the whole of France that I am innocent."

For more than four years Dreyfus was buried from the world—a prisoner on Devil's island, where he managed to survive horrible hardships, solitary confinement, chains, fever and his worst fear of all, insanity.

His Life on Devil's Island.

In later years Dreyfus himself furnished the following description of his prison: "The stone hut destined for my use measured about thirteen yards square. The windows were grated. The door was of latticework, with simple iron bars. This door led to a little hallway, six feet square, entrance to which was closed by a solid wooden door. In this anteroom a guard was always on duty. By night the outer door was closed inside and out, so that every two hours at guard relief there was an infernal clatter of keys and bolts. By day I had the right to go about in a treeless space of less than half an acre. The moment I left my hut I was accompanied by the guard, who was not to lose sight of a single one of my movements. The guard was armed with a revolver. Later on there were added to this a rifle and a cartridge belt. I was forbidden to speak to any one but the chief guard."

The sufferings of an innocent man in such circumstances can scarcely be imagined. They are reflected in these passages from his diary:

"Until now I have worshiped reason. I have believed there was logic in things and events. I have believed in human justice. Anything that was irrational and extravagant found difficult entrance into my brain. Oh, what a breaking down of all my beliefs!

"Since I landed a month ago I have remained locked in my pen, with closed blinds. Several times I all but went crazy. I had congestion of the brain.

"And then I have never any news of my wife and children. Yet I know that since the 29th of March, nearly three weeks ago, there have been letters for me at Cayenne. I have had them telegraph to Cayenne and to France for news of my dear ones. There is no answer.

"My days are interminable, every minute of every hour a long drawn out weariness. I am incapable of any considerable physical exertion. Moreover, from 10 in the morning until 3 in the evening the heat makes it impossible for me to go out. I cannot work at my English all day long—my brain will not stand it—and I have nothing to read.

"These sleepless nights are fearful. I manage to get through the days because I am occupied with the thousand and one details of material life."

In 1899 the steadily working forces of truth and justice began to establish his innocence.

In all European countries, especially in bitterly hostile France and Germany, it was the custom for the diplomatic embassies to spy out as many military secrets as could be by bribes, stealing and lying. Each military attache had a retinue of sneaking hirelings to obtain plans of fortresses, new arms and mobilization. In 1894 the German attache in Paris was Colonel Schwarzkoppen. He was buying information, although ambassadors were mutually pledged to do nothing of this kind. The intelligence office of the French army was keeping watch on the German embassy to discover its sources of information.

The Famous "Bordereau."

Mme. Bastien, a scrubwoman in the embassy, was under pay of the intelligence office to save all scraps of paper, which were pieced together by Major Henry. One day in the summer of 1894 she turned in a piece of paper which afterward became known as the famous "bordereau." It was alleged to have been found in Colonel Schwarzkoppen's wastebasket and read:

"Being without information as to whether you desire to see me, I send you nevertheless, monsieur, some interesting information, viz:

"A note concerning the hydraulic brake of the 120 and the way the gun is managed. A note upon the troupes de couverture; some modifications will be carried out according to the new plan. A note concerning a modification in the formations of artillery. A note relative to Madagascar. The proposed manuel de tir of the field artillery.

"This document is exceedingly difficult to get hold of, and I can only have it at my disposal for a few days. The minister of war has distributed a certain number of copies among the troops, and the corps are held responsible for them. Each officer holding a copy is required to return it after the maneuvers.

"Therefore if you will glean from it whatever interests you and let me have it again as soon as possible I will manage to obtain possession of it, unless you would prefer that I have it copied in extenso and send you the copy. I am just starting for the maneuvers."

Searching For Author of Letter.

General Mercier, minister of war; General Boisdeffre, chief of the general staff; Colonel Sandherr, head of the intelligence department; Major Henry, his assistant, and other high officers began a search to discover the author of this treasonable letter. They compared many handwritings and finally suspicion pointed to Dreyfus, merely because some of the writing resembled his style.

Dreyfus was not a dashing army officer. He was more the brilliant student. He was a Jew. He spoke with a German accent. He had a haughty demeanor and associated little with his military companions. He was keen, studious, exceedingly retentive in memory, a tremendous worker and exceedingly precise. More than this, he was wealthy and rather too self confident.

There was absolutely no other evidence against Dreyfus than this similarity in handwriting; but, blinded by prejudice, all the chiefs, from Mercier down, were ready to pronounce him guilty immediately. More than this, the unscrupulous Henry was ready to secretly forge additional documents whenever needed in emergency, and his associate with the comic opera name of Major Du Paty de Clam joined in schemes of inquisition.

It was Paty de Clam who arrested Dreyfus after getting him to write sample letters through a subterfuge. It was Paty de Clam who conducted the searches of papers and formulated the evidence for the trial. He secured the noted criminologist and expert Bertillon to make comparisons of handwriting and decide that Dreyfus wrote the original bordereau. But all the scientific knowledge of the great Bertillon and his handwriting tests in this case are now thrown into the dust by the revelations of simple truth.

It cannot be said that there was a preconceived conspiracy to entrap and convict Dreyfus. But when the suspicion against him arose the men in the army staff who disliked him were only too ready to condemn him.

Wave of Anti-Semitism.

The wave of anti-Semitism then agitating France helped pile prejudice upon his head. The army chiefs were overjoyed that the traitor in their midst had been "caught." Many of the Paris newspapers shrieked for vengeance. The victim's conviction was a foregone conclusion. His family tried hard to save him and Dreyfus valiantly maintained his innocence, but to no purpose. The secret court martial, on Dec. 29, 1894, condemned him for life to Devil's isle.

The German embassy was in an embarrassing position. It knew that Dreyfus was not the officer with whom dealings were had, but, being guilty of seeking secret information, it could say nothing. The most that could be done was to publish semi-official notes in newspapers that Germany had taken no part in the affair. On the other hand, the French army officers could not proclaim their source of information, for that would reveal how the torn scraps of paper were stolen from the embassy. So to Devil's isle, off the coast of South America, poor Dreyfus was sent, and there he suffered tortures designed to quickly end his life. In the meantime in France truth, though crushed to earth, was rising again.

The Dreyfus family began systematic work in establishing the convict's innocence. His brother, Mathew Dreyfus, spared neither time nor money in the great undertaking. It was slow and disappointing at first. Everything was hidden in the secret archives of the war department. The campaign began with the rousing of public opinion, and within a year France began to be torn by bitter controversy that embroiled the government itself.

In 1896 a new man was at the head of the intelligence office in the person of Lieutenant Colonel Picquart, one of the youngest and most brilliant men in the army. One day the same Mme. Bastien, scrubwoman at the German embassy, sent in some scraps of paper which, pieced out, proved to be a letter addressed to Major Esterhazy. It was in the handwriting of Colonel Schwarzkoppen, but evidently had been torn up and another sent in its stead.

New Traitor Revealed.

Instantly there was revealed a new traitor in the French army camp. Esterhazy was a dissolute officer, spending most of his time in Paris instead of at his post in Rouen. The captured letter became known as the "petit bleu," being written on the blue stamped paper of the postoffice for immediate delivery. At first Picquart did not connect Esterhazy with the Dreyfus affair, but one day, securing some of the major's handwriting, he was struck with the similarity between it and the writing on the "bordereau" on which Dreyfus was accused. The more he investigated the more he became convinced that Esterhazy was the traitor and Dreyfus the innocent man.

He examined the "dossier," or envelope, containing the documents supposed to incriminate the captain. One of them was a letter of Schwarzkoppen referring to "that scoundrel D." The army clique had asserted that D. stood for Dreyfus. Picquart found that D. stood for Dubois, a poor scribbler, who was not in the army. This and the "bordereau," now believed to have been written by Esterhazy, were its only contents.

But when Picquart innocently communicated his discovery to his superior officers, many of them the same who had brought about the condemnation of Dreyfus, he met with little encouragement. The clique determined to stand together. It was decided that Picquart must be sidetracked. He was sent off to Tunis, whence few officers return. It would never do to have the army exposed.

Henry's Forgery.

In his absence Henry forged a letter purporting to be written by the Italian military attache to the German attache and found in the same old wastebasket. It read as follows:

"I have just read that a deputy is going to ask several questions on the Dreyfus affair. If they request any new explanations at Rome, I shall say I never had any dealings with this Jew. That is understood. If they question you, make the same reply, for nobody must ever know what has happened to him."

This was to strengthen the army case against the prisoner in view of the rising tide of public indignation and the demands in the chamber of deputies for investigation.

From the summer of 1897 onward France was torn by discussion of the Dreyfus affair. It became involved in political maneuvers and in court proceedings. Picquart accused Esterhazy. The latter was tried and acquitted. Picquart was disgraced and imprisoned by the army clique.

Zola Writes Letter of Accusation.

Things began to look dark for the cause of justice, when Zola suddenly launched his public letter of accusation, declaring Dreyfus wrongfully convicted and Esterhazy acquitted to screen the wrong. France blazed with agitation. Zola was tried and condemned to one year's imprisonment and fined 30,000 francs ($6,000) for slander. He fled to England, but the Dreyfus cause was revived.

In August, 1898, another conscientious army officer, Major Cuignet, discovered by comparison of documents that the alleged letter from the Italian military attache to the German attache was evidently a forgery.

Major Henry was called before officers of the war department and questioned. He admitted the truth and sought sympathy from the generals who had formerly accepted the letter without question. But public sentiment was beginning to make itself felt. The generals sat rigidly silent. Henry was ordered to prison. The following day he cut his throat with a razor. That was the turning point. It was only a question of time when the agitation in favor of Dreyfus would succeed in bringing about a new trial.

In 1899 the courts ordered the prisoner brought back to France for retrial. The session began at Rennes in August before a court of seven officers, presided over by Colonel Jouaust.

The prisoner, like one raised from the dead, made a dazed, unfavorable appearance. Labori, his lawyer, made a brilliant case and won great fame.

Dreyfus was free, but not rehabilitated. He refused to accept the judgment as final. He must have complete vindication and be restored to the same plane of innocence on which he stood before the accusation of 1894.

In the Theatrical Market.

There is a great scarcity of plays nowadays that are suitable for actresses who, to put it mildly, are no longer in the first flush of their youth, says Vanity Fair. "What we want," said a woman the other day, "is a part for ladies whose hearts are still young, but whose waists are verging on thirty-two."

Old Coughs New coughs are bad enough. Old coughs are worse, much worse. They always make one think of bronchitis, consumption. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral quickly cures new coughs. And it cures old ones, too. The next time you see your doctor, ask him why this medicine so promptly relieves coughs.

Rules For Great Auto Contest

Vanderbilt Cup Race to Be Held Oct. 6 on a Course Near New York About Two Hundred and Fifty Miles Long---The Conditions.

Entry blanks have been issued for the Vanderbilt cup auto race, which will take place on Saturday, Oct. 6, over a course near New York city, to be named later, of not less than 250 or more than 300 miles. There will also be a preliminary race for the selection of an American team over a 250 mile course on Sept. 22, and the first five cars to finish are to be selected to represent the United States in the big race. The full conditions which are to govern the third annual competition for the Vanderbilt cup are as follows:

Eligibility.—Competition for this cup shall be open only to clubs that are recognized by or affiliated with the American Automobile association and to clubs recognized by or affiliated with the Automobile Club of France, the Automobile Club of Germany, the Italian Automobile clubs and the A. C. G. B. I.

Members of such clubs must apply to their clubs for nomination. American owners of foreign cars must be members of and make their entries through the recognized club of the country in which their cars are manufactured.

Qualification.—The attached entry blank must be properly filled out and signed, the entrant agreeing to assume all expense incidental to his participation and all liability for criminal or civil suits for damages caused by him.

The entry must be accompanied by the entry fee of $1,000.

The car entered must not weigh more than 2,204 pounds nor less than 881 pounds and must have a seating capacity for two passengers, whose weight must be at least 132 pounds each.

Furthermore, the car must come within the meaning of rule 19 of the A. A. A. racing rules, which read as follows: "An automobile, motor car or car within the meaning or these rules is a four wheeled vehicle propelled by self contained mechanical means and provided with two brakes, each operated independently of the other, and a motor driven reverse gear."

W. K. VANDERBILT, JR., DONOR OF CUP.

The car in each and every one of its parts and equipment must be entirely constructed in the country of the club which it represents.

Elimination.—Not more than five cars shall represent any one country.

In event of there being more than five entries from a foreign country the club representing such country shall select the five cars to compete.

In event of there being more than five entries from the United States the racing board of the American Automobile association shall decide by a trial race of at least 250 miles, to be held Sept. 22, 1906, which of the entries shall compete in the cup race. This trial race shall be limited to the first twenty-five cars entered to represent the United States, and the first five cars to finish shall be selected.

Competition.—The date of the race shall be Oct. 6, 1906.

The course, which shall be announced at least thirty days before the race, will be over a regular highway or an automobile speedway.

The distance shall not be less than 250 miles nor more than 300 miles.

The rules governing the race shall be the racing rules of the American Automobile association and any additional rules adopted by the Vanderbilt cup commission for 1906.

Information.—After the closing of the entry list all entrants will be notified regarding the date and detail of any elimination trials. Prior to the race full instructions will be given to each entrant as to weighing in, practice hours on the course and other details of the race.

In the entry blank which all contestants are required to sign are the following additional requirements:

(a) Name of the club through whom the challenge comes from.

(b) That we will be governed by the racing rules of the American Automobile association and any additional rules adopted by the Vanderbilt cup commission for 1906.

(c) That we will assume all expense incidental to our participation and all liability for criminal and civil suits for damages caused by us.

(d) That our car, as declared for entry, will not weigh more than 2,204 pounds in an empty condition (without gasoline, oil and water) nor less than 881 pounds.

(e) That our car in each and every one of its parts and its equipment will be entirely constructed in the country of the club which it will represent.

Belt Remembered South Africa

London, July 21.—Owing to premature statements regarding the will of the late Alfred Beit, the executors of Beit's estate last evening gave out the exact terms of the public bequests, without, however, disclosing the amount of the fortune left. The sums enumerated make the vast total of $9,675,000, not including the value of the estate bequeathed to his native city of Hamburg or the art treasures bestowed on the national gallery and the museums of Berlin and Hamburg. A body of trustees gets control of $6,000,000 to be used in the development of South Africa.

Engine Dropped Into Pit

Boston, July 21.—A leaking throttle on engine 176 of the Boston and Maine railroad caused the locomotive to start off by itself, running for a considerable distance until it was wrecked in the pit of a turntable directly in front of a roundhouse. The use of the turntable and the 13 engines in the roundhouse was prevented until the engine was removed, eight hours later.

Faith In Packers' Honesty

Chicago, July 21.—At a meeting here of the National Livestock Exchange it was decided to stand by the packers and make every effort to prove that the packers' meat is all the manufacturers claim. J. C. Swift of Kansas City was elected president of the exchange for the ensuing year.

La Province Makes New Record

New York, July 21.—Steamer La Provence, which arrived last night from Havre, established a new record from that port to New York by making the voyage in six days, three hours and ten minutes. La Provence came over the southerly course, a distance of 3155 miles.

Wiping Out Barons

Riga, July 21.—Baron Kampinhausen, a wealthy landowner residing near Volmar, was killed by unknown men while inspecting his fields. He is the second Baron Kampinhausen that has fallen a victim to revolutionists this year.

Greatly Increased In Value

Albany, July 21.—My Star, the pacer which has won large sums in prizes in races the past few days, has been sold by C. J. Reardon of Glens Falls to J. A. Crabtree of Boston for $2300. Reardon purchased the horse last winter for $300.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Mrs. Joseph H. Corcoran, 65 years old, was struck and instantly killed at the Chatham street crossing, Lynn, Mass., by an express train. She attempted to cross the tracks after the gate had been lowered.

How Joan Took the Country

By BELLE MANIATES

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment

When Joan Williams, who had taken first prize in the school of photography, and her friend, Lucile King, stepped from the platform of the little station near the farm where they intended to spend the summer, they at first saw no one waiting for them.

Joan's quickly moving eyes covered the whole scene in appreciation. The colliding and jostling of incoming and outgoing passengers, the frantic haste of belated travelers contrasting with the exasperating leisure of the ticket agent, the jogging pace of the man behind the baggage truck, the vociferous voiced driver of the bus, besieging passengers to ride to the Pullet House; the passive mienedriver of the one shabby hack, formed a series of most realistic pictures which made Joan touch the button many times.

A peculiarly fashioned horse attached to a two seated democrat now drove up. Joan was somewhat in doubt at first as to the genuineness of the animal, which seemed to her to have a homemade aspect. The driver was gazing into space, with no manifest interest in the arrival of the train.

Again she touched the button, while Lucile, who had spent the summers of two years in this vicinity, went quickly up to the newcomer.

"Why, how do you do, Mr. Bates? This is my friend, Miss Williams."

The girls occupied the back seat of the vehicle. Mr. Bates uttered a mild "Geed-ap!" and the horse made a forward movement, tearing away in clumsy gallop across the long bridge, at the end of which he settled down into a nippy little gait.

"Old Hundred didn't omit his usual bridge sprint," observed Lucile.

"Old Hundred! He doesn't deserve such a cognomen," observed Joan.

"You will think so. He hasn't settled down into his snailiest pace yet."

"Geed-ap!" reiterated Mr. Bates, roused to effort by this insinuation and smartly slapping the reins across the steed's ample back.

"He doesn't 'geed-ap' very fast," commented Joan.

"Do you earn your own living, too?" asked the old man, turning to her quickly.

"I hope to," she replied modestly. "I take pictures. I expect to take your whole country."

"I hope it brings you more than writing poetry," he said, with a glance at Lucile. "The Hedgeton Gazette only pays for it in subscriptions and trade."

Joan gave an ecstatic laugh.

"But Lucile writes for big magazines. She is paid by the word."

"You don't tell me! She must be awful rich."

"But sometimes I sit for hours and can't think of a word," confessed Lucile.

"Words are plenty enough," he declared scornfully. "You can get them out of a dictionary."

"I never thought of that," she replied naively.

At nearly every farmhouse en route Mr. Bates "whoaed" to deliver purchases. Now it was the farmer's wife who came out to the wagon and again it was a bashful boy or a giggling girl. In every instance Joan's camera was active.

The last commission was not delivered at house or in person. Mr. Bates stopped in front of a barn near the roadside and there deposited a suspicious looking package. Farther on they met a farmer who looked at them inquiringly.

"Put it in the barn, Fred," said Mr. Bates significantly.

"All right." Bestowing a knowing wink upon his purchasing agent, Fred hastened forward.

"How are the Locke girls?" asked Lucile. "And do you all help them as much as you did?"

Mr. Bates then related a pathetic story of the misfortunes of the Locke "girls," who had lived together for seventy odd years in the little tumble down house with its sparse garden patch. The mortgage had been foreclosed. Roxy's sight had failed her, and she was unable to do the "piecing" and quilting by which they had helped eke out their living.

The poorhouse was looming up in their horoscope, though the neighbors were preparing to give a harvest ball and bestow the proceeds therefrom to the averting of this calamity.

By the time this narrative was finished they had reached the farmhouse of the Bates household, and Mrs. Bates came out to greet the "city folks," who were shown to their "bedroom off the sitting room."

"The live stock seem to be making a grand entrance," said Joan presently, parting the curtain. "Through the hole in the screen door some chickens are entering. On the stairs are a multitude of cats, and a stray sheep—I think it is a sheep—bleats on the back steps. Mrs. Bates is sending the dog for the cows. Will he bring them into the house?"

Her thought was still of a menagerie when she awoke the next morning, conscious of a slight motion of the house, accompanied by a most peculiar sound. She awoke Lucile, who sat up to listen.

"It's an earthquake!" asserted Joan. "Unless the house is portable. I should not be surprised if we were all en route to the barn to do the chores."

"Mrs. Bates!" called Lucile. "What ails the house?"

Mrs. Bates answered the summons.

"The house isn't boarded up, you know, and the hogs go under it when they get out of their pens. They scratch their backs on the floor, and it rocks the house a little, but it's safe."

"Lucile," said Joan gravely when their hostess had returned to the kitchen precincts, "I had thought of naming this delightful place Noah's Ark, but now I think the Hogs' Back will be more appropriate."

At breakfast Mrs. Bates gave more particulars of the disasters that had attacked the Locke household and asked to enlist their help in the forthcoming ball. Joan appeared abstracted and offered no suggestions. Lucile proposed a fair in connection with the dance and began to ply her needle in the fashioning of sofa pillows.

The next few days were devoted by Joan to long solitary rambles, in which she always carried her camera.

"I think I have took the whole country," she announced one day. "I am going to send the plates to the city for development, as I haven't the facilities here."

The day before that set for the fair and dance a huge express package was brought to Joan, but she refused to show the contents to any one.

On the momentous evening she went to the big barn where the dance was to be held an hour in advance of the time set. When the Bates household arrived they saw her seated demurely at a table surrounded by a group of eager, chattering folks. An artistically lettered sign read:

"Would you see yourself as others see you? Come and find yourself! If not here, faces made to order at future date."

Lucile and the Bates family hastened to the table, which was covered with photographs of all styles and sizes, snapshots of the country folks in and about Hedgeton caught in unpremeditated poses—Farmer Lange hooking up the team, Mrs. Lapps feeding chickens, Bessie Graves churning, Jed Strackhorn milking, the little Blatchfords going blackberrying, Lane's Carlo bringing home the cows, etc. No one was overlooked.

Also there were pictures of home, barns, cattle, the church, the cemetery, schoolhouse, sawmill and many old landmarks, all on sale, not to mention pictures of the Locke girls.

The news spread, and every newcomer hastened up to see if his likeness was there. Ardent swains secured pictures long denied them by coy damsels. At the close of the evening her hand bag was well filled with coin.

"This," she said, extending the money to Mrs. Bates, "is my contribution toward the Locke estate."

As she suspected, she was besieged for many days by people from miles around who heard they had been "took." If by chance one had been overlooked, the omission was remedied.

"I think," remarked Joan meditatively as she looked a last farewell from the car window on her return to the city, "that the country and I are now on intimate terms, and with the sale of pictures and proceeds of the dance, not to mention contributions from the neighbors, I can see at least two years of prosperity for the Locke girls."

The Farmer's Individualism.

Farming is virtually the only great series of occupations that is unorganized, unsyndicated, unmonopolized, uncontrolled, except as it is dominated by natural laws of commerce and the arbitrary limitations imposed by organization in other business. In a time of extreme organization and subordination of the individual the farmer still retains his traditional individualism and economic separateness. His entire scheme of life rests on intrinsic earning by means of his own efforts. The scheme in most other businesses is to make profits, and these profits are often nonintrinsic and fictitious, as, for example, in the habit of gambling in stocks, in which the speculator by mere shrewdness turns over his money to advantage, but earns nothing in the process and contributes nothing to civilization in the effort. If the farmer steps outside his own realm he is met on one side by organized capital and on the other by organized labor. He is confronted by fixed earnings. What he himself secures is a remainder left at the end of a year's business.—Century.

The Alps Will Be Washed Away.

The Alps, from a geological point of view, are very recent. The Welsh hills, though, comparatively speaking, insignificant, are far more ancient. They had been mountains for ages and ages before the materials which now compose the Rigi or the Pilatus were deposited. Indeed, we may say that it is because they are so old that they have been so much worn down. The Alps themselves are crumbling and being washed away, and if no fresh elevation takes place the time will come when they will be no loftier than Snowdon or Helvellyn. They have already undergone enormous denudation, and it has been shown that from the summit of Mont Blanc some 10,000 or 12,000 feet of strata have been already removed. Denudation began as soon as the land rose above the sea and the main river valleys were excavated.—Pearson's Weekly.

What It Cost.

In a little town in England not long ago the entire family had been at church and the young minister was coming home to dine with them. While at dinner they were discussing the new stained glass window a member had given. "It is a most beautiful piece of workmanship," said one, "and must have cost a great deal of money." "Do you have any idea how much?" "I really do not," replied the minister, "but far into the hundreds, I should imagine." "No, it didn't," said little Harold. "I know how much it was. It cost 14s. 10d." "Why, Harold, how do you know anything about it?" "Because, mamma, it says at the bottom of the window, 'Job 14, 10.'"

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the new experiment now being tried by distinguished scientists. Some 30,000 parasites of various species, bred in the State labratory, have been turned out into the open to pursue the gypsy and browntail moth and exterminate them. Every other means of annihilation has been tried, and millions of dollars expended, so the venture is being watched with lively interest by the general public.

During these pleasant summer days, when trolley trips are so much in vogue and the open cars well patronized, it would seem that the citizens of Qnincy should feel quite safe with such an efficient force of motormen and conductors as we have on the local cars. Though great crowds are handled, especially on Sunday, accidents are very rare, and the officials are uniformly good natured and courteous.

The recklessness and selfishness of automobile drivers was again illustrated this morning in City square, when a handsome large dog was run over. A lady in a buggy by the roadside barely escaped the same fate, the buggy wheels just clearing. Nothing disturbed the auto driver who kept on in his reckless course which was much faster than the law allows.

Mr. Cleveland will be in the West on a fishing trip when Mr. Bryan arrives in New York. Heretofore Mr. Bryan has been handicapped because so many democrats put off their summer fishing until election day.

In Vincennes, Ind., rival ice companies are at war and almost giving ice away. That is a game of freeze-out that the consumer can appreciate just now.

If it be true that the Japanese keep the Emperior of Korea prisoner in his own palace, he is in a position to sympathize with the Czar, who doesn't dare to walk abroad either.

It costs money to abolish the grade crossings. Experts say it will cost $230,000 to abolish the one at Winchester on the Boston and Maine railroad.

Doubtless what Harry Thaw feels worst, about prison life, is that he that he has to keep regular hours.

Drift of Opinion.

☞George Wright of Halifax, Nova Scotia, has undertaken to suppress profanity on the stage. Theatre-goers who stop to think about it will probably agree that profanity on the stage is quite common. There may not be a great deal of it in any one play, but there are few in which no oath is uttered. In some very polite productions profane words are introduced and the excuse is, as Mr. Wright says, that they bring a laugh. Authors are convinced apparently that people like to be a little bit shocked or to see others so. They may contend that it is their business to hold the mirror up to nature and that in depicting real characters they must put into their lines words that such characters would be likely to employ. The tendency in this direction is one that should be discouraged as far as possible, for the influence of the stage upon the manners and morals of the public should be wholesome rather than vicious, and profanity should not be promoted. The gentleman from Halifax is enlisted in a worthy case and should gain active assistance in it.—Utica Daily Press.

☞The securing of pure food and healthy conditions surrounding the production and sale of food does not depend entirely upon the laws that congress may pass, or the exercise of the authority of the federal officials, nor even upon state law and its execution. The local board of health have started upon a good work, and their example might well be followed in every city. There is as much opportunity for the contamination of food in ill-conducted stores, in improperly protected bakeshops, candy kitchens and ice cream parlors and the various places which have to do with the local supply of food and drink, as in the larger establishments of the country, and quite as many people in the city are affected by the local affairs as by those more distant. It is well that the local authorities are realizing the importance of matters that come under their jurisdiction.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞To inculcate a habit of saving is a most important matter for a young man's success in life. The commencement, however, comes a little hard, but if a few dollars are put aside, there arises a desire to add to them, until the first hundred dollars is accumulated, and with this sum there is a motive to to increase it, and then comes the desire to invest it in some business which will give the owner a start in life. This first accumulation leads one to be prudent in his expenses and go sure and safe, and carries with it a sense of ownership which is most encouraging. It also gets one out of the-hand to mouth earning and spending which so many young men indulge in, seemingly entirely oblivious to the fact that unless they make the effort to put by a few dollars, it will all go.—Gloucester Times.

The Late A. J. Richards

The Braintree Observer of today has the following sketch of the late Augustus J. Richards, who died this week:

The sudden death of Mr. A. J. Richards of Commercial street, Weymouth, on Monday evening was a shock to his family, friends and business associates. About eight o'clock he was seized with an attack of apoplexy and never rallied or regained consciousness. He was a native of Weymouth and lived during childhood and youth in East Braintree. He was over seventy years of age and in active business life, having conducted for many years the grain and coal business at the Weymouth wharves and in the city of Quincy, under the firm name of A. J. Richards & Son. He leaves a widow and three daughters to mourn his sudden death. Miss Susan C., who has been associated with her father in business for several years. Miss Annie E., who is the home maker and Mrs. Charles J. Bacon whose home is in Providence well known here as Miss Louise W. He also leaves three sisters and a brother, Miss Mary Richards, a member of the household, Mrs. Annie Prince of Yonkers, New York (now travelling in Europe,) Mrs. Susan Bates of Commercial street, Weymouth and Mr. George Richards of Essex. These will feel his loss together with a wide circle of family connections and friends.

For many years he was assessor at Union church and was a constant attendent at the morning service joining in the hymns with spirit. When the church debt was liquidated his subscription of one thousand dollars inspired others and encouraged Rev. Lucien H. Frary to enthuse the people and enable them to accomplish the undertaking.

Mr. Richards was a member of the Sons of Revolution. A trustee of the Tufts pubic library a trustee of the Weymouth savings bank, Weymouth. He was president of the Nationalbank, Weymouth before its close. He had served as commissioner on the Water board for fifteen years. In business crisis perhaps the great wharf fire was one of the most serious mishaps that befell his business career.

The death of his two sons in early manhood, after they had graduated from college and entered business life to relieve their father of some of his business cares was a sad blow to Mr. Richards and affected him deeply.

Mr. Richards travelled to California and to Washington but never cared for a European trip.

When a young man Mr. Richards married Miss Mary Clapp, a successful teacher, daughter of Mr. Joseph Clapp of Weymouth. Six children were born of this marriage. The youngest child, Arthur died in infancy. The funeral services were held at his home Commercial street, Weymouth on Thursday afternoon at 2.30. A large gathering of relatives and friends were present Rev. R. H. Cochrane of Union church officiated.

Houghs Neck.

The first annual summer dancing party of the St. Mary's C. T. A. and M. R. society was held last evening at Brown's hall, Houghs Neck. George Barry was chairman of the committee having the affair in charge. About 300 were in attendance and dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

A Welsh picnic, under the auspices of the Cymmrodorion of Boston and vicinity is being held at Houghs Neck today. They are making their headquarters on Great Hill.

Quincy Growing In Postal Receipts

Five hundred dollars more will be paid annually by Uncle Sam to the clerks of the Quincy post office; $100 additional to five men as follows: one, $600 to $700; one, $700 to $800; one, $800 to $900; one, $900 to $1000; one, $1000 to $1100.

There were promotions in 65 Presidential post offices of Massachusetts, while there was no advance in 19. The fact that there were five promotions for Quincy speaks well for the growth of the postal business and the city. Some of the Quincy clerks are now receiving very good salaries.

Bellevue Park and Montcliair.

Miss Mattie L. Dutton has accepted a position as typwriter and stenographer with the Murtfeldt Artificial Stone company of Boston. Miss Dutton was at the head of the class of five graduated this year from the new business school in Quincy.

Miss Irma Carr has been visiting Mrs. Charles Dutton of Farrington street for the last week.

Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Sutherland and son, of Columbia road, Dorchester, are "roughing it" in Bellevue Park through part of the summer.

Mr. E. F. Parlee is building a house on Tyler street, Norfolk Downs, for Mr. Maibach of East Braintree.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Florence Brown of Division street spent Sunday with Mrs. Brown's mother in Malden.

Mrs. Orr and children have returned from their visit in East Braintree.

Miss Horsman of East Somerville is visiting Mrs. E. F. Parlee of Division street.

Miss Rena Bradt of New York has been visiting her aunt Mrs. Rymarsick.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas DeLury on Wednesday evening and left a baby boy.

There is a great demand for tenements in Bellevue Park and Montclair. Three tenements have been taken this week. This leaves but one vacant house in this vicinity, and this one is not entirely finished althouth E. F. Parlee, the owner, hopes to have it completed soon and a very pretty home it is going to make.

Mr. Kessler of Pope street has let his house to Mr. Whitaker of Norfolk Downs.

Who Is Who!

Guy S. Bridge, the "Who-is-Who man," who announced that he would give prizes in the Novelty contest in the Daily Ledger of July 14, is among the missing, and has not kept his agreements, therefore the prize-winners will not be announced today nor the questions answered. If Bridge puts in an appearance the award may be made Saturday July 28.

The Sunday school of the Calvary Baptist church are holding their picnic today at Highland Park.

Quite a few Quincy people find the best way to keep cool on a hot day is by taking a long trolley ride.

Walter P. Pinel of this city will lecture to the Christadelphians of Boston at Deacon hall on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Emil Badot of Bates avenue, accompanied by his daughter Mary and his son Joseph, sailed Thursday on the steamer Cymric for Europe.

Michael Doherty, who has been in the employ of Dr. H. M. Willard for about fifteen years, died this morning after a long illness, aged 38 years. He leaves a widow and two children.

There were no successful Quincy men in the list of candidates for the bar announced this week, but Weymouth, Hyde Park and Dedham contribute to the list of 182.

The dog run over by an auto this morning has been spending the day at the Daily Ledger office. He is a handsome shepherd dog, long sandy haired and very affectionate. Has no collar but is too good a dog not to have a owner. Dr. Souther of Milton kindly looked him over and found no bones broken.

The members of the social committee of the First Presbyterian Y. P. S. C. E. held a very unique entertainment in the vestry of the church on Wednesday evening. The audience went on a "make believe" trip to New York and Buffalo on the "Empire Limited," the train leaving the vestry of the church at 7.45 sharp, and arriving at New York about ten o'clock. During the journey graphophone selections and humorous readings kept the audience in an uproar. The passengers kept the popcorn and peanut boy very busy and the dining car waiters had to "step lively." All declared that the trip to New York and Buffalo is a very pleasant experience.

Outing.

The Suburban Press Association is looking forward to a delightful excursion on Monday next to Hampton beach and from there to Canobie Lake Park in Salem, N. H., as the guests of the New Hampshire Electric Railways.

The party leave over the Boston and Maine road at 8.50 A. M., arriving at Hampton at 10.10. Special cars will be waiting there to take the party to Hampton beach, where about one hour will be spent. Leaving the beach at 11.45 over the famous mile long pile bridge, the special cars will be run to Canobie Lake Park in Salem, N. H., passing through Amesbury, Newton, Plaistow and Haverhilll, arriving at the lake at 2.15, where dinner will be served. The afternoon will be spent at the theatre and enjoying the beauties of this, the most attractive trolly park in New England.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE

Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Executor's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given that the subscriber has been duly appointed Executor of the will of late of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, deceased, testate, and has taken upon himself that trust by giving bond, as the law directs.

ADELAIDE A. WAIT,

* * *

Mr. John Ahearn, the popular station agent at Weymouth, has returned from his wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Ahearn spent a portion of their time at Cotuit on Cape Cod, enjoying the sailing and blue fishing outside the bay. The bay itself furnishes fine shallow water for salt sea bathing and the bathers are not disturbed by the sharks that abound outside, where the blue fish are thickest. Mr. and Mrs. Ahearn are at home in their new house, Broad street, Weymouth.

* * *

Mrs. James B. Pollock, who has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. Stephen Penniman, has returned to her home in New York.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Plumer who have been at the Ocean house, Swampscott, on their wedding trip spent Saturday with the former's parents at Braintree. Mr. Plumer is well-known among the Braintree young people. He is a graduate of Braintree High and Thayer academy. He has the best wishes of his many friends.

* * *

Mrs. Charles Campbell and little son Nelson, who have been visiting relatives in this city the past five weeks, returned to their home in Barre, Vt., this morning.

Among the Boston people registered at Saratoga, N. Y., we notice the name of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bowditch of East Braintree on Thursday morning. They have had the opportunity to observe the twelve battalions of Artillery U. S. A., that are encamped there, forming a fine military spectacle. Mr. and Mrs. Bowditch have been at Lake Saranac and at the Adirondacks.

McDaniels of the Norfolk Unitarian church, Dorchester, officiating. The maid of honor was Miss Dora Cate of Weymouth. Frederick Kennett of Dorchester was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Meady will make their home in Medford.

Braintree Groom New York Bride

The following article, taken from the Ithaca Daily Journal of July 11th, will prove most interesting to many of our residents.

The wedding of Miss Ida Catherine Kleppisch and Herbert Foster Plumer, of Braintree, Mass., took place at high noon today at the residence of the bride's mother, 106 Highland place. Mr. Plumer graduated from the Cornell College of Civil Engineering in 1905. He was a member of the Theta Xi fraternity and received his "C" for track athletics. He was attended by William E. Young.

The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her brother, George H. Kleppisch, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Miss Roxana Chandler. She was attired in a becoming gown of white Shantung silk, elaborately trimmed with lace. Her veil was of tulle surmounted by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of tenwyck, a small flower resembling lady's slipper, the favorite blossom of her mother. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Victoria Kleppisch, and Miss Minnie Meyers of Washington, D. C. The bridesmaids were gowned in pink and white flowered organdie, made princess fashion, and profusely trimmed with valenciennes lace. They carried bouquets of sweet peas. The bride's mother wore a robe of white embroidered batiste.

Rev. Adolph Hanser of Buffalo, N. Y., a cousin of the bride, performed the wedding ceremony. The house was prettily decorated with palms, daisies and ferns. The wedding presents, including many handsome pieces of silver and cut glass, were tastefully arranged and made a notable display. Their number and quality illustrated the popularity of the bride and groom. Among the guests were Mrs. William F. Meyers of Washington, D. C., and William E. Young of New York.

After the ceremony the guests partook of a dainty breakfast served by Alberger. At four o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Plumer left for an extended tour east. Mrs. Plumer's going away gown was of shepherd checked cloth topped by a black hat. Mr. and Mrs. Plumer will go first to Swampscott, Mass., then to Boston, whence they will embark for Baltimore and Havre de Grace, their future home. Mr. Plumer is at present engaged in building an electric railway between Baltimore and Havre de Grace.

Presence of Mind.

Mrs. de Flatte—All is over between us. I shall go back to mother at once.

Mr. de Flatte—Quite so. As you please, of course, but would you mind putting a stitch in my braces before you go?

—Dr. William H. Bickwell, born in North Weymouth in 1870 died in Evansville, Ind., suddenly last week. The interment was at Weymouth.

GREEN TURTLES EXPENSIVE.

Where They Are Caught and How They Are Brought North.

"The flesh of the green turtle often brings $50 a pound," said an oyster dealer. "This rich meat comes to us from the coral reefs of the West Indies.

"The turtles are caught in nets among the rocks. They are very carefully brought north. They are deck passengers at first, but as the weather grows cold with the ship's progress they are penned in warm rooms below—regular staterooms.

"It's a different treatment that they get, though, at the natives' hands. If a native is bringing turtles north he nails them fast to the deck by their flippers. Strange creatures that they are, they appear to suffer little under such cruel treatment.

"The calipee and calipash are respectively the flesh from the breast and the back of the green turtle, tidbits which, I have heard epicures say, are unequaled in the earth beneath, the heavens above or the waters under the earth. This meat is superlatively rich, delicate and tender.

"Live green turtle fetches wholesale from a dime to a quarter a pound. What makes the meat so expensive in the end is that out of a 140 pound fish you'll only get two pounds of calipee and one of calipash.

"Several times when there has been a tight turtle market the chefs of millionaires and of certain extravagant hotels have offered me $1 a pound for live turtles. At that rate your calipee and calipash would come to quite $50 a pound."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

LIGHTHOUSES.

The First of Them Was One of the World's Seven Wonders.

The first lighthouse of which there is any record in history was built by Ptolemy Philadelphus about 306 B. C. It was a tower on which wood fires were kept blazing at night. It was built on Pharos, a small island in the bay of Alexandria, and was one of the seven wonders of the world. It is an interesting fact that the modern French and Spanish names for lighthouse—the one being phare, the other faro—still preserve the memory of the island where the first attempt at seacoast illumination was located. The ruined tower in Dover castle, England, erected about A. D. 44, is claimed by some authorities to have been built for a lighthouse, upon which an enormous wood fire was kept burning.

The lighthouse on the southern end of the island of Conanicut, at the mouth of Narragansett bay, is said to be the oldest in the United States. The present structure is comparatively modern, but the first one was erected in 1750, and for nearly 100 years previous a watchtower, with a beacon fire, had existed at the same point.

The lighthouse bears the odd name of Beaver Tail. The southern portion of Conanicut island is shaped something like a beaver, with its tail pointing southward, and in early times it was known by that name, the two extremities being called head and tail.

Clever Rubinstein.

The Italian tenor Marconi once made a visit to Rubinstein, during which the latter's little son came tripping eagerly into the music room and said, "This is my festa, papa, and I want a present." "Very well, my son, what shall it be?" "A waltz, papa, a new waltz all for myself, and now." "What an impatient little son it is!" exclaimed the great musician. "But of course you shall have your gift. Here it is. Listen! And for you," turning to the distinguished tenor, "I will play my 'Nero.'" "It seems incredible," says Marconi, "but then and there I witnessed and heard a most remarkable phenomenon. The maestro improvised and played a charming waltz with his left hand, giving me at the same time with his right the splendid overture."

In the Pillory.

The picturesque, but most painful, punishment known as the "pillory" has long been a thing of the past in England. A man was made to stand in a frame on a platform, probably with his head and hands fastened through holes in pieces of wood that were then padlocked to keep them firm, and thus to remain at stated periods while the crowd gaped at or even pelted him. The last time known that a man was pilloried was when Peter James Bossy was punished for perjury, June 22, 1830.—London Mail.

Romance Versus Reality.

Cumback—What became of that pretty Miss Dreamer who used to declare she would never marry until a handsome knight rode into town on a fierce charger with a glittering sword by his side and claimed her for his own? Homer—Oh, after breaking into the spinster class she was married to a man who drove two chargers hitched to a milk wagon, and she did remarkably well at that.—Chicago News.

And She Went Quickly.

"Mamma has just gone across the street, ma'am," said the demure little six-year-old to the caller.

"Did she say when she'd be back?" asked the lady.

"Yes'm"—as demurely as before—"just as soon as you had gone, ma'am."

His Real Self.

"When did you first become acquainted with your husband?"

"The first time I asked him for money after we were married."—Life.

The great error is placing such an estimate on this life as if our being depended on it and we were nothing after death.—Rousseau.

BRAINTREE.

A large delegation from the Union church attended the July meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions, Norfolk and Plymouth counties, held at Duxbury, Wednesday.

Miss Louise Ann Burch of this village and Mr. James Kirkpatrick of Quincy were married Tuesday afternoon at Trinity church, Weymouth, by the rector, Rev. William Hyde.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Maria Wallace of Allen street, one of our oldest residents, is not enjoying as good health as usual. Mrs. Childs of Weymouth is with her every night at present.

Eddie Bailey of Franklin street started for Damariscotta, Maine, Thursday morning, to join Leo Brett and Herbert Parker who sailed in the Brett naphtha launch the first of the week.

Mrs. L. H. Tirrell and Miss Bessie Tirrell have returned from a most enjoyable two weeks' outing spent at Owl's Head, Maine. Mr. L. J. Tirrell and Mr. W. J. Tirrell were members of the party for a week.

Dr. F. W. Brett received a telegram Wednesday night telling of the safe arrival of his son Leo, with Herbert Parker at Damariscotta, Maine.

The flag on G. A. R. hall has been at half mast this week in token of the death of Michael Preston, a respected member of Post 87, G. A. R. The funeral was held at South Weymouth, Friday morning at ten o'clock.

Trinity Episcopal parish of Weymouth and East Braintree took their annual outing at Highland Park, Brockton, on Thursday. An electric car well filled with the children and friends of the society enjoyed the pleasure of the place with clear and beautiful, skies. They returned in high spirits.

Monatiquot lodge, Knights of Pythias will receive a visit from D. D. G. C.—Thomas Fallon, Monday evening, July 30, when he will publicly install the officials of the lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shannon and two daughters of Muskegan, Mich., were recently entertained by Mrs. B. F. Holman of Pearl street. In the days of the old paper mill, Mr. and Mrs. Shannon resided in town and their old time friends were no doubt delighted to greet them again.

The assessors are hard at work and in a week or two will be able to announce the tax rate for 1906. While the rate will be high, there is satisfaction in knowing that it will be less than that of last year. Down the tax rate.

Harry Snow, Edward Cuff and Walter Howland are spending their vacation at Billington sea, Plymouth, as has been their custom in recent years. Later their friends may join them for varied periods.

Miss Myrtle B. Chase who entered Mt. St. Mary's academy at Manchester, N. H., last October, was awarded a special prize in oratory at the ending of the June term. Miss Chase is the daughter of S. F. Chase, the druggist, and was also a former pupil of Miss Margaret Bannon at the Noah Torrey school. Her former classmates will no doubt rejoice with her in her success.

Boys must mind how they climb and navigate trees or they will fare worse than some of the brown tails. Dr. T. H. Dearing was called this week to a boy who was too heavy for some of the limbs of a pear tree, so instead of pears he got a pair of broken arms and a dislocated wrist. After a fifteen feet dive, head formost, he is the sale owner of a broken bone and dislocated wrist of the right arm and a compound, double fracture of the left arm.

Magee, Macomber & Co. of Taunton, the lowest bidders for the extension of the town watar pipes through Mayflower Park to the Holbrook line, and who were the only contestants within the appropriation of $10,000, are anxious to withdraw their bid. Iron pipe has advanced to $33 a ton and Braintree must make a larger appropriation or let the citizens of Mayflower Park go dry.

The drinking fountain at Washington Square, East Braintree was knocked over last Saturday. A loaded team from Shepherd & Blackmers Lumber firm was being watered, when the projecting timbers struck the top of the fountain and over it went prone to the ground.

The Knights and ladies of Autumna lodge entertained the imperial officers and the rallying committee from Boston, Wednesday afternoon and evening. The party consisting of about fifty people were shown the principal points of interest about town, and were especially enthusiastic about our lake at sunset.

The ladies of the Eastern Star went to Framingham on Wednesday. Eighteen ladies had a fine outing. They were transported from Boston by the Worcester trolley line. Mrs. Welcome's large estate was in fine condition for an out of door picnic or garden party. The thoughtful hostess provided coffee, fruit-punch and ices. Each lady was equipped with sandwiches. Mrs. J. F. Sheppard of East Braintree, Mrs. E. C. Richards, Miss S. A. White of Weymouth and Mrs. William Nash of South Weymouth were of the number present.

Bradford Knights of Shaw street took a company down the river, across the bay, on Saturday afternoon, in his power boat. A delightful sail, a merry company and a lunch on Raccoon Island were the salient features of the afternoon. Among those present were Mrs. E. C. Richards, Mrs. H. B. Bachelder, Mr. and Mrs. Louis W Nash, Rev. R. H. Cochrane of Weymouth and Mrs. Fox of Chelsea, secretary of the Woman's Press club.

Annual Outing Of the Grocers

The Old Colony Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Union has completed arrangements for their fourteenth annual outing, to take place Wednesday, August 1st, at Crescent Park. A special train, stopping at stations from Quincy to Whitman, will go direct to the wharf at Fall River, where the palatial steamer, "Warwick" will be in waiting. Cuff's orchestra of 10 pieces has been engaged to furnish music, and everything possible will be done for the comfort and pleasure of excursionists.

The park has been much improved since last year and many new attractions added. At 3.30 P. M. the party take the steamer for a sail the entire length of the bay through Newport harbor, turning off Castle hill for return trip to Fall River; thence by train home. So well known is this trip that no word need be said as to the beauties of the sail or the enjoyableness of the entire excursion.

The regular Crescent Park clam bake and fish dinner will be served that day, as usual. Tickets, 50 cents, to be had on the grounds. Also a good meat dinner in the cafe at the same price. The large dining hall, at the head of the steamboat landing, over-looking the water has been secured for a special dinner, tickets for which are 75 cents, to be obtained positively in advance of the committee.

Hot tea, coffee, cakes. sandwiches, ice cream, etc.. will be for sale on the boat to accommodate any who wish to carry a basket lunch and eat on the steamer.

Expressman Guilty.

Robert W. Gillespie of Chelsea was yesterday found guilty of illegally transporting liquors in Revere by Judge Bossom of the Chelsea police court. The case was continued to Monday for sentence. The prosecution of Gillespie was under the new statute which requires that expressmen carrying liquors in a no-license town ahall secure a permit to do so from the selectmen.

Michael Preston.

Michael Preston died on Tuesday, July 17, at his home on Commercial street, East Braintree, after weeks of illness. He was a veteran of the Civil war and a well known and respected citizen. His wife passed away a year or two since and his children now mourn their father's death.

The funeral at his late residence 575 Commercial street was on Friday morning at 9.30 o'clock. Solemn high mass was celebrated at the church of Sacred Heart, Weymouth, at 10 A. M. The funeral escort was a delegation of the Hibernians of which he was a member. Over the casket was draped the flag of our union which he had defended on the battlefield. Beautiful flowers were in abundance. The sons and daughters have the sympathy of a wide circle of relatives and friends in their loss.

HATCHET IS BURIED

Guatemala, Salvador and Honduras Are at Peace

SETTLED ON HIGH SEAS

United States' Good Offices Instrumental In Ending Conflict --Treaty Signed on Board the Cruiser Marblehead

San Jose, Guatemala, July 21.—A treaty of peace between Guatemala, Salvador and Honduras has been signed on board the United States cruiser Marblehead, on the high seas.

Washington, July 21.—The state department has been advised of the signing of the treaty of peace by the representatives of the belligerent republics aboard the Marblehead. A cablegram was received from William Merry, the American minister to Salvador, Costa Rica and Nicaragua, announcing that a treaty of peace had been signed on board the American warship.

In his message Merry referred to a joint message sent by himself and Leslie Combs, the American minister to Guatemala and Honduras, which message has not reached the state department. This message, it is believed, gives details as to the conclusions reached and is anxiously awaited by the officials here. The department has no advices as to the details of this treaty or the extent of the settlement of the questions.

Washington officials express great gratification that a peace pact was so promptly agreed upon. The agreement is referred to by officials here as the treaty of the Marblehead, and they expect it to go down in history by that name.

While the Washington officials are not advised of the terms of the treaty or the questions solved aboard the Marblehead, they believe that the action is sufficient to assure peace in Central America, and this they regard as the matter of first consideration.

The international or principal questions, it is understood, are yet to be solved and it is pointed out that these may be brought before a commission of the states immediately involved, or might possibly be a matter for a congress composed of representatives of all the Central American states to consider.

The Central American war, which bade fair to involve four or more republics in addition to the two originally concerned, Salvador and Guatemala, began in May with the departure of expeditions from Salvador to assist a Guatemalan revolution under the leadership of General Toledo. Engagements with varying results were fought between the insurrectionary forces and those of the government of Guatemala until Salvador formally entered the conflict. A little later a Guatemalan force entered Honduras, the result being to array that republic on the side of Salvador.

From the moment the trouble passed beyond the phase of an internal disturbance the government at Washington set about instituting measures for the re-establishment of peace. Messrs. Combs and Merry were instructed to use their best endeavors with the belligerents to bring the war to an end. At the same time David E. Thompson, American ambassador to Mexico, was instructed to make such representations to the Mexican government as might enlist its efforts for the same end. Mexico entered heartily into the project. An armistice resulted.

The representatives of the governments involved met on the cruiser Marblehead on the high seas off the coast of Guatemala July 19, the Marblehead being practically neutral territory.

Warrant Ready For Rockefeller

Findlay, O., July 21.—Sheriff Groves, who has in his possession a warrant for the arrest of John D. Rockefeller, based on the criminal information recently filed in the probate court here by County Prosecutor David, charging Rockefeller, as the alleged head of the Standard Oil company, with violation of the Valentine anti-trust law, says either he or one of his deputies will attempt to serve the warrant upon the landing of Rockefeller in New York.

Killed Himself on Wharf

Seattle, July 21.—George Simmonds, conductor of an excursion party bound for Alaskan points, committed suicide by shooting in the head while standing on the wharf just as the two steamers carrying the party had pulled away from the pier. The coroner can find no cause for the deed. Simmonds had been agent for a Boston touring company for 15 years.

Death In Automobile Wreck

Buffalo, July 21.—Walter M. Wilson, a pawnbroker, well known years ago as a promoter of athletic meets, was killed in an automobile accident and his wife and several friends were badly injured. Just what happened to the running gear of the automobile probably never will be known, as it was torn to pieces by crashing into a trolley pole.

City Destroyed by Fire

Syzran, Russia, July 21.—The fire which was started here Thursday continued through the most of yesterday until the whole of the city, with the exception of a small section near the railway station, was consumed. The conflagration has rendered 35,000 persons homeless, who also are without food.

NO ARRESTS IN SIGHT

Opinion That a Left Handed Man Killed John Streub

Great Barrington, Mass., July 21.—Friday's investigation into the murder of John Streub, whose body was found in the woods near Housatonic last Sunday, resulted in learning something of the movements of the boy on Tuesday, July 10, the day on which he is supposed to have been killed. A boy named Wilcox says that he saw young Streub in front of Barr's meat market at 8 o'clock that Tuesday morning and had asked him to go fishing. He said that Streub declined, saying that he was going to play ball near the Rising paper mills. In order to reach this field the boy would have passed within a few yards of the place where his body was found.

The police also questioned Emil Streub, the boy's father, last night. It was learned that on Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock he was at the home of Mrs. Joseph Adams and was seen on the street at 10 o'clock.

A theory advanced by the authorities is that the murder was committed by a left-handed man. They believe that the blows on the head were such as would have been inflicted by a man holding his victim by the right hand and striking with his left.

It is said that no arrest is expected, unless important developments become known, before next week.

Not Complimentary to Women

Pittsburg, July 21.—Attorney J. S. Ferguson, of counsel for Augustus Hartje in his suit for divorce, startled the spectators in the courtroom during an impassioned argument against the admission as evidence of the depositions of Clifford Hooe, the negro coachman and co-respondent in the suit, with the following words: "It doesn't do to say that this man Hooe's a negro. God knows there's many an intelligent woman who has sinned as we say this woman has sinned. I repeat many a woman high in life socially and in this community has sinned as this woman has done."

Too Many Techineal Appeals

Ithaca, N. Y., July 21.—Andrew D. White, former president of Cornell university, in an address before the Cornell summer school last night, declared the time has come when technical appeals in criminal cases should no longer be allowed by the courts. "While the number of murders is rapidly increasing," he said, "procedure against them is becoming more and more ineffective, and in the light of sundry recent cases in New York and elsewhere, is seen to be a farce."

Work of New England Artist

Washington, July 21.—A portrait of the late Secretary of State Hay has been placed in the diplomatic reception room in the state department. It is the work of Miss Ellen Emmett of Salisbury, Conn., and is a three-quarter life-size reproduction in oil colors of a photograph of Mr. Hay taken at his home. It represents a front view of him, seated in a chair. The picture is mounted in a beautiful frame.

Field's Alleged Stealings

New York, July 21.—The complaints have been served in the two suits heretofore brought by the Mutual Life Insurance company against Andrew C. Fields, its former superintendent of supplies. It is charged that Fields took from the treasury of the company during the last 10 years sums aggregating $1,746,000 by means of fraudulent bills and vouchers.

Stoessel Entitled to Gratitude

Tokio, July 21.—The report that General Stoessel has been sentenced to death has shocked the public sentiment of Japan. Military opinion conscientiously believes the verdict wrong. Facts ascertained by the besieging army at Port Arthur would not only have acquitted the general, but have gained him the gratitude of his country.

Agricultural World Prospering

New York, July 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that exceptionally encouraging reports for this time of the year are received regarding trade, industry and transportation, but there is no response in the market for securities. The best news of the past week comes from agricultural sections.

Liabilities of $100,000

New York, July 21.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Montana Zinc company of 42 Broadway. The company was incorporated in 1904 under New York laws, with a capital of $300,000, to develop the zinc country in the Butte district in Montana. The liabilities are estimated at $100,000.

Strike of Municipal Workers

Moscow, July 21.—The unemployed workmen, for whose benefit the city recently inaugurated municipal works, have struck, demanding a reduction in the hours of labor from 10 to eight hours. The aldermen voted to decrease the laborers' pay, in accordance with the reduction in the hours of work.

Elk Emblems Only For Whites

Denver, July 21.—The grand lodge of Elks authorized the expenditure of funds in a legal attempt to enjoin negro lodges from using Elk emblems.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, July 22.
Sun rises—4:26; sets—7:14.
Moon sets—8:04 a. m.
High water—11:45 a. m.; 12 p. m.

Indications favor a continuance of present warm weather during the next few days, although thunder showers will afford some relief Saturday in New England.

Advice For Students of Batting

First Select a Bat That Suits Your Build, Heavy One the Best --- Don't Fear Any Pitcher. Maintain Correct Position at Plate.

By "HOME RUN,"
Noted New York baseball authority.

The first thing that a ball player should do is to select the kind of bat which suits him best. The big, powerful men who make their bread and butter with the stick usually select a heavy bat. These men use such a heavy bat that the young boy could hardly swing it, and so it is out of the question for a youth who is not in possession of his full strength to try to bat with such an instrument.

However, it is best to use a heavy bat—as heavy as you can swing easily. Select one which you can use without spending too much of an effort.

When you advance to the plate ready to bat let this be uppermost in your mind:

"I will hit the very first ball that is pitched over the plate. I am not afraid of any pitcher."

Cling to this throughout your career, and later you will learn the modifications which will come to the man who has been in the game for several seasons. For instance, if the game is close and the opposing pitcher is wild and you are quite sure of your ability to hit the ball at a single attempt, it is better to wait as long as possible before trying for a hit.

If you show consummate coolness and make the pitcher understand that you expect to get your base on balls he is all the more likely to become wilder, especially if he has shown an inclination to be wild before.

Do not under any circumstances become excited. That is just what the pitcher is looking for, and he will certainly, if he be a tactician, send one high and close in, thinking you will "bite" at it.

MIKE DONLIN, NEW YORK NATIONALS.
[Donlin's position is a superb one to bring about good batting results.]

While you are at the plate do not disagree with the umpire.

One of the most important things a batter must learn is a correct position at the plate.

There may be a slight difference in the way in which the great batters face the pitcher, but all of them pursue the same method—that of getting the greatest force into the swing without spoiling its aim. The best way is to get as near the plate as the rules will allow. The man who stands far back from the plate brands himself as one who is afraid of being hit with a pitched ball. Then, too, if you stand far away from the plate you will not be able to hit a wide one should you be fooled into swinging at it.

If you are close you are likely to hit it on the end of your club, and if it is not a foul it is sure to be a nice short drive over first base if you are a right handed batter or a hit over third base if you are a left handed batter. These are among the most effective hits that a batter can make, for whether they go to left or to right field they are pretty sure to be far enough away from the fielders to allow you to reach second base. The highest class batters have learned under certain conditions to place their hits in these spots, and more will be said later on in regard to this.

Just now, however, you are engaged in the rudiments of batting.

Now you know that you are to take a position that will give you the greatest effectiveness. How are you to do this?

I know of no better way than for you to watch one of the great batters of the present day—Wagner, Lajoie, Collins, Mike Donlin, Freeman, Frank Chance and many others.

FISTS VS. PISTOLS

Plucky Inspector Overturns a Wagon and Wins a Fight

Boston, July 21.—The rapid discharge of revolvers in a crowded square leading to the South station scattered pedestrians in various directions where, from safe distances, they witnessed police officers getting the better of two men who were shooting in order to escape. The men with revolvers were Patrick Culhane and John Donnell, and they were wanted in connection with recent heavy larcenies of cigars.

Inspector Cronin located the suspects as they were driving by the station in a covered wagon. The officer grabbed the rear axle of the rig and overturned it, spilling the men to the ground. The occupants of the wagon drew revolvers and started to shoot. The inspector used his fists instead of a pistol. He was soon assisted by three patrolmen who approached on a run and the two men were subdued and handcuffed. No one was hit by the bullets.

Fifteen thousand cigars were recovered. There are still 10,000 cigars to be accounted for. Cronin, when he arrived with his two prisoners at police headquarters, was covered with mud, his clothes torn and his face and hands cut.

It is claimed by the police that both men arrested are bad characters and have records.

Death of General Rice

Wakefield, Mass., July 21.—Brigadier General Edmund Rice died at his home here last night of heart disease. He was 64 years old and was born at Cambridge, Mass. Rice was appointed captain of the Nineteenth Massachusetts infantry at the beginning of the Civil war. He was severely wounded at Gettysburg and was awarded a congressional medal of honor for his bravery on this occasion. During the Spanish-American war he was colonel of the Sixth Massachusetts infantry, serving in Porto Rico, and later was in command of the Twenty-Sixth regiment of United States volunteers and assigned to duty in the Philippines.

Moran Boom Takes a Fresh Start

Boston, July 21.—The boom for John B. Moran for governor on the Democratic ticket seemed to gather new strength yesterday, and once again his supporters were claiming that he would make a clean sweep of the Democratic convention. The rumor started that Thomas W. Lawson would be his running mate. Neither Moran nor Lawson would discuss this report, but it is well understood that whether Lawson goes on the ticket or not he will do all in his power to elect Moran.

Held on Unusual Charge

Boston, July 21.—Dr. Luther O. Whitman claims that Frank Fisher, aged 23, entered his office, ostensibly for treatment. Suddenly, it is claimed, the alleged patient menaced the doctor with a long knife and insisting upon the payment of a large sum of money. As a compromise Whitman agreed to hand over the sum of money to Fisher at a Boston hotel. Fisher appeared at the hotel and was arrested by a police inspector.

Young Wife Slashed by Husband

Danbury, Conn., July 21.—Pedro Gillotti last night slashed his 17-year-old wife with a knife four times. The couple had been separated for some time, Mrs. Gillotti having gone to New York, where she stayed with friends. Yesterday she was induced to return to her husband, and it was at their home in Bethel that the slashing occurred. Mrs. Gilotti may recover. Gillotti was arrested.

Jumped Rails on a Curve

Fitchburg, Mass., July 21.—As an electric car was rounding a curve at West Fitchburg at moderate speed it left the track and crashed into a trolley pole. Many of the passengers were shaken up considerably, but only three were injured seriously. All will recover. It is believed that the accident was due to the spreading of the rails.

Suicide In Providence Hotel

Providence, July 21.—David W. Rintels of Boston, salesman for a wholesale drug company, committed suicide at a hotel here. He took morphine and turned on the gas. It is said that he was prosperous and that his domestic relations were agreeable. He was 36 years old and is survived by a wife and two children.

Neglected to Pay Duty

Calais, Me., July 21.—A hundred sets of pianoforte hammers of German manufacture, valued at $1000, were seized at Washington county depot by T. J. Doyle, United States inspector of internal revenue for this district. The hammers were brought here from St. Stephen, N. B., just across the river from this city.

May Be Jail Breaker

Portland, Me., July 21.—The authorities have in custody a man who, they claim, is George A. Huston, the jail-breaker, for whom the Brunswick authorities have been searching since Tuesday. The man was arrested on a freight train.

Killed by Fall From Piazza

Providence, July 21.—A fall of 15 feet from a piazza to a concrete walk resulted fatally for James Watts, 12 years old. The child received a fractured skull, causing death less than three hours after the accident.

MURDER THEORY GROWS

Young Man Living Within Three Miles of Missing Girl's Home Under Suspicion--Her Father Thinks Girl Was Drowned

Belchertown, Mass., July 21.—A young man who resides within three miles of the home of Winzola Mabel Goodell, who disappeared two weeks ago, is being closely watched by the local police. He has now been under surveillance nearly 24 hours, but so quietly that the people of Belchertown know nothing of it.

The young man cannot leave the town without instant apprehension. He has been an eager searcher from the first, and his very eagerness aroused the suspicions of the police. Though Deputy Sheriff Barton will not say that he will arrest this man, he admitted that he is suspicious of his actions.

Every hour brings some fresh bit of evidence, making him feel the more certain that Miss Goodell was not a victim of accidental drowning.

Authorities higher up took the mystery in hand last night. District Attorney Irwin communicated by telephone with the local deputy. He told him that he had decided to take action. "I have telegraphed Chief Shaw of the state police and have asked him to send me a man," he said.

A white ribbon found in a clearing which showed signs of a struggle is still being considered as an important factor in the murder theory. That the girl was dragged to this spot and assaulted is now generally believed.

Still more mystery was added to this puzzling case by the admission by the girl's father and the police that they have no actual proof that the girl went to the pond on that fatal day, although she said that was her destination.

Great crowds from the surrounding towns visited Upper, Lower and Middle ponds yesterday. At one time a dozen carriages and several autos were lined up in the thick pine grove that skirts the bank of Upper pond, whose treacherous cold springs the father still claims holds the body of his girl, a victim of accidental drowning. Several persons took a hand at the three different ponds, and specially manufactured grappling irons were used in an effort to find some trace of the body.

Dr. E. S. Abbey, an aged clairvoyant of Belchertown, declares that within four days something will be heard from the missing girl. His prediction was received with encouragement by the Goodells, who are Spiritualists.

Inhuman Treatment of a Child

Ithaca, N. Y., July 21.—James Morris and Rosella Hallenbeck, his housekeeper, were held for a hearing on charges of violation of the penal code by endangering the life and health of Reina Hallenbeck, 7 years old. District Attorney Kent states that in addition to being tortured by being hung to beams by her arms, the child was terrified by frightful stories which her treatment made her ready to believe. It is also declared the girl was locked in a closet for several days.

Beaten and Kicked Into River

Chicago, July 21.—Albert Wegel and Adolph Adams, each of whom was driving a team, met at the foot of La Salle street and after a quarrel began to fight. During their struggles they came close to the edge of the river, where Wegel was knocked unconscious. Adams kicked him repeatedly, the last kick hurling Wegel off the dock into the stream, where he was drowned. Adams was arrested.

Forger Sent to Prison

Washington, July 21.—A sentence of five years in Moundsville (Va.) penitentiary was imposed on Joseph A. Hull, a young man with an international police record, charged with forgery. Two indictments for false pretenses and one for embezzlement against him were nolle prossed. He made a frank confession.

Republican Convention Plans

Boston, July 21.—Former Governor Bates will preside at the Massachusetts Republican convention which will be held in this city Oct. 5, and Attorney General Moody will be chairman of the committee on resolutions. This was decided upon at a meeting of the Republican state committee.

Large Nestegg In Old Age

Minneapolis, July 21.—Al Hauckenboch, an aged sign painter, has received word that he is heir to nearly $200,000. His brother, who died in Seattle several days ago, left a large fortune to be divided among four remaining brothers.

Earthquake Damage Not Heavy

Socorro, N. M., July 21.—The citizens estimate the earthquake loss here at $2000 at the outside. Since July 2 there have been more than 100 slight tremors. The damage consists of cracked walls, mostly in adobe houses.

MEAT CONDITIONS

Supplementary Report Issued by Secretary Harrington

BIG PLANTS ARE CLEAN.

Room For Improvement In Small Slaughterhouses, Sausage Factories and Canning Establishments In Bay State

Boston, July 21.—As a supplement to his recent strong report on canned meats, Dr. Charles Harrington, secretary of the state board of health, has issued a report on the slaughterhouses, packing establishments and sausage factories of Massachusetts. Under the caption "The Slaughterhouses, Packing Establishments and Sausage Factories of Massachusetts," the report says:

"The public mind has lately been much disturbed by the revelations concerning conditions which obtain in certain of the packing houses of the west, and questions have repeatedly been asked concerning the condition of the establishments within this commonwealth.

"All of the large establishments and a number of small slaughterhouses, the latter chiefly in the country districts, have been examined. The larger plants and a number of the small ones are beyond criticism. The great majority, however, of the small slaughterhouses examined in the rural districts are kept in anything but a sanitary condition."

The report discusses the more important slaughtering and packing houses, paying special attention to the hog-house, killing room, hog coolers, cutting and trimming rooms, to the sausage manufacturing, the preparation of sausage casing, the curing cellars, to the soaking and washing of hams, to the offal and rendering department, to beef salting, the preparation of pigs' feet and to oleo oil making.

The questions of ventilation and sanitation entered largely into the examination of the plants, special attention being paid to the condition of the help employed and spitting in the workrooms. Under the head of "Sausage Factories and Canning Establishments," the report says:

"The conditions obtaining in the establishments examined are, in the main, quite satisfactory, but in some instances there is much room for improvement, especially in the matter of dirty floors, promiscuous spitting and treatment of meats which fall on the floor."

In the following manner the report discusses the sausage factories and canning establishments which have decidedly objectionable conditions, and the names of which are withheld by the board, for the present at least, pending improvements:

"—— —— —— company, Boston, manufacturers of sausage and smoked hams.

"The several workrooms are fairly well lighted and ventilated. The room in which the meat is trimmed and cut is dingy. The floor is covered with sawdust, which is swept up daily; it is washed once a week.

"The meat grinding and sausage-stuffing room has lately been whitewashed. The floor is said to be washed daily, but on the day of examination it was greasy and blackened. The tubs used for holding meat are lined with galvanized iron which has become slightly raised at the junction of the bottom and sides, making thorough cleaning impossible.

"The smoking and boiling room has a floor which is partly concrete and partly wood. It is said to be washed daily, but at the time of visit was very black and dirty and, in places, also muddy. The water closet in the corner of the room ventilates directly into the room.

"Much spitting was observed throughout the plant, and it was noticed that meat which fell to the floor was thrown back into the barrel without being cleaned. The employes have a healthy appearance."

American Meats Practically Excluded

Berlin, July 21.—The government has decided to enforce new and more stringent inspection laws in the case of American packed products, beginning Sept. 15. The new regulations provide that cuts of fresh beef from abroad shall be examined to see if the glands bear tuberculosis symptoms. If they do the meat will not be admitted. Inasmuch as American refrigerated meat has the glands removed prior to shipment, the regulations will practically exclude American meat from Germany. The government will also stop the shipment of American canned meats to the troops in South Africa.

Wilson Finds Improvement

Washington, July 21.—Secretary Wilson, who returned yesterday from his tour of inspection of the packing houses of the central west, says he found conditions there steadily improving. He announces that early next week he will make public the rules that are to govern the inspection of meat and meat products under the new law. The rules, he says, will be simple, and he hopes incapable of misinterpretation.

Dreyfus For Legion of Honor

Paris, July 21.—A decree appears in the Official Journal today, nominating Major Alfred Dreyfus to the Legion of Honor.

Madden's Plan.

Noted Running Horse Breeder Is Now to Raise Trotters.

John E. Madden, whose name has been one to conjure with on the running turf for the last five years, has decided to go back to his first love—the light harness horse—and to head his stud has selected the stallion Prince Selma, 2:10¾, a son of Bow Bells.

Madden hails from Bethlehem, Pa., and from boyhood to his present age, a shade over forty, he has been fond of good horses of all sorts. His first experience as an owner and breeder was with the trotters, about two decades ago. His early turf star was Class Leader, a gray gelding that could trot around 2:20. Madden liked Class Leader and was impressed with the fact that his dam was the old time race mare Tackey, that had also produced the trotters Pilot Boy, 2:20; Naiad Queen, 2:20¼, and the stallion Pilot Medium, that was then beginning to shine as a wonderful sire of speed. Madded decided that Pilot Junior blood was the thing, but there was no chance to act on the conviction just then, writes Henry Ten Eyck White.

He went on buying trotters and racing them, possibly the best of his string being Suisun, 2:18¼. She was by Electioneer and cost a lot of money; also she raced badly at times, but Madden finally sold her and got out even. Splan and Turner did the training and driving for Madden, and from those oracles Madden, who had been an athlete in his youth, with a chip on his shoulder to run 100 yards against any amateur, began storing up ideas on how to prepare horses for high class racing.

About that time there was a lot of excitement among breeders over the Pilot Junior blood in the female line—the thing that had set Madden thinking when Class Leader was in his stable. Waterwitch, a daughter of Pilot Junior, was just then undisputed queen of brood mares. Bred to the imported thoroughbred stallion Bonnie Scotland, she produced the trotter Scotland, 2:22½, that could go two miles. Then she was sent to the trotter Mambrino Pilot, and her colt by him, Mambrino Gift, was the first stallion to trot in 2:20. Bred to Belmont, she produced Viking, which beat 2:20 with little training, and Waterloo, his brother, took a mark of 2:19¼. A third member of the family, Warder, also trotted into "the list," and as in the meantime the daughters of Waterwitch were producing speed and one of them, Wavelet, took a record of 2:24¼ breeders simply were jumping for the blood.

At this time Madden, hardly more than a boy in years, learned that one of the sons of Waterwitch, a stallion called Warlock, brother to Viking, Warder and Waterloo, had been sold several years before to an English breeder. Guarded inquiry resulted in the whereabouts of the horse being ascertained, and on the next steamer Madden started to buy the expatriated trotter, the trip being the first of the kind on record. Reaching England, he found that the American trotter was being advertised as a horse that sired colts of the best hackney type—this in a district where there were plenty of pure bred hackney stallions. But Warlock's colts were getting business for him. Following the hackney fashion, Warlock's tail had been docked, and he came back to America looking little like a trotting bred nag. Madden sold him at a fine profit right away and then began paying attention to the running horse game.

He saw there was money in it for a smart horseman with some capital, and in the quadruple capacity of owner, breeder, buyer and seller he made a wonderful success. Ballyhoo Bey, Yankee, Plaudit and other colts that he got ready to race were sold at fabulous prices to eastern millionaires.

The late Timothy O'Brien, who died on Thursday, served during the civil war in Co. D. 39th Massachusetts volunteers, enlisting in July, 1862. He was in the battle of the Wilderness when wounded. He was discharged in June 1865.

—Weymouth will observe Old-Home week July 29 to Aug. 5.

—To ascertain whether the citizens of Lowell wish another telephone system, Mayor Casey last week sent out about 3200 reply postal cards, asking opinions. One thousand replies have been received, and the vote so far stands 934 nays and 66 yeas. The Mayor will probably veto the ordinance.

SPIDERS OF CEYLON.

Their Golden Webs Will Ensnare Birds and Lizards.

Far up in the mountains of Ceylon there is a spider that spins a web like bright yellowish silk, the central net of which is five feet in diameter, while the supporting lines or guys, as they are called, measure sometimes ten or twelve feet. The spider seldom bites or stings, but should any one try to catch him bite he will, and, though not venomous, his jaws are as powerful as a bird's beak.

The bodies of these spiders are very handsomely decorated, being bright gold or scarlet underneath, while the upper part is covered with the most delicate slate colored fur.

So strong are the webs that birds the size of larks are frequently caught therein, and even the small but powerful scaly lizard falls a victim. A writer says that he has often sat and watched the yellow monster—measuring, when waiting for his prey, with his legs stretched out, fully six inches—striding across the middle of the net and noted the rapid manner in which he winds his stout threads round the unfortunate captive.

He usually throws the coils about the head until the wretched victim is first blinded and then choked. In many unfrequented dark nooks of the jungle you come across skeletons of small birds caught in these terrible snares.

ENGRAVED PICTURES.

Their Romantic Origin Dates Back to the Fifteenth Century.

The art of engraved pictures dates its romantic origin to the chamber of a Florentine goldsmith, Maso Finiguerra, in the fifteenth century, about the time that Gutenberg was struggling with his printing from movable types. Before that day pictures were drawn or painted by hand. Finiguerra was a celebrated worker in metals, and, being commissioned to make a pax of gold engraved with a coronation of the Virgin, he sought to test his design by filling in the lines with a preparation of oil and lampblack, which threw the picture into relief. By chance the face was laid face downward on a piece of damp linen, and when taken up it was discovered that the picture was printed. Sheet after sheet of damp paper was impressed by the same plate and the good news that the art of printing pictures was born spread like wildfire throughout Europe. The collection of old prints introduces Albrecht Durer, the "father of line engraving" (1471) in four brilliant impressions of "Adam and Eve," "Little Horse," "Melancholia" and "St. Gerome." "Melancholia" is a strange composition of extraordinary originality, and has been a mystery for over four centuries. This bit of yellowed paper, possibly pulled from the plate by Durer's own hands, has lost none of its fascination.—Chicago Post.

NO SENTIMENT IN SIGHS.

They Are Simply Caused by a Desire For More Breath.

The sigh, which from time immemorial and by all the poets whoever sung has been regarded as a matter of sentiment and connected with the emotions, is declared by physicians to be as purely a physical phenomenon as is the sneeze or cough. A well known Philadelphia doctor, speaking of this the other day, explained that the sigh is nature's method of making one take a deep breath. When the lungs have been getting insufficient air a sigh is the means by which they are replenished, or when the air has been impure the sigh which one often takes in stepping out into the open air is from the same cause.

The doctor admitted that people sometimes sigh from sorrow or other mental ill, but maintained that this is partly because it has been accepted as the expression of grief through ages as long as kissing and handshaking have been accepted as signs of affection or friendship. Another reason why a sigh follows a sorrowful thought is that such thoughts are often concentrated and intense enough to cause insufficient breathing. When the lungs suffer for a certain time from this insufficiency the sigh follows. Sighs are often caused, too, says the same authority, by certain sorts of indigestion. —Philadelphia Record.

An Ancient Recipe.

An ancient recipe for making a sweet perfume for the ladies runs as follows: Take storax, calamite and benjamin, of each half an ounce, laudanum one ounce, musk two grains, and put them together in a fair brass mortar, which you must first warm so hot in the fire that with the heat thereof and beating with a little pestle it may work like wax, which, being thoroughly wrought, you may make it in little cakes or balls and so lay it up.—Home Notes.

A Marine Fire Alarm.

Many ships have a pipe running from the hold to the deck. It is a precaution against fire. If even a trifling fire occurs in the hold smoke will ascend the pipe and upon issuing from the top will be noticed by some of the crew. Checking it would then be comparatively easy. In the absence of a pipe, though, a fire might begin and remain unnoticed until it assumed such proportions that conquering it would be almost impossible.

Dodged.

Rivers (stopping to sharpen his pencil)—How do you spell the plural of "dodo?" With or without the "e?" Brooks (who isn't quite sure)—You don't have to spell it. There's no such blamed bird now. It's extinct.—Chicago Tribune.

Something better always makes its appearance when the old and wornout things fail.—Andersen.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

Toby Claude, one of the most popular comedi-ennes with theatre-goers of Boston and New England generally, will be one of the leading entertainers of the Keith progam for the week of July 23. Miss Claude has been prominent in the cast of many of the big musical comedy productions that have been witnessed in Boston from time to time, and has always been a big favorite. Miss Claude is only temporarily in vaudeville, and this will be her debut to patrons of Keith's. The surrounding show contains the nam s of many newcomers and others who are known to patrons of Keith's from their successes in former years. Prominent on the list will be Zazelle, and Vernon, in their acrobatic pantomine, "The Elopement;" Jack Norworth, with his "college boy" monologue; Selbini and Grovini, acrobats, tumblers and bicycle riders. The Fadettes will have an entire new progam of selections and the usual new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinetograph.

Castle Square Theatre.

It is safe to say that Gounod's "Faust" is the best known and most popular of all grand operas. During its more than half century of existence it has been sung in every land where music is appreciated. All the great prima donnas have sung the role of wronged Marguerite, and the opera has helped to make the reputations of Melba, Emma Eames, Calve and many other gifted singers. "Faust" is to be given at the Castle Square Theatre next Monday for the seventh week of the summer opera season, and its great popularity is assurance of a continuation of the enormous audiences that have greeted the "Mikado," "Il Trovatore," "The Bohemian Girl" and the other recent productions.

Highland Park.

Opera will give way to farce comedy at Highland Park next week when the popular and effervescent comedy "The Surprise Party" will hold the boards. This is without doubt, one of the principal attractions under the management of Joseph J. Flynn, and for real enjoyable entertainment no form of amusement enjoys a wider field of activity than a really meritorious farce. Unlike the average play of this kind, "The Surprise Party" has a well defined plot and tells a tale of distress in such a way as to make the audience howl with laughter. Of all the novel ways in which the Old Colony Street Railway Co. has planned to give pleasure, the most novel scheme of all will be tried next Tuesday at Highland Park, when there will be balloon ascentions afternoon and evening by the Patnaud Brothers, who have a standing challenge to meet any other hot air balloon aeronaut in the world. The most novel part of the feature, however, comes in the afternoon, when there are special plans for the children. As the balloonists sail upwards to the clouds they will scatter in the air envelopes. Each envelope will contain a card that will be good for a present to each child that secures one of them.

Wonderland.

The popularity of Wonderland at Revere beach, and its endless chain of attractions are the wonder and admiration of all. They include that masterful, realistic spectacle, Fighting the Flames, the weird and mysterious trip to Hell Gate, the thrilling and sensational Shoot the Chutes, the marvelous Wild West and Indian Congress, the delightful and exhilarating ride on the Thompson Scenic Railway, the scientific and philanthropic Infant Incubators, Ferari's Trained Wild Animals, the Japanese Village, Circle Swing, Beautiful Orient, Ball Room and Restaurant, South Before the War, Hale's Tours, Love's Journey and Fatal Wedding, to say nothing of a score or more of minor attractions.

GREATER PARAGON PARK.

Some additional and very important new acts are promised next week at Paragon Park, in the Bostock Animal Arena of wild animals, among them being Mon. de LeRouge with his boxing Kangaroo; and Abbooh Bendam, a genuine native of India, who gives a most remarkable exhibition of Yogi snake charming. Signor Renaldo with his group of twelve ferocious African, Nubian and Barbarian lions, and Senorita Divali with her school of treacherous but beautiful leopards are continuous features among the Bostock acts. In the free open air circus the coming week, every afternoon and evening, is Will Hill, the famous comedy high wire walker, who alternately thrills and amuses the thousands who gaze at him on his lofty walk, making up his bed on his lofty perch, dancing the cake walk, riding a bicycle, running backwards, etc., on the slender wire at a height of 125 feet. Another big act in the free circus is the Baker Troupe, consisting of five remarkable cyclists, and very clever, intermingling of some quaint comedy with their skilful trick work.

August Magazines.

The August Lippincott's has made "diversion" its standard, strictly excluding anything heavy or likely to contain a sleeping potion. The result is a well rounded number of infinite variety. There is the complete novelette, "An Adventure in Arcady," by Ralph Henry Barbour, which is an ideal summer love-story. That Mr. Barbour is past-master in the art of love-making has been proven in his charming novels "Kitty of the Roses" and "An Orchard Princess." Whether this perfection has been attained through practice or is the outcome of an imaginative mind aided by an acute observatiod—is the author's secret. In bright dialogue and clever situation he also excels; while the ending never disappoints—beyond the fact that the story is finished.

An an earnest that there is to be no cessation of its campaign against child slavery, the Woman's Home Companion prints prominentlo in its August number the "Anti Child Labor Creed"—nine curt paragraphs clearly defining the faith and purpose of those who are fighting against the abuses of child labor. But that this serious purpose has not caused any neglect of entertaining features is shown by a collection of lively storie such as "The Spurs of Jealousy," by Rafael Sabatimi. "A Lover's Pilgrimage," by Richard Le Gallienne; "The Wage of Sin," by Ellis Parker Butler, and others, and also the regular features.

Smaller Tax Rate.

The city of Melrose also reports a smaller tax rate, $17.80 this year and $18.00 last year. The total valuation is $15,477,880, a gain of $52,600 in real and $95,585 in personal.

Willard Master

G. S. Webster Of East Milton Passes Away Suddenly

Granville S. Webster of East Milton, who was principal of the Willard school at West Quincy about 1870, died suddenly on Saturday evening at his home on Adams street, having sustained a shock in the afternoon.

Mr. Webster was for many years a well known figure in Milton, and was chairman of the board of registrars of that town for several years, and was also a member of the school committee, having served as chairman for two years. He is survived by a widow and two daughters.

Mr. Webster for more than 30 years was connected with the Eliot grammar school in the North end, Boston, and for the past 11 years master of the school.

He was born at Chelmsford, Nov. 27, 1833. He was educated in the common schools of that place and subsquently attended the Merrimac Institute in New Hampshire, where he graduated with high honors. He began his career by teaching in the country schools and then went to Milton where for seven years he was master of the East grammar school.

He resigned that position and entered mercantile life, but after a few years went back to teaching, which was unmistakably his calling, and became principal of the Willard school of Quincy. More than 30 years ago he was called to the Eliot school which he entered as usher, under Samuel W. Mason.

The office of usher, now long obsolete, was a peculiar one. There were in those days, headmasters, submasters and ushers. The term was common in schools then. It was probably borrowed from England, where it was the duty of the usher to administer floggings.

Afterwards he was appointed submaster of the school, which position he held until 1895, when the school board promoted him to be master.

During his 30 years of service at the school Mr. Webster was not tardy, and he was absent from his post of duty but two days, one occasion being the burial of his father, and the other the burial of his mother. It is noteworthy that during the early days when the "nine-year rule" was in vogue, which entitled the teachers who has served nine years in the city schools a year's leave of absence at half-pay, that he never took advantage of this privilege.

In an interview in 1895, when promoted to the position of master of the Eliot, he said:

"People—my friends—have often asked me why I have been content to stay here in the old Eliot so long. One of the compensations of my calling, of this place, is the kindly greeting, the smile of recognition, of the boy grown to manhood who, perhaps, I but dimly remember, but to whom it seems a pleasure to recall to my mind the days when he was my pupil and to tell me of the place he has made for himself in the world, and what his part is in the great life of the city. While I know that from the environment in which many of the pupils of my school are coming to manhood some must go to the bad, yet what a satisfaction it is that others will go up and up and up! And it is my experience that those who advance, almost from the slums, advance rapidly. I ask but little more than to know that I may have had something to do in the formation of these stronger characters.'

Among his former pupils was the present Mayor of Boston, Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, now 40 years of age.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home, corner of Adams and Washington streets, East Milton.

Arawak Was First.

Quincy yachts were prominent in Class D at the annual open race at Winthrop on Saturday, and the order by corrected time was: Arawak, Marvel, Iris, Mellwood, Nocturne, Stranger, Argestes, Moondyne and Hustler.

Houghs Neck By the Sea

The biggest crowd of the season was at Houghs Neck on Sunday.

At base ball on Saturday the Houghs Neck A. A. defeated Dedham A. A. 6 to 5.

Chief of Police Burrell with Lieut. McKay and Officers Goodhue, Bishop, Olson, Dinneen and Stewart, visited Houghs Neck early Sunday morning and raided the Marguerite cottage on Crosby street, leased to Arthur Gardner; and the Puritana club cottage on Bay View avenue leased to Randolph F. Wattson.

A small quantity of whiskey was seized at the former. At the latter two full half barrels of beer, two empty half barrels and a small quantity of whiskey was seized. The Puritana club is said to be composed of well known Boston politicans.

There was an interesting series of sports on Saturday at the picnic of the Welsh Associates of Boston, in which Quincy people participated. John Murray of Quincy won the second prize in the 100-yard dash for boys, and John G. Roberts the second prize in the egg and spoon race. Other events were: 100-yard dash for girls; a hop, step and jump; a three-legged race for women, and a rounders match. After the dinner there were addresses and an entertainment, including the singing of old Welsh folk song.

Civil War Veteran.

Daniel F. French died Sunday at the Soldiers' Home at Chelsea. He was a veteran of the Civil war, having served in Co. D of the 39th regiment. Mr. French for many years was engaged as a boarding house keeper in Quincy. He was at one time in charge of the old Hancock house when it was used as boarding house for the students of the Adams Academy. Later he conducted boarding houses in various places. He was 74 years of age. He entered the Soldiers' Home a year or two ago.

The Merrymounts Defeat Copelands The Fore Rivers Suffer Defeat

The Merrymounts won from the Copelands at Merrymount Park on Saturday by a score of 3 to 2.

Morales pitched for Copeland and after the first inning was invincible. Kolson pitched a steady game and pulled out of several bad holes.

McIntire, formerly of the Boston Unions, was behind the bat for Merrymounts and made a good impression and showed that he knew the game by laying down a couple of neat sacrifices.

In the first, with two down, Morales got to first on an error and stole second, but was left as Quinn fanned.

For Merrymounts, Baker singled to right, MacIntire sacrificed, and Stevens fanned. Cole singled and Kappler was passed. Bennett and Gram hit safely and Osgood was passed to first, but Bennett was caught napping off third. Score, Merrymount, 3; Copeland 0.

In the second for Copeland with one out McTiernan singled, Rooney was out on a fly to Bennett. A hit by Riley and Kappler's error scored McTiernan.

Kolson was safe on Rooney's error, Baker bunted and Coughlin's throw hit the runner and gave him second. McIntire was out on a fly to left. Stevens was out. Duggan to Desmond, and Kolson was run down between third and home.

In the next three innings it was one, two, three for Copeland. In the sixth Coughlin and McTiernan singled after two were out, but Rooney fanned. In the seventh Donaher singled and was sacrificed to second by Riley. Duggan was safe on a hot one to Baker, Desmond was out on Osgood's clever capture of his fly to short centre. Morales singled, scoring Donaher, Quinn was thrown out by Baker.

Merrymount had men on bases in the fifth, sixth and eighth innings but failed to score.

Copeland went out in order in the eighth, but in the ninth it looked interesting. Donaher, the first man up worked Kolson for a pass and stole second. Riley flied out to Baker. Duggan hit a grounder to Stevens and was out.

Fore Rivers Lose.

The Fore River team squeezed out but one run on Saturday, in their game with the John P. Squire Co. team, who rolled up a total of 7.

The score by innings was:

Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

McGregors 2 Fore Rivers 2

A game of Association football was played on Ward Two playground on Saturday. The Fore Rivers and McGregors of Quincy were the opponents. Kick-off was scheduled for 3.30 P. M. but was late of getting under way. Captains McGregor and Craig tossed up and the McGregors having won. Captain Craig's boys decided to play with the wind and defend the posts nearest home.

From kick-off the game was fast the McGregors attacking and forcing the Fore Rivers on the defence, so strong did the McGregors attack that they could not be denied and Bryson opened the scoring for the McGregors by beating Forsythe with a beautiful shot from long range. In the later part of the first half the Fore Rivers equalized in a scrimmage at goal mouth, Nuttal putting the spheroid between the sticks. Score at half time, one goal each.

The McGregors had decidedly the best of the opening part of the first half, but the last ten minutes was all Fore Rivers.

At the resumption of the game the McGregors started to press, and in short order J. McDonald added another to their tally.

Lewis added one for his team indirectly from a free kick which in the opinion of a number of fair-minded spectators was not called for. The game ended without further score although several ineffectual corner kicks were taken.

At one period of the game the referee lost complete control, the spectators crowding on the field of play, because of a fight. It is the opinion of the McGregors that it would be well for them to drop playing with the Fore River owing to the pugilists who play on the team.

The line up:

McGregors		Fore Rivers
A. Collins	goal	Forsythe
J. McLeod	right-back	J. MacAllister
T. Smith	left-back	W. MacGregor
A. Malcolm	right-half	N. Connors

On the Eleanor

City Officials And Others Entertained by Councilman Sawyer

Vice Commodore Sawyer of the Squantum Yacht club entertained a party of city officials and friends Sunday on board his prize winning yacht Eleanor. The party left the Squantum Yacht club float at 10 o'clock in a breeze that was hardly strong enough to fill the sails. It was intended to make Bass Point, but lack of wind made a change necessary and she was headed toward Nantasket Point.

The wind was streaky all the way down much to the disgust of Capt. Clark, a former resident of Brewers corner and a skipper of the old school, who was at the wheel. The sun was boiling hot but the captain stood by the wheel and baked and would not be persuaded to leave his post.

The marine clock in the cabin struck four bells as the anchor was dropped off the Point, and the party were landed in the tender. After dinner a trolley trip was made to Nantasket. A stranger would never for a minute take any of the undignified looking men in the party to be shapers of the destinies of the only city in Norfolk county, as they meandered along the beach.

The City Solicitor was bumped into at Hotel Nantasket, and after looking the party over said that he knew the Superintendent of the Reservation Police, and he would tell him that they were harmless, so that they could return to the yacht instead of to the cool rooms in the stone building used as a police station.

It was 5.30 when anchor was shipped and sail set for the homeward trip, it looked like another long journey, but suddenly there was a refreshing westerly breeze that filled the sails and made the trip delightful.

The president instructed the clerk to call the roll, which brought out the fact that the chairman of the Finance and Public Building committee were aboard, and the auditor was instructed to approve and pass them along to the treasurer.

The call further brought out the fact that but 17 of the original nineteen were aboard,, but it was announced that the missing two were the Jonas, and had been shipped home via Houghs Neck.

The sail home was a beautiful one, and anchor was dropped off the Squantum club house at a seasonable hour. Vice Commodore Sawyer was thanked heartedly for his hospitality, and informed that if he wanted another school house all he had to do was to say the word.

DIE CAST BY CZAR

He Issues a Ukase For Dissolution of Parliament

CAUSES CONSTERNATION

St Petersburg Practically Under Martial Law--Police Prefect and Provincial Governors Are Petty Dictators--Bloody Uprising Not Unlikely

St. Petersburg, July 23.—With the imperial ukase dissolving parliament, which was promulgated early Sunday morning, the curtain rose upon possibly the last act in the great drama of the Russian revolution. The people and the government now stand face to face, and upon the loyalty of the army depends the immediate issue.

Even should the government, however, succeed in "getting on the lid," the victory probably will only be temporary and simply confine the stem of the final explosion. No one doubts the severity of the storm which will arise in the country in response to the czar's dispersal of the men whom he welcomed two months ago in the winter palace as the "best men in Russia," but the die is cast. The government has elected to fight and the capital bears eloquent testimony of the preparations made to repress the masses by force. The city is packed with soldiers and resembles an armed camp.

The work of gathering in revolutionary agitators began immediately after the ukase placing St. Petersburg in "a state of extraordinary security" was promulgated, and hundreds of arrests were made before daylight.

The powers conferred upon M. Von Der Launitz, prefect of police, and M. Zinovieff, governor of the province, are little short of petty dictators. Searches and arrests can be made without process of law, newspapers forced to suspend publication and persons deported by administrative order without trial. Public and private meetings are forbidden. Those arrested may, if it is desired, be tried by military courts and summarily executed. The only real difference between "extraordinary security" and full martial law is that power is exercised by the so-called civil instead of military authority. The general expectation is that the peasantry, expecting the dispersal of parliament as the final blow to their hopes, will rise en masse.

The proletariat organizations have been preparing for months for just such provocation to declare open war. It is impossible to describe the consternation with which the Constitutional Democrats learned the news. Although it had been bruited for the past three days, the ukase was received by them in blank amazement.

The government undoubtedly calculated on catching the opposition off its guard, but, if it expected to strike terror to the hearts of the members of parliament, it has failed signally. After a hurried secret conference it was decided, on account of the possibility of the meeting being broken up and the members arrested, that they go immediately to Finland and decide upon the future course to be pursued, and small groups left yesterday afternoon and evening by train. It seems probable that Finland, in future Russian history, will become synonymous with "the tennis court" of the French revolution.

The Constitutional Democrats and Intellectuals generally recognize that they have no weapon with which to fight the government bayonets. The initiative, therefore, will naturally fall to the proletariat. This the Social Democrats and the group of toil in parliament all along have recognized, and the most elaborate preparations have been made to repeat the tactics of last fall and paralyze the country with a general strike. But the plans at this time have been perfected with much more deliberation and involve not only the paralysis of cities, telegraphs, railroads and all means of communication throughout the empire, but a complete strike of peasants in the country as well. They confidently believe the loyalty of the troops has been so shaken that the military supports of the government will give way and that when put to the test the army will be divided against itself.

A council of workmen's deputies already has been elected at Moscow and, with a similar council here in conjunction with the group of toil of parliament, a rising of the people will be engineered.

While M. Stelypin, who succeeds M. Goremykin as premier, undoubtedly is a much stronger man than his predecessor, he probably will be unequal to the task of piloting the country through the revolutionary upheaval which is just ahead and the general belief is that a dictatorship must come soon.

That vacillation existed at Peterhof even to the last moment is evident from the fact that two drafts of the ukase declaring St. Petersburg in a state of extraordinary security were ready. The stronger one, which proclaimed full martial law, was discarded at the eleventh hour.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the events connected with the dissolution of parliament is that the government carefully avoided notifying the representatives of the foreign powers of what was coming. No word of official warning was received even by the representative of Russia's ally, France. The only intimation that something was about to happen was the appearance of guards at the embassies, legations and consulates shortly after midnight, but Sunday morning, immediately after the guards had been stationed, notes were sent explaining the measures taken to protect the foreign representatives. No other communication has been transmitted to them.

The representatives of the powers are busy dispatching long telegrams to their governments, advising them of the sudden and serious turn of events. There were several conferences of diplomats concerning the advisability of asking for warships, or at least of hiring steamships to take off foreign subjects in case of necessity, but no concerted action was decided upon. The trains are filled with foreigners leaving for abroad.

Czar's Action Considered Unwise

Paris, July 23.—The dissolution of the Russian parliament attracts widespread comment and disappointment in this city. Sentiment in all quarters, including governmental circles, is unanimous concerning the unwisdom of the precipitate action of Emperor Nicholas and the gravity of the situation resulting therefrom.

Effect on Peasantry Dread d

Moscow, July 23.—The greatest consternation was created here by the news of the dissolution of parliament. It is expected this action will precipitate revolutionary outbursts throughout Russia. Its effect on the peasantry is especially dreaded.

Gear Gave Way on a Hill

Providence, July 23.—Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Knight of Boston and Mr. and Mrs. Manton Coombs of this city were climbing College hill in an automobile and when about half way up the brake snapped and the machine started down the hill at full speed. Knight saw the danger of overturning or striking an electric car and turned his car into a paint shop. The machine smashed into the building, but none of the occupants was badly hurt.

"Prophet" Dowie Is Fast Failing

Chicago, July 23.—John A. Dowie held his first meeting in the tabernacle at Zion City yesterday since the meeting was broken up in a riot six weeks ago. Dowie's physical condition was such that he had to be lifted upon the platform. He spoke less than 10 minutes and apparently under the greatest physical strain, being unable to rise from his chair without help.

Trainmen Killed In Freight Collision

Fort Valley, Ga., July 23.—Two freight trains met in head-on collision 2½ miles south of here and three trainmen were killed and Engineer Yets seriously injured.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Clarence Story, aged 19, was drowned at Hallowell, Me. He could not swim, but was persuaded to enter the water by companions, who promised to look after his safety.

Moses Bradstreet of Topsfield, Mass., aged 72, committed suicide by hanging. He had been despondent for some time.

Orestes Borgatti, 19, was drowned while bathing at Nashua, N. H. Borgatti, who was unable to swim, ventured beyond his depth.

Mrs. Harry Ambler committed suicide by hanging at the home of her father, James S. Barbour, at Westerly, R. I. She was 39 years old and had suffered from a mental ailment.

Harry M. Fuller, aged 29, foreman of the Radcliffe shoe factory at Norway, Me., committed suicide by cutting his throat because of despondency on account of the serious illness of his mother.

For the first time since the Civil war a decrease is reported in the number of pensioners in the New England district.

Careful Search of Woods For Body of Miss Goodell

UPPER POND DYNAMITED

Theory That Girl Is Alive and Well Is Gaining Ground--It Is Thought That She May Have Eloped or Was Kidnapped

Belchertown, Mass., July 23.—A thorough search of the woods and fields bordering upon the Upper pond by nearly 100 men failed to bring to light the slightest trace of Miss Winzola Goodell, who has been missing from her home since the afternoon of July 6. Two searching parties, under the general direction of High Sheriff Clark of Northampton, headed by a number of his Hampshire county deputies, and made up of residents of this immediate neighborhood, started from the pond about 10 o'clock Sunday morning and, going in opposite directions around the pond, carefully examined every foot of territory that might afford a resting place for the missing girl's body. A section of country fully five miles in length was covered, but nothing was found to reward the search.

The parties returned about 2 o'clock, and the work of dynamiting the pond, in the hope of dislodging the girl's body in case it should be imbedded in the soft bottom, was at once begun. This was in charge of experts in the use of dynamite from out of town, and the work was witnessed from the shore by hundreds of people. Several heavy charges were exploded, but, although large quantities of mud and debris were loosened from the bottom by the shocks, no trace of the body or any of the girl's clothing was found. Persons were also engaged all day in dragging the pond with grappling irons, but they met with no better success.

Wesley Goodell, father of the missing girl, stated that should the dynamite test prove unavailing he should abandon further search of the pond, at least for the present.

A. B. Hedges of Housatonic, a member of the district police, has arrived here to assist District Officer McKay, who is making an investigation into the girl's disappearance.

There are a number of theories as to the cause of the girl's prolonged absence, and many reject the murder or drowning theories, believing that the girl is still alive and well. Yesterday's developments have served to strengthen them in this belief.

The failure to find any trace of the body by the thorough search made of the pond and the country surrounding it tends to strengthen the opinion which has been held by Sheriff Clark that the girl may have gone away in the mysterious carriage which was seen near the pond on the afternoon of her disappearance.

Miss Ida Jewett of Pelham saw a bay horse attached to a top buggy standing in the woods near the shore of the pond as she was on her way from Pelham to the railroad station. She saw nothing of the Goodell girl at this time, but about an hour later, as she was returning toward Pelham, she saw Miss Goodell as she (Miss Jewett) was walking up the hill road near the pond.

Miss Goodell turned off toward the pond and Miss Jewett kept on. As she passed the place where the horse and buggy had stood, she noticed that the team had disappeared. This was at some little distance from the place where she passed Miss Goodell. On reaching another point from which she could overlook the pond, Miss Pelham noticed the boat which Miss Goodell usually rowed in lying close under the bank. There was no one in it at that time.

The theory that supposes Miss Goodell went away in a team is based on the idea that the girl either eloped or was kidnapped.

Suicide Almost Followed Drowning

Buffalo, July 23.—James Craid sat fishing on a dock on the Niagara river with his son, Marvin, 10 years old. Suddenly the boy toppled into the water and was drowned. The father, crazed with grief, drew a large knife and attempted to commit suicide. A sailor on a vessel moored to the dock leaped to where Craid sat and wrested the knife from him before he had seriously injured himself.

Rescued From Sinking Ship

New York, July 23.—Steamer New York rescued the crew of the Norwegian bark Undal on July 10. Eleven men were taken from the ship by a boat's crew of the New York. The Undal was in a waterlogged condition and liable to sink at any moment. Her crew was worn out from constant labor at the pumps.

Lady Curzon's Body Removed

London, July 23.—The body of Lady Curzon was removed yesterday to Kedleston for burial. When the coffin was borne from Carlton house terrace and placed in the hearse the blinds in the neighboring residences were drawn and spectators uncovered.

Skull Was Fractured

Hartford, July 23.—William McGrath, who was injured by being thrown from a runaway car on a scenic railway at Luna park Saturday night, died yesterday as a result of his injuries. He received a compound fracture of the skull.

STRUCK DOWN WITH SPIKE

Theory Now Held by Investigators of the Streub Murder

Great Barrington, Mass., July 23.—The belief of the authorities that John Streub, the 12-year-old boy whose body was found in the woods near here a week ago, was killed by blows on the head delivered from behind with a railroad spike, has been strengthened by a minute examination of the spike found near the body. Microscopic examination of this spike, which was discovered Saturday, showed minute spots of red which seemed to differ from the rust with which the implement was covered. Two hairs which are thought to have come from a human skull and which correspond in shade with the light brown hair of the dead boy were also found adhering to the spike. A shred, apparently of cloth, found on the weapon leads the police to think that Streub was struck first through his cap and that a second and possibly more deadly blow was delivered after the cap had fallen from his head.

A chemical test of the spots found upon the spike will be made immediately and it is practically certain that the body of young Streub will be exhumed to permit of a more thorough examination of his wounds. The summoning of witnesses for the coroner's inquest, which will probably be held on Tuesday, has begun.

Baby Alone Survived

Portsmouth, R. I., July 23.—By the capsizing of a small sailing skiff Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Anthony of this town and their daughter, aged 4 years, were drowned, while their baby, aged 1 year, who was the only other occupant of the boat, was saved. The baby was strapped in a small go-cart and an oar became wedged between the axles and the body of the carriage. When the boat capsized the baby floated securely in its go-cart sustained by the oar. The baby was apparently uninjured by the wetting it received. Joseph Anthony was a prosperous farmer of Portsmouth and was 35 years old.

Disaster on Gasolene Launch

Middletown, Conn., July 23.—As a result of the burning of the power launch Kittie M., just above East Haddam in the Connecticut river, William Hayes was drowned, another is severely burned and eight others were more or less seriously burned. The boat was practically ruined and was abandoned. The fire was started by one of the men throwing a match which he had used to light a cigar into the bottom of the launch, and as a result the gasolene, which supplied the motive power for the launch, was ignited.

Were Lost From Their Vessel

Chatham, Mass., July 23.—Four members of the crew of the fishing schooner Hussar of Beverly, who were separated from their vessel and lost in the fog 20 miles from Pollock Rip lightship Saturday morning while tending trawls, reached here yesterday in their dory. They came from the Pollock Rip lightship, which they reached after rowing all day with no food and very little water. They were none the worse for their experience when they reached here.

Tribute to Aged Clergyman

Woburn, Mass., July 23.—The seven Protestant churches of this city united in a service at the First Congregational church to pay honor to Rev. Daniel March, D. D., pastor emeritus of the church. It was the occasion of his 90th birthday. Seven clergymen of different denominations took part in the service, and 90 members of the Congregational Sunday school marched to the pulpit and each dropped a red rose into a basket as a tribute.

Strike Question Not Settled

Lowell, Mass., July 23.—Whether Lowell is to have another disastrous textile strike will be decided this evening, when action, one way or the other, will be taken by the Lowell Textile union. It is semi-officially declared that a strike will be immediately declared, although more conservative members of the unions think that the differences can be satisfactorily arbitrated.

Charged With Killing Child

Sandwich, Mass., July 23.—Charged with being responsible for the death of his son, Arthur, Jr., aged 3 years, Arthur C. Hoxie of this town was placed under arrest. It is said unofficially that in attempting to reprimand the boy at the breakfast table, Hoxie slapped him or struck him harder than he intended to, and that this led to the boy's death.

Roller Coaster Cars Collided

Revere, Mass., July 23.—An accident on the musical railway here last night resulted in probable fatal injuries to Miss Katherine Percival and severe injuries to four other people. The musical railway is a sort of roller coaster affair. It is understood that two cars filled with four people each came in collision.

Was a Maniac Indeed

Bridgeport, Conn., July 23.—After gashing his throat with a razor, trying to sever his right hand by cutting the arteries, then hanging himself, and later battering out his brains against a cell door, Capello Bruno, a prisoner at the county jail, finally accomplished self-destruction. The man was a maniac.

Recall of Bribery Summons

Chelsea, Mass., July 23.—Summonses which had been issued to a number of citizens to appear before the grand jury today in connection with an investigation of the alleged aldermanic bribery were recalled late yesterday, two hours after they had been received. No explanation was given for the action.

A FINANCE NESTOR

Russell Sage Dies Unexpectedly at His Summer Home

HE MADE VAST FORTUNE

Began Career as Errand Boy and Soon Became Prominent Merchant, Political Leader and Railroad Magnate

New York, July 23.—Russell Sage died suddenly at his country home, Cedarcroft, at Lawrence, L. I. The immediate cause of death was heart failure, resulting from a complication of diseases incident to old age. The veteran financier would have celebrated his 90th birthday on Aug. 4. At noon yesterday he was seized with a sinking spell and collapsed rapidly, falling into unconsciousness about two hours before his death, which occurred at 4:30 o'clock.

The funeral services will be held on Wednesday at the West Presbyterian church, of which Sage had been a member for many years. The interment will take place in Troy on Thursday. Mrs. Sage and her brother, J. J. Slocum, are named as the executors of Sage's will. His wealth is estimated at $100,000,000.

Russell Sage, multi-millionaire and nestor of American finances, was born on Aug. 4, 1816, in the little hamlet of Verona, N. Y., where his parents, Elisha and Pendence Sage, members of a little company of pioneers from Connecticut, had halted while on their westward march in quest of a homestead. The family decided to settle there. At the age of 12 Russell began his career as an errand boy in the grocery store of his brother Henry, in Troy, N. Y. He was quickly advanced to the post of salesman and at the age of 22 established a wholesale grocery of his own in Troy.

He soon became one of the prominent merchants of the town and a leader in politics, being elected alderman and later becoming county treasurer. He was a delegate to the national Whig convention in 1848 and in 1853 was elected to congress from Troy, serving two terms.

In 1857 Sage had acquired a fortune estimated at almost $500,000, a vast amount in those days, and determined to retire from active business life. He had, however, already become interested in railroads, his first transaction of this character being a loan to the La Crosse Railroad company, which led to further transactions resulting in his acquiring large interests in the roads now forming the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul system, of which he became vice president. This determined Sage to devote his future energies to operations in Wall street, and in 1863 he opened his first office in New York.

About this time he became intimate with Jay Gould, with whom he formed an association which continued for many years. About 1872 Sage originated the system of trading in "puts," "calls," and "straddles," in which he continued to deal thereafter on a colossal scale. While he purchased a seat on the New York Stock Exchange in 1874, it is believed that he never appeared on the floor of the exchange. He rarely incurred any of the tremendous risks which tempted his associates and, following his own prudent methods with perfect coolness, even in periods of wildest excitement, he made his way with almost unerring success from his first appearance in Wall street.

Only once, it is said, did Sage experience a tremendous reverse, from which he emerged with courage and confidence unshaken. This was in 1884, when the great failure of Grant & Ward was announced, resulting in the loss to Sage of about $6,000,000 on a long line of "puts." His operations necessitated the possession of a vast amount of ready capital and Sage always kept his resources so well in hand that in an emergency he was able to command almost unlimited funds.

Mr. Sage was called the father of railroad construction in Wisconsin and Minnesota. At the time of his death he was an officer and director in 25 great railway and telegraph corporations.

An incident which startled the whole country occurred in Sage's offices on Dec. 4, 1891. On that day he was visited by Henry P. Norcross of Boston, a man of unbalanced mind, who demanded an immediate gift of $1,200,000. When the offer was refused Norcross dropped a dynamite bomb upon the floor, the explosion of which decapitated Norcross, killing one of the clerks and wrecked the whole office. Sage was injured by the explosion. He suffered much from shock and his recovery was in doubt for some time.

Mr. Sage was never known to take a holiday. It is said that his last birthday was the first which he failed to celebrate by attending to business in his office the winter an old-fashioned, brownstone mansion at 506 Fifth avenue, from which he was reluctantly compelled to move about four years ago, owing to the invasion of retail stores, to 682 Fifth avenue. His summers were spent at his country place at Lawrence, where he died.

Mr. Sage was married twice, first in 1841 to Miss Maria Winne, daughter of Moses I. Winne of Troy. His wife died in New York city in 1867, and two years later he married Margaret Oliva, daughter of Joseph Slocum of Syracuse.

Paint Which Lasts

Painters, and all others who understand paint, know that white lead and linseed oil make the best paint. Good, lasting paint cannot be had if either pigment or oil is adulterated.

Many of the so-called white leads sold now-a-days have barytes, rock-dust, silica, gypsum, etc., in them, and little real white lead.

Linseed oil is also frequently adulterated. Such mixtures are dear at any price.

Salem Pure White Lead

(Made by the Old Dutch Process)

is absolutely pure, and makes lasting paint.

Federation of Labor Formally Enters the Political Arena

Washington, July 23.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has made good its decision of several months ago to enter the field of politics in the interest of the trade union movement and to exhort all members and friends of organized labor to work for the election to political office of men known to be favorable to labor's cause.

From the headquarters of the federation the council has issued its "campaign program." It sets out that the trade union movement has kept and proposes to keep pace with the rapid changes in industrial affairs, and that the working people cannot hope to maintain their rights or a progressive position in the varying phases of modern society unless they organize, "and exercise all those functions, which, as workmen and citizens, it is their privilege and their duty to exercise."

It is declared that labor makes no demand upon government or society which is not equally accorded to all the people of this country, and that "it can and will be satisfied with nothing less."

The proposed campaign is based upon the allegation that little attention has been paid to the enactment of laws prepared by organized labor and presented to congress "for the relief of these wrongs and the attainment of these rights to which labor and the common people are justly entitled and which are essentially necessary for their welfare."

The council cautions that the movement must not degenerate into a scramble for office, but it should be a determined effort "to secure the legislation we deem necessary and essential to the welfare and happiness of all our people."

Boston's Hot Sunday

Boston, July 23.—Yesterday was the hottest day of the season in Boston. Between 3 and 5 o'clock the mercury rose in the official thermometer at the weather bureau to 89 degrees, but this instrument is high up on top of the postoffice building, where the air is several degrees cooler than on the city streets. The hot weather was accompanied by an oppressive humidity. There were only three cases of heat prostration treated at the principal hospitals of the city. That the number was not larger is due, probably, to the fact that it was Sunday and people had little to do but try to keep cool.

Excursionists Did Some Shooting

Ironton, O., July 23.—In a fight between persons on the wharf and others on the steamer Bonanza, five persons were shot, one being killed. Steamer Bonanza had been chartered for an excursion from Catlettsburg, Ky., to Ironton. It is said that several Ironton boys boarded the steamer and were put off. Just after the steamer cleared the dock a shower of stones fell among the people on the ship's decks. Immediately a shot rang out from among the crowd on the steamer and a movessel.

Many Negroes Killed in Wreck

Charlotte, N. C., July 23.—A Seaboard line passenger train collided with an extra freight train near Hamlet and from 18 to 25 people are reported to have met death. The dead and injured are being taken to Rockingham. Details are as yet lacking. Most of the dead are negroes, according to the reports received here. Only a few of the dead have been identified. The wreck was caused by misunderstanding of orders. Both engines and nearly all the coaches and boxcars were demolished.

Lives to Tell of Terrible Experience

Niagara, Ont., July 23.—Thomas Scharff fell down the steep Niagara gorge, a distance of more than 100 feet, and his only injuries are a broken shoulder, a scalp wound and cuts and bruises on his body. He had only started down the tortuous path when he lost his footing and pitched headlong down the precipice and landed on the rocks below. After two hours' hard work a rescue party brought Scharff to the top.

Train Wreck Killed Four

Spokane, Wash., July 23.—Four men were killed and a number of persons injured when the buffet car at the end of a train left the tracks while the train was nearing a bridge over Beaver creek and rolled down the bank, dragging one coach with it. The rest of the train crossed the bridge in safety. The injured will recover.

Five Persons Killed by Lightning

Manitowoc, Wis., July 23.—Five persons were killed and more than a score injured, four seriously, by a bolt of lightning which struck the grandstand of the baseball park here, where a game was in progress. Two were found dead in the stand and the other three just outside on the field.

Death of Old Pythian

West Haven, Conn., July 23.—David B. Woodruff of Macon, Ga., past supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias for the United States, died here at the home of his sister, whom he had been visiting. Death followed a nervous breakdown. He was 77 years old.

Drove Nails Into Own Head

Lorada, Ark., July 23.—Mrs. Azalia Thompkins, 70 years of age, committed suicide by driving two 10-penny nails into her head. She was blind and partly deaf and had once before attempted suicide by cutting her throat.

Greeks Still on the Warpath

Salonica, July 23.—At a farm at Malavista a Greek band captured and murdered eight Bulgarians, including the proprietor of the farm.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

How to Select Gloves—Automobile Coats—New Handkerchiefs.

An experienced saleswoman gives these hints about selecting gloves: "The best plan is to test the kid by stretching it. Take the side seams between the thumbs and fingers and pull. If the kid is soft and pliable, the pores small, even and not especially noticeable and the glove immediately takes on its original shape, it gives evidence of not only being elastic and therefore full of new life, but of being a fairly good quality."

Natural colored linen coats for automobiling with fancy collar and cuff decorations of soutache braid are wonderfully comfortable for summer tours. The new silk rain coats lined with rubber are smart, but very warm for the dog days.

White centers with narrow colored borders represent the latest vagary in handkerchiefs, a lace border having for the moment been regarded as out of place for day wear. Motifs, medallions and diamonds of fine malines lace are, however, inlet into the corners of the handkerchiefs, while in the case of those destined for mourning wear incrustations of chantilly lace are considered in the best taste.

Dog collars are fashionable for evening wear in jet, pearls, precious and semiprecious stones. Rose quartz, pink jacinth, cut crystal and mother-of-pearl are appropriate for young debutantes in collars, necklaces or beads; also pale blue and pink bead collarets are in vogue.

The tailored suit pictured is of ecru shantung. The skirt is plaited at the waistband and trimmed at the bottom with entre deux of lace and tucks. The little coat is incrusted with the Irish lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Paper Money.

The first paper money used in this country was issued by Pennsylvania in 1723. In the early part of that year £15,000 was issued on the credit of the colony, and a few months later £30,000 more followed.

Greek Fire.

Greek fire, which had several other names—wild fire, liquid fire, wet fire and fire rain—descriptive of its destructiveness, is said to have been the most destructive engine of war previous to gunpowder. Discovered by Callinicus, a Syrian, it was first used in the siege of Constantinople, 673-78, and at Mecca, 690.

Origin of Wheat.

De Candolles made a very careful examination, historically and botanically, of the origin of wheat and claims that its native home was in the plateau of Armenia, where it is still found to be growing wild.

Smyrna.

In 1841 Smyrna was visited by a conflagration which destroyed 12,000 houses. The buildings destroyed were light wooden structures, and a fire once kindled in a town of frame buildings closely crowded together is almost impossible to subdue.

Ankle Sprain.

For a sprained ankle pour hot water from the height of two feet over the sprain. This should be repeated twice or three times a day.

Virginia Dare.

The first white child born on United States soil was the granddaughter of White, the governor of Roanoke island. She was christened by the name of Virginia Dare, and her birthday was on Aug. 18, 1587.

The Grewsome Mahratta.

The grewsome mahratta wadkab, the weapon of the Hindoo assassin, is shaped like a tiger's claws and fastened to the fingers of the right hand by rings. With a treacherous embrace the murderer clasps his victim and tears him open, leaving him mutilated in a condition that leads the discoverers of the body to believe a tiger or some other wild beast has clawed the man to death.

Parrots and Rain.

Parrots are good barometers. Just before a rain the most talkative and gabby parrot becomes silent.

The Name "Wheat."

The name wheat is derived from a Saxon word, "hwaete," signifying white, because the flour from this grain is lighter in color than that from any other.

An Adventure of Lovers

[Original.]

Asa Emery, aged seventeen, and Charlotte Crapo, aged fifteen, were causing their respective parents some uneasiness. They were constant companions, and it was feared that companionship would ripen into love. Indeed it had ripened into love, though none but the young couple knew it.

One thing they were forbidden and that on the ground that Charlotte was but a schoolgirl. Asa wished to take her to places of amusement. That which was unattainable openly was undertaken by stealth. One evening they stole away and visited a theater together. When the play was over and they had started home it suddenly began to rain. Charlotte was frightened, and Asa was, to say the least, worried. By the story they had concocted they were supposed to pass the evening near Charlotte's house under cover. If she went home drenched the story must come out. Something must be done to prevent a wetting.

Standing before a house was a carriage, the driver apparently asleep on the box. No street lamp was near, and the location was quite in the dark. Asa put his fingers to his lips and, leaving Charlotte, tiptoed to it, cautiously opened the door and beckoned to her. She came, got into the carriage, and Asa followed, softly closing the door behind him. They were beyond the reach of a drop of rain.

The situation to the children—they were little more—was delightful. First, they were plucking forbidden fruit in being there at all; second, they were saving themselves from discovery by occupying a carriage in which they had no right. The rain pattered merrily, but no more merrily than they chuckled. But suddenly their satisfaction was changed to fright. The front door of the house before which the team stood opened. A man came out and, after a hasty glance up and down the street, came toward them. The window of the coach was down, and he threw in a bundle, which fell in Charlotte's lap. The man whispered something to the driver and away went horses, carriage, driver and children.

Their consternation was great. They did not dare call to the driver to stop, and they were in an agony as to where he would take them. The consequence was that they did what they had never done before—clasped each other tightly and waited as if they expected to be driven over a precipice. They were taken they knew not whither for half an hour; then the carriage stopped. It had hardly done so before a man, who must have been waiting for it, opened the door. Charlotte gave a bit of a shriek. The man, who had extended his hand apparently to grasp something, suddenly withdrew it with an exclamation and took to his heels. The driver jumped from the box and followed him at full speed.

Asa got out through the open door, followed by Charlotte, and they were about to hurry away when a bit of curiosity supposed to pertain especially to the softer sex stopped them.

"I wonder what's in the bundle," said Charlotte.

"Never mind."

"It may be something nice. Are you going to leave it?"

"Yes—no." He darted back, seized it and the two walked rapidly away.

Asa soon recognized the street they were on and knew that they were not far from Charlotte's home. The time which, if it accorded with their story, they were to have been at home, was passed, and they were at a loss what to do. After discussion they decided that Charlotte should go into the house openly and make a full confession. Her parents were waiting in much trepidation and before she went to bed she had made her confession, was forgiven, and, leaving the bundle with her father, went up to her room to sleep as tranquilly as if nothing had happened.

But the next morning at breakfast Charlotte ventured to ask timidly:

"Papa, what was in the bundle?"

"Paper, my dear; nothing but paper." And, taking his morning paper, he left the table.

After the episode Asa and Charlotte were left to follow their own sweet wills. No opposition was made to their going where they liked together, and, although this spoiled the fun, they had had one experience together which formed a strong bond of union. Besides, there was a mystery connected with it, for Asa told his sweetheart that the morning after it occurred her father had come to his father's house. A third gentleman was called by telephone, and the three held a long consultation. They had called Asa in and asked if he could identify the two persons connected with the mystery, which, of course, he could not, though he gave locations accurately.

Asa and Charlotte's love grew stronger as they grew older. Asa went into business, and when he got $20 a week salary he marched up to Mr. Crapo and asked for his daughter.

"Asa," said the old gentleman, "do you remember your carriage drive several years ago? Well, on that drive you captured $50,000 that had been stolen from a bank. The parcel thrown into the carriage contained the money. Charlotte gave it to me, and I took it to your father with the story. The president of the bank gave us the reward offered for the return of the money, and the location you gave led to the arrest of the thief. The rewards for both amounted to $15,000. You can have Charlotte, and the day you are married this money, with interest, in all $18,000, will be given to you and Charlotte, share and share alike."

So it was that the young couple started life very comfortably.

7000 Sermons

The Record of Rev. L. P. Atwood At His 55th Anniversary

"Fifty years in the ministry" was the subject on Sunday by Rev. Louis P. Atwood of Weymouth, who preached his anniversary sermon in his son's pulpit at the Quincy Point church. During the 55 years he said he had prepared 7000 sermons, married 625 couples, officiated at 500 funerals, delivered 100 lectures and received 250 persons into the churches of which he has been pastor.

Referring to his ministry, he said: "Although I was licensed as a preacher in July, 1851, by the Wesleyan Methodist church, I was not ordained to the ministry of that church until 1855, four years later. I was ordained in the brick church, situated on East street, Pittsfield, Mass., in which I was baptized in infancy, afterward converted, and later was superintendent of the Sunday school. I was then ordained as a bishop. My ministry in the Wesleyan Methodist church continued until 1859, when I accepted an invitation to supply the pulpit of a Congregational church, and the following year I became a minister of that church."

It was also the fifth anniversary of the ministry of Rev. Alfred R. Atwood the pastor, who spoke of his conversion to Christianity while working at his trade as a plumber, of his mission work among the Italians and gypsies in West Roxbury, of his desire to become a Christian minister, of his efforts to secure the means whereby he might prepare himself for the work of the ministry, of his life in Oberlin Academy and College, the Univereity of Vermont, Harvard College, and the Andover Theological Seminary. He then spoks of his work as assistant pastor of the Boston Sailors' Friend Society, of his ordination as pastor of the Congregational church at New Boston on July 22, 1901, of his two years' ministry in that town, of his 2 1-2 years' labor at Cotuit, Mass., and his work in his present pastorate at Quincy Point, which has been marked with unusual success.

The Measure of It.

"Oh, yes, Crookit has been in politics in our town for years, and he's been wonderfully successful too."

"You don't say? Strange I never heard of him."

"You would have been more likely to hear of him if he had been unsuccessful. I refer to his success in keeping out of jail."—Philadelphia Press.

Miss Louise Dunn after having pleasantly spent a week with friends in Hartford, Conn., has returned to her home on Whitwell street.

Mrs. Jiffs and daughter of Manchester, N. H., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Kendall of Walker street, last week.

The neighbors and friends of Mr. Louis Coles of Faxon road, will be sorry to learn that he has sold his pretty beach house.

The new Boulevard bridge near the Wollaston Yacht club house is nearing completion. This week John G. Thomas the roofer commenced water roofing it.

James F. Malone, who was recently appointed to the permanent fire force and assigned to the Houghs Neck station is to move his family to that section of the city.

Robert C. Whiteacre's family are spending the summer on his farm in Plainfield, N. H., but their post office address is West Lebanon, N. H. Mr. Whiteacre joins his family for a few days at a time during the warm weather.

The first instalment of St. Chrrsostom's Sunday school went to Revere, Friday, July 20th, on the annual good time to the "Mothers Rest." There were eighteen in the party, including their rector, Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg. The sea-bathing and clam chowder were enjoyed.

The funeral of Timothy O'Brien was held this morning from St. John's church, and was largely attended. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John J. Coan, Rev. Julian E. Johnstone, Rev. Father Haley and Rev. J. P. Cuffe. The casket was draped with the American flag. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss Anna Jacobsen, bookkeeper at F. F. Reilly's, Wollaston, has gone to North Chichester, N. H., for two weeks. Her mother, Mrs. John Jacobsen and sister Mabel accompanied her. While in North Chichester Miss Jacobsen will be a bridesmaid at the wedding of her friend, Miss Amy Etheridge.

Norman Cook of Webster street has gone to South Hanson, where with a boy friend he is enjoying camp life to the fullest extent, and even attempting culinary arts which he reports turn out very excellent results. His mother, Mrs. A. B. Cook, visited her son on Friday and found him among pleasant surroundings.

James F. Duncan of this city, secretary of the National Granite Cutters Union, and first vice president of the American Federation of Labor, will preside at the meeting in Boston on Monday, July 30, to form the building trade section of the Central Labor Union.

Y. M. C. A. School.

The tuition for students of the Springfield International Young Men's Christian Association Training School will be increased from $75 to $100 after this year. The change in the rate of tuition was made owing to the increasing facilities of the instiution, which necessitates an increase in the cost of maintenance. The school also has a higher standing since it has been granted a charter and has a right to give the degree of bachelor of humanics, bachelor of physical education, and master de-

PREVENTION OF FIRES.

How Common Sense Rules Would Save Your Property.

It is an old maxim that fire is a good servant, but a hard master. Shakespeare wrote, "A little fire is quickly trodden out, which, being suffered, rivers cannot quench." Fires are the results of accident, of spontaneous combustion and of design. If they have been accidental the cause can generally be discovered, and it will be found they might have been prevented. If the following precautions are taken fires from accident or spontaneous combustion will seldom occur:

Keep your house, store or factory clean.

Never allow rubbish, such as paper, rags, cobwebs, old clothing, boxes, etc., to accumulate in closets and unused rooms.

Never keep gasoline or benzine about the premises.

Never fill your coal oil lamps after dark or near an open fire.

Never run your stove pipes through a wooden partition or through the roof without proper protection.

Never allow your furnace, steam or hot water pipes to come in contact with wood.

Never put up gas brackets so they can be swung against the wooden window casings or against or immediately under curtains.

Never put ashes in a wooden receptacle in or about your premises.

Never keep matches in any but metal or earthen safes, and when you light one never throw it on the floor.

Never allow smoking in proximity to inflammable merchandise or materials.

Never take an open light to examine a gas meter or into a closet.

Never read in bed by candle or lamp light.

Never close up your place of business without going over the entire premises to see that all fires and lights are safe or extinguished.

Never forget that carelessness and negligence are the cause of over two-thirds of all fires.

Never forget to have pails or buckets and water near at hand for immediate use in case of emergency.

How to Put a Patch on a Tire.

It is highly important, of course, that when a patch is to be put on a tire it shall be done in the best style. It is equally important at times to remove a patch, and then the better the work was done in the first place the harder it will be to undo it. One of the best agents to use for this purpose is an ordinary flatiron. It should be heated through, but should not be made too hot, and the best way to get the proper temperature is to immerse it for a time in boiling water. This will not make the iron so hot that it will injure the tire and, after it has been placed upon a patch for a few minutes, the cement will soften nicely. When this domestic appliance is not at hand a good substitute may be found in a clean hammer head, which may be heated by placing it for a time on the exhaust pipe or the cylinder head. Care should be taken not to have the metal too hot, and in the use of a flatiron the best results—the safest, that is—may be obtained by holding the iron close to the patch, but not actually in contact with it.

How to Make a Complexion Soap.

An ideal soap for the complexion is made by taking oatmeal, castile soap and carbolic acid, says the Boston Herald. The oatmeal should be boiled until it has the consistency of thick jelly, then the castile soap should be shaved fine and reduced to a paste with the addition of a little water, after which the two must be mixed together in proportion of two parts castile to one part oatmeal. A vigorous stirring is then given the mixture, and during the process a small quantity of peroxide of hydrogen or diluted carbolic acid is added, a teaspoonful to each quart of the mixture. The soap should then be allowed to cool and when hard may be cut up into cakes of the size most preferred. Oblong pieces about an inch long and wide by half an inch thick will be found more convenient than any other size.

How to Use Eggs For Dysentery.

The egg is considered the best of remedies for dysentery, says Health. Beaten up slightly, with or without sugar, and swallowed at a gulp, it tends by its emollient qualities to lessen the inflammation of the stomach and intestines and by forming a transient coating on these organs enables nature to resume her healthful sway over a diseased body. Two or at most three eggs per day would be all that is required in ordinary cases, and since egg is not merely medicine, but food as well, the lighter the diet otherwise and the quieter the patient is kept the more certain and rapid the recovery.

How to Make Tea Punch.

For a tea punch take one quart of good tea made to the proportion of four teaspoonfuls of good tea to one quart of boiling water, five tablespoonfuls clear lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls juice from tart oranges, two scant cupfuls granulated sugar and one pint apollinaris water. Stir the lemon and orange juice together and put them into a punch bowl with the tea, the apollinaris and a couple of large pieces of ice. If possible add a handful of fresh raspberries, but if these are not at hand use in their place an equal quantity of pineapple dice.

How to Banish Insects From Plants.

If any insects are found on your plants apply sulpho-tobacco soap infusion at once, says Outing. Begin the fight against insects early in the day and half the battle is won, but if you let them alone until they have intrenched themselves on all your plants you will find the task of getting rid of them a most difficult one. "A stitch in time saves nine," you know.

INSECT ANATOMY.

Wonderful Breathing Apparatus of Wasps and Hornets.

If we take any moderately large insect, say a wasp or a hornet, we can see, even with the naked eye, that a series of small spotlike marks runs along the side of the body. These apparent spots, which are eighteen or twenty in number, are, in fact, the apertures through which air is admitted into the system, and are generally formed in such a manner that no extraneous matter can by any possibility find entrance.

Sometimes they are furnished with a pair of horny lips, which can be opened and closed at the will of the insect; in other cases they are densely fringed with stiff, interlacing bristles, forming a filter which allows air and air alone to pass.

But the apparatus, of whatever character it may be, is always so wonderfully perfect in its action that it has been found impossible to injure the body of a dead insect with so subtle a medium as spirits of wine, although the subject was first immersed in the fluid and then placed beneath the receiver of an air pump.

The apertures in question communicate with two large breathing tubes, which extend through the entire length of the body. From these main tubes are given off innumerable branches, which run in all directions and continually divide and subdivide, until a wonderfully intricate network is formed pervading every part of the structure and penetrating even to the antennae.

AN ANCIENT TELEGRAPH.

Used by Grecian Generals In the Time of Aristotle.

Telegraphy as a means of conveying information to a distance by means of signals, etc., was used by the Grecian generals in the time of Aristotle. This early mode of telegraphing consisted of two or more earthen vessels, exactly similar in shape and size and filled with water. These vessels were each provided with faucets of exactly the same caliber, so that an equal amount of water could be discharged from each in a given time.

In these vessels several uprights were fixed, each with disks attached, on which were certain letters and sentences. When all was in readiness the party desiring to communicate with another started a signal, which was continued until it was answered by another which signified "go ahead." When that signal was given both turned the faucets, and the water commenced to escape. The water continued to flow until the sender of the message relighted his torch, when the outlet to both was instantly stopped. The receiver then read the message on the disk which was standing level with the water, and if everything had been executed with exactness it corresponded with the message which the sender desired to convey, and which of course was the one also shown on the disk standing on a level with the water in his vessel.

A Caustic Critic.

A local paper in Hungary published an account of the rendering of "King Lear" on the stage of a very small theater in the town where the paper appears. The Hungarian critic began his article in this way: "The historians of literature are still at daggers drawn as to who wrote Shakespeare's pieces—Shakespeare or Bacon. After tonight's performance of 'King Lear' there cannot be a doubt on the matter if any one will take the trouble to look into the tombs of those two famous men. The one who still lies on his back has not written 'King Lear,' at any rate, for the true author during tonight's performance must certainly have turned in his grave."

Studio.

"Studio" is one of the many foreign words that have acclimatized themselves in the English language. It is a recent import from Italy, unknown to Johnson's Dictionary and apparently not occurring before the nineteenth century, but it has supplied a want. "Study," which is the real English for "studio," suggests a room for reading and writing, and "workroom" lacks distinctiveness. The French get along with "atelier," which literally means a place in which small planks are prepared—in other words, a carpenter's workshop.

The Poppy.

The poppy throughout the east is an emblem of death. In many parts of India this flower is planted upon graves and in cemeteries. Whether or not the idea was suggested by the poisonous character of the juice is uncertain. It is believed that the poppy was known as a funeral plant to the ancient Egyptians, for upon the tombs opened by Belzoni there appeared representations of plants which were evidently intended for poppies.

Comforting.

"Say, Elsie, look around the street corner again and see if August isn't coming yet."

"No, I don't see him. But don't be worried; the people are looking more and more like him every minute!"—Fliegende Blatter.

Scarcity.

"One has very few friends in this life," said the misanthrope.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "I suppose that is one reason why a friend is so likely to be overworked."—Washington Star.

Their Friendship Ceased.

"I have just discovered that Smithers is a relative of mine."

"How strange!"

"Yes, and I had always looked upon him as a friend."—New York Press.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

the standard remedy for over three generations. Restores lost appetite, regulates the bowels, assists digestion, enriches the blood and cures all those diseases arising from a disordered stomach or liver, such as constipation, malaria, biliousness, indigestion, loss of appetite, headaches, catarrh of the stomach and intestines, piles, etc. The Mother's Safeguard in all the common disorders of childhood.

A few doses given occasionally will guard against worms, and if present will expel them without fail.

Dr. J. F. TRUE & CO.: AUGUSTA, Maine.

Gentlemen: By the use of your Elixir I was relieved of a tape worm between seventy-seven and eighty-five feet in length. For eighteen years I had been doctoring for Liver, Kidney and Heart trouble and Indigestion, all of which disappeared when that worm was slaughtered by True's Elixir. There is not a medicine before the public to-day that can do the work of your Elixir. The expenditure of $2.50 for this medicine did for me what many dollars and years spent in search of relief through other sources failed to do.

Ex-Senator Sprague's Wife Passes Away

The death of Mrs. Eugene H. Sprague of Wollaston on Monday at Isleboro, Me., came as a shock to Quincy friends. While not in good health it was not anticipated that death was near. About two weeks ago she went with her daughter Dorothy to the parental home of Mr. Sprague, seeking rest and quietness. Her health did not improve, and Mr. Sprague soon joined her.

Mrs. Sprague was the daughter of the late Jacob Eaton of Adams street. She was a pupil of the Willard school and was graduated at the High school. Later she taught at the Quincy school at Atlantic, and in October 1886, married Eugene H. Sprague. Their family was a happy one including three daughters and two sons, each devoted to the other. They resided at No. 8 Park street, Wollaston, and were prominent in social affairs, and the work of the Wollaston Unitarian church and its organizations.

Warrant Out For Abduction

A warrant was sworn out this morning by Frank Smith of Pray street for the arrest of Duncan Cameron, on the charge of abducting his 15-year old daughter, Rita Smith.

Cameron who is 22 years of age was employed at the Fore River works and boarded with Mrs. Daniel Flowers. Saturday he drew what money was due him and Sunday morning started with the Smith girl for Revere beach. Nothing has been heard from them since. Whether they went to Revere is not known.

The Smith girl, who is large for her age, and would readily pass for twenty, took no clothing other than that which she wore. She wore a blue skirt, and white shirt waist.

Cameron's home is said to be in Elizabeth, N. J., and the police of that city have been requested to be on the look out for them should they go there.

Inquiry at the City Clerk's office shows that no marriage license was taken out here.

Revere Suicide A Hingham Man

The body found in the Revere marshes last Friday has been identified as that of Alton F. Newcomb of Hingham, aged 37 years. He was one of Hinghams best known young men, residing on Thaxter street with his step-mother, Mrs. Stephen Newcomb.

The carbolic acid with which he ended his life was taken from the home of his fiancee, Miss Ella Oliver, unbeknown to her. Miss Oliver had purchased it at the drug store of W. A. Torrey at South Braintree about four years previously for a sore throat.

Newcomb is thought to have been financially embarrassed. The body is now at Hingham.

Honors Awaiting A Quincy Man

Mayor Thompson has been requested to name delegates to attend the Fourteenth Irrigation congress to be held at Boise, Idaho, Sept. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. While in Boise they will be the guests of the city which has made elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the guests. The railroads have also made exceptionally low rates.

Mayor Thompson desires to know if any citizen of good standing desires to attend the congress. He would be glad to name them as a delegate to represent the city and furnish them with the necessary credentials. It should be understood, however, that anyone desiring to attend as a delegate would have to pay for transportation.

Store Entered.

The variety store of E. H. Lowe at the corner of Washington and North streets was entered by thieves during the night, but as far as known nothing of value was taken. The parties gained entrance through a rear window, and overhauled and threw things about.

—W. C. Hill of Milton has been elected principal of the High school at Lewiston, Maine.

Draw Tender Knocked Down

Joseph W. Hayden, the veteran draw tender at the Quincy Point bridge, was knocked down and run over by an automobile on the bridge Monday afternoon. He fortunately escaped without having any bones fractured, although severely shaken up and bruised.

The accident was an unavoidable one and no blame is attached to the driver of the car. Mr. Hayden started out to open the draw just as a big touring car came along. The car was going slowly and the driver was using due care. Mr. Hayden started to cross in front of it; then changed his mind and turned back, only to again change his mind and go on. He evidently became confused. The driver of the car did his best to avoid an accident and had Mr. Hayden kept moving forward as in the first place all would have been well.

As it was the car struck him, knocking him down and then passed over him. The car stopped and the driver gave his name and residence and number of the car.

Mr. Hayden was carried into his home near by and Dr. Hallowell summoned, who found that no bones had been broken, although Mr. Hayden had been severely shaken up and bruised.

Quincy Bride New Jersey Groom

Miss Lola Augusta West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. West, and Mr. Frank Warren Taber of Newark, New Jersey, were married July nineteenth at high noon at the home of the bride on Adams street, in the presence of relatives and friends.

The bride wore white chiffon trimmed with lace and carried a bouquet of bride roses.

The beautiful Episcopal ceremony was performed under a bower of sweet peas and ferns, by the Rev. Edward Anderson of Quincy. Mrs. Edward Ruggles of Milton presided at the piano.

A reception followed the ceremony, at which the parents of the bride and the mother of the groom assisted in receiving. Mr. George Barker of Winchester and Mr. Albert Moseley of Malden acted as ushers and Mrs. Jennie Hodges of Milton and Miss Edith Ward of Quincy assisted in serving.

The bride and groom received many costly and beautiful presents. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Taber will reside in Newark, N. J., where they will be at home after October fourth.

Bankruptcy Petition Dismissed

The voluntary petition in bankruptcy filed last January by Urbane C. Benoit, who will be remembered as a former representative in this city of the International School of Correspondence, was dismissed Saturday in the United States district court.

This petition aroused a great deal of comment in all the Boston papers at the time, on account of the small amount of Benoit's indebtedness—only sixty-one dollars, which was divided among only three creditors. It was probably the smallest amount for which any person ever tried to go into bankruptcy.

The petition was dismissed on the ground of lack of prosecution and because Benoit failed to pay the court charges amounting to forty dollars. The referee expressed his opinion that he considered it a flagrant abuse of the bankruptcy law. The result is that Benoit will have to pay his debts in full.

Sawyer for Mayor

The Observant Citizen of the Post has evidently suffered from the hot spell. He writes: "I hear that the Democrats of Quincy are planning to run Councilman Sawyer of Atlantic for Mayor at the next election. If Mr. Sawyer works as hard for that office as he worked for the new $61,000 school for Atlantic, his friends say he will be a hard man to beat."

City Lighting Obtained at Cost

Prevents Reduction In Cost of Commercial Lighting Says the State Commissioners

According to the findings of the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners on Monday, the city and its taxpayers are favored at the expense of its business men and others who use electric light and power. The decision of the State board is of unusual interest and is given in full:

Boston, July 23, 1906.

QUINCY PETITION.

"This was a petition by customers of the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company for a reduction in price of electric light and for improvement in the quality of the service. The petitioners and the company were represented at the hearing which was at Quincy.

"The defects in the service which were described by the petitioners and which occurred at about the period of maximun output were of a character to suggest a possible lack of capacity in the generating or distributing plant. Since the hearing the company has expended a substantial sum in enlarging and improving both divisions of its plant, and has apparently made ample provision against the recurrence of these difficulties. Incidental to the payment for these improvements and a portion of its debt the company has increased its capital stock from $100,000 to $149,800. It has now outstanding bonds for $100,000 and notes for approximately $90,000.

"At the date of the petition the company's price for lighting was 20 cents per kilowatt hour with discounts for prompt payment ranging from 10 per cent on the smallest monthly bills to 25 per cent for bills of $40.00 or more per month. Since the hearing the company has begun to make free renewals of incandescent lights, changing from the previous practice of charging 25 cents a lamp for the sizes in common use, and has extended its scale of discounts to consumers whose bills are $50.00 or more per month by a varying scale up to 50 per cent from monthly bills of $100.00 and over.

NO LARGE CONSUMERS.

"This company began to supply electric light in Quincy in 1888 and has extended its lines very generally throughout the municipality. It has practically no consumers who use a large amount of current, the number of small consumers being unusually large.

"During its entire history it has paid very moderate dividends or none at all, and, prior to June 30, 1905, had not divided over 6 per cent in any year. Its affairs have been managed with economy, although the company has met with its share of those losses which have been incident to the progress of the art and the development of a business which was new and in its early years but imperfectly understood. Its present plant is in every respect modern, of high efficiency, and economical in its operation. Its present dividends are moderate and its profits have never been extravagant.

"Although liberal discounts have been offered to large customers, fully one-half the commercial lighting is supplied at the highest net price and the average received from the entire commercial lighting is only a fraction of a cent below the highest net rate. Notwithstanding the price for commercial lighting may seem high when compared with some other companies, the average price received for the entire output, a factor of very great importance, is less than 11 cents, which is a low price for a company of this size and character. The reason for this is to be found in the existing arrangement between the city and company for the lighting of the streets.

STREET LIGHTING LOW.

"More than two-thirds of the company's output and probably an equal proportion of its investments is for street lighting alone. The company's price for this service have gradually tended downward until they have reached a point which barely meets the operating cost with no provision for depreciation, interest or dividend, and the entire burden of such charges is thus thrown upon the supply to private consumers.

"While the Board is unwilling to approve the policy which has brought about these conditions, it has no authority to increase these prices. We are not familiar with the reasons which have led to them, nor are we prepared to say that, having been now reached, they ought to be increased. It is very plain, however, that the facts are of such importance that they control the situation and that if the price for street lighting were increased, a corresponding decrease might be made in the commercial lighting price.

"The company's entire business has hitherto yielded to its stock-holders no more than a fair and reasonable compensation for all the service it renders to the public. The fiscal year just closed has shown an encouraging increase in its volume. The probable maintenance of the present output will enable the company to make some reduction in its commercial lighting rates. Any further reduction is likely to come only from some improvement in the rates for public lighting, a further increase in the volume of the commercial business or by a reduction in some way, not now apparent, of the cost of operation.

"The Board recommends:—that, on and after the first day of August next, the net price charged by the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company for commercial electric lighting shall not exceed seventeen cents per kilowatt hour."

The report is signed by Forest E. Barker, chairman, and is dated at Boston July 23, 1906.

Framingham Disaster Blow to Quincy Man

The collapse on Monday of the Post Office building being erected at Framingham, mentioned in the telegraphic news on page 2, will be a severe blow to Henry L. Kincaide & Co., of this city, who were to open a large furniture store in the building.

Mr. Kincaide, when seen this morning, said that his firm was to have had a floor space of 20,000 feet in the building.

The section that they were to occupy was nearly completed. A large part of their stock of goods had been purchased and were on the way to Framingham, and some of it had already arrived. Work getting the store ready for opening was to have commenced at once, and Mr. Kincaide expected to have opened his store Sept. 1.

The only reason that he can assign for the collapse of the building is that possibly there might have been quicksand in the foundation.

Mr. Kincaide has gone to Framingham today. He is undecided just what he will do with the goods on the way.

DEATH LIST OF 18

May Result From the Collapse of a Bulding

NINE BODIES RECOVERED

As Many More Are Supposed to Be In Ruins--Cause of Accident May Not Be Known Until Investigation by Authorities.

South Framingham, Mass., July 24.—At least nine, and perhaps twice that number, of masons, plumbers and Italian laborers were crushed to death yesterday afternoon in the sudden collapse of a building on the main street, which was being rushed to completion, while 10 others were dragged or dug out of the mass of broken building material, cut, bruised or maimed for life. There are nine men still missing, and a large force of men are at work on the ruins.

A couple of sharp cracks, almost like the report of two rifle shots, was the only warning, for the next instant nearly everyone on the three floors was being hurled or felt themselves sliding into the vortex of the tumbling beams, pillars, girders and bricks and mortar. A portion of the building stood the strain, but the tottering pillars and girders overhanging the ruins beneath kept at bay for a few minutes the crowd of eager rescuers.

It was not until the fire department had been called out and a company of soldiers summoned from the state camp ground, where they were performing their annual tour of duty, that the work of saving life and removing the bodies of the dead actually began. Even before the firemen and soldiers were allowed to venture onto the mass of broken material, the broken pillars above had to be shored up.

The building was being constructed by Andrew Jensen for G. M. Amsden of this town. Both men were in the building at the time of the accident and, while each escaped, it was not without injuries, Amsden having his leg fractured, while Jensen received a number of cuts. Amsden was sent to his home, while Jensen remained about the ruins until four bodies had been taken out, after which he left for his home. He refused to comment in any way upon the accident, the actual cause of which will probably not be known until after an investigation by the state authorities.

There were many rumors about the town and one citizen went so far as to say that only last Friday one of the heavy girders slipped after being put in place, but was forced back into position by the workmen.

The building was situated on the corner of Concord and Kendall streets, with the longest front, of about 150 feet, on the former. It was constructed of brick, with the usual interior bracings of steel pillars and girders, while the side walls and back were of cement.

The building was three stories high and one portion of it was being fitted up for the local postoffice. The contract called for its completion on July 1, and the contractor was making every effort to make up lost time.

The accident took place at 3:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the work in the building was being carried on with the greatest amount of vigor. To those who looked the ruins over after the accident it seemed a marvel that anyone was taken out of the jumble of broken steel alive. The work on the ruins is still proceeding, but all thought of taking anyone out alive has been given up.

The work of overhauling the ruins continued without interruption throughout the evening. It was comparatively easy to remove the first bodies, as they were found near the street and some distance away from the tottering beams and pillars.

About dark last night a large force of Italians from Boston arrived and assisted in the search. The overhanging beams were still further shored up, yet it was perilous work digging beneath the walls and heavy masses of steel, which acted as a menace to the workmen.

Many of the Italians from Boston refused to go very far beneath the ruins and the last two bodies were brought out by the soldiers of the Ninth regiment just before midnight.

At 2 o'clock this morning General Whitney ordered the men of the Ninth regiment back to camp, being unwilling to have the men risk their lives in further work on the ruins. It is the general belief that it will be several days before the basement of the collapsed building is cleared and the search of the ruins completed.

Wireless Message From the Arctic

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 24.—A dispatch has been received by President Roosevelt from Walter Wellman, head of the Wellman-Chicago Record-Herald expedition. The dispatch was dated at Hammerfest, July 21, and read as follows: "Roosevelt, Washington. Greetings. Best wishes by first wireless message ever sent from Arctic regions. Wellman."

Will "Stand Pat" on Tariff

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 24.—President Roosevelt reviewed the campaign plans of the Republican congressional committee after a conference here and pronounced them good and entirely to his liking. While no one would speak under quotation regarding the tariff, it is learned that the Republican text book will be a "stand pat" document from beginning to end, and that this will be the tenor of Republican speeches in "idea" infected sections of the country. The "stand pat" announcement will be accompanied by a statement that when the tariff is revised it should be handled by its friends.

President Asked to Intervene

Havana, July 24.—A committee of American residents of the Isle of Pines has forwarded to President Roosevelt a request for the intervention of the American government in the case of L. C. Forged Railroad Stock Certificate

New York, July 24.—Discovery of a forged certificate for 50 shares of common stock of the Union Pacific railroad was announced by Secretary Ely of the Stock Exchange. According to Ely the certificate is in the name of Marvin J. Hannah, bearing what purports to be the signatures of E. H. Harriman and Alexander Miller and the seal of the Union Pacific.

A New Agricultural Industry

Berlin, July 24.—The American commission appointed to investigate the denaturalization of alcohol has arrived here to study the German alcohol fuel and lighting industry. Alcohol for these purposes sells at wholesale at 20 cents a gallon. Many farm distilleries turn crops of potatoes into alcohol, the mash being used for feeding cattle and hogs.

Four Men Killed by Explosion

Mount Union, Pa., July 24.—Four men were killed and five injured in an explosion in a powder and dynamite house near Robertsdale. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but it is supposed that one of the men who entered the building for explosives to use in the mines was smoking and through carelessness ignited the powder.

Women Drowned While Boating

Lake George, N. Y., July 24.—Sophia and Corinne Piddian of Brooklyn were drowned while boating on the lake. Two men who were with them made a brave effort to rescue their companions, but were unable to reach them.

DEFIANCE OF CZAR

Revolutionary Address From the Members of Douma

THE MEETING SHUT OFF

People of Russia Urged to Be Steadfast In Refusal to "Give a Kopec to the Throne or a Soldier to the Army" In the Great Obligatory Struggle

Vibourg, Finland, July 24.—The curtain dropped on the final act of the drama of Russia's first parliament, when, under the spur of the threat of Governor Rechanberg to use military force to end the session, and with troops already converging on the Hotel Belvedere, where the meeting was held, the assembled members of the lower house, 186 in number, hurriedly adopted and signed an address to the people which is thoroughly revolutionary in its nature, elected a perpetual executive committee, headed by Prince Paul Dolgoroukoff, vice president of the house, to carry on the work of liberation, and adjourned amidst characteristic Russian embracing and kissing.

A few members, including President Monromtseff, Ivan Petrunkevich and Count Heyden, returned to St. Petersburg last evening. The Constitutional Democratic cohorts intend to go to St. Petersburg in a body today, but many of the radical members, fearing arrest on their arrival at the capital, will remain for the present in Finland, or return by roundabout routes.

The address, which bears a remarkable similarity to the manifesto framed by the council of workmen last November, which landed its authors and the editors of eight St. Petersburg newspapers in cells of the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, strikes the government in its most vulnerable point by declaring that the administration and not parliament is responsible for the delay in the settlement of the agrarian question and by proclaiming a cessation of payment of taxes and of military service and repudiation of future loans. The address follows:

"To the people from their popular representatives.

"Citizens of all Russia: Parliament has been dissolved by ukase of July 21. You elected us as your representatives and instructed us to fight for our country and freedom. In execution of your instructions and our duty we drew up laws in order to ensure freedom to the people. We demanded the removal of irresponsible ministers who were infringing the laws with impunity and oppressing freedom.

"First of all, however, we wanted to bring out a law respecting the distribution of land to working peasants and involving the assignment, to this end, of crown appendages, monasteries and lands belonging to the clergy, and compulsory expropriation of private estates. The government held such a law to be inadmissable, and upon parliament once more urgently putting forward its resolution regarding compulsory expropriation parliament was dissolved.

"The government promises to convoke a new parliament seven months hence. Russia must remain without popular representation for seven whole months, at a time when the people are standing on the brink of ruin, and industry and commerce are undermined; when the whole country is seething with unrest and when the ministry has definitely shown its incapacity to do justice to popular needs. For seven months the government will act arbitrarily and will fight against the popular movement in order to obtain a pliable, subversive parliament. Should it succeed, however, in completely suppressing the popular movement, the government will convoke no parliament at all.

"Citizens, stand up for your trampled on rights, for popular representation and for an imperial parliament. Russia must not remain a day without popular representation. You possess the means of acquiring it. The government has, without the assent of the popular representatives, no right to collect taxes from the people nor to summon the people to military service. Therefore, you are now the government. The dissolved parliament was justified in giving neither money nor soldiers.

"Should the government, however, contract loans in order to procure funds, such loans will be invalid without the consent of the popular representatives. The Russian people will never acknowledge them and will not be called upon to pay them. Accordingly, until a popular representative parliament is summoned, do not give a kopec to the throne or a soldier to the army. Be steadfast in your refusal. No power can resist the united, inflexible will of the people.

"Citizens, in this obligatory and unavoidable struggle your representatives will be with you."

Strict Newspaper Censorship

St. Petersburg, July 24.—Copies of the appeal to the people by the deputies to parliament are in the hands of all the St. Petersburg newspapers, but it will scarcely be printed for the reason that a detachment of police is posted at the door of every newspaper printing office in the city with orders printing office in the city, with orders building until authorized by the censor. The authorities hope by equally vigorous measures to prevent the publication of the appeal in other cities and in the meantime to nullify the fears of the people as to the possible effect of the appeal.

Meanwhile the masses of the Russian people, slow of thought and action, have not yet roused themselves to the gigantic upheaval which is sure to follow the dissolution of their parliament. Minor disorders are reported from half a dozen cities. St. Petersburg, Moscow and most of the other great centers are still calm on the surface, though boiling and seething beneath.

Dissolution Condemned In Paris

Paris, July 24.—The Russian situation absorbs the attention of Paris, and the effect is particularly apparent on the Bourse, where the slump in Russian securities almost caused a panic. Officials here are cautious in criticising the turn of events, owing to the political relations existing between France and Russia; but French sentiment universally condemns the dissolution of the representative branch of parliament. Much attention is given in high quarters to reports of intrigue by certain European powers preceding the dissolution, the prevailing view here being that Emperor Nicholas' course was influenced by councils outside of Russia.

British Sympathy For Russian People

London, July 24.—A British address of sympathy with the Russian people and parliament is being circulated. Already the signatures of many prominent persons have been obtained.

Rockefeller Safe From Arrest

Findlay, O., July 24.—No attempt will be made to arrest John D. Rockefeller when he lands in New York next Saturday. Attorney Troup, representing Rockefeller, has secured the permission to enter Rockefeller's appearance in Judge Banker's court and this was accordingly done. Sheriff Groves still has the warrant, but will not attempt to serve it. The warrant charges Rockefeller and the Standard Oil company with alleged violation of the Valentine anti-trust law.

Many Marines Have Malaria

Washington, July 24.—The disposition of the marines who are sick with malaria on board the Columbia has given the navy officers some concern. Of the sick, 39 have been taken to the hospital in the Boston navy yard. It is possible that the remainder of the 300 will be sent to New London and New York, if quarters can be arranged for them at these places. The spread of the fever by mosquitoes is not feared from the northern points.

Steamer's Fuel Gave Out

New York, July 24.—The Italian steamer Alberta Treves, from Mediterranean ports, was obliged to drop anchor in the lower bay, owing to lack of fuel to feed her furnaces. The steamer sailed from Almeria, Spain, on July 4. On nearing the coast July 21 the coal bunkers became depleted, but with lumber, woodwork, derricks, ladders and 10 large bales of licorice root from the cargo, the vessel managed to reach the outer bay.

Killed by Anti-Fat Diet

St. Louis, July 24.—A long continued diet of principally pickles and vinegar in the hope of reducing weight caused the sudden death of Miss Annie Gross, 25 years old. A post mortem examination showed that the inner walls of her stomach were almost completely eaten away. The girl dropped dead while taking a drink of water.

Clergyman's Son Alleged Burglar

New York, July 24.—A young man who gave his name as Joseph Miller and who said that his father is a Boston clergyman was held in $1000 bail for further examination in police court on a charge of burglary. The janitress of a fashionable apartment house testified that she caught Miller in the rooms of one of the occupants.

End of Seven Months' Strike

New York, July 24.—The strike of the Housesmiths and Structural Ironworkers' union, which was inaugurated seven months ago against the American Bridge company and the firm of Post & McCord, was declared off at a meeting of the union here last night. The men returned to work today.

Twenty-Two Killed In Wreck

Raleigh, N. C., July 24.—As the result of the head-on railroad collision which took place between Rockingham and Hamlet, 22 persons are dead and upwards of 23 injured. There were 20 bodies taken out of the wreck and two of the injured died in hospitals here. Most of the victims are negroes.

Chicago Brokers Fail

Chicago, July 24.—E. Seckel & Co., members of the Chicago Board of Trade, posted a notice asking those that have trades with the concern to close them out in the open market. The firm was established in 1862. The amount involved in the failure is small.

President to Review Warships

Washington, July 24.—President Roosevelt will review the Atlantic fleet Sept. 3 at Oyster Bay. The fleet will consist of the first and second divisions of battleships and a squadron of cruisers, under the command of Rear Admiral Evans.

FORGET THE PAST

Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala Thus Agree to Do

TEXT OF PEACE TERMS

Signing of General Treaty to Occur at Capital of Costa Rica--Present Guarantee Sanctioned by United States and Mexico

San Salvador, July 24.—The conference on board the United States cruiser Marblehead was conducted under the honorary presidency of Mr. Merry, the American minister to Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Salvador; Mr. Combs, the American minister to Guatemala and Honduras, and Mr. Gamboa, the Mexican minister to Guatemala. The principal clauses of the treaty as signed are as follows:

First—Salvador and Honduras return to a state of peace with Guatemala, forgetting past differences. Therefore, they will concentrate their armies and disarm them within eight days from the date of the signature of the treaty, leaving only the troops previously stationed in the various garrison towns and the flying columns required for police service.

Second—The contracting governments will reciprocally deliver up the prisoners of war and take care gratuitously of the wounded in their respective territories who are unable to feturn to their countries. All political prisoners will also be immediately liberated and each delegation will recommend to its government the issuance of a decree of general amnesty as soon as possible.

Third—The high contracting parties agree to concentrate all the political refugees now in their respective territories, or who may hereafter enter their respective territories, and likewise to watch their conduct, so as to prevent them from abusing the right of asylum in conspiring against the order and tranquility of the country from which they emigrated.

Fourth—Within two months from date of the signature of the treaty the contracting parties will sign a general treaty of peace, friendship and commerce, etc. The capital of Costa Rica is designated as the place for the fully authorized representatives of the three republics to meet. In the meantime it is agreed that the international stipulations, heretofore binding on the contracting parties, especially those of the second Pan-American conference, will remain in force.

Fifth—If, as is not expected to be the case, any of the contracting parties fail to comply with any point agreed upon in this treaty, or causes any divergences, these will be submitted to the arbitration, appointed beforehand, of the Presidents of the United States and of Mexico, the arbiters, to whose decision any new, concrete difficulties between Guatemala, Salvador and Honduras will be submitted.

The present agreement is to remain under the guarantee of the loyalty of the interested governments and the moral sanction of the mediating nations.

The ratification of the treaty is to be verified by an exchange of communications at Guatemala City, San Salvador and Tegucigalpa no later than July 30.

Thank Roosevelt For Peace

Washington, July 24.—The state department has dispatches from President Escalon of Salvador, President Cabrera of Guatemala, and President Borilla of Honduras, in which they offer their sincere thanks to President Roosevelt and President Diaz of Mexico for their kind offices in making peace possible between the warring Central American republics.

Grand Larceny Is Charged

New York, July 24.—The grand jury returned indictments against three officials of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union local No. 52, charging grand larceny in the second degree. It is alleged that bogus certificates of membership to the union were issued and that sums varying from $100 to $200 were obtained from various men who, after paying membership fees, found that they were not recognized as union men.

Half-Holiday For 8000 More

Washington, July 24.—More than 8000 men in the employ of the engineer department of the army will enjoy half-holidays on Saturday during the remainder of the summer under the terms of an order issued from the war department. It is in general similar to other orders recently issued relating to employes of the government printing office and the navy yards.

Steamer Sunk In Collision

Southampton, Eng., July 24.—The British steamer Roman, Antwerp for Montreal, put in here damaged, having been in collision with the Swedish steamer Talis, which sank. The Roman rescued the passengers and crew of the Talis and brought them to this port. It is expected that the Roman will repair at this port.

Passenger Train Ditched

Burbank, O., July 24.—A passenger train was wrecked here. The engine left the track while rounding a curve. All the passenger and mail cars were ditched except the sleeper and dining cars. Several passengers received a severe shaking up, but none was seriously hurt.

THEY FIND IN URIC-O A PERMANENT CURE

Rheumatic Sufferers Rejoice in Receiving such Splendid Results from Uric-O.

If a convention could be held of all the Rheumatic sufferers who have been cured completely by the use of Uric-O, there would be such a rejoicing as to convince every skeptic that there at last been found the true "Fountain" of health, and yet this would be a decided error, for Uric-O is not a "cure all," but simply a cure for Rheumatism and Rheumatism only.

Every sufferer of Rheumatism who wants to be rid of the sleepless nights, the nerve binding, muscle twisting hours of pain, should lay aside all other forms of treatment, get a bottle of Uric-O and start rejoicing on his way to health. It matters little how long one has suffered from the trouble nor how intense the suffering, Uric-O will cure it. Cure it completely, cure it permanently and cure it to stay cured. Muscular, Articular and Inflamatory Rheumatism yield at once to this mighty healing agent. Druggists and physicians everywhere are gladly recommending Uric-O for Rheumatism because they know its wonderful curative propertives cannot be exaggerated.

Uric-O acts directly upon the blood, muscles and kidneys. It neutralizes the uric and rheumatic acid poison, and drives it from the blood.

The store of E. J. Murphy is the "Home of Uric-O" in Quincy and he sells and guarantees it for 75 cents and $1.00 a bottle. We know you can be cured by Uric-O and if you only try one bottle you will thank us from the bottom of your heart for having made you acquainted with this marvelous remedy. Don't delay. Don't put it off. Try it and try it today. Ask Mr. Murphy about it and learn from him the many cures Uric-O has effected right here in your own town. If you desire, you can test and try it free of charge by sending your name and address to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., and asking for a sample free.

A WEDDING CEREMONY

Investigated In Connection With Miss Goodell's Disappearance

Holyoke, Mass., July 24.—A report that Miss Winzola Goodell, the missing Belchertown girl, was married in this city on July 6 by Rev. John W. Winch of the Congregational church was investigated by detectives last night.

It was learned that a man who gave his name as Harry T. Moore of Waterbury, Conn., and a young woman who said her name was Cora M. Cutting of Fairview, suburb of Chicopee, secured a marriage license from the Holyoke city clerk and were married on that day. They had previously inquired the name of the clergyman, saying that they were strangers in the city and desired to be married. The girl is said to have answered the description of Miss Goodell in some respects, and it was from this circumstance that the report started.

Miss Goodell's father said by telephone from Belchertown that he took no stock in the report and that he was still of the opinion that his daughter's body will be found eventually in the pond.

Still No Trace of Miss Goodell

Belchertown, Mass., July 24.—State Detective Hodges and Deputy Sheriff Barton have carefully examined the shore of Upper pond on all sides in the hope of finding some clue to the disappearance of Miss Goodell. Hodges also visited Amherst and talked with some livery stablemen with a view of learning where the team was hired which was seen in the woods near the pond on the day of the young woman's disappearance, but secured no trace of the mysterious team. The search of the pond will be continued.

Death of Judge Flaherty

Gloucester, Mass., July 24.—John J. Flaherty, who was appointed judge of the superior court in 1905, is dead. He was born in Gloucester in 1858 and was educated in the common schools. He won for himself a large practice, making a specialty of admiralty cases in the federal courts. He had been city solicitor of Gloucester, had been prominent socially and in amateur athletics. For several years he was a member of the state Democratic committee.

Fatal Quarrel at Road Resort

Providence, July 24.—As the result of a quarrel alleged to have arisen over a woman, George Morris, a negro, aged 40, a piano player at the St. Jago hotel, a road resort, was stabbed to death near Rocky point last night. Frank Lombardi, employed as a bartender at the resort, is under arrest, charged with the stabbing, and three others are held by the Kent county police as witnesses.

Suspicious of Hayes' Death

Middletown, Conn., July 24.—The body of William Hayes, who was reported drowned during the burning of the launch Kittie M. on the Connecticut river, on which craft he and a number of companions were making a trip, was found floating in the river late yesterday. Medical Examiner Calef says that unusual circumstances surround the death, sufficient to warrant an autopsy.

Governor's Relatives In Runaway

Magnolia, Mass., July 24.—Curtis Guild, father of Governor Guild, and Miss M. C. Guild, the governor's aunt, were thrown from their carriage and considerably shaken through the sudden appearance from behind of an automobile which caused their horse to swerve from the road and run away. They are resting comfortably and it is thought that they will recover.

Strike of Hartford Moulders

Hartford, July 24.—All the moulders at Pratt & Whitney's factory here walked out on strike when their demands for a minimum wage of $3 a day, recognition of their union and abolition of the piece system were denied. Should the strike continue a week it will mean shutting down the factory and throwing 2000 additional men out of employment.

Meat Inspectors' Force Doubled

Boston, July 24.—The first detail of government meat inspectors provided for under the recent act of congress are expected here tomorrow. The present force of 29 inspectors will be doubled. Nearly a score of plants which were not inspected under the former law will be included under the new act.

Horseshoers Want Higher Wages

Hartford, July 24.—A strike of union journeymen horseshoers occurred here and as a result the master horseshoers are somewhat crippled, though in a few shops men have been employed to take the places of the strikers. An increase in wages is demanded by the men.

Found Dead Near Tracks

Lancaster, Mass., July 24.—The body of an unknown man was found last night near the railroad tracks. It was supposed at first that the man had been struck by a train, but the medical examiner decided that death was caused by hemorrhage. The man was about 65 years old.

Carbolic Acid For Disappointed Lover

Boston, July 24.—A body found at Revere last Friday was positively identified last night as that of Alton F. Newcomb of Hingham, Mass. He was 25 years old. It is said that he committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid when despondent over a love affair.

Disastrous Wreck In Washington

Spokane, Wash., July 24.—At least nine lives were lost and possibly 14 or 15 in a disastrous wreck on the westbound Great Northern flyer near Elk, Wash.

BOSTON LETTER.

No Truth In Story That Governor Guild Is Ill.

DEMOCRATS AFTER J. B. MORAN

Excise Board to Eliminate Politics From Saloons.

There is no truth whatever in the stories which have been put forth to make it appear that Governor Guild is ill. The governor is in a perfect state of health, but as is perfectly natural under all the circumstances, is somewhat tired and has been in need of a rest.

The first seven months of his term have been especially strenuous, and have brought to him a vast amount of work which he has despatched with extreme care and good judgment. Employes of the commonwealth who have been domiciled at the state house for many years, and have had every opportunity to watch the procession of events in the administration of each governor for at least a quarter of a century, admit that no executive in that period of time has been called upon to handle so many important matters as has Governor Curtis Guild, Jr. Certainly no one has filled the position with greater credit to himself.

Guild's Good Appointment.

It is true that there has been some criticism of the governor's appointments. There never yet was a governor in Massachusetts who made good appointments regardless of political influence who did not meet with the same criticism. It will have to be admitted even by his worst enemies that the appointees of Governor Guild have been without exception men of the highest character, capacity, and standing in the community. There was some criticism of his appointment of Bank Commissioner Pierre Jay, but Mr. Jay was an expert bank man with a thorough knowledge of the business gained by years of practical experience. The governor might have appointed a man with political backing, but with no especial fitness for the office, had he seen fit to do so, but it would have been necessary for such a man to have gained his experience at the expense of the commonwealth and the depositors. The interests of the depositors will certainly be safe in the hands of Mr. Jay. That was the one thing which led the governor to select him for the position. The interests of the depositors and not of the politicians were first in the mind of the governor. For this the great mass of the people will certainly commend him, even though some of the politicians may condemn him.

The governor is chiefly concerned with the people and much less with the politicians. He has issued orders to the state police for the strict enforcement of the child labor law. The census bureau, in the course of its work throughout the state, discovered that there are 394 children under 14 years of age that work, contrary to law. It was this fact which actuated the governor in his instructions to the state police. He has also notified the school committees of the various cities where such violations were found and called upon them to remedy the present condition.

Politics In the Saloons.

The Boston excise board has issued orders to liquor dealers that there shall hereafter be no more political advertising of any sort displayed in the saloons of the city. The board is of the opinion that saloons should be wholly divorced from politics and should not be used as political machines in the interest of candidates of any party.

In the past many of these saloons have been used to advance the political fortunes of leading members of the Democratic party. Many of them have been in fact Democratic political headquarters for the ward in which they are located. Democrats who desire to succeed in politics have been compelled to attach themselves to some saloon or secure the aid of some prominent saloonkeeper in order to do so. This condition of things has been bitterly resented by Democrats who do not believe in the liquor business dominating the party, and who dislike to be the tools of the liquor interests.

If this order is strictly enforced, it will do a great deal to purify politics, and especially Democratic politics in the city of Boston. It certainly should be enforced and it certainly can be if the board is in earnest, and there is every indication that it is.

The Leaders Against Moran.

It now begins to look very much as if the Democratic leaders in Massachusetts proposed to make an aggressive fight against the self-appointed leadership of District Attorney John B. Moran of Suffolk county. In the last few days active steps have been taken to solidify the opposition to Moran's nomination for governor on the Democratic ticket. There are already evidences that the strength of Moran in many sections of the state is really based on hot air. It looks as if it had the same consistency and cohesion as the harbor fogs. A good strong breath from the Democratic leaders would be likely to reveal its weakness. Mr. Moran has become so puffed-up with vanity and self-conceit in the last few weeks as to regard himself as one of the greatest men of the country.

Certainly if he is to continue as district attorney for any length of time he will be a very expensive luxury to the county of Suffolk. Much of the court work in the office of the district attorney is now performed by hired counsel. It cost over $6000 to try Ferdinand E. Borges in counsel fees alone, that being the bill of Frederick M. Chase, who conducted the case for the county. In the old days District Attorney Oliver Stevens and his assistants used to try such cases and there were no such bills for the county to pay. If Mr. Moran put in more time attending to the work of the office and less time to devising schemes for getting himself advertised in the newspapers and nominated for governor, he would unquestionably please the tax-paying public more generally than he does at the present time.

More Bills For the County.

Mr. Moran has now appointed Felix McGettrick to read the testimony taken by the committee on rules of the Massachusetts house, and prepare the bribery case for the grand jury. He has selected Philip J. Doherty to investigate alleged violations of the law and extortion on the part of the gas and electric light companies, and he has chosen Lawyer Granville McFarland to investigate allegations that the railroads have issued free passes, contrary to law, to members of the legislature. Who is to pay for the work to be done by these men? Is the county to be called upon to pay several thousand dollars for this service, which ought to be done by the district attorney and his assistants, and could be done by them if they were willing to hustle as former district attorneys and their assistants have done in years gone by? There seems to be no question that Mr. Moran has a legal right to hire 40 lawyers if he sees fit and place the expense upon the county of Suffolk.

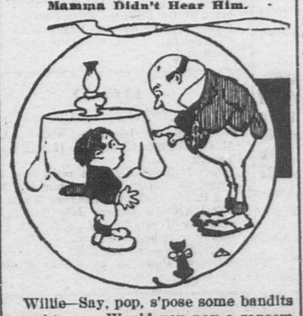
The appointment of Felix McGettrick to probe the legislative matter has been severely criticised. McGettrick is a Vermont Democrat and during President Cleveland's second term in 1894 he was appointed United States commissioner in Vermont, which office he held until July 1, 1897. United States commissioners are given judicial power in cases where Chinamen are arrested, charged with being unlawfully in the United States. During the time that Mr. McGettrick held office Chinese were coming in great numbers into Canada to the United States border at Richford, Vt., where they endeavored to enter the United States. There they were usually arrested and taken to St. Albans for trial before McGettrick. Nearly 1100 Chinamen were tried before McGettrick and discharged as properly in the United States. The record shows that five of those tried were refused admission to the country.

It is unfortunate that the district attorney should have selected a man for this work whose record in office it was necessary to defend. The appointment of Mr. McFarland to investigate the railroads was much better in every way, although the hostility of Mr. McFarland to corporations makes him a prejudiced attorney. No one, however, would say anything against the personal honesty of Mr. McFarland or Mr. Doherty. The fair and candid man must admit that corporations have rights, and that, like individuals, they should be considered innocent until proven guilty. Upon the prosperity of our corporations depend largely the prosperity and employment of the working people of Massachusetts.

Moran a Menace to Democracy.

It is not strange in view of all the facts that leading Democrats have at last been awakened to the fact that the candidacy of Mr. Moran is a menace to the party organization. If he should be successful in carrying the caucuses, the Hearst-Moran-George Fred Williams crowd would eventually and certainly take over the control of the Democratic party in Massachusetts. To the conservative element of the party the spectacle of such a control is anything but pleasant. They have seen something of that nature in the brief control of the state organization by George Fred Williams and a few others during the Bryan period. That brief period of authority disclosed the fact that Mr. Williams had few elements of leadership, but that he was the most potent disintegrating force which has ever held the reins over the Democratic party in this commonwealth, however sincere he may be in his views. If he had been permitted to continue in authority it is not altogether improbable that the Democratic party today might have been tabulated in the election returns under the head of "scattering." The control of the party by Moran and Hearst is looked upon by conservative Democrats as far more unfortunate and injurious than its control some years ago by Mr. Williams.

Mamma Didn't Hear Him.



Willie—Say, pop, s'pose some bandits caught ma. Would you pay a ransom to get her back?

Father—After they had her for a week they would pay me to take her back.—Washington Post.

Mrs. Alfred Jelenik of Botolph street is at Chester, Vt., for two weeks. On her return she will visit South Royalston for a few days, as a guest of Mrs. Charles Safford.

New Cruiser.

The new cruise Milwaukee is speedy. In the rough sea outside of San Francisco, on July 20 she made a speed record of 22 1-4 knots an hour, in occasional half-hourly spurts. The course was covered three times in rough seas, thus affording abundant proofs of the vessel's seaworthiness. At times even in the choppy sea her speed would be 22 1-4 knots for half an haur at a time. The Milwaukee will probably leave today for Santa Barbara Channel for the first Government trial. She is expected to average twenty two knots on an endurance run lasting four hours.

Four Open Races.

The open race of the Quincy Yacht club will be held Thursday, but the yachtsmen will have four days of racing, beginning Wednesday at Hull and continuing there on Friday and Saturday, under the auspices of the Boston Yacht club. All count for percentages.

Innocent Victim.

Robert Whiteacre has come in for some good-natured jollying this week because his name figured in the court records. The Ledger is pleased to state that Mr. Whiteacre is innocent of any crime. The correct name of the man in court was Whiteway not Whiteacre.

Duty Before All.

Officer—It's no use you hiding, sir. I must have your name and address.

They Burned Cloves.

From the middle of the sixteenth century until 1824 the Dutch regulated or sought to regulate the clove trade and the price by annually destroying a portion of the crop in order to enhance the price of the remainder. The burning of cloves took place annually, from a quarter to a half of the crop being thus destroyed. The last clove burning was in 1824.

"In It."

In the first chapter of Dickens' "Bleak House," which was published in 1852, the phrase is to be found, and is inclosed in quotation marks, too, as follows: "Every chancellor was in it for somebody or other when he was counsel at the bar."

Mrs. Ellis Smith and Miss Lucy Whittier of Botolph street have gone to Connecticut for two weeks to visit Mrs. Smith's sister. Little Miss Whittier has been under surgical treatment and in delicate health.

Miss Alicia B. Elcock, teacher at the Willard school, is improving the vacation travelling in the West. She has already visited Albany, Buffalo and Chicago, and will include Des Moines and Milwaukee in her itinerary, returning about Sept. 1.

AN OLD GENIUS IN A YOUNG BODY

[Original.]

MacMicken had been a great actor. Indeed, he still was a great actor, but he was drawing near the end of his career. People were beginning to regard him as a bit old fashioned. He had retired from the stage several times and had lately returned, "positively for the last time," and was playing an engagement at the Standard. His friends were vainly trying to keep up his audiences for a few nights longer when the old man would go on for the last night of his engagement.

But when that last night came MacMicken did not come with it. He owned a handsome country place twenty miles from the city and used to come in on an express train that was due at 6 o'clock. On the night of his last performance he did not show up as usual on the arrival of the train. There was a local train that arrived at a quarter to 8. He might have taken that, but the manager was a bit nervous at his not coming on the express and notified me, his understudy, to be ready for the part in case anything had happened. He further suggested that since Mac and I were the same build I'd better make up to personate the star as well as the character, which was Hamlet. If Mac should come in late many might not notice that he had not been on from the first.

The hour for the play arrived, and every one who had long admired MacMicken assembled to give the old man a fine sendoff. The manager had telegraphed to find out what was the matter, but there was no one at Mac's place except the servants, who replied that he had started to walk to the depot much earlier than usual.

At 8 o'clock the orchestra started in, and at a quarter after 8 the curtain went up. Hamlet is not on till the second scene, and up to the last minute it was hoped that Mac would appear. He did not. A few minutes before I was to go on I passed the manager, who hailed me with delight, thinking me to be the star. This indicated that I was well made up to represent MacMicken. I was received with a warm demonstration. I bowed—indeed, kept bowing for a long time—though I noticed that the noise was made mostly by a few of Mac's old friends. But I had no sooner got into my part than I discovered that I had secured unusual attention. I seemed buoyed by some inspiration by which I felt that I could not only take Mac's place, but take it in the days when he was as young as I. All the delicate shades of meaning to be found in that remarkable part, all the biting satire, the philosophic thought, seemed to come from me as a part of my nature. Before I went on for the second act I was told that the audience was wondering at Mac's rejuvenation, some of the older ones declaring he was doing work he had done thirty years before.

With every act the enthusiasm grew till at the close I held the audience spellbound. When the curtain fell there was a perfect storm of applause, and I was called before it again and again till I consented to speak. Where the words I said came from I did not know. I had entered so far into Mac's identity that I seemed to speak for him and as he would have spoken.

"My friends," I said, "I am deeply touched by this kind reception. Tonight, an old man, I have entered a youthful body, that I might make you really feel a pleasure you would have feigned from sympathy. I thank you, and goodby."

"You mean a young man in an old body!" cried a voice.

I went off amid a storm of applause to be met by the manager, who came at me angrily:

"What did you want to give it away for by talking about an old man in a young body for?"

"I don't know," I replied, confused, "somehow I thought I was Mac."

Anxious to get away and be by myself, I went directly to my dressing room and shut the door. I was disrobing when it opened, and who should come in but MacMicken himself.

"I suppose you think you've done a remarkable thing," he said, dropping into a chair.

"Why didn't you come and do it yourself?"

"Because I wanted to try an experiment. I know that I'm not what I was thirty years ago. Now, I believe in many things that the world scoffs at. Do you remember how you felt tonight when you spoke the lines:

"There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy?"

"I felt that there were."

"I made up my mind to let you, a young man, take my part on my last night and try to inspire you with my own fervor when I was your age. I came in town by an early train and have been sitting in the gallery with a mask on my face. I concentrated all my will power to throw my Hamlet—my Hamlet of years agone—into you. I have succeeded beyond my wildest expectations."

"And shown me how to play Hamlet."

"You think so? Play Hamlet without the inspiration I put into you tonight and see what you will do."

I went to bed feeling uncomfortable, but the next morning was myself again and scoffed at Mac's claim that he had supplied the ability with which I had made such a success. I had no trouble the next season in getting the manager to put me on in Hamlet. I was well advertised as MacMicken's understudy and on the opening night had a good house. I made a bad failure. I tried again and again to play Hamlet, without success, and at last was obliged to give it up."

WENDELL C. M'LAIN.

A WONDERFUL MEMORY.

The Story Maretus Told of a Young Corsican Marvel.

Maretus tells us that during his travels over Europe he met the "marvel of marvels" at Padua. The marvel in question was a young Corsican who was in the city for the purpose of pursuing his studies at the university. Maretus, having heard that the young man was gifted with an extraordinary memory, desired to put the student to the test.

The person who had informed the traveler concerning the wonderful retentiveness of the young Corsican's memory declared that he was so gifted in that faculty that he could repeat as many as 36,000 words if read over to him but once. Maretus and three distinguished Venetians agreed to test the accuracy of the statement. A committee visited the student of extraordinary memory and found him willing to submit to the ordeal. Accordingly there was read over to him an almost interminable list of words strung together without any consecutive order and without any meaning whatever.

The young man stood all the time with his attention deeply fixed and his eyes half closed. When the long string of words had been read off he looked up cheerfully and repeated the whole of the uninteresting catalogue of words without a single fault. Then to show how carefully his wonderful memory had retained every word he went through the list backward. When that task was finished he took each alternate word—first, third, fifth, etc.—and repeated them until the company was thoroughly convinced that they were in the presence of the most wonderful prodigy of memory that the world had ever produced.

KNOW THY COUNTRY.

A Precept That Every Citizen Should Take to Heart.

Juvenal said, "This precept descends from heaven—know thyself." To this we add—know thy country. Know its area, its population, its products, native and exclusive, agricultural and mineral. Know its present output and its possibilities. Know its states, its territories and large cities and what they are severally noted for. Know its geography and typography, its constitution, principles and history, its literature, its art and its sciences, its philosophy, discoveries and inventions. Know its relation to other nations, both political and financial. Know its possessions—Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines—their history severally, the customs and languages of their people and the sources of their wealth. Many men know these things now and love their country and are serviceable to their fellow citizens in proportion to their knowledge. It costs labor and the sacrifice of so called pleasure to acquire this knowledge, but to the genuinely manly man, whose life's purpose is to make the utmost of his abilities and opportunities and who in one way and another is developing his country's hidden treasures and imparting his own practical enthusiasm to other lives, there are a relish and a delight in the search for knowledge that compensate a thousandfold.

The Woman In Business.

A New York real estate agent has been telling of some of his business experiences with women. Mrs. A., he says, wanted to find a house that would fit her carpets and wasted several weeks on the job. Mrs. B. had six children of her own, but wanted a guarantee that no other children would be allowed in the building. Mrs. C. signed a lease with a clause that no dogs should be brought in and then deliberately brought several into her family and told the agent such restrictions in a lease were of no account. "Do you wonder," he asks, "that men do not like to deal with women?" Of course, however, Massachusetts women would never do anything like that.—Boston Globe.

An Ideal Bath.

An ideal combination is to soap the body all over, using tepid water before plunging into a cold bath. But there are many good folks who cannot face a cold bath daily and who after taking one are apt to be cold and shivering all the day through. For these the best plan is, after a warm bath, to sponge the throat and chest with cold water, which is most stimulating and especially so where the bather suffers from chronic colds. To insist on a cold bath is just as unwise as to have a bath that is too warm and to remain in it too long. That is the more general mistake.

Her Word of Honor.

"Don't you love me?"

"Yes, dear, but I'm already engaged."

"Break your engagement."

"Oh, George, that wouldn't be honorable! An engagement is a sacred thing, not lightly to be entered into or broken off. Besides"—

"Well?"

"Well, I'm engaged to two men, and that makes it even worse."—Cleveland Leader.

Stabbed.

"Whew! That's the first time I ever made a speech. I felt like I had forgotten all I had ever learned."

"You appeared to be talking just as you felt."—Houston Post.

A Snob.

Thackeray designated a snob as a being on a ladder who is quite as ready to kiss the feet of him who is above him as to kick the head of him who is below.

Nothing sharpens the arrow of sarcasm so keenly as the courtesy that polishes it. No reproach is like that we clothe with a smile and present with a bow.—Chesterfield.

Metropolitan Taxes

Wanted A Simpler System Of Taxation

The following enditorial from the Brookline Chronicle has the hearty endorsement of the Daily Ledger, and we believe represents public opinion:

The finances of the Metropolitan district are in such a hopeless tangle that no municipality can tell a year in advance how much it will be called upon to pay as its share of the Metropolitan taxes.

The Selectmen made in their report last year what had every appearance of being an authoritative estimate of the amount of the Metropolitan Park tax this year. As it was, they doubtless came as near to a correct guess as any one could have. Their estimate was about $5000 short of the mark.

It ought to be possible to predict correctly within $1000 the amount of such a tax, and it would be if the allotment of these metropolitan park, water and sewer taxes was not attended with so needless an amount of complexity.

The confusion, instead of becoming less every year, is gradually growing more. And the reason is because so many acamedic discriminations and sublities have been infused into the State's treatment of the Metropolitan finances, owing to a false idea of fairness and justice which leads not one of the municipalities to feel that it is safe from being imposed upon to gratify whims similar to those embodied in the apportionment of 1900.

The park apportionment of 1905 was much simpler, but we need to get nearer still to simplicity by the passage of permanent legislation which will establish a system the working of which every one will be able to understand in all its details.

The betterment idea is at the root of the whole evil. The notice that improvements should be paid for by the towns and cities which benefit directly is on its surface very simple, as well as very just, but a little experience has shown that in actual practice this principle of assessment is neither simple nor just, except under extraordinary conditions.

If the improvements are not for the benefit of the whole Metropolitan district, they should not be paid for out of the Metropolitan taxes as is the custom, but should be a matter for adjustment between the municipalities involved, and no other municipality should be bothered by having a minute share of the expense foisted into its contribution to the district.

The fact that the cost of improvements directly benefiting certain towns and cities is levied in part, at least upon the district at large, except in rare cases, shows that such improvements are regarded, properly, as metropolitan improvements for which the whole public is indebted.

Take the case of the Wellington bridge. Half the cost is placed on Somerville and Medford, because they benefit directly. It is a principal with which we are all familiar—of which the sewer assessment is a well known example. But its application may result in absurdities. Somerville may be supposed to benefit more from the construction of such a bridge than Boston. If so, then the side of Somerville toward the bridge receives more benefit than that most remote; then again, a special class of citizens living on the side toward the bridge uses it, and they alone should be taxed; to follow out the principle further would be simply to attain to the absurdity of taxing a small group of individuals, merchants or manufacturers operating many vehicles, for nearly the whole cost of a bridge, and such a method of taxation would be not only absurd, but would be a departure from that equitable distribution of taxes which economists describe as that toward which modern communities have been tending ever since the abolition of bridge tolls and similar obsolete eccentricities of taxation.

If all these improvements which are looked upon as affecting, even infinitesimally, the metropolitan district, were simply grouped together and their cost settled upon the district as a whole, the result would be vastly more equitable, and each municipality could figure out its share of the metropolitan debt on the basis of its own valuation, without having to contend with visionary, hairsplitting factors. If there are any improvements which benefit only two or three municipalities, then such improvements should be paid for wholly by such municipalities and should not be the business of the district. The confusion that results from mixing up the betterment assessment method with the even distribution method of taxation should be entirely eliminated—one method should be applied at a time, not both at once.

To Save Doctor's Bills.

Much is printed nowadays about big families. Dr. William J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., is the father of one of these much-read-about families. Here is what he says about Castoria.

"As the father of thirteen children, I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Charles H. Fletcher has received hundreds of letters from prominent physicians who have the same esteem for Castoria that Dr. McCrann has. Not only do these physicians say they use Castoria in their own families, but they prescribe it for their patients.

Eight Hours

Does the Law Apply to Building Warships in Private Shipyards?

The enforcement of the National eight-hour law may strike a severe blow to the shipbuilding industry of Quincy and government work by private contractors, as will be seen by Washington dispatches below.

The Transcript says: In view of the importance to labor circles of the President's recent action relative to the enforcement of the eight-hour law in Government work, it may be a matter of interest to note the method of application that has been given to the President's instruction by the legislative officers of the Government. The first of these orders was issued last Tuesday by Truman H. Newberry, acting secretary of the Navy and reads as follows:

To the chiefs of all bureaus, the commandant of the Marine Corps and the superintendent of the Naval Academy:

It has been customary for the Naval inspectors of work done under public contracts, acting in accordance with the department's instructions or approval, to ignore altogether the question whether Government contractors were obeying the law with reference to the eight-hour a day provision, it being the department's attitude that it was the duty of contractors with the Government to obey the law and not the peculiar responsibility of the department to see that they did so.

The attorney general rendered an opinion to the Secretary of War on this general subject in which a similar view was held, but without regard to previous holdings as to where technical responsibility for the violation of the law falls, it is the opinion of the President in which the department concurs, that it is the duty of the officers of the Government, with respect to public contracts that are performed under the supervision and the performance for which they are responsible, to use the powers they have to prevent violations of the law and especially to Federal law, by the contractors in the work that comes under their supervision.

The chiefs of bureaus, the commandant of the Marine Corps, and the superintendent of the Naval Academy, are therefore, directed to require their inspectors to report the cases in which laborers and mechanics upon any Government work within the purview of the act of Aug. 1, 1892, have been within the last two years, required to work more than eigth hours a day, and if so, under what emergency, if any, this work was performed.

It is of course unnecessary to say that a personal opinion as to the wisdom of this law can have no bearing at all upon the question of its enforcement, or of the duties of those who come in contact with its violation, being officers of the Government, to make full report of such violation to their superiors for such action as may be deemed wise. The chiefs of the bureaus will report to the department the result of their investigations, from time to time, as they are returned.

In all specifications hereafter for work within the purview of that act the especial attention of the contractors must be called to the eight-hour act, in order that they may be advised that should they fail to comply they will be reported by the officers of this department for such action as the department of justice may deem proper to take.

The Herald in a dispatch of Tuesday says: Acting Secretary Newberry of the navy department today asked for an opinion from the department of justice relative to the application of the eight-hour law to men employed on the construction of warships for the navy in private shipyards.

The penalty for violation of the eight-hour law is $1000 fine, or six months' imprisonment, or both.

County Treasurer

J. H. Cunningham Tax Collector Of Quincy Elected To the Office

A Quincy gentleman will be treasurer of Norfolk county for the balance of the year, and may be found so satisfactory that the voters will in November elect him for the balance of the term of the late Charles H. Smith of Dedham, which ends the first Wednesday in January 1908.

On Tuesday afternoon Commissioners Foster and Merrill elected James H. Cunningham as county treasurer, and he will assume the office as soon as his bonds for $50,000 are approved.

Mr. Cunningham is the Tax Collector of the City of Quincy, having been appointed to the office by Mayor Thompson in 1905, and reappointed this year. In 1892 was a member of the City Council from Ward Six; in 1893 and 1894, and again in 1898 he was inspector of the Board of Health; in 1901 he was appointed Overseer of the Poor and held the office four years, until appointed Tax Collector. He was born in Boston June 27, 1864, and for thirteen years after leaving school he was employed at the Wollaston foundry.

The salary of the County Treasurer is $2,000 per annum, and $314.57 is allowed for clerical services. The expenditures of the county in 1905 amounted to $529.59[illegible] which in-

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Those who have upheld the new basis of Metropolitan assessments, whereby the wealthy towns are favored at the expense of Quincy and other cities, may feel satisfied with results like this, as reported by a Boston paper:

"At a joint session of the Brookline board of assessors and the selectmen Monday the rate of taxation and the valuation of Brookline property was discussed. The indications point to the largest decrease in the tax rate in 15 years, the rate on each $1000 worth of property for the coming year to be about $9.25. An increase will be reported in the total valuation of more than $1,500,000, the total approximated at $93,000,000."

Under the new basis of apportionment Brookline had its water assessment materially reduced by placing the burden on consumption of water rather than valuation of town; it also had its park and boulevard assessment reduced, etc., etc. Meanwhile Quincy pays more both for water and parks.

STREUB INQUEST

Nineteen Witnesses Are Called Upon to Testify

BOY'S FATHER DETAINED

Efforts to Establish His Movements on Supposed Day of His Son's Murder--His Wife Under Severe Nervous Stress

Great Barrington, Mass., July 25.—When the inquest to determine the manner of the death of John Streub, the 12-year-old boy whose body was found concealed in the woods near Housatonic, was adjourned last evening, Emil Streub, the boy's father, was detained as a witness. The man was taken to the lockup in the basement of the town hall, where the inquest was held.

The authorities refuse to say why this step was taken, but although the proceedings of the inquest were private it is understood that the examination of the witnesses elicited some evidence of a sensational nature. Streub took the announcement that he would be detained calmly enough, but his wife and daughter, who were at the inquest, wept as they bade him goodnight.

Nineteen witnesses were summoned yesterday to give evidence at the inquest, and it was arranged that each person, as his name was called, should pass alone into the room where the examination was held. During the morning the witnesses examined included Joseph Rohan, the boy who found the body concealed under a pile of hemlock boughs on July 15; Medical Examiner Beebe, Harry Wilcox, the last person, so far as known, who saw the Streub boy before the tragedy, and Emil Streub, the boy's father.

It was expected that Emil Streub would be called again during the afternoon, but, for some reason, Judge Sandford, who presided at the inquest, gave his attention entirely to other witnesses. Among those examined were Philip Ano of Housatonic, an employe of the trolley company who saw young Streub on the day that he went to Great Barrington, shortly before his death is supposed to have occurred, Joseph Gerard, Nelson Shaw, Mrs. John Wheeler, Mrs. Joseph Adams, Thomas Coleman, Edward Buck, Mrs. William [illegible]rke, Oris Borer, Mrs. Emil Streub [illegible] daughter, Annie Streub.

Wanted to Visit Scenes of Youth

Binghamton, N. Y., July 25.—Frank Spaulding, 80 years old, a former resident of this place, reached here yesterday after walking from Chester, Pa., and has been sent to the Broome county poorhouse. Spaulding left Chester on July 12, leaving word with his daughter that he wanted to return to the scenes of his youth before he died. He had 17 cents when he left Chester and has walked nearly 300 miles, being well cared for by people on the road.

To Enforce Child Labor Law

Boston, July 25.—Chief Shaw of the state police, in accordance with instructions from Governor Guild, has issued orders to his officers throughout the commonwealth to make special endeavor to enforce the child labor law. It was recently stated by the bureau of statistics on labor that there were about 400 violations of the law in the state at present.

Car Repairers on Strike

New Orleans, July 25.—A strike of the Southern Pacific Railroad company's car repairers, which extends almost entirely across Louisiana and involves 500 men, has begun. The men demand recognition of their union. It is reported that the strike will shortly extend to Houston, Tex.

Iceberg Two Hundred Feet High

Montreal, July 25.—What is said to be the largest iceberg ever seen in the Atlantic ocean was sighted and measured from the steamer Ionian on her last trip, just outside the Straits of Belle Isle. It measured 200 feet high, and was moving southward, right in the track of navigation.

Bomb Factory at Moscow

Moscow, July 25.—A bomb factory in which was a quantity of loaded bombs was discovered here yesterday. The owner of the house and the bombmakers were arrested.

Funeral Services Over Sage

New York, July 25.—Funeral services over the body of the late Russell Sage were held in the First Presbyterian church at Far Rockaway, L. I. After the services the body was placed in a special car and brought to this city, where it was taken to the Sage home in Fifth avenue. Friends of the family were allowed a last look at the face of the dead financier last night. The casket containing Sage's body, when finally interred, will rest in a heavy steel case which, in turn, will be encased in concrete. Until such time as these arrangements can be carried out in detail it is said the temporary grave will be carefully guarded.

Goes to Canada For Trial

Washington, July 25.—The state department issued a warrant for the surrender to the Canadian authorities of David Hobbs, held under commitment in New York. Hobbs was employed by the Canadian Pacific Railway company and it was his business to pass upon invoices of goods going through the customs house after crossing the international line. It is alleged that by forgery and the manipulation of these invoices he defrauded the road to the extent of about $50,000.

New York, July 25.—David Hobbs was last evening sent back to Montreal for trial.

Alleged Sellers of Bad Stamps

New York, July 25.—Charged with selling mortgage tax stamps and stock transfer tax stamps that had already been used, five men were arrested in Wall street. The authorities charge that the state government has been defrauded of over $200,000. It is alleged that the marks on the stamps were removed by the use of chemicals, after which the stamps were ironed.

Immigrants Held In Slavery

Pensacola, Fla., July 25.—Peonage in its worst form is charged against the officers of the Jackson Lumber company at Lockhart, and United States deputies armed with warrants for their arrest have left here for that place. If the allegations are true, about 100 immigrants, mostly Germans, are held in the lumber camps of that company virtually as slaves.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The committee of five appointed by the Providence Board of Trade have begun their investigation regarding the high prices of ice in that city. The investigation is under authority of the state law.

Major Charles L. McCawley of the United States marine corps and Mrs. John Davis of Washington were married at Providence hospital, Washington, where McCawley is convalescing from an attack of typhoid fever.

Rear Admiral Swinburne has been assigned as commander-in-chief of the Pacific squadron, succeeding Rear Admiral Goodrich, who has been placed on waiting orders.

Dr. George W. Atherton, president of the Pennsylvania state college, died after a year's illness from bronchial trouble. He was 68 years of age and a native of Massachusetts.

Joseph Connors, aged 60, of Boston, was drowned at Effingham Falls, N. H., by the overturning of a canoe in which he was paddling.

The department of justice will be asked by the navy department whether a warship under construction is public work of the government within the meaning of the eight-hour law.

American Surety Company of New York

is the largest Company in the world whose sole business it is to furnish Suretyship Bonds.

It does not engage in bank or trust business, but limits all its operations to the broad field of Suretyship.

This limitation, with its large capital of $2,500,000, makes its signature on a bond far stronger than any personal security that can be offered.

The fact that the American Bankers' Association have selected this Company as the sole guarantor of the money orders now being issued on their form, shows its standing with the leading financiers of the country.

When required to give security, whether fidelity bond, court, contract or probate bond, or any kind of security whatever, apply to

A NEW MANIFESTO

Repression All Round Ordered by Russian Premier

THE PRESS IS MUZZLED

Extreme Measures Taken to Prevent an Upheaval Which Is Expected to Develop In the South and Roll Northward

St. Petersburg, July 25.—War to the knife and the knife to the hilt with revolution is proclaimed by Premier Stolypin in a telegram addressed to the governor generals, governors and prefects throughout Russia and to the viceroy of the Caucasus, who are ordered to strike and spare not in efforts to preserve order and crush "the enemies of society."

Included in this category, as shown by the events of yesterday, are not only revolutionists and Socialists, but also the educated liberal and landed classes represented in the Constitutional Democratic party, whose clubs everywhere have been closed, and all the progressive newspapers, which are not permitted to lift their voices anywhere throughout the entire land.

The manifesto bears a remarkable similarity to the earlier compositions of Ministers of the Interior Plehve and Bouligin, and the reactionary press has had slight difficulty in cutting it down, as they already had done with Monday's imperial manifesto, into an appeal to the "League of Russian Men" and other old school Russians to rise and smite all the progressive classes.

Even before the declaration of the dissolution of the lower house of parliament the war office had perfected its plans for handling expected disorders, both military and civilian. Both the government and the revolutionists expect an outbreak in the south and that it will roll northward to the two capitals. This may induce the proletariat organizations to postpone the declaration of a general strike from St. Petersburg until contagion is borne up from the south. The railroaders, however, are anxious to have this strike declared at once.

The strictest censorship over news of disorders is maintained. As an example, the mutiny at Brest-Litovsk July 23, when a band of artillerymen from the fortress fired on the officers' club, killing two officers, has been transformed into a fire destroying the house of the officers' club.

The ministry is obtaining slight aid from the forces of society at large in putting through its policy. Practically all those who have been approached have refused flatly to participate in the enlarged cabinet proposed.

The Constitutional Democratic club and two other political clubs were closed last night by order of the police authorities. A caucus of Constitutional Democrats was being held at the club named when it was closed. Prince Dolgourokoff, chairman of the central executive committee appointed at Vibourg on Monday, has called a meeting of that committee, which will arrange a secret caucus to discuss further tactics. Moscow Constitutional Democrats recommended the summoning of a national convention of the party, but this will scarcely be allowed by the authorities.

Meetings are being held in a dozen houses in St Petersburg, and just across the frontier railway employes, peasants, Socialists and revolutionists of different shades of opinion are discussing the best plan of action to throw the whole machinery of the government out of gear.

Agrarian disorders have broken out in the vicinity of St. Petersburg. The estate of General Baron Fredericks, aide-de-camp to the czar, 40 miles from the capital, has been plundered by peasants. Fredericks asked for troops from Gatchina, but was informed that the situation was too serious to permit of the changing of the present military dispositions.

Alladian Going to Finland

London, July 25.—M. Alladian, leader of the group of toil; M. Roditchoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats, and MM. Ostrogorsky, Vasileff and Levsky, who came to London from St. Petersburg to attend the inter-parliamentary union, departed last night. With the exception of Alladian, they will proceed direct to St. Petersburg. Alladian said: "I am not going to St. Petersburg, because if I did my life would be in extreme danger. While parliament was sitting I was comparatively safe, as deputies could not be arrested. Now that it is dissolved I must take every precaution. There are 45 death sentences hanging over my head. I am going to Finland, where the authorities will not be likely to arrest me."

Services Needed In Russia

Vienna, July 25.—Russian officers spending leaves of absence at Austrian watering places have been ordered by telegraph to return to Russia. The orders point out that threatening conditions make it necessary to place the army on a war footing.

Finns Hear of Amnesty

Helsingfors, July 25.—An imperial manifesto has been received here granting amnesty for all political offenses committed previous to the manifesto of Nov. 17, 1905. All fines for such offenses have been cancelled and will be repaid.

ELEVEN DEAD BODIES

May Be Four More In Ruins of Collapsed Building

South Framingham, Mass., July 25.—Although the search for the bodies of workmen and other persons thought to be buried in the ruins of the collapsed business block on Concord street continued all Monday night and yesterday, the coming of nightfall found the task of the searchers still far from completion. Tons of debris have been removed from the building and hauled away, but many tons more remain untouched by the shovelling gangs.

The finding of the body of Henry L. Sawyer, a hardware dealer, who went to the building to inspect the plumbing plans, has brought the number of bodies up to 11 and it is believed that three and possibly four more will be found later. Several workmen are still reported missing, and it is supposed that they were caught under the falling walls.

With the exception of Chester Nicholson, whose back was broken, all the injured are reported as comfortable. Physicians fear that Nicholson will be unable to survive the shock of the operation which is thought to be necessary.

The selectmen extended an invitation to the state police to investigate the cause of the collapse of the building, and three officers of that organization began the inquiry last night. They notified George M. Amsden, the owner of the building, and Andrew Jensen, the contractor, to tear down the tottering walls of the building at once.

Queen Wilhelmina's Affliction

The Hague, July 25.—The sudden illness of Queen Wilhelmina has spread grief throughout Holland, for it has been announced that an heir to the throne will not be realized for the present. The queen's disappointment is reflected throughout the whole country. Her premature illness is attributed to injuries she is supposed to have received when in a critical condition prior to her temporary separation from her husband. Queen Wilhelmina's condition is satisfactory and it is expected she will regain her normal health shortly.

A Meat Inspector's Revelation

Atlanta, July 25.—Inspector Wasser reports that meats have been butchered and sold in Atlanta which have been washed in water that came from a city sewer and that wells only 12 feet deep are used in some slaughter pens, into which flowed all the filthy water with which the beeves had been washed. "I have found," he reports, "as much as a carload of meat that had been killed only 36 hours, and which bore the government stamp, which I had to condemn and throw away."

Chinese Outbreak Not Feared

Washington, July 25.—Official announcement will be forthcoming shortly that the crisis in China has passed. Orders have been cabled to General Wood to send back to New York the army transports Meade, Kilpatrick, McClellan and Ingalls, which have been held at Manila for the past few months for possible use in transporting troops from the Philippines to China. China is slowly but surely lapsing into its normal state.

Ammon's Sentence Was Just

New York, July 25.—In a decision handed down by the appellate division of the supreme court, the lower court is sustained in denying Robert A. Ammon, convicted and sent to Sing Sing on an indeterminate sentence for complicity with the Miller 520 percent syndicate scheme, a writ of habeas corpus. Ammon made the plea that his sentence was illegal.

Steamer Passed Burning Derelict

New York, July 25.—The burning hull of an abandoned iron vessel was sighted about 900 miles east of Sandy Hook light on July 21 by the American steamer Francisca. All of the decks, spars and woodwork of the vessel had been destroyed by the flames. There was nothing about the craft to reveal its identity.

New Steamboat Regulations

Washington, July 25.—Regulations of the steamboat inspection service have been amended in some particulars, most of the amendments being purely administrative. The regulations just promulgated provide, however, that the masters of passenger barges shall have to take out hereafter a license from the government.

Something New For Alabama

Birmingham, Ala., July 25.—At a meeting of the Republican state executive committee here it was decided to put out a full state ticket and to nominate candidates at a primary in September. This will be the first general Republican primary ever held in Alabama.

TRAFFIC HELD UP

Street Car Service at New Bedford Is Curtailed

STRIKE BECOMES SERIOUS

Demonstrations In Neighborhood of Car Barns--Mud and Stones Thrown at Cars by Sympathizers With the Strikers

New Bedford, Mass., July 25.—Street car service in this city ceased five hours before the regular stopping time last night as the result of a strike of 200 employes of the Union Street Railway company for an increase in wages, recognition of the union and shorter hours.

The prospects for the resumption of traffic along the regular lines today are not encouraging, and it is quite probable that nearly everyone dependant on the electric cars will either have to walk or return to the stage coach days of the last century.

There were several demonstrations about the car barns as the last cars were hauled in about 6 o'clock and two arrests were made, Joseph Mahar, 35 years old, and Archie Goulette, 14 years old. The former was taken into custody for disturbing the peace, the police believing that he was about to hurl a stone at the cars, while young Goulette was throwing stones at one of the cars.

Although the last car on the regular city lines reached the barn at 6 o'clock, it was not until 9 o'clock that service on the Dartmouth and Westport line, between this city and Fall River, ceased.

A dozen policemen were at the car barns all the afternoon and were kept busy last evening keeping back the crowd of hooting sympathizers. Many of the cars from the South End came in with their sides plastered with mud, while several others showed dents from stones.

President Fitzgerald of the local union spoke at the Central Labor union last evening and urged the members to support the strike.

The company was able to keep several of the lines opened during the day, but was unwilling to take the risk of subjecting passengers to possible violence during the evening hours. The day service was, however, intermittent, and very few cars were run during the latter part of the afternoon.

President Crapo and other street railway officials intend to gauge public sentiment accurately before again running cars, as they do not care for a repetition of last night's riot. Both the street railway officials and the strikers are unrelenting in their attitude. On both sides it is conceded that it will be a fight to the finish. Last night's fray is believed to be only the mild beginning, the consequence of which may be the calling out of the state militia.

Part of Train Dropped Into Lake

Spokane, Wash., July 25.—Six persons were killed when part of a passenger train fell into Diamond lake, near Camden. It is reported that a half-dozen other persons are missing and their bodies may be buried under the wreckage at the bottom of the lake. No bodies have been recovered. Efforts with a steam derrick to raise the submerged locomotive and the cars were unsuccessful. The accident resulted from spreading rails.

Policies Void by Earthquake Clause

San Francisco, July 25.—The Phoenix Royal Insurance company of Vienna, which carried about $2,500,000 insurance in this city, has decided not to pay any loss growing out of the conflagration of last April. The company's policies carried an earthquake clause. The official notice says that "all policies of this company became null and void by said earthquake, as the same was wholly responsible for the conflagration that followed."

Mysterious Witness In Thaw Case

New York, July 25.—Much speculation was caused at the district attorney's office late yesterday by the appearance there of a new witness in the Thaw case, whose identity none of the officials concerned would make known. She was a woman past 40 years old. She came to the criminal courts building in company with P. L. Bergoff, a detective. When she went out she was escorted not only by Bergoff, but by a policeman.

Not For Roosevelt's Renomination

New York, July 25.—A dispatch from Spring Lake, N. Y., to the Brooklyn Eagle quotes Governor Higgins as expressing the opinion that the next New York state Republican convention will give President Roosevelt's administration a hearty endorsement, but will not propose his renomination in 1908.

Alleged Swindler Held

Boston, July 25.—Frank H. Bridge, the alleged Cleveland swindler, who was arrested at Arlington on the charge of using the mails for fraud in several cities of the country, was arraigned before Commissioner Hayes and held in $4000 for the grand jury of the northern district of Ohio.

Democratic Leader to Return

Jackson, Miss., July 25.—The Democratic executive committee of the Eighth district formally declared John Sharp Williams the party candidate for congress from that district.

THE GOODELL MASTERY.

Authorities Have Made No Progress Toward Its Solution

Belchertown, Mass., July 25.—The mystery of the disappearance of Miss Winzola M. Goodell continues unsolved. The pond where the girl's boat was found was dragged from one end to the other without yielding any trace of the missing girl, but State Detective Hodges still believes the body will eventually be found in the pond.

It has been decided to secure a diver from Boston to search the bottom of the pond and should this method prove fruitless, the chain of three ponds will be drained. The expense of doing this will be considerable, but will be met by private subscriptions.

The mysterious horse and wagon which were in the woods near the pond on the day of the disappearance of Miss Goodell have been traced. The team proved to be the property of a person in no way connected with the disappearance of Miss Goodell.

Entwined In Live Wire

Malden, Mass., July 25.—After falling 15 feet from a telegraph pole George Silliker, a lineman, nearly met death from live wires. Silliker was cutting wires and had climbed to the top of a pole which had become decayed from age. Suddenly it broke near the bottom, throwing Silliker to the ground. The pole fell on him, pinning him to the ground. Silliker managed to keep from within the reach of the wires, which were charged with electricity, until rescued by fellow-workmen. He received a broken leg and internal injuries. He is in a critical condition.

Peculiar Accident to a Doctor

Boston, July 25.—Dr. Edward H. Place, one of the resident physicians at the Boston city hospital, is on the dangerous list at that institution. Place was passing through one of the contagious wards when he discovered a girl who had black diphtheria having hard work to breathe, and in order to relieve her the doctor inserted a tube in her throat. It was while he was doing this that the girl accidentally bit one of his fingers, and now blood poisoning has set in. The case is one of the most peculiar on record at the city hospital.

From Insane Asylum to Court

Boston, July 25.—Albert Jennings, former town treasurer for Wellesley, who was committed to the Worcester insane asylum in 1902 after he had been charged with larceny and forgery, was released from that institution yesterday as cured. As soon as Jennings was released he was arraigned in the superior criminal court, where he pleaded not guilty to charges of larceny and forgery and furnished $4000 bail for a further hearing. It is understood that his defense will be insanity. Bail was furnished.

A Cold-Blooded Murder

Somerville, Mass., July 25.—Henry E. Parsons was arrested, charged with the murder of George W. Gilmore. Later on Parsons was arraigned in court and upon his refusing to plead he was held without bail for a hearing. Parsons appeared in a dazed condition. He is a tinsmith by occupation and five years ago figured in a shooting case at Charlestown, when he killed a man. The police authorities incline to the opinion that Parsons' mind is unbalanced, but yesterday's shooting was a cold-blooded affair.

Aldermen Talk of Bribery

Lowell, Mass., July 25.—Charges of bribery were made at a meeting of the Lowell board of aldermen in connection with the Independent Telephone and Telegraph company alleged graft. Alderman Dodge declared that another member of the board had been offered $1000 to vote against the company. Alderman Hayes stated that it was he who had been offered the bribe. The charges evoked considerable sensation throughout the meeting.

Man and Woman Killed by Train

Rutland, Vt., July 25.—In attempting to drive across a railroad track in the outskirts of the city, Vernon H. Reed and Mrs. Mattie Whitton were killed and Fred Bissell was perhaps fatally injured. The place where the accident occurred is at the foot of a steep grade, where it is difficult to see the approach of trains. The pilot of the locomotive struck the carriage and all the occupants were thrown a considerable distance.

Injunction Against Strikers

Boston, July 25.—On petition of the Waltham Bleachery and Dye Works company, 242 members of the Dyeworkers' union who are on strike for higher wages have been temporarily enjoined by the superior court from picketing, boycotting boarding house keepers who are lodging and feeding present employes of the factory, using violence toward present employes and congregating about the plant.

Prison Official Under Fire

Boston, July 25.—An investigation of the management of the house of correction at Deer island, under James R. Gerrish, was ordered last night by the Boston city council. The order brings charges of wrongdoing against Gerrish and directs that a joint committee consisting of five members of the common council and three of the board of aldermen be appointed to investigate the charges.

Terrible Fall of Two Men

North Adams, Mass., July 25.—A staging on which Daniel Bergen and Charles Williams were working in the Methodist Episcopal church gave way and the men fell 60 feet to the pews in the auditorium. Bergen died in a short time and Williams was injured so badly that he will probably die.

HANDLING KEROSENE.

How to Insure Against Explosions With Proper Care.

It would be an excellent thing if there were some simple and perfectly safe way in which a housekeeper could determine for herself the flash point of the kerosene she buys. Unfortunately the handling of kerosene which is hot enough to flash is a highly dangerous thing for one who is not instructed in the matter. There are some things, however, which a housekeeper may do, says Professor W. P. Bradley in Good Housekeeping.

First.—Kerosene should always be handled by daylight and away from all flames and fires. Under no circumstances whatever should a lamp be filled while its wick is lighted.

Second.—After filling a lamp both the burner and the reservoir should always be carefully wiped free from oil films.

Third.—When a lamp is not burning it is well to keep the wick a little below the top of the tube. This helps to prevent oil from working over upon the burner and reservoir.

Fourth.—Fill your lamps as often as they are used. Especially do not light a lamp when the oil is low in the reservoir.

Fifth.—Remembering that even explosive vapor cannot do harm unless in some way it actually comes in contact with a flame, never use a burner which fits loosely upon the rest of the lamp. A loose joint may leak vapor, which is likely in turn to be drawn up into the flame.

Sixth.—Never use a wick which does not fit the tube provided for it.

Seventh.—Never blow out a kerosene flame downward. Turn down the wick a little and let the flame go out of itself. If you must blow it out, blow upward through the burner or across the top of the chimney. Both of these methods produce an upward draft.

Eighth.—Always keep the kerosene can and filler in a clean, well ventilated place, where no lights ever come.

How to Banish Ants.

The only way to exterminate ants is to find the nest and destroy it, says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune. Place some grains of coarse granulated sugar where they will be easily found by the ants, and then watch each loaded body as it scampers over the line of march to the nest. Often the watching ends at the wall, especially if the house is old, and it may be necessary to cut away a portion of the surbase before the nest can be reached. At other times the little fellows make straight for out of doors with a wisdom one can only marvel at, and then, if followed, they will be seen to enter a hole in the ground. This is the nest. When the nest is in the house saturate it thoroughly with kerosene or with boiling water, doing the work quickly, for all the little spry mites will hurry to get away from the death dealing fluid. Any portion of the wall or of the flooring that has been removed in order to reach the nest can be replaced when the work is accomplished.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

Embroidered Lingerie Still Popular. Sheeting For Suits.

The lingerie belts this summer are very elaborate. Those of embroidered muslin and linen are supplemented with bands of velvet that can be easily detached when the belt needs cleaning. A very dainty affair is made on a stiff boned lining of plaited embroidered muslin. The top and bottom edges are trimmed with valenciennes lace and the plaits held down with crossbars of insertion.

SERGE BATHING SUIT.

New sheetings for suits come already bleached instead of half bleached, as we have been used to finding them.

There is a distinct style in top coats, and pongee has come back to favor for these wraps. It may be lined or unlined. Most of these coats are relieved about the neck and wrists with a touch of bright color or black suede used in the same fashion. For traveling and autoing a coat of this kind is invaluable made loose, but not full, and reaching to about the hem of the dress skirt.

Ruffled petticoats of pink and blue lawn for wearing under sheer gowns are in the shops.

The bathing suit illustrated is of fine hard twisted blue serge. Each ruffle of the double skirt is edged with black soutache braid. The blouse is box plaited and attached to the skirt. There is a square neck, and the sleeves are short and puffed and edged with braid.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

How He Came to Suicide

[Original.]

"By the bye, Talbot, that autocratic, high stepping Miss Peachblow that you were thinking of marrying has opened an art store. That girl ought to have had a fortune. She is just fitted to be the head of a gentleman's house."

Walter Talbot, who was brushing his hair before a mirror, struggling to get the part straight and in a place to suit him, turned and looked at his friend inquiringly. He admitted that Miss Peachblow was an old flame of his, and had it not been for her poverty he might have married her. It had not been necessary that he should be deprived of his love on this account, for he had inherited some means and was doing very well in his profession. He had gone so far as to become engaged to her, but on thinking the matter over had concluded that in this commercial age there was nothing practical in mating with a poor woman. So he had broken the engagement. He had not since met any one, rich or poor, whom he had cared to marry and had remained a bachelor.

"Where is her shop?" he asked, resuming his toilet.

The location was given, and Talbot thought that he would go into the store and see how his old flame would look behind the counter. It was several years since he had seen her, and she might feel embarrassed at meeting him. As for Talbot, his equanimity was not easily disturbed. The next afternoon on returning from his office he chose a different route from his usual one and stopped at a shop which bore a sign "Maria Peachblow." Seeing his former fiancee engaged with a customer, he waited near the door. Miss Peachblow turned her eyes toward him. She did not start. She did not blush. She simply cast her eyes again upon a picture she was trying to sell.

Talbot was sure she had recognized him and was surprised that she gave no evidence of the fact. For the first time in the presence of a woman he felt uncomfortable. If she persisted in treating him as a stranger his visit would not be a pleasant one. He wished he had not come. It wouldn't do for him to back out now, so he leaned on a counter and sucked the head of his walking stick nervously. The customer, a lady, was in no hurry to choose, and it was half an hour after Talbot entered the shop before Miss Peachblow made a sale, took the lady's address and promised to send the picture the next day. Then as the customer went out Miss Peachblow advanced with that stereotyped look on her face by which salespeople ask without the trouble of speaking, "What can I do for you?"

Talbot stood trying to smile, but a forced smile, especially when one is badly disgruntled, results in something not unlike a grimace. Conscious of this, Talbot flushed. The lady noticed neither of these conditions. She simply said:

"Will you look at some pictures?"

"Yes—no—thank you—if you have anything that you think will please me."

Miss Peachblow turned and led the way to large portfolios in racks and, opening them, said:

"Here are some fine engravings. These are water colors I can especially recommend. In this one you will find some photographs of celebrated pictures."

Talbot took hold of one of the portfolios, and his hand trembled. This by no means tended to restore his equanimity. He wanted to break through the invisible mask, shield or whatever it was that she held between them. Had he come with any definite purpose he could easily have stated it, but he had not. He had broken his engagement through selfish motives, and for the first time he began to realize how selfish they were. He had come to the girl he had jilted with motives of idle curiosity, and he began to feel that he had been a fool to step in where an angel would have feared to tread.

If Miss Peachblow had shown any relish in her revenge, the spell by which Mr. Talbot was held at arm's length would have been broken. She did not. She treated him as she would have treated any other customer.

"I think this will do," said Talbot, selecting a landscape, "and this," a battle piece. "I'll hang them together."

"The landscape is soothing, the battle piece exciting. They will make a good contrast. Will you have them framed?"

"Certainly; frame them."

"I will show you some samples."

"Never mind the samples. I would prefer to leave the framing to your taste."

"But the prices vary. We have frames at prices from 20 cents to $5 a foot. I think you had better instruct me in this."

"Put on a suitable frame, no matter what the cost."

"Very well, I will do my best and send them. Let me see. This is Monday. Will Thursday do?"

"Yes, Thursday. Any day."

Meanwhile Miss Peachblow was looking for an order book, and, finding one, took up a pencil.

"Address, please."

"Walter B. Talbot, 126 Orchard avenue."

"T-a-l or T-o-l?"

"B-o-t or b-u-t?"

"B-o-t."

"Thank you very much."

"Send the bill with the goods."

The lady, with a slight bend of the head, turned away to wait on another customer who had entered, and Talbot departed.

Six months later Talbot shot himself for love of Miss Peachblow.

The offices of the Board of Health and Sewer department are to be located in the City Auditor's room on the Council chamber floor during the balance of the summer months. The change is made on account of the dampness of the basement.

The many friends and acquaintances in this city of Mrs. Nellie Harrington of Boston will be sorry to learn of her husband's serious illness at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and all extend their sympathy in this her hour of trouble.

An Excellent War Record

The funeral of Daniel F. French, a veteran of the civil war who died at the Soldiers' home in Chelsea, was held Tuesday from the residence of his niece on Washington street. The services were conducted by Rev. Edward Norton. The remains were then escorted by Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., to the Hancock cemetery where they were placed in the French tomb.

The burial service of the Grand Army was read at the grave, and closed with three volleys by the firing squad. The casket containing the remains was covered with the National flag under which he fought for nearly four years.

Daniel F. French served in Co. H., 4th Regt., and was considered one of the minute men of '61, serving three months. He re-enlisted in Co. K., 18th Regt., in Aug. 1861 and was discharged Nov. 8, 1862. Reenlisted again in 56th Regt. Veterans, Co. E., for three years; mustered in Jan. 1864. He was promoted sergeant Jan. 1864; promoted sergeant major, Feb. 8, 1864; promoted 2d lieutenant April 26, 1864; promoted 1st lieutenant and quartermaster, Aug. 7th, 1864.

He was wounded in left shoulder June 17, 1864, at the battle of Petersburg; wounded in right side July 12, 1864, but continued in the service until June 26, 1865.

During his first enlistment he cared for his comrade Francis L. Souther, who was mortally wounded in battle of Big Bethel, Va., and who expired in his arms. He served in the Wilderness campaign, Petersburg, at Appomattox. He was a generous, loyal comrade.

Funeral of Mr. Webster.

The funeral of Granville S. Webster, a former master of the Willard school, was held Tuesday afternoon from his late residence on Adams street, East Milton. Rev. Edward Anderson of the East Milton Congregational church officiated.

The services were very largely attended, many of the teachers of the Eliot school, Boston, being among those present. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers that almost hid from view the casket containing the remains. A male quartette sang several selections. The burial was at the Milton cemetery.

How to Rest.

To understand how to rest is of more importance than to know how to work, says the Washington Star. The latter can be learned if one will give one's mind to it, but the former is an act some people never acquire. Rest necessitates change of scene and activities. Lounging is very often tiring, sleeping is not always restful, and sitting down with nothing to do is simply to invoke weariness. A change is needed to bring into play a different set of faculties and to direct the thoughts into a new channel. The man or woman who is weary with care finds relief in active employment with freedom from responsibility. The brain worker generally finds the best rest in playing hard. It is quite a mistake always to expect to find it in idleness.

How to Renovate Black Dresses.

A whole black skirt, no matter how soiled, may be completely renovated by adding a quart of strained soap bark solution (an ounce steeped in a quart of water) to a couple of gallons of hot water. Immerse the skirt in this and work up and down, in and out, according to the manner of washing flannels, until the skirt is clean; rinse in clean tepid water, wring and shake vigorously, hang out on a line upside down and when nearly dry iron on the wrong side.

Who Gets the Most Out of Life?

Not the wealthiest, not the most learned, nor the idler—but the man who has good health and works for his living. This truth is trite, but not trivial.

Every man should guard his health as his most valuable possession. The more so because health is easier to retain than regain.

Keep your grip on health by regular exercise, reasonable care in eating and requisite sleep. Take Beecham's Pills occasionally, to tone the stomach and keep the liver and bowels in good working order. And don't worry.

Observe these simple rules and you will agree that the one who gets the most from life is

THE CHILEAN "YAPPA."

It Is Similar to the "Lagniappe" of New Orleans.

Residents of New Orleans and northern readers of Cable's stories of the city are familiar with the interesting and gracious custom of small tradesmen of giving lagniappe. The word, commonly pronounced "lanyap," refers to the small present which the dealers make to their customers as a sort of inducement to call again. The custom is so firmly established that the people are in the habit of waiting for their little present after they have made their purchases, and children ask for it. Mrs. Hort in her book "The Garden of the Pacific" describes a similar custom in Valparaiso. The Chileans, however, call the gift a "yappa," which one readily sees is kindred to the word used in New Orleans.

"I used to frequent the fruit market, which was well stocked. The fresh figs were the largest and sweetest that I had ever seen or tasted, and I made a point of daily bringing some home for breakfast.

"The first time I selected the number which I wanted the girl placed them between leaves in my basket and then laid another half dozen on the top. I supposed that she wished me to buy an extra quantity and shook my head in the negative. She smilingly explained that it was for a yappa. As I had nothing more to pay, I was agreeably impressed by the custom.

"The Chileans exact the yappa as their due. We were in a confectionery shop one day when a small child came in and held up a centavo (halfpenny) for some sweets. The man handed them to her. She held up her other hand and lisped out, 'Mi yappa,' and got it."—New York Globe.

THE SAIS OF EGYPT.

A Warning Runner Who Bellows Like a Bull as He Goes.

The sais is a runner who keeps in front of a carriage and warns common people out of the way and who beats them with a stick if they do not hurry up about it.

It is obvious that to do this he must run quickly. Most men when they run bend their bodies forward and keep their mouths closed in order to save their wind. The sais runs with his shoulders thrown back and trumpeting like an enraged elephant. He holds his long wand at his side like a musket and not trailing in his hand like a walking stick, and he wears a soft shirt of white stuff and a sleeveless coat buried in gold lace.

He is a perfect ideal of color and movement, and as he runs he bellows like a bull or roars as you have heard a lion roar at feeding times in a menagerie.

There are sometimes two of them running abreast, dressed exactly alike and with the upper part of their bodies as rigid as the wand pressed against their sides and with the ends of their scarf and the long tassel streaming out behind.

As they yell and bellow donkeys and carriages and people scramble out of their way until the carriage they precede has rolled rapidly by. Only princesses of the royal harem and consuls general and the heads of the army of occupation and the Egyptian army are permitted two sais; other people may have one.

When Thackeray Struck.

A letter written by Thackeray to the proprietor of Fraser's Magazine is quoted under the head of "When Thackeray Went on Strike." As a matter of fact, Trackeray, so far from acting on the principle of unionism, acted on precisely the opposite principle and asserted his right to individual preference. "Well," he says, "I dare say you will be very indignant and swear I am the most mercenary of individuals. Not so. But I am a better workman than most of your crew and desire a better price." He ends amiably, "You must not, I repeat, be angry or, because we differ as tradesmen, break off our connection as friends."—London News.

A Barbarous Policy.

After the Dutch had taken the Moluccas from the Portuguese they introduced the cultivation of the clove into their own possessions, cut down all the clove trees of the Moluccas and pronounced death on any one who would plant a single clove bush or gather or sell a pound of the product. Expeditions were sent from their other eastern possessions every year to cut down any bushes that might have accidentally started in the Molucca islands. This barbarous policy made the islands a desert, for, deprived of their forests, the volcanic soil was washed away, and the population starved or was deported.

His Fair Share.

The Chinese always have understood the great art of making the punishment fit the crime. Man or joss, if he offends, gets exactly his deserts. Viceroy Shum, who was anxious to see the end of the heavy rainfalls, was very angry with the guardian joss of Canton, who remained deaf to all prayers to bring about a little sunshine. A Weiyuen was dispatched to the temple with orders to uncover the roof over the joss' head and let him have his fair share of the rain.

Logical.

She—I think we should be able to live nicely on $3,000 a year. He—But my salary is only $2,000. She—I know it, dear, but my clothes come to $1,000 a year, and I have enough now to last for the first twelve months.

Woman's Love.

"Which of the two do you think you will love the longest, Peter or Paul?"

"The one who will forget me the quickest."—Paris Figaro.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Light Cheaper

Electric Light Company Will Make Bigger Discounts

The finding of the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners on the petition for a reduction in the prices charged by the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. is considered by the officials of the company to be a tribute to the manner in which they have conducted the business.

The Treasurer of the company, in an interview with a representative of the Daily Ledger, says that the report shows that it has been supplying the current for street lighting at cost, while the rates for commercial lighting and power are low as compared with companies of like standing.

The salient points in the report are that its present plant is in every respect modern, of high efficiency, and economical in its operation. Its present dividends are moderate, and its profits have not been extravagant.

It is true, as the report says, that a very large proportion of its commercial business is made up of small consumers, and taken as a whole the report is a very complimentary one to the company.

In regard to the recommendations, that the maximum net price for commercial lighting be reduced from 18 cents to 17 cents per kilowatt hour, the Treasurer says that they will comply with it, and that beginning August 1, a discount of 15 per cent will be made on bills of $10 and less for prompt payment, instead of 10 per cent as now.

This with the free lamp renewals, recently established, virtually means a reduction of 15 per cent. The base rate, however, will remain at 20 cents as at present.

In conclusion the official said that it had always been the policy of the company to furnish the best of service and to make reductions in price when possible to do so.

New Guardian For Aged Sisters

Judge Flint, sitting in the Probate Court at Brookline Wednesday, says the Journal, granted the petition for the appointment of Mrs. Lizzie C. Winslow as guardian of her aged mother and aunt, Mrs. Caroline W. Esterbrook and Mrs. Harriett W. Butters, respectively, who it was alleged had been ill-treated by Mrs. Helen F. E. Cox, in whose custody they had been until quite recently.

The petition and subsequent appointment of Mrs. Winslow, who is a Brockton woman, as guardian followed a somewhat sensational entrance made by the police into the Cox home in order to serve legal papers. Mrs. Cox subsequently disappeared and she was not represented at the court on Wednesday.

Both women have improved to a great extent since they have been in Brockton in the care of Mrs. Winslow and Mrs. Butters, the aunt, is now able to converse intelligently. The bruises on the limbs and bodies of the women have almost entirely disappeared and they are both better physically and mentally.

Open Meeting Of Painters

An open meeting of the Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers union was held on Wednesday evening at Cahill's hall on Water street, forty or more being present.

General Organizer McCarty of the brotherhood spoke of the benefits to be derived from affiliation with the brotherhood. Other speakers were General Organizer Cowper of Lynn of the Carpenters union; Brother Estabrook of District Council No. 25 of Boston; Brother McGilvray of Brookline, Brother Johnson Quincy, and Brother Bowers. There were several applications for membership.

Fair Passenger Taken for Life

Alfred W. Bisson, the well known depot carriage proprietor, was united in marriage on Wednesday to Miss Emma Magnason. The wedding, which was a quiet affair, took place at the residence of Rev. A. A. Ellsworth on Russell Park, who performed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Miss Sadie Bisson, a sister of the groom, and the best man was George Curtis.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the future home of Mr. and Mrs. Bisson at 274 Water street, and was attended only by the immediate family friends.

Mr. Bisson will give a reception to the Sunshine club, of which he is a time honored member, next Monday evening at Cahill's hall.

The Q.Y.C. Run To Marblehead

The annual club run of the Quincy Yacht club to Marblehead to attend the midsummer races will be made on Sunday. The preparatory flag will be lowered at 9.15, and the start will be made at 9.30. The first yacht to arrive will anchor and take the time of all yachts. The Commodore offers a cup for the best corrected time in each class, and flags for the first, second and third best actual time.

These are the Days.

These are the days when the word "Adirondacks" sounds good to everyone. Up there the sun is just as bright, but the days are never hot and enervating—the nights are always cool and the pine-laden air has that invigorating something in it that brings sleep, appetite, rest and new life to the jaded urbanite.

These are the days! The season is at its height. All the hotels are open and there is room enough for everyone. The Adirondack country is too vast ever to become crowded. From east, west, north or south you can reach the North Woods via the New York Central Lines, "America's Greatest Railroad."

The Runaways Reported Married

Frank Smith, father of Margaret Smith whom Duncan Cameron is charged with abducting, will withdraw his complaint and bestow his parental blessing on the couple. Word was received by Chief Burrell on Wednesday from the Chief of Police at Elizabeth, N. J., that the couple had been married.

Mrs. Smith also received a letter from her daughter stating that she had been married in Grace church, New York, July 23. This would indicate that the couple went to New York Sunday night and was married upon their arrival and then went on to Elizabeth, N. J., the home of Cameron.

Memorial Volume Henry H. Faxon

A memorial volume of the late Henry Hardwick Faxon has been privately published by his son, and was issued this week from the Riverside press. There is a brief biographical sketch occupying eight pages, followed by a full report of memorial services held in Lorimer hall, Boston, Jan. 18, 1906, and reported at length in the Ledger at the time.

The volume makes a very attractive typographical appearance, and has an artistic cover. There is a half tone of Mr. Faxon for a frontispiece, and there is also in the book a view of his birthplace, the old Job Faxon estate near Faxon park. Friends of the late Henry H. Faxon will prize the book very much.

England's Soccer Stars Coming

The annual visit of the English football players is of interest to lovers of the Soccer game, of whom there are many in Quincy. Some of the members of the McGregor and Fore River teams will probably be pitted against them.

On Aug. 2, says the Boston Transcript, a team of Corinthians will leave Liverpool for New York, and on the 11th of the month they will play a match at Montreal. Following this match a programme embodying matches at Toronto, Ottawa, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and New York will be gone through. The tour will close at Boston, and the party will leave for England again on Sept. 15.

The party will consist of T. S. Howlandson (goal), C. C. Page, P. R. May and W. U. Timmis, (backs), C. Wroford Brown, M. Morgan Owen, R. D. Craig and B. H. Willett, (half backs) G. C. Vassall, S. H. Day, G. S. Harris, G. N. Foster, N. S. Cornelius, B. O. Corbett and E. G. D. Wright (forwards). The most prominent absentees, therefore, are S. S. Harris and Vivian Woodward.

The Corinthians, as every English foot-ball follower knows, is England's greatest amateur team. The club is composed exclusively of 'varsity and public school men, and not more than ten new members can be elected in one year, Thus, in the team which won the Dewar Shield in 1904 there were five Oxford blues and five Cambridge blues. To stand as the first amateur club in the land while confining membership to the 'varsities and public schools is no small credit to the Corinthians.

The club was founded in 1883 by Mr. N. L. Jackson, and within nine years there had been forty-four players chosen to play for England in the Internationals. One thing is most remarkable in the play of the Corinthians. That is, that for twenty-six years their characteristic style on the field has never changed. The style has always been unique and has never been absent even in the club's worst years.

The forwards play a most open game without a suspicion of crowding. They take the ball on the run and make straight for the goal without dallying. Their passing is quick, crisp and along the ground, while their shooting is done from all angles. There is plenty of hard charging, but never anything like foul play. There is any amount of life and go, and no one ever slacks. In fact, the impression one gleans from watching the Corinthians is that they play to win the game and to enjoy themselves while doing so.

—What is said to be the largest iceberg ever seen in the Atlantic ocean was sighted and measured from the steamer Ionian on her last trip, just outside the straits of Bell Isle. It measured 200 feet high, and was moving southward right in the track of navigation.

Drift of Opinion.

☞It was fortunate when the South Framingham accident occurred that the 9th Regiment and a part of the 6th were in camp near by. Also that a trolley line connected the camp with the village. Equally so that a car came along just as General Whitney was ready to start for town with a detachment. "Get out; and get out quick!" shouted the General in a voice that no passenger failed to hear and obey, and the soldiers were taken aboard and the car sped on its way. It was hard on the tourists to be thus given a lesson in military necessity, but there was no time to be lost, and with General Whitney in command there is no use in kicking. But the sufferers at South Framingham got relief more promptly than if the soldiers had had to walk, while the tourists rode.

The presence of the soldiers was not only a first aid to the injured, but they were a useful police force, and altogether it was a lucky combination of fortuitous circumstances. Governor Guild has recognized the value of the service rendered, by an order to the troops, in which he expresses his hearty appreciation of their prompt and efficient service at the disaster at South Framingham, and added, "The need as well as the value of an organized volunteer militia in peace as well as in war has again been conspicuously demonstrated."—Lynn Item.

☞When women's wrappers are paid for at the rate of forty-nine cents a dozen, and silk waists at eight cents each, it is easy to understand why even the help of tiny children must be called upon to earn a pittance for the makers. If the children can do no more than thread needles or pull out bastings their assistance is precious; if they are intelligent enough to sew on buttons, or make buttonholes, their help is more precious still. As soon as baby fingers can move intelligently, they play an increasingly important part in the labor of the household.

It seems incredible, I know, to talk of an infant three years old working, and some may regard the statement that such little ones do work as a sensational exaggeration. But it is literally true as is proved by the testimony of witnesses of unimpeachable character. A baby three years old can straighten out tobacco leaves or stick the stamens of artificial flowers through the petals. A child of four can put the covers on paper boxes, or even help to paste them. A child from four to six years of age can pull out bastings and sew on buttons. A child of eight can make artificial flowers almost as well as an adult, and can make paper bags just as well, and almost as quickly. Many a girl from eight to twelve years old can finish boys' knee-pants as well as her mother. In our greatest and richest city, babies who should be in the kindergartens have been compelled to work in such occupations as I have described, and others of a like nature.—John Spargo in Woman's Home Companion for

MURDER CHARGED

Warrant Served Upon the Father of John Streub

BOY KILLED ON JULY 10

Had Left Home on Previous Day In Search of Work--Body Was Found Later Concealed Beneath Pile of Bushes

Great Barrington, Mass., July 26.—Emil Streub, father of John, the 12-year-old Housatonic boy whose body was found in the woods near Housatonic about two weeks ago, was arrested late yesterday afternoon on a warrant charging him with the murder of his son, at the conclusion of a two days' inquest into the boy's death.

The father had been subjected to a rigid examination the greater part of Tuesday and yesterday, but with the exception of a few minor details his testimony, it is said, was unshaken. Immediately upon the serving of the warrant upon him he engaged H. C. Joiner, a local attorney. The time of the alleged murder was fixed at the inquest as July 10.

On July 9 Streub left home with another lad named Benjamin White for Torrington, Conn., where they expected to secure work in a factory. Upon reaching Great Barrington Streub decided to return to his home in Housatonic, while White kept to his original plan of going to Torrington, where he secured employment. Streub disappeared almost immediately after parting from White, and his body was not discovered until July 15, when searchers found it concealed beneath a pile of bushes which had been cut and placed over it.

The autopsy on July 16 by Medical Examiner Beebe disclosed that a probable murder had been committed. There were two fractures of the skull, either of which would have proved fatal, according to the findings of Beebe. A further search revealed a long spike, which was found in the bushes nearby with blood spots on it and human hair. This was the implement, it was thought, with which the alleged murder had been committed.

State and local officers were put at once upon the case and gradually the finger of suspicion turned towards Emil Streub. His movements on the day the alleged crime is supposed to have been committed were closely traced and neighbors testified as to the father's relations with his boy. Streub made no effort to avoid arrest, merely announcing his intention of engaging an attorney immediately.

Studying Origin of Cancer

London, July 26.—As the result of experiments with mice, the imperial cancer research fund laboratory announces that the prospects of discovering the mystery of the origin of cancer are more hopeful than ever. Out of 100 mice inoculated to produce the disease 90 developed tumors, but in the protected animals no tumors occurred. The experiments must be carried further before it can be ascertained whether they will have a bearing on the treatment of the disease in mankind.

An Attack on Westinghouse

Pittsburg, July 26.—At a sensational meeting of the stockholders of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, President Westinghouse of the company was charged openly by stockholders with launching private ventures with the company's funds. The directors were charged with aiding him in this, but after a bitter squabble the slated board of directors were elected and the official coterie won out.

Retires From Old Position

Pekin, July 26.—Sir Robert Hart has finished his work for the Chinese customs and proposes to soon retire to England. His decision appears to confirm the evidences that the new customs board proposes to assume executive duties. No one expected that Hart would accept a secondary position in the service he has directed for nearly half a century.

Sinking Land Scares Farmers

Sheboygan, Wis., July 26.—Thirty-seven acres of cultivated land on the border of Long lake in Fond Du Lac county sank and is now covered with deep water. The sinkage is supposed to be due to a slight earthquake shock. Farmers in the neighborhood are alarmed and afraid to go near to investigate.

Violated a Military Order

Havana, July 26.—President Palma last evening pardoned Miss Millie Brown, L. C. Giltner and William Augustine, Americans residing in the Isle of Pines. The pardon was granted upon the trio promising not to again violate the American military order prohibiting private telegraph wires.

Disappointment at Low Bids

New York, July 26.—Comptroller Metz opened bids for the sale of $12,500,000 4 percent bonds of the city of New York and said that the average bid was not more than 103. He expressed disappointment over the result of the sale.

Catcher Killed by Baseball

Dublin, Ga., July 26.—W. H. Williams was killed in a ball game at Soperton. He was catcher, and a pitched ball hit him in the breast. He died almost instantly.

MILLINERY MODES.

Roses For Hat Trimmings Beloved of the Milliners—Tulle Much Used.

Big roses, little roses—indeed, roses of every size and kind—are being used in millinery of the moment in bright shades of damask and cerise, pale pink and tea. In some cases shaded purple roses are admitted, and the old fashioned moss rosebud is held in high repute. The ways roses are used are almost as varied as the kinds.

Ostrich feathers for hats appear to increase in size every day. Some of them have even reached a yard in length, being introduced in the front of the hat and caught with an elaborate buckle or knot of ribbon. Shaded examples are not so popular as self colored tints, and vivid colors, such as cerise, coral or grass green, are often employed on black or white hats.

The round and melon crowns, the huge high crowned and broad brimmed hats, drooping low at the left and turned up boldly at the right; the large and small mushroom models, the Napoleonic and Watteau ones—all these are among the fashionable hats of the present season.

As a hat trimming nothing could be lighter than tulle, which, with large, plain, flat brimmed hats of delicately tinted chip, is plaited up to form a ruche that goes around the brim and fastens at either the right or left side with one large single rose nestling in a small group of green leaves. On the smart woman's head even this hat is well tilted forward, and the deep bandeau at the back is a mass of chiffon to match.

The hat in the cut is a smart blue sailor. The trimming consists of rosettes of checked ribbon and a carelessly arranged bunch of daisies and grasses. JUDIC CHOLLET.

EXECUTION ON STEAMER

Extraordinary Plans For Preventing Lynching of a Negro

Baltimore, July 26.—With the greatest possible secrecy, William Lee, the negro who has been held in the city jail under sentence of death for assaulting two women in Somerset county some weeks ago, was placed aboard the steamer Governor R. K. McLane and started for Somerset county to be executed for his crime.

Lee's case has been one of great difficulty to the authorities, owing to the indignation the crime aroused on the eastern shore of Maryland. It has been repeatedly declared that the citizens of that locality will never allow the negro to be legally executed and threats of burning at the stake have been freely made.

After the crime Lee fled to Virginia and to protect him from Maryland pursuers he was taken to Norfolk under guard of Virginia militiamen. Then he was brought to this city, tried and convicted promptly. The law gives a convicted murderer 20 days between the day of conviction and his execution. This period expired yesterday.

On board the McLane the officers having Lee in charge took a gallows, coffin and all other necessary things and it is said that the execution will take place on board the steamer as soon as possible after the waters of Somerset county are reached.

Checks Did Not Reach Destination

Malden, Mass., July 26.—The supposed failure of two of the leading manufacturing concerns and a leading citizen to pay their quarterly water bills, which are sent out to large consumers of water, and the serving of a notice upon them that their water was to be shut off, may develop under an investigation that there is a postal thief in the employ of the government. City Treasurer Hitchcock has not received any of these checks and payment on them has been stopped. These checks were all mailed from Boston offices, were mailed on the same day and within the same collection district.

Fatal Accident In Subway

New York, July 26.—One man was instantly killed, another probably fatally hurt, and three others were seriously injured when a blast loosened tons of rock forming the side of the excavation being dug for the New York Central railroad's subway. Those who were not injured fought to get out of the excavation, egress from which, at that point, is by means of a perpendicular ladder 18 inches wide. A huge crane also was loosened by the blast and toppled over into the excavation.

The Milwaukee's Performance

Santa Barbara, Cal., July 26.—The standardization tests of the cruiser Milwaukee, held in Santa Barbara channel, resulted satisfactory to the government board and the builders of the vessel. The tests over a mile course established the fact that the engines must be run at 138.4 revolutions a minute to develop the required speed of 22 knots. The Milwaukee made 18 runs over the mile course, the highest corrected speed being at the rate of 22.22 knots an hour.

Supposed Murderer In Custody

Chicago, July 26.—Frank J. Constantine, the alleged murderer of Mrs. Louise A. Gentry at her home here Jan. 6 last, is under arrest in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Requisition papers have been secured. No motive for the crime has ever been discovered. The husband of Mrs. Gentry, who is a prosperous business man, offered large rewards for the arrest of Constantine and numerous men were arrested in various parts of the country, but all of them were later released.

Wholesale Food Adulteration

Washington, July 26.—German food adulteration is the subject of a report received by the bureau of manufacturers from Consul Brittain of Kiel. With increased stringency in the inspection laws there seems to have been very few articles of manufactured food and drink products which have not been the subject of adulteration on the part of the German manufacturers.

"Insanity" Will Not Enter Defense

New York, July 26.—Clifford W. Hartridge, of counsel for Harry K. Thaw, who is awaiting trial on a charge of having murdered Stanford White, announces that the question of insanity will not enter into Thaw's defense. The lawyer declared that Thaw "is averse to posing as an insane person, and any suggestion in that direction makes him impatient."

Rice at Rest In Arlington

Washington, July 26.—The body of Brigadier General Edmund Rice, a gallant soldier of the Civil war, who died at Wakefield, Mass., was buried in Arlington national cemetery. Owing to the absence of troops from the posts in this vicinity, the usual escort to the cemetery had to be omitted. A squad fired three volleys over the grave and a trumpeter sounded taps.

Sweet Marie Beats Wentworth

Albany, July 26.—Sweet Marie (2:04 1-4) won the special match race at Island park, defeating Wentworth (2:04 1-4). The mare led all the way in the first heat, the gelding making his fight all through the first three quarters of the second, but being beaten at last by a length. The race was for a purse of $1000. The time was 2:07 1-4 and 2:07½.

CALL FOR STRIKE

Likely to Be Deferred by Russian Revolutionists

CONDITIONS ARE NOT RIPE

Constitutional Democrats Appear to Be Down and Out--Cabinet to Extend Relief Work In Famine Districts

St. Petersburg, July 26.—Though it is difficult to obtain a true picture of the conditions in the interior, owing to the embargo that has been put upon press dispatches, all indications point more and more to the postponement of the threatened general strike until the government shall be less and the country more prepared for such an event, until the harvest is finished and the revolutionary movement develops spontaneously among the idle peasantry.

What news has been received from the provinces indicates that conditions are scarcely ripe, except in the famine districts, for an upheaval. The strategists of the revolutionary councils are laboring with the hot-heads to induce them to defer the call for a general strike until it can come as a supplement to the movement already under way. A definite decision will be reached within a day or two in the reorganized council of workmen.

A remnant of the Constitutional Democratic deputies, many of whom, after having collected the arrears of salary and mileage due them, have started homeward, are caucusing industriously, but their importance has gone, neither the government nor the revolutionists paying much attention to the former dominant party in the lower house of parliament.

The government, indeed, has not abandoned its efforts to enlist moderates in the cabinet. Professor Mouromtseff, the president of the dissolved house, for whom Premier Stolypin was vainly searching with an invitation to go to Peterhof while the former was presiding over the outlaw parliament at Viborg, was again approached yesterday, but there is not the slightest prospect that he can be swayed, even by imperial command, to take office.

The most urgent problem before the government in case an immediate outbreak is postponed is the relief of the distress in the interior. A cabinet meeting was devoted to consideration of this subject, and it was voted to extend relief works in the famine districts. A commission was appointed to decide where the budget could best be cut to find the $7,500,000 voted by parliament for famine relief. It will be necessary also to provide more cash for the settlement of claims for damage to estates during the peasant excesses, but this is capable of being deferred.

Premier Stolypin announces that he has obtained from Emperor Nicholas special powers for Admiral Skrydloff in restoring and maintaining order and discipline in the Black sea fleet. The admiral, who departed yesterday for Sebastopol, said that his first task would be to investigate the arrests of sailors of the fleet and liberate those who were unjustly sent to prison. He intimated that he considered the officers largely to blame for the mutinous spirit of the various crews. Admiral Skrydloff said he has learned that Admiral Rojestvensky and Captain Clado probably will be restored to the roster of the navy.

The Rech says that the recovery on the Bourse yesterday was due to a loan of $250,000,000 by the Mendelsshons to sustain prices.

Police Chief Stabbed to Death

Warsaw, July 26.—Colonel Salamatoff of the gendarmerie was stabbed to death here. The assassins escaped. He was walking on the street when two men stabbed him several times, and then walked quickly away in different directions. Lawlessness here is assuming alarming proportions. Daring thefts and robberies, with violence, are of daily occurrence. The police maintain a passive attitude.

Reign of Terror In Tiflis

Tiflis, July 26.—In consequence of revolutionary terrorism the administration of the vice royalty of the Caucasus has been completely paralyzed and officials are resigning in large numbers. Bandits roam about at will, even in the daytime, in Tiflis and its suburbs, exacting tribute. The country paths are in complete ruin, owing to the suspension of industry and agriculture.

People Fleeing From Odessa

Odessa, July 26.—The governor has ordered the population to give up their arms. Panic reigns in the city, owing to the threats of the Cossacks to recommence massacres, and trainloads of people are leaving. Twenty-five battalions are patrolling the streets. There have been 600 arrests.

Assassin Cheated of Prey

Warsaw, July 26.—A plan to kill Governor General Kritnisky was frustrated yesterday. The would-be assassin, who was heavily armed, resorted to bribery and then to force in order to remove the guard from the route by which Kritinsky had to pass, but failed. He was arrested.

New President of Chile

NO CARS AT NIGHT

New Bedford Service Suspended Before Mills Close

STRIKERS ARE CONFIDENT

Say That They Have Backing of $100,000 Benefit Fund--Railway Company Has Engaged a Hundred Strike Breakers

New Bedford, Mass., July 26.—Not a street car moved in this city after 6 o'clock last evening to carry passengers. The only electric car that moved at all in the city after that hour was a mail car. The conditions at the close of the second day of the strike of street railway employes were practically the same as prevailed Tuesday night, although last night there were fewer signs of disorder.

The Union Street Railway company, the corporation against which the strike was declared, endeavoring to avoid any possible difficulty for their men, had all the cars which they operated yesterday start for the car barns late in the afternoon, so as to be in before the cotton mill operatives came from the factories. Tuesday night the company ran cars from the South End to carry the mill operatives to the northern part of the city and as a result the windows of seven cars were smashed and one or two of the motormen were injured by stones thrown by strike sympathizers. If any demonstration had been planned for last night it was nipped in the bud. The cars were housed before the mills closed down for the day.

There was little disorder in the vicinity of the car barn last evening. During the evening a large crowd, composed principally of cotton mill operatives, gathered near the car barn, but the police refused to allow any one to loiter, kept the crowd moving and within a short time it had practically dispersed.

The strikers held a meeting last evening, the session lasting a little more than two hours. The men expressed themselves as satisfied with the situation. The statement was made that the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes would back up the New Bedford strike with a benefit fund of $100,000. The payment of strike benefits will begin next Tuesday.

It was reported that 100 strike-breakers would be imported by the company to operate the cars today. President Crapo of the company announced that the report was true. He said that the company had engaged a sufficient number of men to run all the cars on schedule time, but would, however, run only as many cars as the police are able to protect. The company, he said, would not force the service beyond the capacity of the police.

Cars were run throughout the city yesterday under police guard.

In Sympathy With Strikers

Fall River, Mass., July 26.—Moral and financial support was promised to the street railroad strikers of New Bedford at a meeting of the Fall River Street Railway Men's union last night and the executive committee of the union was instructed to devise means of preventing the cars of the Dartmouth and Westport line, running between New Bedford and Fall River, from entering the city. Mayor Coughlin of this city, who is president of the Fall River Trolleymen's union, said after the meeting that he saw no danger of a sympathetic strike in Fall River.

Sage Left Nothing to Charity

New York, July 26.—The World says: Every dollar of Russell Sage's great fortune is left to Mrs. Sage by a will made in 1901, except an insignificant bequest made to Mrs. Fannie Chapin of Oneida, N. Y., an only sister, who died two years ago. The will undoubtedly will be contested by the Troy relatives of Sage, who will charge that the 1901 will was made after a mental breakdown on the part of Sage, and that Mrs. Sage exerted undue influence over him in the distribution of his wealth. Not one dollar of the fortune is left to charity.

Important Capture of Yeggmen

Boston, July 26.—One of the most notorious "yeggmen" on the American continent, and three alleged footpads, all said by the police to be members of the gang of thugs which during the past few months has terrorized the down town section of the city, fell into the hands of the police last night. Of the arrested quartet the most notorious is Martin F. Warren, 30, of New York city, a former pal of Ed Kelly, the kingpin "yegg," who is at present in Sing Sing prison awaiting trial for murder.

President Receives Dreyfus

Paris, July 26.—President Fallieres returned yesterday from Rambouillet and received Major Dreyfus, who was accompanied by Joseph Reinach, one of his staunchest supporters. The reception was a marked compliment to the reinstated officer. The latter is starting for Switzerland on a two months' leave of absence.

Battleships and Eight-Hour Law

Washington, July 26.—The opinion of the department of justice is to the effect that a battleship under construction is not a public work under the eight-hour law and that such public works must be permanent improvements on government property. This opinion is said to be in harmony with its former rulings.

Probing Trunk Line Rebates

New York, July 26.—That the United States grand jury is investigating western trunk line railroads, suspected of having granted rebates to the American Sugar Refining company, was made known when W. E. Foster, general auditor of that company, was taken before Judge Hough as a recalcitrant witness before the grand jury. It was stated to the court that Foster had declined to produce before the grand jury books and documents demanded of him. Unless the papers are forthcoming the judge informed Foster that he would consider an application to punish him both as a recalcitrant witness and for contempt of court.

Hike Was Hard on Marines

Rockport, Mass., July 26.—Deep sea maneuvers were carried out yesterday by the battleships of the North Atlantic fleet now stationed here. Two battalions of marines had shore duty and were given a march of 15 miles around Cape Ann. They went equipped and provisioned for an all-day "hike" and accompanied by a hospital corps. During the march 10 of the marines became exhausted and were sent back to the landing place by electric car.

Trio of Outlaws Caught

Zanesville, O., July 26.—In a hand-to-hand combat in a saloon in Johnstown, Marshall Dresbach and two deputies made the arrest of Frank Burke and Ira McCarthy, while Edward Harrington escaped from them to be caught afterward by a posse in a cornfield. The three alleged outlaws, who were all armed, are thought to be the men who committed several robberies near here lately.

For Bumping the Rhode Island

Norfolk, July 26.—In the United States court here, the owners of the Norwegian steamer Guernsey, which vessel was libelled by the United States government for colliding with the battleship Rhode Island, furnished a bond of $6000. The steamer was released. The claim of the government for the damage inflicted to the Rhode Island is slightly in excess of $5300.

Violation of Smoke Ordnance

New York, July 26.—A summons was served upon President Peters of the Long Island Railroad company, requiring him to appear in police court on Aug. 3 in connection with complaints that have been made concerning the nuisance caused by the burning of soft coal in the company's locomotives.

TWELVE BODIES FOUND

May Be One More In Ruins of Collapsed Building

South Framingham, Mass., July 26.—The bodies of all the victims of the collapse of the Amsden building on Concord street are believed to have been recovered, with possibly one exception. A checking of the payroll of Andrew Jensen, the contractor who was constructing the building, shows only one man unaccounted for. That is an Italian laborer named Antonio Guita. Should the body of Guita be found or the man be accounted for otherwise, the search for bodies will be discontinued in the belief that all have been recovered. Twelve bodies have thus far been recovered.

The scene of the disaster was visited by a number of building inspectors and experts from other cities, who desired to investigate for themselves the cause of the disaster. Two principal theories have thus far been advanced, one that a stratum of quicksand under the foundations gave way under the weight of the building, and the other that the weight of cement which was being put on the roof caused the twisting of a girder, this in turn resulting in the collapse of the structure.

From Mansion to Leper Colony

Winchendon, Mass., July 26.—Love's call to martyrdom has come from 6000 miles across the Pacific to Nellie White, heiress of the late multi-millionaire, Nelson D. White, bidding her leave her mansion on White's hill, with its wealthy social atmosphere, to take her place with her fiance, Dr. Walter R. Brinckerhoff, the Harvard enthusiast, who, in Hawaii, is devoting his life in the attempt to find a cure for leprosy. The doctor is in charge of the United States leprosarium at Malakai. So across the ocean Miss White is speeding for the nuptials in September.

Lowell Bribery Muddle

Lowell, Mass., July 26.—The facts in the alleged attempt to bribe Alderman William Hayes, who declared an agent of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company had offered him $1000 to vote against the order for a franchise to the Merrimac Valley Independent Telephone company, will be presented to the grand jury of Middlesex county. Alderman Dodge declares that he will present whatever facts he has to District Attorney Sanderson and demand an investigation.

Schooner's Crew Had to Hustle

Rockland, Me., July 26.—A stiff easterly wind and a strong ebb tide drove the little Rockport schooner Diadem on the rocks of Ash island last evening and, as the vessel filled within a few minutes, the crew of four men had only time to jump into their boat before the schooner keeled over and rolled into deep water. The crew did not save any of their personal belongings. It is not likely that the vessel will be raised.

Wages Raised $6250 Per Week

Lowell, Mass., July 26.—In discussing the announcement that the cotton manufacturers of Lowell have decided to put the proposed increase in wages into effect next Monday, W. S. Southworth, secretary of the Manufacturers' association, said that, as the payrolls of the seven corporations in Lowell foot up to about $125,000 a week, the increase on a 5 percent basis will be about $6250 a week.

Torpedo Sunk Gunners' Boat

Newport, R. I., July 26.—A Whitehead torpedo, fired by compressed air from the dock at the torpedo station during practice, struck and sank a boat in which four seamen gunners were seated. A lifeboat rescued the seamen, who were struggling in the water. The men in the boat were stationed on the range line to pick up the spent torpedo and by mischance they got in the way of it.

No Light on Goodell Mystery

Belchertown, Mass., July 26.—The search for the missing Winzola M. Goodell, whose mysterious disappearance has aroused suspicions of foul play, is being continued, but no trace of the girl has rewarded the work of the searchers. The pond where many believe the girl's body will eventually be discovered was again dragged without result.

Accidentally Killed by Brother

Sterling, Mass., July 26.—Herbert Mosher, 9 years old, was almost instantly killed last evening while playing ball by being struck over the right eye by a bat in the hands of his brother, Andrew. The accident occurred about 8 o'clock, when it was too dark for the boy to see that he was near the swinging bat.

Fell Sixty Feet From Roof

Boston, July 26.—While flying his kite from the roof of a four story building at 63 Williams street, Roxbury, Lester E. Warren, 9 years old, tumbled to the ground, a distance of about 60 feet, receiving a fractured skull and arm and interial injuries from which he is not expected to recover.

Merger of Lighting Companies

Leominster, Mass., July 26.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Leominster Gaslight company it was voted to merge with the Boston Heat, Light and Power company. The price offered by the Boston company for the stock of the local company is not known.

Druggists Want to Sell Liquor

Augusta, Me., July 26.—A letter has been issued to the druggists of Maine, asking their support for the movement begun by the Maine Pharmaceutical association to obtain legislation allowing druggists to sell alcoholic liquors for medicinal purposes. The matter is to be presented to the next legislature.

COALS OF FIRE

[Original.]

Denton Adams went west fully equipped, so far as education goes, to take a prominent stand. He had not been in his new home long when a vacancy occurred on the school board, and he was nominated for the position. Women voted in that section, and a woman was put up against Adams.

Rosa Day was the seemingly inappropriate name of the woman candidate—a name that smacks rather of a bright morning in a flower garden than a woman with assurance sufficient to stand for election in a heated campaign. When Mr. Adams heard the name of his opponent he pictured in his mind a blushing girl whom to treat with the ordinary campaign arguments would be a profanation, and he would have withdrawn had he not pledged himself to run if nominated. But when he heard that Miss Day was running her campaign with free attacks on the unfitness of the opposite sex to decide upon matters pertaining to children and his own unfitness in particular he girded up his loins for the fight.

Mr. Adams was on his way to speak at D. The town was off the line of any railroad, and Adams was obliged to travel by coach. Whether it is the seats facing each other, the narrow compass or the ruts, there is something about a stagecoach that throws people together. The candidate had by this time talked so much about the election that he was tired of it, and since he was not known to the few passengers present he was enabled to keep his identity a secret.

He was destined on this trip to meet his fate. Opposite him sat a girl apparently eighteen—she was twenty-two—as pretty as a red apple and as modest as a pansy. A man may meet thousands of women without being in the slightest degree affected by any of them. Then suddenly he may look upon a face and know that it belongs to the woman he wishes to be his wife. It was so with Adams when he looked upon the face of this girl. He soon scraped an acquaintance and, chatting in unrestrained stagecoach fashion, after a time drew forth an intelligence, a fund of information that surprised him. He was not to speak at D. till the next night, and when the young lady got off at M. he concluded to alight at the same town. She told him that she had an engagement for the first part of the evening, but would be happy to have him call at her aunt's, where she would stop after 9 o'clock. As he walked to the hotel he saw notices posted of a meeting to take place that evening for the discussion of the school question, and Miss Day would speak.

Being curious to see and hear his opponent, Adams after supper strolled around to the schoolhouse where the meeting was to take place, and, not wishing to be known, he drew up his coat collar, kept on his hat, which he pulled down over his eyes, and took a back seat. An old farmer opened the meeting with a short address, then introduced the speaker of the evening, the candidate for school commissioner, who arose from one of the front seats and took the stand.

Adams saw the young girl with whom he had traveled.

For half an hour he sat quietly, hearing himself denounced as one who, coming from the effete east, with its old fashioned educational customs, thought to introduce them among the children of the young and vigorous west. This was the burden of her argument for this particular evening. The address was well rounded, and long before it was finished Adams knew that it had been written and committed to memory. When the meeting was closed he sat till the speaker had passed out in company with an angular woman with a square jaw and a glittering eye, who looked far more like a candidate than Miss Day.

Adams followed his opponent home, and a few minutes after she had entered he rang and was admitted. The angular woman had gone on to another house, and he found Miss Day alone. He told her that he had been to the meeting and had heard her speak, but did not mention that she had been addressing, among others, her opponent. He found her as charming as she had been in the coach and not at all like the woman who could speak harshly of any one, even the man who was trying to get the office she coveted. He told her that "this man Adams" was to speak at D., a few miles farther on, the next night, and she resolved to go and hear him.

The next evening before the speaker entered one of the campaign committee announced that to avoid interruptions no one would be allowed to enter or depart until the candidate had finished his address. Only a few persons availed themselves of this notice to get out before the speaker entered and took the stand. He kept his eyes fixed on two ladies occupying a back seat, and his whole address was a modest statement of his own deficiencies for school commissioner and an encomium upon the merits of his opponent.

Surprised as was the audience at this address, the other voters, when they read a report of it, all were still more astonished to learn that Miss Day had withdrawn from the race, and, having quarreled with her campaign manager, it had come out that the manager had written Miss Day's speeches, who had committed them to memory.

Adams, having no opposition, was unanimously elected. He married Miss Day, who for a long while refused one who she said "had locked her in and then poured coals of fire on her head."

Unknown Boy Crushed by Stone

A Boston paper of Wednesday reported a very singular accident, but does not state whether it was Quincy granite or what kind.

At 7.45 o'clock A. M. at the Grand Junction tracks near Harvard bridge; Cambridge, Car Inspector Daniel Crowe found the body of a boy on a flat car on a siding. Apparently the boy had gone to sleep on the car and some unknown person had loaded the car, dropping on the boy a heavy building stone, badly crushing him. The stone weighed about a ton. The stone covered the body except the feet and head.

The body was taken to Litchfield's undertaking rooms, Cambridgeport. The boy apparently was between sixteen and nineteen years old, height five feet five inches, with dark, curly hair and was dressed in light coat, dark trousers and a blue cap. In order to release the body it was necessary to send for a steam derrick to lift the stone. It took nearly an hour to get the derrick there.

Plenty of Wind For Open Race

The indications this noon were prime for the open and interclub race of the Quincy Yacht club this afternoon. There was a good wholesail north easterly breeze which should give the boats wind enough to make the race an interesting one.

Many of the yachts that participated in the race at Hull on Wednesday came to Quincy this morning, and the waters off the club house were alive with yachts at 1 P. M.

Being an open race the club house latch string will be out, and all visitors made welcome.

Rough Weather.

Capt. Harding of Winthrop avenue anchored the Grace A. Martin, Tuesday morning, near Castle island. The Captain had on board Mrs. Harding, their daughter Margaret and her friend, Gladys Bain. They left Portland, Me., the 7th going to Norfolk, Va. While the vessel was loading, the party had three days sightseeing, which they very much enjoyed. Capt. Harding says it was the worst trip for summer weather he had ever made, as there was only one day of the voyage that it did not rain, or they had a very heavy fog. The fog horn was kept blowing continually every day of the trip down.

Midsummer Series.

Only two of the nine yachts which entered the Sonder-Klasse of the Boston Yacht club off Hull on Wednesday, finished the race. The Cod, Lorelei, Sally VIII, Hayseed III, and Windrim Kid were disabled; the Alecto withdrew and the Bomdrei was disqualified. The New Orleans finished 1m. 34s., ahead of the Sumatra.

First boats in other classes were the Tyro, Orestes, Jacobin, Gertrude II and Zara.

Odd Fellows Excursion.

About 300, including a large number from Quincy and Wollaston participated in the outing of the Odd Fellows of the South Shore at Canobie Lake park, at Salem, N. H., on Wednesday.

The party went by special train from the North Union station at 8.40, the return train leaving the park at 5.30. There was a series of sports during the day. All who attended had a good time.

STATEHOOD BILL QUILL

Oklahoma Eagle's Feather Used to Create New State.

TAKEN FROM WING OF LIVE BIRD

One of the Golden Variety, Which Supplied Pen Used by President Roosevelt In Signing the Statehood Bill, Is Now Stuffed and Has Been Christened "Old Statehood."

Dec. 15, 1905, a golden eagle soaring high in the clear, crisp air of western Oklahoma descended on the ranch of a farmer seven miles northwest of Woodward and was caught by both feet separately in two steel traps that had been set for coyotes, says a Guthrie (Okla.) correspondent of the Kansas City Star. From the wing of this eagle was taken the quill with which President Roosevelt signed "Roosevelt" to the bill giving statehood to Oklahoma and Indian territories. The body of this eagle, which died after a period of captivity, was mounted by Professor George Stevens of the Northwestern Normal school in Alva and will be preserved for historical purposes under the name "Old Statehood."

When the delegation of 150 citizens of Oklahoma and Indian territories, carrying the "razorback" hog, went to Washington last winter to boom statehood the delegates were presented in a body to President Roosevelt by Delegate McGuire. Among the delegates was Charles Hunter, a "rough rider" sergeant under Colonel Roosevelt in the Spanish-American war, of whom President Roosevelt was so fond that Hunter now is clerk of the court in the Oklahoma city district.

"President Roosevelt, to whom are you going to give the statehood pen?" asked Hunter.

President Roosevelt turned and said: "Charley, you shall have the pen. Mr. Loeb, make a note that Charles Hunter gets the pen with which the statehood bill is signed."

D. P. Marum of Woodward, one of the earliest and most loyal supporters of joint statehood, suggested to Hunter that, inasmuch as Oklahoma originally was an Indian country and as the eagle was sacred to the Indian and also the national emblem of the United States, a quill from the wing of a live Oklahoma eagle would make an appropriate pen. Hunter was pleased with the suggestion, but did not know where he could find a live Oklahoma eagle.

One of the pioneer citizens of Woodward is L. B. ("Dad") Nall, for many years a cattleman in Texas and now landlord of the Cattle King hotel in Woodward. Marum remembered that Nall had a big eagle in a cage and told Hunter that there would be no trouble in getting an eagle feather. When Marum reached home in February he found two eagles in Nall's cage, the new one being a large golden eagle that had been caught in steel traps by a farmer, who had brought the eagle to Woodward and offered it for sale. Finding no buyer, he gave the eagle to Nall.

"Dad" Nall was delighted to furnish the eagle feather, and Feb. 21 he entered the eagle cage and after a lively bout with the golden eagle got two quills from its wing, each quill measuring twenty-two inches in length. Marum sent the quills to Hunter. A druggist in Oklahoma City named Redding cut one of the quills into a pen. Hunter sent this pen to President Roosevelt.

Here follows a story about the eagle which "Dad" Nall says he is willing to back up with his sixshooter if necessary: March 9, the day the senate amended the statehood bill, the eagle refused food and began beating its head and wings against the wire netting of its cage. March 22, the day the house insurgents lost their fight and the statehood bill was sent to conference, the eagle died.

President Roosevelt sent the pen to Hunter after the statehood bill had been signed, and it is now the personal property of Hunter, who will place it for safe keeping in the Scottish Rite temple in Guthrie. Many Oklahomans would prefer that the pen be deposited with the Oklahoma Historical society. Hunter said lately that the pen belonged to him and he would please himself as to where it should be kept.

Nall has been offered $500 for the mounted eagle, which he has named Old Statehood. This historic bird probably will be given to the state when a capital building has been erected and rooms provided for the State Historical society.

Million Dollar Hotel For Manila.

Manila is to have a $1,000,000 modern hotel, the finest between San Francisco and Cairo, Egypt, says a Washington special dispatch to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The site has already been purchased, and the work of building will be begun in a short time. The ground covers 350,000 square feet, fronting 700 feet on Washington boulevard and 500 feet on Calle San Luis. The building is to be 300 feet long, with two wings, between which will be a large pateo, with a fountain in the center. Steel and concrete will be used, and it is promised that the building will be fire and earthquake proof. The hotel is to be equipped with its own vegetable and flower garden, its own dairy farm, tennis courts, bowling alleys, automobile garage, billiard rooms, cafe and reading rooms. It will also operate its own power plant, ice plant, cold storage and laundry. A hotel man of long experience in the United States, in Boston, Cincinnati and Seattle, is in charge of the enterprise.

PASSING OF THE LION.

Once Mighty Brute Losing Ground Before Civilization.

The lion, like the other great cats, is a relic of a diminishing race and dominion. In the early stone age the "cave" lion roamed throughout the southern half of Europe, and it is believed that along the Mediterranean, at least, its extinction was due to prehistoric man.

The battle has gone on ever since. Long ago lions were exterminated from Afghanistan, Baluchistan and northern Persia. A century ago they were more or less prevalent on northwestern India, but now none remain save a few in the Gheer, a wooded hilly tract of Kattiawar, where they are "to some extent preserved by the nawabs of Joonaghoor;" Farsistan, where the marshes about Niris lake afford shelter and the hosts of pigs feeding on the acorns of the oak forests furnish subsistence.

Similar conditions enable a few lions to maintain themselves along the lower Euphrates and Tigris, but they were long ago exterminated from all Asia Minor, Syria, Arabia, Egypt and Algeria. From Abyssinia and the southern Sahara southward to the Orange river lions still exist except in the most populous districts, and in some places are very numerous.

There seems never to have been more than one species, nor, in spite of the former belief in the "maneless lions of Guzerat" and the "black maned" ones of other places, is any variety well localized. Lions with full manes have been shot in India as well as those with hardly any, and "out of fifty male lion skins scarcely two will be found alike in color and length of mane."—Ernest Ingersoll's "Life of Mammals."

THE FLAG REVERSED.

A Fisherman's Emblem That Tells of Distress and Hope.

One of the frequent sights in the ports along the eastern coast is that of a fishing schooner coming into the harbor with an American flag hoisted at the mainmast head in its reverse position. To the interested spectators that flag always brings a pang of distress, for it means that one or more of the crew are "missing" through some calamity of the sea. But to the members of the craft itself the signal is not always an emblem of woe. The flag is hoisted, from their viewpoint, to notify those concerned that the complement of the ship is not full, and they live on hope for a long time before they acknowledge that the men who have disappeared are really lost.

A stranger to seafaring ways asked the skipper of one of these fishing schooners the other day what the distress signal meant, and he was set right by the captain, who remarked in the most cheerful way in the world:

"They're missing out of th' crew, of course, but we haven't given them up by a long sight. Ye see, they may have been picked up by some other boat an' carried off to th' other side. Oh, no, we don't give them up just because we've missed them! It's more than likely they'll turn up yet."—New York Press.

Elephant Power.

How many men would be needed to pull a weight hauled by an elephant? Fifty. The answer is the result of recent investigations made to determine the respective pulling power of horses, men and elephants. Two horses, weighing 1,600 pounds each, together pulled 3,750 pounds, or 550 pounds more than their combined weight. One elephant, weighing 12,000 pounds, pulled 8,750 pounds, or 3,250 pounds less than his weight. Fifty men, aggregating about 7,500 pounds in weight, pulled 8,750 pounds, or just as much as the single elephant. But, like the horses, they pulled more than their own weight. One hundred men pulled 12,000 pounds.

Proverbs of Assam.

Here are some rather clever proverbs of Assam: "The best crops grow on others' fields, but the best sons are at home." "A bird is a little thing, but it builds its nest on a lofty hulung tree." "Buy land which slopes to the middle, and marry a girl who has a good mother." "The biggest jack fruit always hides under the leaves." "If a man slips down it is always his eldest wife's fault, but if his youngest wife makes a mistake he says he will see about it." "A hasty cook, a hasty broom, and the husband goes fasting; a slow cook, a slow broom, and the husband eats three meals a day."

Mexican Cacti.

Mexico has a cactus which grows toothpicks; another, ribbed and thickly set with toothpick spines, which furnishes the natives with combs. There is another cactus, the long curved spines of which resemble fish hooks. There is another which is an almost perfect imitation of the sea urchin. Still another resembles a porcupine. There is another covered with long red hair which is nicknamed the "red headed cactus."

More of Him.

Miss Mugley—The idea of his calling me homely. I may not be very pretty, but I'm certainly not as homely as he is. Miss Pert—No, dear, but that's simply because he's bigger than you.—Philadelphia Ledger.

He Went.

"Like most men," he said, "I have my shortcomings, I suppose, but"—

"Oh, it isn't your shortcomings father objects to!" interrupted the girl. "It's your long stayings."

His Fatal Blunder.

"Why did you think he had been drinking? He didn't show it."

"Not until he went out of his way to prove that he hadn't."—Philadelphia Press.

If Mothers Only Knew!

Nine times out of ten when children are out of sorts a few doses of Dr. True's Elixir will make them well, strong and happy. If worms are present they will be expelled. If there are no worms True's Elixir acts as a gentle tonic laxative. It cleans out the stomach and bowels, and turns the scale in favor of health by aiding and strengthening the digestion. Unsuspected Worms cause so much illness in children that it is a custom in many families to give at regular intervals to guard against them. Some of the symptoms of worms are languid looks, indigestion with variable appetite, malaria, irritable disposition and restless sleep. If your children show any of these signs do not risk delay but give them the remedy that has given relief for over 50 years. It is purely vegetable and harmless in any condition of child or adult.

Sold by all dealers, 35c., 50c., $1.00. Write for free book "Children and their Diseases."

Councilman Gilson On Profitable Vacation

Councilman Gilson of Ward One is "enjoying" his vacation in a novel manner. A year or so ago there was made in Boston, two exceptionally fine stereopticons. Mr. Burton Holmes the famous lecturer purchased one of them and Dr. Gilson the other. Burr McIntosh, of New York, the official photographer with Secretary Taft in his famous trip to Japan and the Philippines last summer, took nearly 3000 views, and has made from those negatives 300 finely colored stereopticon slides, and is touring this section of the country with his famous lecture "With Secretary Taft in the Orient." Knowing that Dr. Gilson had this fine stereopticon Mr. McIntosh has made arrangements with the doctor to illustrate his lectures in this part of the country.

COUNCILMAN GILSON.

On Monday of this week they were in New London, Conn.; Friday at The Wentworth, New Castle, N. H.; Saturday at the Maplewood in the White Mountains; Monday next at East Gloucester; Tuesday at Narraganset Pier, R. I.; Wednesday and Thursday at Magnolia; Friday at Manchester by the Sea; and the following week at Saratoga, Lake George and vicinity.

Mr. McIntosh is very desirous that Dr. Gilson stay with him all the fall and tour the whole country with him, but the doctor says "home ties" are too strong, though the offer is a tempting one.

Ladies' Day Review and Sail

A sail for the ladies will be the feature of Ladies' day of the Wollaston Yacht club tomorrow afternoon, an event looked forward to with pleasure by the lady friends of the members.

The start will be made at 3 o'clock from the clubhouse, and the yachts will pass in review of Commodore Chase at 3.30. A sail of about two hours will then be enjoyed in Quincy bay.

In the evening from 8 until 11, there will be dancing and refreshments at the clubhouse. Good music has been engaged. The clubhouse is delightfully situated and it is a treat to accept the hospitalities of the Wollaston club.

D. A. Mullen and family of Dorchester have taken a cottage on Great Hill for the balance of the season.

Sea street near the Adams farm is being resurfaced and rolled.

A private dancing party was held at the Yacht club house Monday evening.

Archie Thayer, formerly located at the Quincy end of the Houghs Neck car line is now quartered in a tent near Harvey's pavilion and is one of the curiosities of the beach. He has already laid out one of his unique flower gardens and signs are conspicuous as ever.

The little building which Mr. Thayer formerly occupied on Saville street, also reached Houghs Neck today. It was loaded onto two four-wheel trucks on Thursday and safely moved as far as the Mt. Wollaston cemetery, and completed the journey today.

Auction sale tomorrow of the old Hose house on Sea street.

The German Boats.

The three German Sonder Klasse boats are now half over the ocean on their way to this port. They were shipped on July 17 by one of the boats leaving Antwerp. They should arrive in a few days. Their owners may be looked for on the same steamer.

Big Fleet and Good Racing

At the Annual Open Regatta Of the Quincy Yacht Club

Ideal racing weather was dealt out to Quincy Yacht club on Thursday for its open and interclub race. The wind was fresh from the northeast and the sea choppy. A large fleet of boats came out tempted by the large array of prizes offered, and as a whole it was the largest and most successful race ever held by the club.

The club house balconies were thronged with ladies and yachtsmen who watched with keen interest the start and finish of the several classes. Heavy wraps were not uncomfortable, and while at times the weather threatened rain it kept off until the race was over. It was a little hazy along the outside all of the time, and for a few minutes the fog almost shut the yachts from view. The fog soon lifted however.

There were but few accidents and mishaps. The sloop Valante lost her bowsprit by fouling a tug near Grape island. The tug had stopped to allow some of the yachts to pass and backed down onto the Valante.

The Violet furnished the sensation of the afternoon. The Violet and Hilda were the only two boats in the topmast boat class. The Violet got the gun and was well in the lead. Just off the club float a line from her peak became caught in the mooring of a tender which was lifted fully twenty feet into the air, where it was suspended until the topmast snapped and the line parted. It put the Violet out of commission and she changed her course and headed towards South Boston.

The New Orleans of the Sonder class had finished her first half of the course, and was leading when her mast snapped and she was out of the race.

There was considerable interest among the local yachtsmen to see what the Auk would do as she is the boat with which it is hoped to bring the Challenge cup back to Quincy. She came over and entered the race, but soon after the start was seen to pick up her tender and sail away toward Hull. There was apparently no reason why she should not have raced.

All of the classes filled and most of the yachts got away with single reefs, although some carried double reefs.

The local interest was largely centered in the Cape cat class. It had twelve starters and furnished an interesting race. The start was a lively one, the Argestes getting across first on the starboard tack with a good lead. She held this for a larger part of the first round, with Iris second and Hustler third, Josephine fourth. Then Commodore Crane took the lead with the Iris. The other boats in the class retained their same relative positions. As they came toward the line at the finish it was seen that the Iris had a good lead over the Argestes and as the latter had to allow the Iris it was figured out that the Commodore was a sure winner. He made a fatal mistake, however by crossing the line wrong and was obliged to come about and cross so as to leave the judges boat on the starboard. This cost him nearly a minute and when the result was figured out he had surrendered first position to Vice Commodore Robbins Hustler.

The race of the power boats was not a success because these boats reached one of the buoys about the same time as the yachts, and the fact that their course was in the opposite direction. It was a little rough for this craft and all of them took on considerable water.

The race between the Class E boats was an interesting one. There were three starters, the Tyro, Marie L., and Nutmeg, and they crossed the line in that order. The Nutmeg stepped into second position soon after the start and they held their same relative positions throughout the race, finishing in that order.

The Sonder class had four starters, of which but two finished, the Bonidrei and Sally VIII. The New Orleans was disabled and the Auk withdrew.

The New Orleans had the best of the start and was apparently a sure winner until she carried away her mast. The two remaining boats sailed a smart race. The Bonidrei took the lead from the Sally VIII soon after the start and held it during the whole course.

There was quite a large number of the Hingham one-design boats out and they had a lively race all to themselves, sailing a different course from the larger boats. The Puzzle was an easy winner.

There were two protests, one from Vice Commodore F. E. Dawes of the Wollaston club, against the Bonito, alleging that she forced the Wawenoc to the leeward at the turn of the Hingham buoy. The second from the Bonito claiming that the Wawenoc fouled the buoy. After a hearing the Bonito withdrew her protest, and that of the Wawenoc was allowed, which disqualified the Bonito.

Drift of Opinion.

☞It is strange, yet true, that whenever an actor uses profanity on the stage some in the audience are sure to laugh. The crusade which has been started against the use of profanity on the stage is being taken up by the public press and seriously discussed. The law against the use of profanity in a public place ought to be sufficient. Make an example of a few of the offending actors where the profanity is particularly coarse and offensive, and the others will quickly take the hint. The playwright or actor who cannot make his language sufficiently emphatic without profaning the name of the Diety should give up his profession and try some other line of work.—Annapolis Capital.

OFFER IS REJECTED

Railway Company Made a Proposition to Strikers

IT INCLUDED AN ADVANCE

Lower Rating For but Five Men If They Returned to Work--New Bedford Mill Operatives In Sympathy With Strikers

New Bedford, Mass., July 27.—By a unanimous vote the striking street railwaymen decided last night to reject the concession offered by the Union Street Railway company, through its president, H. H. Crapo, thereby postponing indefinitely a settlement of differences existing between the company and its employes.

The proposition of Crapo was to take back all the strikers who applied for their positions before 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The men would receive an advance in wages, but not such an advance as they had demanded. The men have asked for a flat wage scale of 25 cents an hour. Up to the time of the strike they received less than that figure, but were given 25 cents an hour after 15 years of service with the company.

A few days ago Crapo announced a new wage scale, in which the 25-cent rate is paid after five years' service with the company. The offer stipulated that the men would not lose their rating, except that the employes who had not gone on strike would take precedence over the others. It was brought out at the conference that only five of the strikers would have a lower rating if they returned to work.

Cars were run until 9 o'clock last night, three hours later than on any previous day since the strike began. An attempt will be made today to run a full service, provided the police are able to guarantee protection to the passengers. Three cars were stoned last night. Three passengers were injured by the missiles and many windows were smashed.

The state board of conciliation and arbitration visited the city in an endeavor to bring about a settlement. Conferences were held, at which the members of the state board, Mayor Thompson, President Crapo and representatives of the strikers were present, but no agreement could be reached.

The action of the company in importing about 100 strike-breakers from New York and Boston has caused great bitterness among the strikers, as well as among the thousands of cotton mill operatives in the city, all of whom are strong in their support of organized labor.

Died Near Urn For His Ashes

Middletown, N. Y., July 27.—Rev. Charles M. Winchester, a former Providence minister, died here last evening. Although he had been ill for nearly 20 years with a disease which he knew was incurable, he continued writing humorous matter for newspapers. Last August his condition became so bad that he was confined to his bed. He had an urn bought for his ashes and it always stood on a table near his bed.

Rockefeller Will Be In Court

Findlay, O., July 27.—Attorney Troup, on behalf of John D. Rockefeller, formally waived service of the warrant out against him and entered his appearance in court, and at the same time gave bond in the sum of $1000 for Rockefeller's appearance on Sept. 4. At the same time that the bond was given a motion to quash the information charging Rockefeller with conspiracy was also filed.

Hearst Gubernatorial Boom

New York, July 27.—The Press says: W. R. Hearst will be nominated for governor on Sept. 11. At the close of the convention the nomination will be tendered to Hearst at a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden, and then the campaign of the Independence league will be formally under way. The Hearst program was finished last night after a conference of the leaders.

Dropped Chisel In Dynamite

La Grange, Ga., July 27.—While William Stewart, an employe of the King Hardware company, was showing a customer a chisel, he dropped it in a case of dynamite, causing an explosion. Stewart was killed and several other men in the store were seriously injured. The building and the stock of goods were badly damaged.

Battleship Contracts Executed

Washington, July 27.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Newberry has executed contracts for building the twin battleships Michigan and South Carolina. The Michigan is to be built by the New York Shipbuilding company at Camden, N. J., and the South Carolina at Cramps' shipyard, Philadelphia.

Marines Again Ready For Duty

Washington, July 27.—A report has been received from the commanding officer of the cruiser Columbia, at Boston, saying that the men sick with malaria brought from the isthmus are all well or nearly so. The marines will now be sent to their former stations.

Excursionists Shaken Up

Atlantic City, N. J., July 27.—An excursion train which left this city for Cape May ran into a handcar loaded with rails near here and the locomotive and two cars were derailed. The passengers were badly shaken up, but no one was injured.

DETAINED A STOWAWAY

British Captain Released Him When Kick Was Forthcoming

Boston, July 27.—For a few hours yesterday there was a threatened conflict between Uncle Sam and Johnny Bull when Captain Tranter of the Leyland-Manchester liner Caledonian refused to allow Stephen Gray, 40, a negro stowaway, an American citizen, to land, after he had been discharged by the United States immigration inspector.

Captain Tranter detained the negro just as he was about to step on the gangway to walk ashore. He was then put under lock and key, but at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the skipper of the Caledonian discovered that his act against an American citizen might result in international complications, he sent word back to Chief Officer Stewart to release Gray at once.

The negro was detained by the captain on the ground that he was stealing passage and, according to orders from the international mercantile marine, that all stowaways on the ships of the company must be returned to England to stand trial.

Gray shipped from this country on the Leyland liner Iberian. He says that after landing in England he lost his return certificate, so he stowed away.

Streub Pleads Not Guilty

Great Barrington, Mass., July 27.—Emil Streub was arraigned in court, charged with the murder of his son, John, 12 years old, whose body was found in the woods at Housatonic. He pleaded not guilty and at the request of his counsel a continuance until Aug. 3 was granted by the court. Streub was taken to the county jail at Pittsfield, where he will await trial. Streub's imprisonment renders destitute his wife and four children, he having been the only member of the family capable of earning a livelihood.

Mystery In Woman's Death

Waterbury, Conn., July 27.—Quiet investigations since the sudden death of Mrs. May Vinton of this city at Springfield, Mass., about 10 days ago, have showed that Mrs. Vinton told her relatives during the brief period of consciousness during her illness that she had been drugged in this city or vicinity and was under the influence of the drug when she arrived among them very ill. Mrs. Vinton was an expert watch factory operative.

Alleged Concealment of Assets

Boston, July 27.—On a charge of conspiracy to conceal the assets of a bankrupt, Aaron Baer, formerly a clothing dealer, and Solomon Cohen were arrested here. Herman Bergheim is wanted on the same charge. The case grew out of bankruptcy proceedings brought against Baer, as a result of which he was declared bankrupt. Both pleaded not guilty. They were released on $2000 bonds.

Veritable Mountain of Ice

Boston, July 27.—The largest iceberg ever reported as seen off the Grand Banks was that which Captain Tranter of the steamer Caledonian says he passed last Sunday. Tranter estimates that the iceberg was 400 feet high and half a mile long. No iceberg of such monstrous dimensions has ever before been reported within hundreds of miles of Newfoundland.

Missing Girl Found In Water

Belfast, Me., July 27.—The body of Clara Braley, 17 years old, who had been missing from her home in East Belfast since Sunday night, was found last evening floating near the shore at Northport. The coroner will investigate the disappearance of the young woman. It is expected that an inquest will be held.

Ice Prices Soaring High

New Haven, July 27.—Beginning next week there will probably be an advance in the wholesale price of ice in this city from 30 cents a hundred to 45. As a result of this advance a similar rise is looked for in retail prices, that is from 60 cents a hundred to 75.

Parsons Charged With Murder

Somerville, Mass., July 27.—Harry E. Parsons was held for the grand jury without bail by Judge Wentworth, charged with the murder of George W. Gilmore last Tuesday.

Shortage In Money Order Service

New York, July 27.—Alfonso Marone, superintendent of a sub-postal station in Brooklyn, will be called upon to plead to a charge of having issued money orders without receiving funds. Postoffice inspectors who have investigated the records in the sub-station say the shortage in the money order service in the accounts for last January, February and March amounts to $11,151.42, involving shortages in 119 different money orders.

Cannot Take Soldiers' Pay

Washington, July 27.—Acting Secretary of War Oliver has approved an opinion by the acting judge advocate of the army to the effect that there is no legal authority for a practice established by the commander of an artillery battery at Fort Myer, Va., of giving enlisted men of his command who had committed certain military offenses the option of contributing money to the battery fund or of being tried by court martial.

"Miracles" at Anne's Grotto

Kankakee, Ills., July 27.—At St. Anne's grotto yesterday, Miss Barbara Bertoncelo, who, it is said, had not been able to walk for 17 years, was "cured" and walked away from the church without crutches. Miss Mayme Chaney, who suffered from poison ivy for nine years, was "made well." Mrs. A. F. Page, a bed-ridden invalid for a year, was also cured.

AGITATION OVER STRIKE

Radicals May Force the Issue, Which Would Be Resented by Hungry Peasantry--Police Are Breaking Up Meetings

Paris, July 27.—According to The Journal's St. Petersburg correspondent, the Russian authorities discovered in the course of recent searches the existence of a gigantic organization for a general revolutionary strike in October next, the plans of which had been perfectly prepared. The czar consequently decided to strike a sharp blow by dissolving the representative assembly and thus prevent parliament from becoming a tribune for revolutionists.

The Echo De Paris states that it was police intervention at a secret meeting at the offices of the newspaper Misla, which was attended by a number of deputies, that led to the discovery of a plot by the organized labor and Jewish groups of the lower house of parliament. The government demanded the expulsion of the leader of the movement, Deputy Solomka. The house refused to accede and consequently it was dissolved, the government believing it was cognizant of the plot.

☞ Strike Question Hangs Fire

St. Petersburg, July 27.—The decision on the question of a general strike is still hanging fire. No word has been received from the revolutionary leaders, who again were in secret session last night. In addition to other reasons, the conditions in the famine districts are advanced as a new argument against a strike, as the peasantry would resent the tying up of the railroads, upon which they are dependent for grain to keep them from starvation.

The ministry of railroads has received word of several attempts to destroy railroad bridges, and it is believed that the radicals are resorting to this means to force the issue.

The police are becoming more active in breaking up meetings in the capital. Yesterday they invaded a conference of St. Petersburg aldermen, which was held in a private house, and placed all of those in attendance under arrest for five hours, while the house was searched and papers examined.

News has been received here that racial troubles have broken out at Krasnoyarsk between Russians and natives of Siberia. One person was killed and six were wounded in the first encounter.

Hitch on Loan Is Feared

London, July 27.— Russia is reported to be considerably alarmed by the effect the fall of Russian bonds has had on the European subscribers to the last loan, the second instalment of which is due on Aug. 1. It is rumored that many subscribers to the loan will refuse to make the coming payment under anything like present conditions. With its whole existence depending on this loan, the embarrassment of the Russian ministry is obvious. It will be recalled that the internal disorders and the efforts of the opposition last year prevented for many months the floating of the much-needed loan. If the revolutionists can prevent the payment of the instalments now coming due, they will strike a far heavier blow than they can hope to give by an armed uprising.

Railroad Strong Boxes Robbed

Warsaw, July 27.—Armed revolutionists stopped a passenger train on the outskirts of Warsaw by pulling the emergency brakes. The robbers uncoupled the locomotive and van containing strong boxes filled with the receipts of various stations. The gendarme in charge was killed and the engine driver forced to proceed to a spot where the line passes through a wood. At a given signal 30 armed men appeared, broke open the boxes, abstracted $7500 and decamped.

Smuggling Arms and Ammunition

London, July 27.—The correspondent at Copenhagen of The Daily Telegraph states that on information received from captains of Danish and foreign steamers that the Russian revolutionists still continue to smuggle arms and ammunition into Russia. Many cargoes of ammunition, the correspondent says, have been discharged on the Finnish coast.

Citizens Doing Police Duty

Helsingfors, Finland, July 27.—This city is without police protection, owing to a strike of patrolmen on all the beats. After a conference between the authorities and citizens the strikers were all discharged and the residents will undertake the preservation of order until the organization of a new police force.

Bold Work of Bandits

Moscow, July 27.—Illustrative of local conditions is the fact that 10 armed men entered a jewelry store in one of the principal business streets of this city, seized several thousand dollars' worth of gems and escaped. There have been no arrests.

Called For Soldiers' Uprising

Kertch, July 27.—A Jew named Latman was arrested here for distributing proclamations calling on the soldiers to rise in support of the dissolved parliament.

Found Skeleton of Missing Boy

Newburgh, N. Y., July 27.—After mourning for over three years for her son, Charles, whom she thought had been kidnapped, Mrs. James Flanagan identified parts of the clothing of the skeleton of a 3½-year-old boy found at the bottom of a gas tank well last night. Employes of the local gas plant were working at one of the retorts when an iron fitting dropped from the top of the tank to the bottom of the well. While grappling for the fitting they pulled up a child's overcoat and remnants of the body of the Flanagan boy. The child had evidently fallen from the top of a brick wall when the tank was high and the body was crushed by the heavy weight when the tank was lowered.

Express Clerk's Shrewd Investment

New York, July 27.—The $5,800,000 of Panama canal bonds which were recently allotted by the treasury department to Samuel Byerly, an express company clerk of this city, have been disposed of to Fisk & Robinson, who were the successful bidders for the greater portion of the issue. Through his knowledge of the peculiar status of the money market, Byerly secured $5,800,000 of the new Panama canal bonds, and all they cost him was a 2-cent postage stamp which was placed on the letter he sent to Washington bidding for the bonds. The price of the bonds has already advanced to 104.40, which means a profit of $27,024 for the clerk.

Will Hang For Killing Senator

Birmingham, Ala., July 27.—Governor Jelks last night ended one of the most remarkable fights ever made in the state to save a man from the gallows by deciding that he will not interfere in the execution of the death sentence of John Williams, an aged white man. Williams was convicted for the murder of State Senator Hipp while Hipp was trying to serve an ouster document on the old man which would have left him homeless.

Execution on an Island

Crisfield, Md., July 27.—William Lee, the negro youth who was sentenced to death for assaulting two women in Somerset county and who had been threatened with lynching, was hanged by Sheriff Brown on Smith's island in the presence of deputies and a few witnesses. The hanging was orderly. The mob that had threatened to burn Lee at the stake was completely outwitted by the sheriff.

Railroad Grain Rates Reduced

Chicago, July 27.—Proportionate grain rates between the Missouri river and Chicago are to but cut to 8 cents on wheat and 7 cents on coarse grains. The announcement of the reduction in corn, oats and barley was made at the office of the Chicago Great Western railway, and inquiries at the offices of other roads elicited the information that any cut would be met.

FOUND BY FATHER

Long Search For Body of Miss Goodell Is Ended

DEATH WAS ACCIDENTAL

Body Standing Upright In Pond With Arm Extended and Handkerchief Clutched In Hand, Presented a Startling Sight

Belchertown, Mass., July 27.—The body of Miss Winzola M. Goodell, who disappeared from her home on July 6 and for whom search has since been made continuously, was found yesterday afternoon by the young woman's father in the pond which had been dragged so many times fruitlessly. A superficial examination of the body indicated that the girl was accidentally drowned, but it will remain for the inquest to fully settle the question which has for weeks agitated the community as to whether the young woman was the victim of an accident or of foul play.

The girl's father, State Detective Hodges and other officers who have been investigating the mystery of the girl's disappearance believe that her death was purely accidental, and this opinion seems to be confirmed by the finding of a handkerchief tightly clutched in the dead girl's right hand.

Shortly after the report of the disappearance of Miss Goodell was first given out a railroad brakeman, William Bailey, said that on the afternoon of July 6, the day of the girl's departure from her home to go rowing on the pond, his train passed the pond about 4:40 and he saw a girl standing in a boat and waving a handkerchief at the train. This circumstance, with the finding of the handkerchief in the dead girl's hand, is considered as clearly pointing to accidental drowning.

It is supposed that the girl fell over the side of the boat while standing, and that the boat afterward righted itself, not having taken in water, and drifted to the point where it was found a few yards away from the shore of the pond.

It was in a peculiar way, as startling as have been other features of the mysterious case, that the young woman's body was discovered. For weeks the Upper pond of the chain of three in Belchertown has been dragged daily in the search for the body, dynamite has been exploded, and hundreds of men and boys in boats had prodded with poles in the mud of the bottom in the hope of locating the body, but no trace of what was sought had rewarded their efforts.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Goodell, the young woman's father, and his cousin, Lysander Smith, rowed about the southern end of the Upper pond. Smith was at the oars and Goodell had a long pole with which he occasionally stirred the mud of the bottom, thinking that the body might be held down by wood or lily roots. While thus engaged their attention was suddenly attracted by a shout from the shore, and looking back over the course of their boat, they saw the body of the drowned girl about 100 feet astern.

The body was in an upright position, with the right arm extended, holding the handkerchief, and moving up and down in the water. At times the entire upper half of the body to the waist line was visible and again only the head showed above the surface. People on the shore who saw the body as it first arose say that it shot up from the water until it was exposed for nearly its full length, and then, sinking back, continued to vibrate less and less violently. Among those who saw the strange incident were several women who were on the shore, and they ran, screaming hysterically, from the shock of the sight. Physicians who examined the body later said the position in which it rose to the surface was undoubtedly due to the action of gas within it.

Mr. Goodell, in his boat, approached the body and fastened a rope carefully about the waist, after which another boat towed it ashore, where it was examined by Assistant Medical Examiner Thompson, who said there was no indication of foul play about the head, arms or trunk, but that he would await the result of the examination by Medical Examiner Miner before definitely stating a conclusion.

The theory generally held is that, after waving her handkerchief at the train, while standing in her boat among the lily pads, the girl lost her balance and fell overboard and the boat afterward drifted back to the point near the little landing place, where it was found by the girl's brother two or three hours later, when he visited the pond in search of her.

Miss Goodell was 22 years of age. Her father, Wesley M. Goodell, is postmaster and station agent at Dwight station in this town, being employed by both the Vermont Central and Massachusetts Central roads, which run close together at this point.

Jail For Reckless Auto Drivers

Yonkers, N. Y., July 27.—City Judge Beall sentenced George W. Bryant of Manhattan to two months in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $50. Bryant's chauffeur, Frank Busold, was also sentenced to a term of two months in jail by Judge Beall. An automobile in which Bryant and Busold were seated ran into a carriage and Mrs. Amber Hewison was severely injured. It was alleged that Bryant's machine was racing with another automobile at the time. Bryant and Busold appealed.

Why Adulterated Paint is Dear

A maker of adulterated white lead sneered "Why should paint be pure? No one eats it."

True, but when white lead is adulterated with barytes, sublimed lead, gypsum, whiting, etc., it loses the qualities which make pure white lead the best paint pigment.

And when these imitations are sold as white lead, the consumer is deceived into paying white lead prices for worthless substitutes.

Salem

GOG AND MAGOG.

Various Traditions Relating to These Two Famous Giants.

Who were Gog and Magog? English tradition says that they were the last of a race of giants who infested England until they were destroyed by some of the Trojans who went to the British isles after the destruction of Troy. Gog and Magog, it is said, were taken captive to London, where they were chained at the door of the palace of the king. When they died wooden images of the two giants were put in their places. In the course of time a great fire destroyed these, but now, if you go to London, you will see in the great hall of one of the famous buildings—the Guildhall—two immense wooden effigies of men called Gog and Magog.

But there are other traditions of the two giants. One is to the effect that when Alexander the Great overran Asia he chased into the mountains of the north an impure, wicked and man eating people who were twenty-two nations in number and who were shut up with a rampart in which were gates of brass. One of these nations was Goth and another Magoth, from which we readily get the names of the mythical giants. It is supposed, however, that the Turks were meant by Gog and the Mongols were the children of Magog. We shall find mention made of Gog and Magog in many books, including the Bible, but there are the great wall and the rampart of Gog and Magog, whatever may have been the fact that gave the names of the two giants to that portion of the structure.

FEES IN ENGLAND.

The Treasury Has Many Schemes That Swell Its Income.

When a young man determines to become a barrister and enters his name at one of the inns of court in London or Dublin he has to pay to the government a fee of £25. And when he is a full fledged English or Irish barrister or a Scotch advocate he has to fork out a further sum of £50.

Should he desire to become a solicitor he is fined even more heavily. When he becomes an apprentice his fee to the government is £80, and his yearly duty when he begins to practice is, for the first three years, £3 in the country and £4 10s. in London or Dublin and after the third year £6 and £9 respectively. So that a solicitor practicing forty years in London will have paid the government over £400.

A law agent (Scotland) pays £60 at commencement of study and £55 or £85 on beginning practice in the sheriff's court or court of session.

If you want to change your surname of your own free will the government charges you only £10, but if you do it under the direction of some deceased benefactor it costs you £50.

Bishops pay £30 for permission to be elected and £30 more for the royal assent to their election, and the fees paid on receiving letters patent are: By a baronet, £100; a baron, £150; a viscount, £200; an earl, £250; a marquis, £300, and a duke, £350.—London Express.

The Ashes of the Dead.

James Russell Lowell was a great favorite in the literary circles of London. On one occasion at a large banquet the peculiarities of American speech were discussed with English bluntness. Lord S. called to Mr. Lowell loudly, so as to silence all other speakers:

"There is one new expression invented by your countrymen so foolish and vulgar as to be unpardonable. They talk of the 'ashes of the dead.' We don't burn corpses. No Englishman would use a phrase so absurd."

"And yet," said Mr. Lowell gently, "your poet Gray says, speaking of the dead:

"E'en in our ashes live their wonted fires.

"And in the burial services of the church of England it is said, 'Dust to dust and ashes to ashes.' We sin in good company." A cordial burst of applause greeted this prompt rejoinder.

The Severest Test.

The severest test of manhood is never found in good times, but only in hard times. It is not the man who has success when others are doing well, but it is the man who keeps up his courage and struggles on when everybody else is wavering or going down who is the hero in the sight of God and men. It is an easy matter to make good time when both wind and tide are in one's favor or when one is moving with the current, but it requires character and skill and daring to make head in spite of opposing forces or to work successfully against the current.—Exchange.

Distinguished.

Visitor (in penitentiary)—Who is that distinguished looking convict? Warden—He is known here as No. 1147. Visitor—He seems to hold himself aloof from his fellows. Warden—Yes; you can hardly expect him to associate with the common herd. His trial cost the state $200,000.

The Only Way.

A person of little tact once remarked to the octogenarian Auber, "What a sad thing it is, this old business!"

"Yes," agreed the old musician, "it is sad; "but," he added, with witty philosophy, "up to the present time no surer way has been discovered to live a long time."

A Cautious Damsel.

"Dearest, with you by my side, I would willingly give up all I possess—wealth, position, parents—everything."

"I know, George, but in that case what would there be left for me."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

It's a queer fact that the higher a man rises the less chance he has of being above suspicion.—Puck.

FIGHT WITH BURGLARS

They Overlooked $4700 In Cash Belonging to Father Bill Daly

New York, July 27.—"Father Bill" Daly, the horseman, came near losing $4700 when burglars entered his house at Sheepshead Bay. As Daly arises with the dawn to help train his horses, he retired early. It was 2 o'clock in the morning when Mrs. Daly was awakened and saw a negro in the room, opening the drawer in a dresser. In one of the upper drawers, which was locked, there was $4700 and the man went away without knowing it.

Daly was awakened by the burglars going down stairs, and from the head of the stairs could see two negroes working at his private desk. He told his wife to call for police, and then started down stairs with the command to the burglars to hold up their hands.

One started through the front door, when Daly grabbed him. The man tried to draw his revolver, which slipped out of his hands and fell to the floor. He wrenched himself from Daly and ran away.

Unknown Man Attacks Mrs Hartje

Pittsburg, July 27.—Just after leaving the courthouse, following the adjournment of the hearing in the Hartje divorce case, Mary C. Hartje, the respondent in the case, was attacked by a man, having the appearance of a mill worker, who thrust out his arm and, grabbing Mrs. Hartje, dragged her across the pavement, saying: "Mary, come with me." Screaming with fright, Mrs. Hartje managed to escape from the man and found refuge in an office. In the meantime a crowd stood about apparently paralyzed at the incident and the man escaped.

Mother Claims an Alibi

New York, July 27.—Mrs. Rosina Constantine, mother of Frank J. Constantine, under arrest in Poughkeepsie on suspicion of having killed Mrs. Louise Gentry in Chicago, who conducts a grocery store in this city, said: "At the time the police of Chicago say my son murdered Mrs. Gentry he was a conductor on a Third avenue car. He has not been away for a year. I have sent a lawyer to Poughkeepsie who will prove that Frank was in the city when Mrs. Gentry was killed."

Gaekwar of Baroda Ends His Visit

New York, July 27.—Steamer Cedric, which sailed today for Liverpool, took away from this country the Gaekwar of Baroda, his wife and suite. The East Indian ruler arrived here in May and since then has been studying American customs in general and methods of education in particular. He has covered practically the entire country in the 10 weeks of his stay. He was particularly impressed with the system of American education for women.

Troops Arriving at Camp Roosevelt

Mount Gretna, Pa., July 27.—The Twenty-third infantry arrived yesterday at Camp Roosevelt, where soldiers and troops from several of the eastern states will be encamped during the next month. Late last night two squadrons of the Fifteenth cavalry from Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., also reached the camp. General Grant is in command of the camp, which has been put into excellent condition by army engineers.

No Thaw Lunacy Commission

New York, July 27.—It is reiterated that the proposition to make an attempt to secure a lunacy commission to adjudge Harry K. Thaw insane has been dropped, even by counsel retained by Mrs. William Thaw. Thaw will be allowed to go to trial as he desires. The emotional insanity plea will be that offered by Clifford W. Hartridge, the personal counsel of Thaw.

Concluded to Obey Court's Order

New York, July 27.—W. E. Foster, general auditor of the American Sugar Refining company, who was haled before Judge Hough for failing to produce certain books asked for by the federal grand jury, has complied with the subpoena and appeared before the grand jury with the books and data desired.

Suicide of Youthful Lovers

Philadelphia, July 27.—Disappointed because their parents would not permit them to marry, Gustave Kathke, aged 19, and Ella Miller, a handsome girl of 18, committed suicide together by jumping into the Delaware river. The bodies of the young couple, clasped in each other's arms, have been recovered.

Spreading Rails Caused Disaster

New York, July 27.—Three men were killed in the yards of the Erie railroad in Jersey City last night when a spreading rail sent a fast freight train plunging down an embankment. The train consisted of 27 loaded cars. Freight traffic was held up for many hours.

Parents Saw Boys Drown

Syracuse, N. Y., July 27.—Mead Kimball and Clayton Diddy of Cato, high school boys, were drowned in Duck lake while swimming. The parents of both boys were on shore and saw them sink. The youths got beyond their depth and became frightened.

Smallpox Death at Colon

Washington, July 27.—The first death from smallpox at Colon was reported at the Washington office of the isthmian canal commission by Governor Magoon. No new cases were reported.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

AT a Probate Court holden at Quincy, in and for said County of Norfolk, on the eleventh day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and six.

On the petition of John Joseph Ahern of Quincy, in said County, praying that his name and that of his wife, Julia C. Ahern, and minor children, Gertrude J. Ahern, Bertha E. Ahern, May Ahern, Lawrence F. Ahern and Leonard Ahern, by their next friend John J. Ahern, may be changed to that of John Joseph Herne, Julia C. Herne, Gertrude J. Herne, Bertha E. Herne, May Herne, Lawrence F. Herne and Leonard Herne, public notice having been given according to the order of Court, that all persons might appear and show cause, if any they had, why the same should not be granted, and it appearing that the reason given therefor is sufficient, and consistent with the public interest, and being satisfactory to the Court, and no objection being made.

IT IS DECREED that their names be changed, as prayed for, to that of John Joseph Herne, Julia C. Herne, Gertrude J. Herne, Bertha E. Herne, May Herne, Lawrence F. Herne, and Leonard Herne, which names they shall hereafter bear, and which shall be their legal names, and that they give public notice of said change by publishing this decree once in each week for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, and make return to this Court under oath that such notice has been given.

THE GIRL WITH THE BONNY BROWN HAIR

[Original.]

"Grandpa, tell us about the worst storm you ever saw at sea," said Tommy, aged eight.

"No, don't," protested his little sister. "I'll tell you about a storm in which we were all saved."

"That'll be nice," said the girl.

"We left Naples on the 4th of November with twenty passengers. Among them was a girl who seemed to be alone. There was character enough in her face for a dozen heroines. She had brown hair, and when I first saw her it was tied up with a bonny blue ribbon like the girl in the song. I was second mate, and whenever she came on deck the cap'n was sure to growl at me for some neglect of duty. But I didn't mind it so long as I could see the girl with brown hair.

"We had pleasant weather in the Mediterranean, but we'd no sooner left Gibraltar than a nor'easter began to blow which developed into the worst storm I ever saw at sea. The waves struck us with such force that every time one fell on us I thought we'd never rise from under it. At last one bigger than the rest struck us and stove in a portion of the deck. We had all we could do to keep the ship's head in the right direction, and the pumps must be manned at once, so that we couldn't spare men to repair the deck, and they couldn't repair it in such a storm anyway. The best we could do was to cover the gap with a sail, but the next big wave that came shoved the canvas down like tissue paper.

"There was such an uproar among the passengers that the cap'n told me to go down into the cabin and try to quiet 'em. As soon as I left the companionway I saw the most terrible sight imaginable. Some of 'em were praying, some holding on to stanchions, white as ghosts, while the water, knee deep, swashed with the rolling of the ship. Some of 'em had got up on to the table that ran the length of the cabin to escape the water.

"The first single person I saw was the girl with the bonny brown hair. She was helping an old woman to keep from being dashed against things when the ship lurched. As soon as she saw me she beckoned me to come to her and said:

"'These people are in the condition of children, and, having taught children, I know how important it is to keep their minds occupied. Can't we find something to turn their attention?'

"'Propose something.'

"'What do you say to a game of "pussy wants a corner?"'

"I was so encouraged by her coolness that I would have joined her in any scheme, however ludicrous. Turning, I said to the passengers:

"'We're coming out of this, but you people are spoiling your chances by demoralizing the crew with your howls. We must have something to do, and we will be as cool as the men. Come, let's have a game of pussy wants a corner.'

"The girl and I each backed up against a stanchion, and another man and another woman presently did the same. A young boy of fifteen was induced to come into the game, and the girl and I made a rush to change corners. I let the boy in purposely and kept out of a corner for some time, every now and then dragging some one into the game. In five minutes we had all the ablebodied people in it, and the game was in full swing. I made a lunge for a corner, fell purposely against a cabin wave and got up drenched. Several persons laughed. The next time anything ludicrous happened more laughed, and finally everybody in and some out of the game were laughing. I never missed an opportunity for doing something comical, nor did the girl. Her hair came down, and once when the water by the rolling of the ship was thrown all together she swam and shouted that she was a mermaid. Then I dived with a swash under the table and, coming up, slid into a vacant corner.

"All this was very well, but we couldn't keep it up forever. We did so as long as we could; then the girl whispered in my ear as I passed her, 'Blind man's buff.' I whipped out my handkerchief, and she tied it over my eyes, taking care that a place was left for me to see through. This gave me a fine opportunity to put myself into ludicrous positions, and in a few minutes I was playing my part amid shouts of laughter. Suddenly I heard the cap'n's gruff voice roar down the companionway with the strength of a fog horn:

"'Steamer ahead!'

"I tore the handkerchief off my head and dashed on deck, knowing that critical work was to be done getting in touch with the coming ship. As the storm was the biggest, the sight before me was the gladdest I ever saw in my life, a great big steamer on our port quarter coming right for us.

"We were all safely transferred, and our own ship drifted away. She kept sinking lower and lower till at last, half an hour after leaving her, we saw her go down. Close call, wasn't it?'

"What became of the girl with the bonny brown hair?" asked both the children at once.

"Oh, the girl! She turned out to be a teacher in one of the public schools in the port I hailed from."

"Didn't you ever see her any more?'

"Oh, yes; quite frequently. I see her every day. Her hair now, instead of being bonny brown, is snowy white."

He looked knowingly at grandma, who was darning stockings.

"Why, grandma," said the girl, "you never told us this story!"

James H. Cunningham, the newly elected County Treasurer, will assume the office next Monday, July 30.

Auctioneer Johnson sells the Faxon house on the Coddington school lot tomorrow afternoon.

Some progress has been made in grading the Mt. Wollaston cemetery along the Sea street front, but it promises to be a long job.

Councilman Sawyer leaves Saturday in the Eleanor with a party of friends for two weeks' cruise along the coast of Maine.

There were a West Quincy and an East Milton table on Wednesday evening at the garden party at Dorchester in aid of the Free Home for Consumptives.

The contract for plumbing the Massachusetts Field schools and connecting it with the sewer has been awarded to J. E. Keniley & Co., the lowest bidders, for $1787.

Fred W. Tirrell of the Old Colony laundry who was summoned into court for employing a minor under 14 years of age was found not guilty and discharged.

A feature of tomorrow's eight-page Daily Ledger will be a three column illustrated sketch of Marconi, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, by J. A. Edgarton. The Social Realm and all the regular Saturday features may also be expected.

The Pines A. A. boasts of its seventh consecutive victory, but it met defeat at the hands of the Yanigans on Thursday afternoon by a complete shut out 5 to 0. The success of the game was due to the splendid work of the Yanigans' battery.

The granolithic walks about the Atlantic depot have been completed, and greatly improve the appearance of the station. Some grading will be necessary and other improvements will come when the new Neponset river bridge is completed and the four tracks are built between Boston and Braintree.

Merrymounts vs. Norfolks.

Merrymounts will cross bats with the strong Norfolks at Reeds field, South Weymouth, on Saturday, for the second game of the series. This is sure to be one of the best attractions this year, as Merrymounts won the first game by a close score, and the Norfolks are putting the strongest team possible on the field in hopes of taking the second game. The team and their rooters leave Wollaston on the quarter of two train for Braintree, where the electrics will be taken right to the grounds.

—The Boston Museum of Fine Arts is to benefit under the will of Marrianne Brimmer, widow of Martin Brimmer (now on file at the probate office), to the extent of about $700,000 beyond the specific bequests mentioned in the will.

S. of V. Auxiliary Anniversary

The Sons of Veterans Auxiliary observed their eighth anniversary in G. A. R. hall Wednesday evening. The invited guests were comrades of Paul Revere post, 88, members of the Women's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans of Braintree, Sons of Veterans Auxiliary of South Braintree, and Sons of Veterans of Weymouth.

Mrs. Mildred Willett Dexheimer, president, opened the entertainment with a few well chosen remarks, after which she introduced the president of the entertainment committee, Mrs. Rose A. Reed.

The program included: selection by Savage's orchestra, piano solos, readings, vocal solos, piano solos, vocal duets and piano duets.

These were interspersed with remarks by Commander Williams of Post 88, Capt. Payne of the Sons of Veterans, Mrs. Penniman of the W. R. C., Mrs. Alice Hayden, Comrade Eadie of Staten island, George W. Penniman of Brockton.

The orchestra played "America" and all joined in and sang. After which ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. Annie E. Merritt, Mrs. Minnie Godfrey, Mrs. Emma Stoddard, Miss Etta French, Miss Ethel Merritt and Miss Marcella Souther.

Shipyard at Auction.

A Philadelphia item of Thursday in the Boston Herald says the common pleas court, today, on petition of the receivers, who have been operating the plant, ordered that the machinery of the Neafie & Levy Shipbuilding Company be sold at public auction. The court fixed the minimum selling price at $300,000, subject to the ground rent and mortgage indebtedness.

To the purchaser of the plant will be turned over all the company's uncompleted contracts, with the exception of the United States cruiser St. Louis, which is about 90 per cent completed.

—Henrik Ibsen was once asked his idea of Americans. "Well," replied Ibsen smiling, "it is my idea that the average American baby, 5 or 6 months old, sits in his mother's lap and eyes his own cradle to see if he can't invent a better one, or at least suggest some improvement.

—Dr. Emile Fischer, who four years ago won the Nobel prize for chemistry, has discovered, he declares, that coal is edible. He has been making an extract of coal and finds that this extract has the same nutritive qualities as are possessed by beefsteak and eggs.

—A number of petitions for permits to express liquor were refused by the Somerville Board of Aldermen this week.

—Another bad thing about the dog-day season is that it generally begins practically before it does officially.

How to Remove Stains.

All fruit stains when fresh yield to the hot water treatment, says the Pittsburg Press. Grass stains are a source of worriment to mothers, and they seem almost as obstinate as a mildew or scorches. However, a hot solution of tartaric acid, increasing its strength if it does not seem to take out the stain, or rather change it to a very light brown. This faint brown discoloration will wash out in hot soapsuds. If a housekeeper is so unfortunate as to have linen mildewed she might as well be resigned, as the antidote for this disfigurement has not been found. For a scorched place nothing is known to be better than exposure to hot sunlight for days. If ink is spilled on clothing or carpet apply milk at once, soaking and washing the place continuously until all the ink is taken out. If the ink is allowed to stay it cannot be taken out with milk. In fact, prompt treatment is the most effective with all sorts of stains.

Important Sales At Atlantic

W. B. Rice of Quincy has purchased at excellent value of Mrs. Fannie Duggan, widow of John A. Duggan of Atlantic street, the block of wooden buildings and ten thousand feet of land on Sagamore street at the northeast corner of the Atlantic park, opposite the station. Mr. Rice will proceed at once to improve the property and make it a desirable place for tenants as well as a credit to the location.

Henry B. Blackwell of Popes Hill has sold the brick block on Walker avenue, Atlantic, to Mr. Edward F. Hanly. Mr. Hanley will himself have occupancy in the block.

A New Firm.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Berger have just returned from Lawrence, Mass., where they attended a farewell surprise party given to Mr. McQuinn of that city by his friends. Mr. McQuinn who was a member of the Abrahams-Quinn Co. of Lawrence, is to be a resident of this city in the near future, as he enters business with Mr. H. Berger, and will conduct a clothing and furniture store in Adams Building under the name of Modern Home Furnishing Co.

Mrs. Sprague.

Funeral services for Mrs. Eugene H. Sprague were held from her late residence at 8 Park street, Thursday afternoon and were largely attended. Rev. Frank W. Pratt, of Hopedale, formerly of Wollaston, conducted the services which were simple and impressive. "Lead Kindly Light, "Nearer My God To Thee," and "Abide With Me," were beautifully rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Y. Follett, personal friends of the deceased. A profusion of beautiful flowers testified to the love and esteem in which Mrs. Sprague was held by her many friends. The body was taken to Forest Hills for cremation.

Street Railway Earnings.

The earnings of the Massachusetts Electric companies, which include the Old Colony street railway system, increased $33,728 in the quarter ending June 30 over the same period in 1905, and the surplus since Oct. 1. has increased from $20,041 to $235,138. The July gross earnings of the various properties will, it is officially estimated, show an increase over last year of approximately $35,000, and this, too, notwithstanding the unsatisfactory weather conditions that have prevailed during much of the time.

Pilgrimage.

The Rev. Fr. Hennon of Laconia, N. H., wishes to announce that he is to conduct a pilgrimage to the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre which will start Sunday Aug. 5, at 3 o'clock, from Concord, N. H. A train from Boston will connect with the train from Concord. For further particulars address Rev. Fr. Hennon, Laconia, N. H.

GLIMPSES OF LADY CURZON

Instance of Her Kindly Thoughtfulness at a Dance.

HOW SHE ACTED AS A DETECTIVE

Disguised In Native Dress the American Vicereine Once Solved an Indian Murder Mystery—Quaint Babu Letters—Her Retort to a Very Aristocratic Englishman.

The generous nature of the late Lady Curzon, wife of Lord Curzon of Kedleston, former viceroy of India, was particularly noticed in the straightforward, kindly thoughtfulness of her relations with other women less favored by looks, age and fortune, says the New York Times. It would be easy to gather in Washington instances of her prompt recognition of people rather helpless socially and of some graceful act or word which meant everything to the person who received it at the right moment.

At a dance one evening, when a certain excitement was noticeable among the young girls owing to the presence of a fresh squad of budding "diplomats" belonging to the leading embassies, Lady Curzon, who was at that time Miss Mary V. Leiter of Chicago, was, as usual, overwhelmed with flowers and cotillon favors. Near her in a corner sat a girl who rarely went to balls and knew very few people. Besides, nature had not been prodigal with gifts in her regard. Noting her absent look and lack of cotillon favors, she tried to make the next man who came up to her aware by signs that she would like him to take out the neglected one instead, but he was one of the newcomers and either misunderstood her or did not choose to surrender that dance. Seeing how the land lay, Miss Leiter rose with the archest look in her beautiful face, made the foreigner a deep courtesy and, taking her own partner's arm, sailed off in the dance. She was evidently explaining what this meant, for when they reached the spot where the lady of the house was distributing favors the partner of Miss Leiter left her side, secured a fine bouquet and posted across the room to the forlorn damsel in the corner—a slight thing, but a straw.

One of Lady Curzon's fads was to visit in disguise the native sections of the city of Calcutta and mingle with the people as one of them, says Arthur Hoyt in the Woman's Home Companion. She was a sort of lady Haroun-al-Raschid, and there is a curious story which illustrates her keenness and interest in dealing with the natives. It was told me one night on the deck of a P. and O. liner by an old gentleman whom I afterward learned was a famous Indian judge, just retired.

"You have an extraordinary countrywoman," said the judge by way of preface. "I was dining one night at the vice regal lodge in Calcutta, and after we had joined the ladies in the drawing room I found myself, apparently by chance, talking apart with Lady Curzon.

"'I have been a good deal interested in that murder trial which you are conducting,' she began.

"'It is certainly most sensational.'

"'Yes. I don't want you to think I am meddling with things which don't concern me, but I have some evidence for you. I know beyond a doubt that the man now charged with the murder is innocent. I can't say anything openly, but if you will send an officer to me tomorrow I can direct him to the house where the real criminal is concealed.'

"'But how did you discover it?' I exclaimed.

"'If you don't mind, I'd rather not talk of these excursions of mine in native costume. It would make it unpleasant for my friends among the natives who know and guide me.'

"The murderer was caught and an innocent man saved," continued the judge. "I had a high opinion of the vicereine before, but this incident increased my admiration. It became known to the people of Calcutta as well and added to her popularity among them."

No doubt a great many other stories might be told of these excursions, but only her syce and her most intimate friends know them fully.

Lady Curzon brought with her from India many quaint specimens of babu letters. Here are two which were addressed to Lady Curzon and received in the Allahabad Memorial hospital for women from grateful relatives of patients:

Dear She—My wife has returned from your hospital cured. Provided men are allowed at your bungalow, I would like to do you the honor of presenting myself there this afternoon, but I will not try to repay you. Vengeance belongs unto God. Yours noticeably.

Dear and Fair Madam—I have much pleasure to inform you that my dearly unfortunate wife will be no longer under your kind treatment, she having left this world for the other on the night of the 27th ult. For your help in this matter I shall ever feel grateful. Yours reverently.

Not long after Lady Curzon was married she was sitting beside a very aristocratic Englishman at a dinner when the latter, remembering that Lady Curzon was a Miss Leiter, had the bad taste or lack of tact to remark:

"I suppose you are not used to titles, Lady Curzon? There is no aristocracy in the States, is there?"

"No," replied Lady Curzon. "It takes all the money of our millionaires to support yours!"

Fake Story Of a Drowning

A morning paper contains a lengthy report of a narrow escape from drowning at Houghs Neck last evening. The funny part of the story is that the names of the parties, who are said to reside at the beach are unknown. The name of the cottage mentioned as well and also the two physicians who are alleged to have attended the person.

Careful inquiry leads to the belief that the reporter was suffering from an overdose of dope when he penned the article.

The article gave the name of the party as Mollie Underwood of Brockton, daughter of John Underwood, who with a Boston terrier and a two months, old puppy played a prominent part in the accident.

The names of the physicians were Dr. Brooks and Dr. McMahon, who were said to be summer residents. Neither they or either of the parties are known to Letter Carrier Dunham, who is a walking directory of the beach.

Trout for Planting.

In view of the fact that the Massachusetts Commissioners on Fisheries and Game have been able for several years to supply only a small part of the fingerling trout applied for, the Massachusetts Fish and Game Protective Association offers to furnish them for October planting in brooks wholly or in part open to public fishing, in lots of 1000 or more, for the nominal price of $10 per thousand—one-half the price charged by trout raisers. No orders for less than 1000 will be accepted. Orders should be sent to the Secretary of the Association as early as August 12.

Conductor in Court.

James J. Donovan was arrested by Officer Murray yesterday upon complaint of Supt. Conway of the Old Colony street railway for larceny. Donovan has been employed as a conductor, and it is alleged that he has not turned in all the fares collected. The case was continued until Aug. 4, for a hearing. It is reported that several men have been dropped recently for failing to make proper returns.

Arawak First

In Cape Class At Open Race Under Auspices Of Hingham Club

The Quincy Cape cats were all entered in the open race of the Hingham Yacht club yesterday, the first ever held under the auspices of the club. There were thirteen in the class and the contest was an interesting one. The Arawak finished at the top of both columns, being nearly two minutes ahead of the Josephine both on the actual time and corrected time.

These boats entered the Sonder class, and it was the closest contest of the day. The Hayseed III finished only seven seconds ahead of the Bonidrei, and 1 m., 14 s., ahead of the Windrini Kid. A $125 punch bowl was awarded the Hayseed.

The Nick Nack was an easy winner in the 18 foot class, and Barbara was first in the dory class.

The Pollywog almost walked away from the large fleet in the Hingham class of 15 footers.

A World Celebrity At Twenty-three

Character Study of Guglielmo Marconi, Brainy Italian Who Invented Wireless Telegraphy

Reserved and Cautious In Statement, He Knows How to Think—Says Little to Objectors, but Proves His Faith by Works—How the System of Air Messages Is Benefiting Mankind

At the age of twenty-three Marconi became a world celebrity. "He is in my class," said the veteran inventor Thomas A. Edison, and that is no small praise in itself. Marconi sent a message across the English channel without wires and mankind awakened to the fact that a new step had been taken in progress. A few years later he sent wireless messages across the Atlantic ocean and the world gasped once or twice, rubbed its eyes and wondered if the millennium were so far away after all. Now most of the big ships are supplied with his apparatus and are talking with the land from all over the face of the ocean.

Marconi's other name is Guglielmo, which stripped of its "G's" means William. Despite his Italian name he is more English than Latin in his appearance and disposition. He is reserved, cautious in statement, not much given to adjectives and superlatives and looks like a young American business man. Just how such a reticent youth could spring from an Italian father and an Irish mother has not been explained. Perhaps, after all, individuality lies very much deeper than we see, and the soul shapes and governs the body it inhabits. Genius transcends all known rules. Neither heredity, nor environment accounts for it. We only know its presence, but cannot tell its origin. It belongs to no nationality and to all.

Born In a Palace.

Marconi was born in 1874. He first saw the light in a palace. It has become a tradition that poverty cannot deter great men from reaching the mark. It is now being discovered that riches cannot deter them either. They will attain the goal whatever their outward circumstances. It is what a man has in him, not what he has outside of him, that counts. Marconi's father was said to be "the lightest hearted and best natured man in Italy." The inventor is his youngest son. The lad took to books as other boys do to sports. Science interested him from the beginning. Not only the text books did he read, but the news of the latest experiments. Electricity, the most fascinating and mysterious of known forces, captivated the youth's attention, and so eagerly did he pursue the study that his watchful mother had frequently to drive him to bed o' nights. Young Marconi's teacher, Professor Righi, found his pupil so inventive and persevering that from the beginning he predicted for the studious lad an illustrious career. All great men are not dull boys, and early promise is sometimes fulfilled.

Before he had attained his majority Marconi was experimenting with what is known as the Hertzian electric wave theory. He made his great discovery of wireless telegraphy and came of age the same year. In 1902, after he had startled the world by sending aerial messages across the ocean, he said of this early triumph:

"The greatest success I ever accomplished was when I succeeded in sending a faint signal across a room in my father's house seven years ago. That was an elemental success. Everything I have done since that has depended upon that first struggle."

Everything usually does depend on a first struggle; also on subsequent struggles. The only way to win a victory is to fight. The only way to reach the top of a mountain is to climb. The only way to do things is to work. Edison says of Marconi that he is "a worker." If he had not been a worker the marconigram would be known by some other name.

Discovered Use of Vertical Wires.

After that initial triumph the young scientist made other experiments in Italy, Professor Righi assisting, until the modern system of wireless telegraphy was worked out. For one thing, Mr. Marconi discovered the use of the vertical wire. He found that the first essential factor for sending messages through the air is height. Further, he determined the law that the distance to which the message can be sent increases in geometrical ratio with the elevation. With this principle established he believed that it would be possible to telegraph across seas, even around the world itself. All that was required were poles of sufficient height.

The fat head and conservative scoffed. They always do. Nothing was ever proposed to benefit the world but what some intellectual owl hooted, "Impossible!"

For one thing, they objected that the various messages would interfere with each other as their paths crossed and that the atmosphere would become a chaos of conflicting telegraphic waves. Then they said that every instrument would be affected by each message sent out. As for wireless messages across the ocean—preposterous, the dream of a visionary! Whenever ignorance wants to condemn some new thing utterly it shrugs its shoulders and mutters, "Visionary!"

Marconi was not disturbed by these dismal forebodings. He knew. The man who knows can always neglect the pessimistic wails of the uninformed. Moreover, Marconi knew how to think. Original thought is the rarest thing in the world. We call original thought genius. Only about one man in a thousand can think for himself. The other 999 hug their secondhand ideas to their mental breastbones and cry at the man who is able to form a new concept, "Dreamer!"

GUGLIELMO MARCONI.

William Marconi had caught an original glimpse of a new fact. As a logical deduction he inferred certain other facts. Therefore he believed. The world has been moved onward by men who believed. Not by blind credulity in the past, but by daring faith in the future, have the few high souls been able to lead the race forward.

The young Italian proved his faith by works. He confirmed his deductions by experiments. He demonstrated till envy could no longer cavil and ignorance could no longer doubt. He proved that the thing could be done by doing it. He swept aside the imaginary difficulties invented by timidity.

Proved Aerial Messages Did Not Conflict.

To those who objected that the air would be filled by a chaos of conflicting messages he said little, but proved them wrong by showing that these messages did not conflict. If the objectors had possessed the power of original thought, or even of comparison, they would have reflected that all sorts of sound waves and light waves cross each other without interference, and by analogy might have concluded that the same would be true of electric waves. But who ever knew a pessimist to take a cheerful view when a gloomy one was possible?

To those who said that a private message would be impossible as it would be taken by all instruments, the inventor again said little, but by a system of what he called "tuning," he put the sending and receiving instruments on a key different from the others and thus his message was taken only by the instrument for which it was intended. It is a great thing to be in tune. If more people would only keep themselves in tune there would be less failure, less despondency and even less disease. Likewise if these identical objectors had only been a little more in tune with the living hope and faith of the world they would not have found fault with a man who was forming a new and great discovery for the use of man.

A Fundamental Success.

To the alleged scientists who "poohpoohed" at the idea of transmitting wireless messages across the ocean Marconi said as little as to the rest. He only erected poles far up in the air on the British and Canadian sides of the Atlantic and one day repeated the letter "s" three times distinctly from shore to shore. It was a fundamental success like that achieved when he had sent an impulse from one side to the other of his father's room. It established the principle. The rest was easy. Soon he sent other letters, then words, then entire sentences. The negationists had been met by a positive—by a fact. Accomplishment closes the mouth of doubt.

Then another discord was raised about his ears. The cable companies thought their private interests endangered. Selfishness can never appreciate a public blessing, especially if that public blessing promises to cut off its own profits. With his new invention Marconi said it would be possible to telegraph across the ocean for less than the Western Union charges to wire across a county. No wonder the telegraph and cable trust was aghast.

But the wails did not stop even here. The little always hates the big. Failure carps at success. No sooner had William Marconi proved beyond cavil that he had made one of the greatest discoveries in the history of mankind than a thousand hands were raised to snatch the laurel from his brow. He had stolen the invention from other men, yelled the critics. He had reaped where others had sown. This was only a half truth. What if a thousand had built the ladders? He had reached the summit. To every discovery many men contribute. One makes an approach here, another there, but each fails to reach the final mark. A third takes advantage of their work, generalizes their facts and unveils the secret. Shall he be robbed of credit because others had preceded him? Is Shakespeare less the genius because he drew his materials from those before him? Was Newton less the discoverer of the law of gravitation because Galilei had established the fact of the rotation of the earth?

Others had striven toward wireless telegraphy, but Marconi found it, proved it and gave it to the world. Grant every praise to them, but take none from him. "There is glory enough for all."

It is not to uplift his forerunners, however, that the cavillers have raised this question. It is to lower Marconi. Is there no better business than seeking to belittle those who render service to the race?

Useful to Mariners In Distress.

Wireless telegraphy is only nine years old, yet it is already an established part of the world's activities. Almost every ocean going vessel is equipped with wireless instruments. Thus on the great liners papers are printed containing the news received by wireless. The system is also used to report vessels as they approach the harbor. The greatest service rendered by the new invention, however, is in the case of ships in distress. Many crews have been saved by such means. Most readers will remember the thrilling account of the rescue of the crew of the lightship outside of New York harbor. The plight of these men would not have been known save for the use of the wireless.

When Walter Wellman makes his sensational aerial flight to the north pole he will send back the news each day by wireless telegraph. Thus two of the world's latest inventions, the airship and the air message, will be employed in discovering one of nature's latest and greatest secrets.

After William Marconi had achieved his epoch making success he returned to Italy. There he was given a banquet and reception such as only the enthusiastic Italians could create. He had gone from them a mere boy and had returned honored of all the world. With his father and mother on either side he listened to a eulogy by his former teacher, Professor Righi. When he arose to reply his emotions made him dumb. He is not a man of words, like so many of the world's truly great, and could only stammer his thanks. His townsmen understood, however, and honored him all the more for his modesty. He had helped all mankind in the interchange of thought, but had nothing to say for himself.

Mr. Marconi is not a society beau. So wrapped up is he in his work that he is abstracted often in the presence of others. In the atmosphere of the world's commonplaces and little nothings he is not at home. Thus he gives an impression of indifference and almost of taciturnity. Yet he is upon occasions an interesting conversationalist, has a perfect command of several languages and is always the polished and cultured man of the world.

He is of medium stature and slight, though athletic of build. His most remarkable feature is a long and prominent nose, not unlike that of Sir Isaac Newton.

At his work he is plainly the master. He commands instinctive obedience, the obedience that is always rendered to the man who has a purpose and who knows how to achieve that purpose.

This Italian with his English habits of thought and manner is only thirty-two. Who knows what future scientific marvels his brain may evolve?

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Sothern Asks For Simplicity

Actor Says Extravagance In Stage Productions Is on the Wane and He Is Glad of It --- Believes National Theater Should Be Educational.

By E. H. SOTHERN.

I am quite sure that extravagance in stage productions is on the wane and the public no longer demands the expensive and elaborate scenery with which it has become familiar in the past fifteen years. It has been surfeited. Believe me, simplicity will be the keynote of future plays.

With the immense scenic investitures now in vogue it requires a train load of cars to carry a few productions about the country, and the expense entailed is enormous. Better less elaborate scenery and more plays. And, after all, the play is the thing, not the scenery, and it is no compliment to an actor to feel that an audience has been beguiled to the theater with possibly an even greater desire to witness a sumptuous production than to study his acting.

Managers in an effort to outdo one another have forced extravagance to the limit. "The Proud Prince" cost me $47,000 before the curtain rose on the first performance, and I spent almost as much money on "If I Were King." The day of solid wood trimmings for a room, of solid silver properties of the essence of reality in stage furnishings, has reached its zenith, and, as I have already remarked, we will now have a change.

There have been entirely too much of the real. One of the most effective scenes I have ever witnessed was in an Irving production of "Don Quixote," in which the scenery was all painted, with scarcely a trace of carpenter work.

I am curious to see if they will not adopt this method at the National theater in New York, where they propose to have a very extensive repertory. I am a firm believer in the National theater, for, while the stage is thoroughly a matter of amusement with the average theater goer, still, rightly speaking, there is no more potent educational force. With the regular manager, naturally enough, as on that depends his living, the question of money must enter largely into the production of a play. So that with him the educational idea has much to contend against. This is where the value of a National theatre would come in. Secure against the encroachments of commercialism, it could and should be entirely educational. Furthermore, and this is imperative if the National theater is to be an educational force, the prices should be as low as it would be possible to charge.

In European cities the government provides good theatrical entertainments. In America the poor people must pay or stay away. I have often wished that some arrangement might be made whereby the poor could see the better plays. In the large cities, for instance, where there are parks excellently adapted for the purpose, why could not open air performances be given of Shakespeare's plays for the benefit of thousands who will probably never otherwise see his dramas?

It would not be necessary that the performances be given by great or high priced players. The main thing would be to familiarize the poorer classes with the great dramatic authors. The miracle and the morality plays were originally performed in England on portable stages in the public squares, and the players went, as they do in these days, from town to town.

The Phillies.

There is not enough batting strength in the Philadelphia Nationals as it now stands to make it a championship possibility, but they are putting up an ideal article of ball in the field.

Murray of Notre Dame.

Murray, the Notre Dame star catcher, is to join the St. Louis Cardinals. This was Murray's first year on varsity. He batted .365, fielded .961.

RECEIVER FOR ZION CITY

Former "Prophet" Will Be Paid For Past Services to Church

Chicago, July 28.—Neither John A. Dowie, founder, nor Wilbur G. Voliva, present general overseer, is owner of the properties of the Christian Catholic church in Zion, including Zion City, Ills., and said to be worth from $12,000,000 to $21,000,000, according to a decision handed down by Judge Landis of the United States district court.

Judge Landis declared the property of Zion City to be a trust estate, and named John C. Hately of Chicago receiver of the church's property, and ordered the election on Sept. 18 of an overseer (trustee of the church's property) by members of the church at Zion City. Judge Landis will decide later what compensation Dowie will be allowed for his past services to the church.

The court ruled that the capital of Zion properties, contributions of property and money from various persons was given to Dowie in trust for the church. Judge Landis declared void the conveyance of the Zion City property to Alexander Granger by Voliva, under power of attorney from Dowie. Landis quoted from writings of Dowie to show that the latter had always regarded himself as trustee of the property of the church. The adjudication in the bankrupt proceedings against Dowie was also set aside so that the pending litigation against Dowie may automatically be restrained until the entire litigation is ended.

Receiver Hately's bond of $25,000 was approved by the court, and Hately went to Zion City and assumed charge of the property.

Brazilians Welcome Root

Rio De Janeiro, July 28.—Secretary of State Root was welcomed to this city in a brief address by General Rio Branco, who spoke of the advantages of a Pan-American alliance. An enormous procession escorted Secretary Root through the streets, which were profusely decorated with flowers. The historical Abrantes palace has been given over to the occupancy of Root and his party. Here the Americans were greeted by throngs of students and citizens, who enthusiastically applauded speeches by Secretary Root and others.

Two Florida Negroes Lynched

Tampa, Fla., July 28.—John Black and Will Reagin, negroes, were lynched by a mob of 200 men near Fort Gardner last night. The negroes killed Ed Granger, a white turpentine operator, without provocation and were captured by Sheriff Wiggins and three deputies. The mob halted the sheriff and posse and took possession of the prisoners. Both confessed and were hanged to a nearby tree, being afterwards riddled with bullets. The mob immediately dispersed.

Record Period of Prosperity

New York, July 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that comparisons of the volume of current business with results at the corresponding date in previous year are so uniformly favorable that the outlook can only be regarded with confidence. The first half of 1906 was the most prosperous six-month period in the nation's history, and, unless heavy cancellations occur, the last half of the year will establish a still higher record.

To Probe Oil Transportation

Chicago, July 28.—The Standard Oil company's methods of transporting its products are to be investigated on Aug 6 by a federal grand jury that will convene here to take testimony on that subject. The decision to draw a special grand jury was reached late yesterday after an all-day conference of government lawyers in the case. Judge Landis then issued an order for the jury.

Gave Unexpected Testimony

Pittsburg, July 28.—Susie Wagner, formerly a maid in the employ of the Hartje household, was a witness for Mr. Hartje yesterday in his suit for divorce, but by her testimony made an important point for Mrs. Hartje. In order that she should not be further subjected to annoyance at the hands of rowdies, three detectives guarded Mrs. Hartje while on the street.

Ex-Congressman Knocked Out

New York, July 28.—A victim of knockout drops and with his pockets rifled of their contents, Charles P. Dorr, a former congressman from West Virginia, was found lying senseless in a doorway here last night. At the New York hospital, a surgeon succeeded in bringing Dorr to consciousness. It is said his condition is serious.

Refused $150,000 For Franchise

St. Louis, July 28.—A syndicate comprising Samuel Copin, Eugene Devin and George Thies, St. Louis business men, were informed that their offer of $150,000 for the St. Louis National league franchise had been refused by the owners.

Factory Closed by Force

Warsaw, July 28.—A party of Socialists forced their way into the Singer sewing machine factory here and fired several shots, compelling the closing of the shop.

Revolutionists to Be Executed

Mitau, Courland, July 28.—Seven Lettish revolutionists accused of five political murders were yesterday condemned by court martial to be hanged.

BOTH SIDES FIRM

No Break In New Bedford Trolleymen's Strike

CASE OF THE EMPLOYES

State That They Will Never Go Back as New Men and Rank According to Date of Reporting--Split on Two Points

New Bedford, Mass., July 28.—With both sides to the controversy determined to stand by their respective positions, there seemed to be no hope of a settlement when the fifth day of the trolleymen's strike ended last night. The officials of the company had nothing to say further than to state that today all cars would run according to the regular schedule, so far as was consistent with safety. During the day the strikers issued a lengthy statement giving their side of the controversy.

The statement declares that the trouble, in the first place, was the absolute refusal of Mr. Crapo, president of the railway company, to consider an agreement presented by his employes which covered wages, hours of labor and working conditions. The union, the statement says, after repeated trials to have existing grievances redressed, considered such an agreement as would cover these points essential to themselves and for the best interest of the company. This was absolutely rejected by the company, through Crapo, and was the real cause of the present conditions. The statement says in conclusion:

"The rock on which we split yesterday was that the men who are out were expected to go back as new men and rank according to their date of reporting. That we will never do. Again, the statement that this affects five men was erroneous, and seems to have been done to offset public opinion which has supported us so loyally and whose favors we shall endeavor to deserve. The matter of wage, as suggested by President Crapo a few days ago, seems to meet with some favor among the men, and there may be very little argument on that line. There are just two points to be decided, and here they are:

"Put every man back with the same rating, grade and run as he formerly held on Monday, July 23.

"Sign an agreement which will establish working conditions, hours of labor and rates of wage with men in their organized capacity, and peace will again bless New Bedford."

It had been expected by the company officials and by the public generally that many of the strikers would apply for their former places before President Crapo's time for reinstatement expired at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Only one man asked to be taken back, and he made his application early in the day. Between 3:30 and 4:30 o'clock a large crowd waited in the vicinity of the Weld street car barns to see if any of the strikers appeared. The strikers, at the same time, were holding a meeting at their headquarters.

The cars on the so-called short line were hauled off at 7 o'clock, but the Purchase street cars ran at intervals throughout the evening. Throughout the day all the cars were operated under police guard. To prevent a repetition of rioting Mayor Thompson forebade the strikers holding street parades. A mass meeting of the strikers and their sympathizers will be held next Monday evening.

Some stone-throwing was indulged in during the latter part of the evening. A crowd at the corner of Rivet and Fourth streets stoned a motorman and smashed several car windows. A stranger, who was said to be either a private detective or a strike-breaker, mounted the platform of the car and, addressing the crowd, threatened to make trouble if the disorder did not cease. "What is your authority?" yelled someone in the crowd. "Cold lead," replied the stranger. Councilman Loftus, who witnessed the incident, reported the affair to the mayor, but the latter told him to take all his complaints to the police.

Strike sympathizers smashed windows of three cars as they were being hauled into the Weld street barn last night. The cars on the Purchase street line were in operation until 11 o'clock.

Faithful Nurse Rewarded

Mineola, L. I., July 28.—The final accounting of the executors of the will of Benjamin Rhodes, a Hempstead farmer, was filed yesterday. After all debts have been paid the amount of the estate is $72,503. Of this $54,000 is left to Miss Esther Marvin, a nurse, who attended Rhodes for two months before his death. This nurse also attended his wife before she died and he promised to remember her in his will.

Indictment of Three Corporations

New York, July 28.—The federal grand jury has presented two indictments against three corporations as a result of its investigations into rebating in connection with the American Sugar Refining company. The names of the corporations indicted are not made public.

Canadians' Present to Battleship

Portsmouth, Eng., July 28.—Canadians resident in the United Kingdom presented a superb silver centrepiece to the new British battleship Dominion. On the base is inscribed "One life, one flag, one fleet, one throne."

Sandy Ferguson.

Stubborn Fighter Who Won't Train Unless He Feels Like It.

It is doubtful if there is another case in the annals of the prize ring like that of John H. Ferguson, who sails under the sobriquet of "Sandy." Here is without doubt one of the greatest heavyweights of the last decade. That is as far as fighting ability goes, but in no other way.

He has been fighting for eight years, and in all those years instead of paying attention to the game he took up for a livelihood and trying to boost himself along he has stood in his own light and never let a chance slip by to do himself an injury without taking full advantage of it. He wouldn't train; he would disappoint fighters, managers and club promoters with a consistency worthy of a better cause, and even when they did get him in the ring it was about two to one he would make one of his miserable fights. Now and then he would feel right, and when he did it was bad news for his opponent. If Ferguson had the head of Jim Corbett or Kid McCoy he would be the one man in the world to have maintained an absolute despotism among the heavyweights. He has the physical ability to make a great fight with Jeffries, but for some unaccountable reason has just moped along and, instead of being rated up with the top notchers, is today considered only an outside chance who "could if he would," but who is as unreliable as a March wind. It is an instance of where a man had every chance in the world to gain fame, fortune and friends by the use of his talented fists, but who let the chance pass him without even giving it a nod of recognition as it sped by.

It isn't because Sandy is shy on physical gameness either, for he has engaged in wicked fights, taken a world of punishment and won out in the end. It is only necessary to say that he defeated Joe Walcott when that black battleship was fighting in fine form.

When one looks over a list of Ferguson's performances in the ring it can be seen at a glance that he has considerable class. Besides beating Walcott, he won victories over Tim Fogarty, Dick O'Brien (twice), George Byers, Bob Armstrong, Tom Carey, Jim McCormick, "Klondike," Jim Galvin, Charley Haghey and a number of others.

In England Sandy defeated six of the best heavyweights. Besides these victories he has boxed draws with Paddy Fenton, Charlie McKeever, Gus Ruhlin, Jack Johnson and Joe Walcott. Six feet three inches in height, weight 200 pounds in condition, fast as a lightweight, clever at defensive work, a good right hand and a left that nobody so far has been able to block with any degree of success, Ferguson possesses everything that any other heavyweight has. Some time ago he was nicknamed "The Stubborn Child." It is not a misnomer.

SANDY FERGUSON.

Ferguson, although a brawler and a man who is in constant trouble of one sort or another, is a good man in the ring when his manager has been able to get him to train for an event. He and Ruhlin boxed an exciting fifteen round draw, and the Bostonian insists he had all the better of the engagement. Ferguson also was one of the few white heavies who were not afraid to take a chance with Jack Johnson, and, although the negro always had the better of the bouts on points, still the white man made it interesting for the big black and was invariably there at the finish and fighting hard.

In his last bout with Johnson, which took place at Chelsea, Mass., on July 18, 1905, the white man lost on a foul in the seventh round, at a time when he was making it very warm for the black.

Ferguson was born at Moncton, N. B., twenty-seven years ago. He has a tremendous reach. He recently placed himself under the management of John J. Mack, who seems to have convinced the big fellow that his only chance to get along in this game is to train properly and walk a straight path when not in the ring.

A Prominent Western Stable.

Frank Nohlechek is training a stable headed by his good La Croix pacing mare Winifred, 2:17¼, at Plymouth, Wis.

Short Stories About People

WILLIAM T. VERNON.

THE appointment of William T. Vernon of Kansas as register of the treasury fulfills the tradition that this place should go to a negro. Dr. Vernon, for the register has degrees of D. D. and LL. D., is the son of slaves. He was born in Lebanon, Mo., in a log cabin in 1871. He worked his way through Lincoln institute in Missouri, graduating at nineteen class orator and valedictorian. He afterward studied at Wilberforce university, in Ohio, taught school in Missouri and since 1896 has been president of the University at Quindaro, Kan., the leading institution of learning for negroes in the west. Here every summer is held the only negro Chautauqua in the world. Less widely known than Booker T. Washington, Dr. Vernon's work for his race compares favorably with that of the famous teacher of Tuskegee. Dr. Vernon holds that with the negro, as with every other man, character is what counts.

H. Clay Evans, nominated for governor by the Republicans of Tennessee, was United States pension commissioner until he was promoted by President Roosevelt to the consulate generalship in London. He is said by Washington newspaper men to be the hardest man to interview who ever held down a government job. In his home town, Chattanooga, a cub reporter was once sent as a last resort to get something out of Mr. Evans on a matter concerning which he had nothing to offer. All the other men on the staff had tried and failed. The cub came back with a dejected look on his face. "Well," said the city editor, "did he talk?" "Did he talk?" echoed the reporter. "He did all the talking. He asked me about everything I knew and a whole lot I didn't know, and every time I'd sneak up on the question I wanted answered he'd switch me off so far that it would take me thirty minutes to get back on the right track. He just wore me out. I hope you'll assign somebody else the next time you want him interviewed. He's one of those fellows that kill you with politeness."

H. CLAY EVANS.

Ex-Governor Richard Yates, who is stretching out his hands after the senatorial toga of Shelby M. Cullom, is a son of the famous war governor of Illinois. When Yates was a young man he saw military service in the East St. Louis riots of 1877. He was on guard duty one night at a roundhouse when a couple of strikers came to "kill" an engine which had been run in by "scabs." Yates challenged them.

RICHARD YATES.

"Who the —— are you?" asked the strikers.

"It makes no difference who I am," replied the soldier. "I've a gun in my hand with a load in it, and that may interest you."

"My!" said the strikers. "You're a plucky one. What's your name, anyhow?"

"If you want to know," replied Dick, "my name is Yates."

"Are you the son of old Dick Yates?" asked the older of the two men.

Dick replied that he was.

"Well," said the striker, "I knew your daddy, and if you've got his grit in you I guess we'd better get out."

And they got out.

In "The Conquest of Canaan" Booth Tarkington tells the story of a young man who had a hard time winning the honor due to a prophet in his own country, but, as Scripture tells us, usually withheld. The author is fond of relating an incident which goes to show that he himself was not appreciated as well as he might have been by his old neighbors after he began winning fame. It was while he was on a visit to his old home in Indiana that he entered a barber shop and chanced to overhear a conversation between two Hoosiers who knew him as a boy, but did not recognize him as he was being shaved. Said one of his old townsmen:

BOOTH TARKINGTON.

"I hear that young Booth Tarkington is going to the bad."

"Is that so? Why, he didn't look like a fellow who would take to drink," remarked the other.

"Oh, he ain't took to drink; it's a durn sight worse than that. I hear he's writing novels!"

"Gee whiz!" was th eemphatic response. "And he used to be such a nice young fellow too."

The novelist is a graduate of Phillips Exeter academy at Andover and he tells a story illustrating the absentmindedness of a professor in that institution who was much liked, but was sometimes the subject of jokes on account of his well known failing. The professor's wife hastened to him one morning as he sat in his study marking exercises.

"Oh!" she cried. "I've swallowed a pin!"

The instructor smiled.

"Don't worry about it, my dear," he said in a soothing tone; "it is of no consequence. Here"—he fumbled at his lapel—"here is another pin."

Percival W. Clement, fusion candidate of the Independent Republicans and the Democratic party for governor of Vermont, has had a prosperous business career. Opposing him in the gubernatorial campaign is Colonel Fletcher D. Proctor, son of Senator Redfield Proctor, who is the nominee of the regular Republican party.

Mr. Clement's last big business venture was the purchase of the Rutland railroad, Vermont's leading railway system. When he acquired the property it was being run on a losing basis. He inaugurated an era of prosperity and sold the railroad at a big profit in 1902 to the Vanderbilt interests.

P. W. CLEMENT.

Mr. Clement was mayor of Rutland for two years, was a member of the Vermont house of representatives in 1892 and was a state senator from Rutland county in 1900.

Failing to obtain the Republican nomination for governor as a local option high license candidate in 1902, Mr. Clement bolted the convention, charging fraud by the political machine. He was nominated by the Vermont Local Option league, which he had been largely instrumental in forming the preceding year. Then followed a unique campaign. Traveling in his private car and accompanied by a brass band and a negro quartet, Mr. Clement stumped the state. His party was dubbed by his opponents as "Clement's all star vaudeville and circus combination." Although he did not convince a majority of the voters that high license was better than prohibition, he made a good showing at the polls under the circumstances.

Upton Sinclair, the author of "The Jungle," says that he believes he holds the record for the number of times a manuscript has been refused. His first attempt at a book, "Prince Hagen," was rejected thirty-seven times—by fifteen magazines and twenty-two publishing houses.

Charles G. Dawes, former comptroller of the currency, is fond of the company of boys and young men. It is related by the Saturday Evening Post that one day while he was comptroller a prominent man called on him and began talking business. The comptroller seemed preoccupied and kept glancing at the clock and looking out of the window. Finally, turning to his messenger, he said:

"Francis, tell those people that I will be with them in a few moments."

Then Mr. Dawes said to his visitor, "I shall have to ask you either to hasten your business or to come back tomorrow, as I have a very important engagement this afternoon."

CHARLES G. DAWES.

The caller's affairs were easily disposed of, and Mr. Dawes, grasping his hat, hastened out of the office. Curious to see what had been drawing the comptroller's eyes to the window, the visitor looked out, and there in front of the treasury building was ranged a squad of newsboys, black and white. The little fellows sent up a shrill cry of welcome as they saw Mr. Dawes coming down the treasury steps.

"Get in line there, you fellows!" said he. "Hurry up, or we'll be late!"

And off they started for a street car on which was a placard announcing, "This Car For the Wild West Show." This was the "important engagement" pleaded by Comptroller Dawes—to make happy a dozen or more little fellows by taking them to see the wonders of the Wild West show.

Charles M. Hough, recently appointed United States judge for the southern district of New York, is credited with being the unconscious cause of the reconciliation between Senator Thomas C. Platt and ex-Governor B. B. Odell. The senator, it is alleged, had a candidate for the judgeship in Robert C. Morris, former chairman of the New York county Republican committee. The president's disapproval of his candidate, coupled with the sending to the senate committee on judiciary of certain letters which had passed between 49 Broadway and the White House in regard to the appointment, is said to have so affected Mr. Platt's attitude toward the administration that the ex-governor found him very responsive to a proposition to bury the political hatchet. Mr. Hough is forty-eight years old and a graduate of Dartmouth college. He is a member of the firm of Robinson, Biddle & Ward of New York city, counsel for the Pennsylvania railroad, and is an expert in admiralty and bankruptcy law. This appointment was recommended by Attorney General Moody.

☞ Mr. Clayton's decision to remain at Blue Hill means much to the observatory. That institution seems destined to play an even more conspicuous and important part in the scientific world of the future than it has in that of the past, though even now its reputation is international. The mass of data concerning the upper air that has been collected through a series of years and under varying conditions and in far separated localities, must yield scientific results of great value, and it would be strange indeed if there were not revealed much of great practical benefit to humanity. Mr. Clayton has had much to do with gathering the material and by remaining at Blue Hill he will have an important part in reducing it to facts.—Milton Record.

—With absolute disregard of the presence of the Roxbury Crossing police station directly across the street, with its score of reserve officers peacefully asleep in their cots, a gang of burglars broke into the Roxbury station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad early Thursday morning and made a successful "getaway" with a big bundle of tickets and some money which they found.

—Five lots were offered yesterday for the new federal building at Woburn, at the following prices: $5,000, $10,000, $12,000, $18,000, and one at $1 per foot.

BRAINTREE.

Marston's big truck auto is making daily trips to the restaurant in Boston with green corn which is picked early each morning before the start. Thus the patrons of Marston's restaurants are assured of fresh vegetables.

The Detroit Record of Minnesota has a complete report of the wedding of Mr. Elmer J. Bestick and Miss Donna Ensign, July 11th, at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Ensign. Mr. Bestick is a nephew of Mr. G. R. M. Bestick of South Braintree, and son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Bestick who were among the earliest settlers of Detroit. Elmer is assistant cashier of the Merchants National bank and exceedingly popular in that city.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co. are to greatly improve the Braintree station by laying a driveway that will extend from the Elm street crossing to baggage room on the left of station. This will be especially appreciated during rainy weather by the citizens as well as strangers to our town, allowing persons to step from carriages to covered platform. One other very convenient feature will be that teams can drive to the baggage room doors. The driveway is estimated to cost the railroad company one thousand dollars.

Real Estate Agent, George E. Sampson has sold this week the estate of late John H. Dinsmore on Maple street. The buyer is Lamuel H. Thayer of this town. Mr. Thayer will occupy, August first after making some alterations.

Mrs. Fred W. Piercy of Washington street, entertained friends from Brockton and Quincy, Thursday.

George E. Williams' residence has been enlarged and improved by the addition of a sun-parlor, under the skilful plans and careful direction of architect Edgar F. Norris.

The newly elected principal of the High school, Mr. A. W. Small was in town last Tuesday, looking over the situation.

Professor Wills of Columbia college, N. Y., is the guest of his parents Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wills, Hollis avenue.

Mr. Asa Sterling of Toledo, Ohio, who has been visiting friends in town attended a reunion of the G. A. R. Saturday, July 21st, at Bass Point, Nahant, and met several comrades whom he had not seen since the battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861.

Mrs. Willard Morrison and son Lyman of Adams street and Miss Mabel Bates of Washington street left Thursday to visit relatives in New York. State.

Mr. Frank Bates of Washington street has very much improved the looks of his house by the addition of a piazza on the south side.

Mr. Conway, of Washington street, supt. of Street Railway company, has put in two telephones into his home also laid polished floors in each room.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Noltie and Mr. and Mrs. Hixon of Monatiquot avenue together with Somerville friends visited the Larz Anderson gardens in Brookline Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar H. Bolles moved on Tuesday into their fine new house just finished by the Miller Construction Co. on Liberty street. Mrs. Bolles' parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hollywood, will reside with them.

Rev. James Bradley of St. Mary Seminary, Baltimore, Md., is spending his vacation with his sisters, the Misses Bradley of Commercial street.

Contractor Kirby has a house nearly completed for Mrs. F. Leben of Hayward street. Mr. A. L. Hobart has wired the same for electric lighting the past week.

Do not forget the public installation of the officers of Monatiquot lodge, No. 83, Knights of Pythias, Braintree, Monday evening, July 30. D. D. G. C. Thomas Fallon and suite will perform the work.

Dr. Gleason won the special match of 100 birds for the interstate silver cup Wednesday at the Boston Gun club traps by getting the high score of 98, against 94 for Mayar, 92 for Buffalo and 89 for Frank. In the shooting for the Du Pont trophy, Cavicchi was high man with 29; Wood and Mayar had 28 apiece; Dr. Gleason, Keeler, Dowbrell, 27 each; Fratk, Franklin, and Blinn 26 each and Buffalo and Freeman 25 each.

Miss Belle Frazier of Taylor street is passing her vacation among the hills of New Hampshire. Numerous dainty postals show that the varied beauties of wood and lake do not fill her thoughts to the exclusion of her less fortunate friends at Braintree.

A recent issue of the magazine "Human Life" contains a short story by a member of the Noah Torrey school, which gained for the writer a prize of three dollars. Braintree will yet be proud of this bright boy. Three pupils of the seventh grade showed exceptional literary talent. Stories by two of its bright girl pupils having been accepted by the St. Nicholas magazine during the summer.

Hearing on Inheritance Tax

The special committee on the taxation laws of the commonwealth gave a hearing at the state house on the question of imposing an inheritance tax on Thursday.

Rep. Bean of Wakefield was first heard in favor of the bill which he introduced last session. He said that great estates would never be accumulated except through the civilization of the country. No man ever earned $1,000,000 through his individual, unaided efforts. There is a partnership between the state and the man who has $1,000,000. The only excuse for refusing to recognize this partnership is that the public gets its share of the estate in the form of bequests to charity.

That this excuse is often fallacious is shown by the will of Russell Sage, who left an estate of $60,000,000, of which not one cent is left to charitable purposes. This is not natural and is not right. While this estate will yield perhaps $600,000 to the state of New York in taxes, a like fortune in England would yield about $5,000,000 to the government.

The man who has $1000 pays $20 per year in taxes thereon. In the course of 30 years he will have paid out $600, or have turned over 60 p. c. to the state. No one believes that the man with $100,000,000 has ever paid $60,000,000 to the state, though he could better afford to pay his taxes than could the man with $1000.

Marshall Field was generally looked upon as one of the best citizens of the country, but his death revealed the fact that millions of his property had never been taxed, and there is now a suit to recover $2,000,000 which are alleged to be due on taxes. In New York recently it was shown that 120 estates, which were going through the courts, and which were taxed for $17,000,000, were really worth $247,000,000.

Robert Luce of Somerville protested against any increase in direct taxation. He called attention to the wide range of difference in local taxes from Boxford with its $5 to Charlemont with its $26 and instanced a number of cases where property owners had moved from one place to another for the sake of escaping taxes. From this he argued that tax-dodging towns acted as magnates, so that the weaker places have to bear the greater burdens.

He believed that by the use of excise taxes the direct state tax could be entirely eliminated. The inheritance excise would raise a large revenue and would put a stop to vast individual fortunes.

He told the committee that it would have to fortify itself against a human characteristic, in the event of its reporting an inheritance tax—the characteristic of holding on to what one has in his pocket. He said that the representatives of all the tax-dodging communities would oppose any change, fighting to hold their advantage.

—It gives us pleasure to notice in the Rochester Post-Express, that Mr. Charles H. Rogers of Buffalo, N. Y., a native of Quincy and well known in this place, was re-elected president of the League of Saving, Building and Loan associations at the convention recently held at Rochester, N. Y.

Locals and City Brevities

The South Quincys play the Braintrees at South Braintree this afternoon.

The annual ladies' day of the Squantum Yacht club will be held Saturday, Aug. 11.

Lieut. McKay arrived in New Jersey just in time to be a guest of the New Jersey Police Association at their annual outing.

There are said to be half a dozen or more candidates for Tax Collector, on the supposition that Mr. Cunningham will resign. Some of those mentioned are ex-Mayor Hall, Overseer Green and Frank C. Field.

Mrs. Frank E. Hall of Muirhead street, who, for more than a year has suffered from a decease of the nerves, by which she lost the use of her limbs, is now rapidly improving, and able to walk about a little.

On Thursday evening the Ladies' Social Union held a special meeting with Mrs. C. H. Trask. Preparations are making for a lawn party to be held about the middle of August on the grounds of F. L. Badger.

The Sacred Hearts will have as apponents on Saturday the Boylston A. A. team. Game will be called at 3.30 on the Ward Six playground. Two of the Quincy club men will play with the Sacred Hearts,— Pitts as catcher and Daley at first.

The pretty little bungalow which James Whiting has been building at the foot of Beach street is now quite ready for his occupation. It is a cottage which everyone notices being quite unique in its design, and being situated on a little elevation, commands a good view of Wollaston bay.

The bathing at Hayward's grove was enjoyed by many of our residents during the heated, sweltering days of the past two weeks. Many of our young people have learned to swim. This is well. It is a most excellent thing to be able to swim if one frequents the waterside and takes pleasure in sailing, fishing, rowing, canoeing, etc.

They seem to have solved the moth pest at the Thomas Crane Public library for besides the burlap bands they have used tanglefoot liberally. The burlap does not seem to be particularly effective whereas the tanglefoot not only catches them but they die also. At the Library the tanglefoot band is full of little caterpillars.

Bellevue Park and Montclair.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laveroni welcomed a little daughter to their home on Bowdoin street last Sunday morning.

Master Georglee Parke of Division street has gone to West Somerville for a week's sojourn.

Mrs. Brown of Division street is ill with tonsilitis.

Mrs. Spencer and daughter Lillian, formerly of Squantum street, have moved into part of the house occupied by Mr. John H. Roberts of Wollaston. Their friends in Montclair will miss them greatly.

Weymouth to Celebrate

Weymouth will observe Old Home week with a High School day next Thursday, and a gala day on Saturday at the South Weymouth fair grounds, preceded by a parade at 10.30 of historic division, floats and decorated vechicles, trades and industries, and automobiles. At the park there will be base ball and other sports.

Pilgrimage.

The Rev. Fr. Hennon of Laconia, N. H., wishes to announce that he is to conduct a pilgrimage to the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre which will start Sunday Aug. 5; at 3 o'clock, from Concord, N. H. A train from Boston will connect with the train from Concord. For further particulars address Rev. Fr. Hennon, Laconia, N. H.

How to Prepare Dried Fruit.

If you will consider that dried fruit is fresh fruit with the water dried out of it and more or less dirt gathered upon its surface, two things will occur to you to do to make it become something like fresh fruit, says the New York World. First wash it thoroughly, using if necessary several changes of water, but be sure to get the fruit clean. Then put it to soak in clean water, completely covering the fruit with an inch of water above it. Soak at least twelve hours, and if the fruit does not plump out very full keep it in until it will swell no more. Don't change the water in soaking and cook in the water the fruit was soaked in. Boil gently for twenty minutes, then set on back of the stove to simmer until the fruit is done and tender, using sugar in cooking according to taste. Mixed apricots, peaches and prunes, with a few tart plums to lend spiciness, make a delicious dish.

How to Perfume a Closet.

To perfume a closet get two lengths of material the exact size and width of your closet wall, place between this material cotton batting scented with sachet powder, says the New York World. Sew the material together and tuft it with ribbon bows or simply stitch it down. Nail it to your closet wall or hang it up by tapes. This will not only perfume your clothes, but make an admirable protection against dust or the whitewash of the walls. This is a good formula for the heliotrope sachet powder, but you may not need so much as this: Iris powder, two pounds; powdered rose leaves, one pound; tonka beans (in powder), six ounces; vanilla husks, three ounces; musk (in grains), two drams; essence of almonds, five drops. Mix well and pass through a large sieve.

How to Wash Ribbons.

The washing of ribbons is not always attended by the best results. The following is a milliner's method and most successful, says the Detroit News-Tribune: Put the ribbon into a basin of warm water, rub on some good white soap and wash as you would anything else. While still wet iron on the right side with a hot iron and when dry rub between the hands as if washing it until all the stiffness is out, then iron again to remove the wrinkles. When ribbons are washed in this way it is difficult to tell them from new.

Unsinkable.

Five steamboats are being built for a Kiel shipping company which are said to be wholly unsinkable. A recent trial of one of the boats was carried out in the presence of representatives of the imperial navy and many shipping firms. The vessel was fully laden to represent 200 passengers, and it was assumed that in consequence of a leak caused by a collision, the entire engine room division, into which water was pumped, had filled, while a hole was made in the exterior to admit water freely. The ship accordingly sank, but when it was full of water it had still a foot of freeboard above the surface, thus satisfying the conditions imposed.

MUSIC STRINGS.

The Great Amount of Material Required to Meet the Demand.

"One of the most generally accepted but mistaken ideas that are entertained by the people of this country," said a traveling representative of a foreign manufactory of gut strings, "is that strings used on musical instruments are manufactured from catgut. If that were true the cats in this world would have been exterminated many years ago in supplying the market with material for musical instrument strings.

"The fact is that they are manufactured from the intestines of sheep, and in obtaining enough raw material even from these animals the manufacturers at times find difficulty.

"The only string made from the intestines of the feline is that used for surgical purposes—for sewing up wounds. One would be amazed to know that there are millions of musical instrument strings used in North America alone, and just think where the tabbies would be if they had to supply the consumption.

"Another amazing thing is that there are over 700 different grades of musical instrument strings. The demand for strings in North America is increasing every year, especially in the south and in Mexico. There are more guitar strings sold in Mexico than any other kind, but through the south the banjo string is still popular, despite the fact that every year has marked a slight but gradual falling off in the demand."—Kansas City Journal.

THE GOD OF WAR.

Blustering Mars and His Name Month, the Thracian of the Twelve.

Mars was not a favorite among the classic Greeks, nor is his name month a great favorite among the Gothic moderns. The god of war was a barbarian intruder in the Olympian circle. There was something Thracian, and by that token crude and unworthy in his manner. He was more of a blusterer than a fighter, and Homer narrates with evident relish how Pallas Athene tumbled him over in combat, his vast bulk covering several acres. Of wild aspect, untutored ways and indifferent wits, he had little to recommend him but his immoral origin.

Such also is the month that has taken the war god's name. One poet notes its "ugly looks and threats." "A half wild creature cast from nature's lap," another calls it. The proverb "mad as a March hare" says the same thing with less reticence. English people call the month "March Manyweathers" and thereby intimate their doubt of its capacity for sustained purpose. It is the Thracian of the twelve, as September is the Tyrian. There is something blustering and barren in its aspect, as there is in what people call "a good war." The winds that blow from one end of it to the other are not "the winds of God." A peck of March dust may be worth a king's ransom, as a wise saw has it, but from the average human it gets less grateful guerdon. "Beware the ides of March" is good wisdom for our common humanity.—New York Mail.

Prunes and Indigestion.

Mrs. ——, who knows many a practical thing, had a maid who was dying (or thought she was) of indigestion. Now this maid was too valuable to lose, so her mistress determined to save her life and retain her services. "Maggie, I want you to eat every morning for breakfast three stewed prunes. Now, never more than three. If you were to eat more you would get tired of them. But three will leave you a little hungry for some more prunes and your appetite will steadily increase." Maggie started in obediently and at the end of the week was the healthiest, happiest girl for miles around. Mrs. —— has effected many such cures.—New York Press.

He Met Him.

"When you go to New Zealand I wish you would inquire after my great-grandfather, Jeremiah Thompson." "Certainly," said the traveler. And wherever he went he asked for news of the ancestor, but without avail, according to the Dundee Advertiser. One day he was introduced to a fine old Maori of advanced age. "Did you ever meet with an Englishman named Jeremiah Thompson?" he asked. A smile passed over the Maori's face. "Meet him?" he repeated. "Why, I ate him!"

Mosquito Eggs.

The eggs of the mosquito are fastened together by a viscid secretion from the insect's body. From 250 to 300 eggs are laid at a time, and the little boat shaped mass is so constructed that it will not overset. It cannot be sunk nor in any way injured by wind, rain or water. It is abandoned by the insect and the eggs are hatched by the heat of the sun or atmosphere. A temperature below freezing is said not to destroy the vitality of the mosquito's eggs.

The Regret of His Life.

Sir William Grove, the eminent scientist and jurist, never forgave himself for not discovering the spectroscope. "I had often observed," he said, "that there were different lines exhibited in the spectra of different metals ignited in the voltaic arc, and if I had had any reasonable amount of wit I ought to have seen the converse—viz, that by ignition different bodies show in their spectral lines the materials of which they are composed."

August Magazines.

"Weymouth, ancient and modern," is one of the leading features of the August New England. It is copiously illustrated with the gentlemen prominent in the town's affairs who are well known to Daily Ledger readers, including Hon. James H. Flint, judge of probate; J. J. Loud, the historian, and others. There are also good views of the public library, churches and other buildings, all accompanied by a very interesting article on the old historic town. The New England also has half a score of rattling good stories on various topics and another paper on the series on the "Bench and bar of Massachusetts."

An August vacation spirit finds expression in two country articles in the August Surburban Life. In Miss Henrietta Sowle's "On Country Roads," we are taken through open fields with her magic divining rod; and as we drive between the natural hedges, we keep our eyes open for the wild fruits that we learn about in Mrs. Maude Gridley Peterson's article on "Where the Wild Fruits Grow and When They Ripen." The August Suburban Life has that restful, peaceful, August tone so acceptable in midsummer.

Ten short stories, all of the first quality, are included in that remarkable "fiction number," the August Everybody's. Some readers want a love story; others prefer one with adventure, excitement, danger. Lloyd Osbourne has combined both elements in his "automobile love story." "Three Speeds Forward," a masterpiece of humor, vivacity, and adroit incident. This might be called the best story of the month, if it were not for O. Henry's "A Ruler of Men," which is as good a thing as this famous short-story writer has ever done.

Agnes Repplier and Andrew S. Draper make a strange contrast, as they discuss two phases of the educational problem in Appleton's Magazine for August. Yet it is hard to say which is the more cheerful reading, Miss Repplier,s sparkling irony which makes us glad to have escaped from the past or Dr. Draper's superb optimism which makes us proud of the present and hopeful of the future.

The August Metropolitan Magazine is unusually strong in seasonable fiction. Open it at almost any page and you will find a story that will charm you from the first page to the last. Julian Hawthorne's "Men of the Dark," an unusual story of mystery and adventure in the Andean Mountains, leads the fiction.

In August, McClure's begins what is the most important and what promises to be a most interesting series of articles of this magazine year, "The Story of Montana," by C. P. Connolly. It is in a large part the story of the great struggle between the state's two big men, Marcus Daly and William A. Clark, which began in the early '90's and was waged not only in the field of business, but in politics as well.

F. A. Westbrook relates in the Field and Stream for July how three young men passed a delightful fortnight trout fishing and camping in the Catskills, and Helen Kellogg describes a vacation in the high mountains of Montana. The departments are filled with instructive matter. Unkel David discourses on that great institution the Missouri wood tick.

OPEN REVOLUTION

Russia Will Not Experience It For the Time Being

EX-DOUMA MEN QUARREL

Defenders of Premier Stolypin Are Denounced as Traitors--Half a Dozen Government Spies Are Assassinated

St. Petersburg, July 28.—The efforts of the revolutionary parties, except the Rightists, in the late lower house of parliament, which at the proper moment were to proclaim a provisional government, have come to naught, owing to the opposition of the Constitutional Democrats, who apparently are afraid of compromising themselves, while one wing, headed by M. Naboukoff, showed that they already had been won over to the side of the ministry against the program of open revolution.

In spite of the activity of police, representatives of four parties in the late house, the Constitutional Democrats, the Democratic Reformers, the Socialists and the Group of Toil, about 50 in number, succeeded in assembling last evening in a private house, where they deliberated on the proposal of the Socialists and Group of Toil to form a joint committee with power, "when the situation justified" an outbreak of a general strike or armed revolt, either to convoke the old parliament and assume the reins of government or proclaim a constituent assembly.

The Constitutional Democrats objected to the plan and proposed instead the appointment of four committees which would work in co-operation, but without formal union. Editor Hessen favored more radical steps, but Naboukoff defended Premier Stolypin and denied that the administration had as yet proved itself reactionary, urging that it should be given a chance to justify itself.

M. Ramischwili, a Socialist deputy from the Caucasus, in a rage denounced Naboukoff and his friends as traitors who had sold the cause of liberty for office. He demanded the immediate severance of all relations with the Constitutional Democratic party. Others interposed and prevented an open rupture, but the meeting broke up without a decision. Further co-operation between the two factions is improbable.

Representatives of the two Polish socialistic organizations, the Lettish socialists and the Jewish bund or Zionistical socialists, arrived here to participate in the revolutionary conferences. Manifestos to the nation, the army and navy and the Cossacks will be signed by these representatives, as well as by the regular Russian organization.

Half a dozen government spies were found dead in the industrial section of St. Petersburg yesterday, political assassinations are increasing in Poland and small strikes are reported to have been declared in many places in the provinces, but the peasant movement, so far as the reports show, is not gathering headway. Half of the Seminovsky guard regiment has been sent to Cronstadt in view of the ugly temper of the sailors there.

The total loss resulting from the burning of the city of Syzran July 19-20 is $5,000,000.

Troops Fraternize With Strikers

Odessa, July 28.—At Yuzovka, the principal smelting centre in the south of Russia, 40,000 workmen have armed themselves and have organized a disciplined rifle legion of 1000 members under former army officers. The Russian troops are useless in the emergency, having fraternized with the strikers almost continously. The workmen's demands amount practically to confiscation of the plants.

Army Disaffection Grows

Cronstadt, July 28.—In view of repeated attempts at demonstrations the commandant of the fortress and the chief of police have issued proclamations declaring the fortress under martial law. The Semenovsky regiment, which was recently brought here, has reinforced the disaffection, which is especially strong among the signal corps and other special service men.

To Proclaim a Republic

Kharkov, July 28.—The revolutionists are actively preparing for an armed uprising and a reproclamation of the republic of Kharkov in the autumn. It was determined in the meantime to avoid conflicts with the authorities. The revolutionists have the sympathies of a large proportion of the population.

Handbills Calling For Strike

Breslau, July 28.—A dispatch from Sosnowice says that handbills have been posted there, calling on workmen to enter upon a general strike today throughout the Russian Polish frontier districts. All factories, the handbill declares, must be closed and trains stopped.

Vienna, July 28.—The Politische Correspondenz says it learns from St. Petersburg that Emperor Nicholas had directed the crown lands department to make a report showing the portions of the crown lands suitable for division among the peasants.

FORECAST OF FASHION.

An Invention For Holding Up Transparent Collars—Linen Gowns.

For holding up transparent collars on blouses are little sets of bones neatly covered. These sets consist of four bones graduated in size, with usually, two sets on a card.

Lace is everywhere in the costume world. Princess styles and the rest of the one piece gowns which have their origin in princess modes furnish another place to insert lace—about the waist in clever imitation of girdle ideas.

Dots and eyelet holes are on everything, and the flowered stuffs are fascinating—great, misty roses, with the deep purplish pinks of American Beauties side by side with wee tinted arbutus blossoms, so pale that they seem hidden away in the background.

Among a collection of pretty linen gowns recently seen there was one trimmed with heavy hand embroidery on both waist and skirt. Although in one piece, the model gave the appearance of being in three parts. The bolero was embroidered all over in an effective design, while in front was a little vest worked in Persian colorings in soft blue, pink, yellow and green. The guimpe was of batiste trimmed with narrow ruches of valenciennes edging. At the end of the sleeves there was a puff of the transparent batiste finished off like the vest with valenciennes ruchings.

The small girl's dress illustrated is of white pique. The skirt is laid in box plaits and trimmed with two rows of wash braid. The bodice has a Dutch neck, sailor collar and "dicky," all adorned with braid. Pearl buttons hold the wide girdle in place.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

How to Cure Seasickness.

Bright red spectacles, accompanied by internal doses of calomel, form a new German specific against seasickness. It is deducted from Epstein's investigations on the influence of color on the blood vessels in the brain. Seasickness is due to lack of blood in the brain, while red sends blood to the brain with a rush. By looking at one point for some time through the red glasses the patient is rapidly cured.

When the Editor "Puffed"

By DONALD ALLEN

Copyright, 1906, by M. M. Cunningham

There was just one reason why the Widow Bidwell refused the matrimonial offer tendered her by Editor Flint of the Weekly Clarion and Fergus County Advertiser. Editor Flint had owned and edited the Clarion for many years. He had never married because he had been too busy making up and working off his edition of 600 copies, getting up and printing auction bills, writing thrilling local notices of wood wanted on subscription and other matters connected with a weekly journal of twenty years ago. Some of his esteemed contemporaries sneeringly remarked now and then that he stole his editorials, but when it came down to writing out an auction bill they yielded him the palm.

"Auction! Auction! Auction!" read the average bill. "Take notice that on the 14th of September George Styles, farmer, will sell at public vendue all the live stock and other personal property on his farm on the Red Bridge road. Said stock consists of horses, cows, sheep and hogs and about 100 hens and geese. Sale to begin at 10 a. m., and all will go to the highest bidder."

There was no doubt about the success of the Clarion as a newspaper or about the success of Editor Flint as an editor. When he finally made up his mind to marry the Widow Bidwell, there was no doubt that he would be a success as a Benedict. He struck a snag, however. The widow had been obliged to turn to dressmaking since her husband's death, and she did not rank with the Four Hundred of the village, but she was a lover of poetry and she had dreams of poets. While this kept her grocery bill down, it interfered considerably with her getting out orders on time, and she calculated that one about offset the other.

The poetry loving widow had had fifty different poetic effusions published in the Clarion over the nom de plume of Flossie, but Mr. Flint had received the copy with a grunt, and the public had recovered from the shock each time within twenty-four hours.

The "poems" had been published to save carrying dead advertising. Mrs. Bidwell was rather surprised when the editor dropped in on her one evening and proceeded to say that he wanted her for the mistress of his house, but she soon rallied and answered that there was an insurmountable barrier between them. He didn't look like a poet. She knew what he could do in the way of an auction bill, but the man who wed Flossie must look the part. She would attend to the poetry as heretofore, but he must at least have long hair, an aesthetic face and dreamy eyes.

The editor saw at once that he couldn't fill the bill. He wore his hair short, had a fat face, and his eyes were on the lookout for delinquent subscribers instead of looking into the far away. He therefore picked up his hat and walked back to the office.

However, the iron had entered Mr. Flint's soul. He had laid his forty-year-old heart at a woman's feet, and she had spurned it. He either wanted to commit suicide or secure revenge, and after figuring up that the Clarion plant was worth about $4,000 he decided to hang on to earth. The first installment of his revenge was shown in his next issue, when he said:

"We take pleasure in informing our readers that a brother of the Widow Bidwell, who writes beautiful verse under the name of Flossie, has just died and left her a fortune estimated at $100,000. She has our heartiest congratulations."

Of course the public read the item, and of course the widow read it. There wasn't a word of truth in it, but when people came and showered their congratulations she couldn't bring herself to deny the story. She was even thankful to the Clarion for publishing the canard. The issue of the following week pursued the matter further.

"We understand," it said, "that the fortune left to the Widow Bidwell by her deceased brother in the west will go $50,000 better than at first reported. There are reports afloat that she will remove to New York city as soon as she comes into possession and buy a residence on Fifth avenue. Her poem this week is the best thing in the paper."

There were more congratulations, and the widow got deeper into the coils. It was so nice to be patted on the back and soft soaped that she couldn't bring herself to deny the reports.

Between the second and third issues of the Clarion the editor had a caller. His ostensible occupation was selling Bohemian oats to farmers at $5 a bushel and sailing mighty close to prison as a swindler, but he had the hair and face and eyes of a poet. Even the fat and healthy editor had to admit that. The caller wanted to insert a small ad. and ask about the Widow Bidwell. He had seen the notices in the Clarion about her legacy, and he wanted a few pointers.

Editor Flint praised the woman who had jumped on his bleeding heart, Aye, he spoke in highest terms of her, and even told Mr. Harold De Lisle how he could get an introduction to her. Then the third issue said:

"We had a pleasant call the other day from Mr. Harold De Lisle, who has just made a million dollars out of Pennsylvania oil. We understand that he may remain in our village for some days. Indeed, Dame Rumor is connecting his name with that of a rich and prominent widow on Chestnut street."

Mr. De Lisle was duly introduced to the Widow Bidwell. She had no sooner set eyes on him than her heart began to palpitate. The poet had come. He looked and dressed the part. He also acted it. Nothing was said of her dressmaking on the one hand nor of his oat business on the other. They talked of sonnets and poems and idyls, and the widow was not in the hotel dining room to note the quantity of corned beef and cabbage he got away with at dinner.

There was a fourth notice in the Clarion. The spurned editor hadn't much to do with auction bills just then, and he had time to keep track of affairs on Chestnut street. He had been told that Mr. Harold De Lisle was only a traveling agent for a gang of eastern swindlers, but he wasn't going to say so. On the contrary, what he said was:

"The wealthy and distinguished Mr. De Lisle is still with us, and if he has not won the heart of a Reed City lady then rumor has gone far astray. The wedding will probably be a quiet affair, and bride and groom may make a honeymoon trip to Europe."

The Bohemian oats man who looked like a poet and the widow dressmaker who really wrote rhymes were not exactly frank with each other. He never asked the name of her brother or what disease he died of. He never asked if that fortune had come or when it might be expected.

On her part, she didn't ask in what part of the Keystone State his oil well was situated or what national bank he honored with his deposits. They read the Clarion and trusted in each other.

There were more farmers waiting to buy Bohemian oats and find a crop of weeds, but still Harold De Lisle lingered. There were dresses that customers were waiting for, but still the widow's sewing machine was silent. The languidness and lethargy of looking like a poet and being a poet beat sliding down hill all hollow. The fifth "puff" in the Clarion was a send-off.

"The event of the season occurred at the Methodist church two days since," it read. "As we have all along predicted, we have lost our fairest flower. In other words, Mr. Harold De Lisle prevailed upon the charming Widow Bidwell to give him her hand and heart, and the Rev. Mr. Peters made them man and wife in a very impressive ceremony. The happy couple left for Chicago immediately after, but may return next week to prepare for the jaunt abroad."

Ten days later the bride returned and at once notified all old customers that business was to be resumed at the old stand.

Ten days later in a distant state the bridegroom was talking up Bohemian oats. They had come to an understanding about money matters. They had understood that each had played the confidence game on the other and that they hadn't $300 between them.

Editor Flint of the Clarion and Fergus County Advertiser sat down and wrote an auction bill for Farmer Jones and told him what the price for 200 copies would be, and as he found himself setting it up he found himself saying to himself:

"Oh, I don't know. I don't seem to have so much ache under my vest as I did. I shouldn't wonder if I recovered from the blow in time."

Sailor's Story of Jungle Surgery.

"There wuz this here black Kamerun savage, naked as an animal," said the sailor, "and there wuz this explorer in his pretty suit of white drillin', and there wuz a Kamerun medicine man with a headdress o' human bones. They stood under a palm tree. I sot on a log and watched 'em. The medicine man put the right arms of the savage and the explorer close together and then, flourishin' a dull lookin' knife, he nicks a vein in the white arm and then an artery in the black arm. The blood come a-gushin' and a-gushin' out of the black arm, and the medicine man scooped it up in the holler of his hand and rubbed it into the nicked white arm. He must 'a' rubbed in a pint before he closed the wound. Transfoosion o' blood is what they call it. They say it saves a white man from jungle fever and from all the evils of the miasma, of the hot swamps, of the damp heat, the rottin' vegetation. They say Stanley had black blood transfoosed into his'n eight times. That is how he stood Africa. I know it's a common thing for African explorers to go through the transfoosin' process. And I'll tell you a funny thing about it. It makes the hair thicker and darker and it darkens the skin a couple of shades."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Oldest Body of Human Being.

The oldest body of any human being reposes in the Egyptian gallery of the British museum. It is the body of a man who was buried in a shallow grave hollowed out of the sandstone on the west bank of the Nile in upper Egypt. This man must have hunted along the banks of the Nile before the time of the earliest mummied king which the museum possesses, before the time of Menes, who was supposed to have ruled Egypt at least 5000 B. C. There were previous to that time two prehistoric races, one the conquerors and the other the conquered, from which sprang the Egyptian race of the earliest dynasties. It is with these remote stocks that this man had to do. Considering the condition in which he was found, it is evident that he was associated with a late period of the new stone age of Egypt. He was buried in a characteristic neolithic grave, with his neolithic pots and instruments of flint about him. There is of course no inscription of any kind on the pots, knives or grave, all having been long before the invention of any written language.—American Antiquarian.

TO LIVE UP TO LAW

Canners to Abandon the Use of Coloring Matter

NEW MEAT REGULATIONS

Scope of Inspection Covers All Branches of Manufacture and Is of the Most Stringent Character--Sanitation Provisions

Washington, July 28.—The national pure food law is bringing about results, although it will not go into effect for five months. The agricultural department has received notice that the Canned Goods Exchange of Baltimore has decided to abandon the use of coloring matter in canned tomatoes and to disregard the various state pure food laws and to live up to the requirements of the federal law which governs interstate commerce. It is understood the canned goods manufacturers throughout the country will shortly take similar action.

Various state legislatures at their sessions next January will be asked to make state laws conform to the federal law. Since states began passing pure food laws the canners have, they say, been trying to conform to many laws, and at times they have found it impossible to pack and label their goods so as to meet local requirements in any two or three states.

They assume that the federal law is now supreme, and they propose to conform strictly to it, with the expectation that states will make their enactments conform to the act of congress. The agricultural department is gratified with the information that the canners will readjust their business to meet the requirements of the law without a fight.

Secretary Wilson has just made public the regulations under the new law governing the inspection of meat products for interstate and foreign trade. They do not, however, cover the subject of interstate transportation of meat or the microscopic inspection of pork for export. Regulations on these subjects, it is stated, will be issued later. The regulations issued yesterday are stringent and in line with the best authorities on the subject of sanitation, preservatives, dyes, chemicals and condemnation of diseased carcasses.

The general regulations provide that the scope of the inspection shall cover all establishments whose meats or meat food products, in whole or in part, enter into interstate or foreign commerce, unless exempted from inspection by the secretary of agriculture. The only establishments which may be exempted by the secretary are retail butchers and retail dealers supplying their customers in interstate or foreign trade, but even these exempted classes are required to submit to the secretary an application for exemption. All animals, carcasses and meat food products will be subjected to a rigid inspection. Reinspection will be had wherever necessary.

The sanitation regulations require the meat establishments to be suitably lighted and ventilated, and to be maintained in a sanitary condition. Employes must wear outer clothing of a material that is easily cleansed and made sanitary. No person affected with tuberculosis shall be employed in any of the departments where carcasses are dressed or meat food products prepared.

The provision relating to dyes, chemicals and preservatives is stringent. No meat or meat-food product for interstate commerce shall contain any substance unless specifically provided for by a federal statute. Meats and meat food products for export may contain preservatives in proportions which do not conflict with the laws of the foreign country to which they are exported. Such meats may not enter domestic trade under any circumstances.

The inspection of animals before slaughter is changed to conform to the new law and to give the secretary of agriculture authority to require that all animals suspected of disease shall be slaughtered separately from all other animals, under the supervision of federal inspectors. The new law does not authorize inspection of animals for local trade.

Special provision is made for the destruction for food purposes of all meat food products which, upon inspection, prove to be unfit for human food. All such meat will be placed in a tank in the presence of a government inspector and all openings to the tank will be sealed with a government seal by the inspector. Steam will be turned on. Coloring matter will be added to render it impossible that the tankage can be used for lard or other edible product.

The regulation directs attention to the fact that it is a felony, punishable by fine or imprisonment, for any firm or corporation or any agent or employe thereof, to give or offer, directly or indirectly, to any department employe engaged in meat inspection, any money or other thing of value, with intent to influence the employe in the discharge of his duty. It is also a felony for any department employe engaged in meat inspection to receive or accept any gift.

Running through the regulations is a carefully prepared scheme which will effectually prevent the entrance into sausage curing, canning and other chopped meat establishments of carcasses which were not inspected and passed by federal inspectors at the time of slaughter.

Gave First Thoughts to Others

Vienna, July 28.—Professor Baron Eiselberg, the noted surgeon of the Vienna university, after performing two difficult operations for appendicitis yesterday, surprised his assistants by ordering them to clean the operating table and make preparations for a third operation, announcing himself to be the patient. An immediate operation was successfully performed. It seems that some weeks ago the professor experienced symptoms of appendicitis and Thursday night had an alarming attack. He came to the university yesterday determined to be operated upon, but, owing to the danger in the other cases, decided to perform the operations himself.

Awful Ravages by Locusts

Vienna, July 28.—Locusts are devastating the neighborhood of Debreczin, where crops on 60,000 acres already have been consumed. Fires lighted to check the progress of the insect have been extinguishd by the on-moving mass, after which the survivors of the army of devastation have continued their march. Twelve steam rollers have been used at one place to crush the locusts, but they have made no apparent impression. Locusts cover the earth in many places to the depth of several inches, defying annihilation.

Sage Left Nothing to Charity

New York, July 28.—The will of Russell Sage bequeaths all of his estate to his widow, Margaret O. Sage, after the payment of $25,000 to each of Sage s nephews and nieces, and $10,000 to his sister, Mrs. Fanny Chapin of Oneida, N. Y. The will also provides that in case any of its beneficiaries contested the probate of it, they shall be cut off from any share in the estate. There was nothing in the will to show the value of Sage's estate.

Spain Shows Signs of Jealousy

Madrid, July 28.—The arbitration of the dispute between Guatemala and Salvador through the United States has developed considerable irritation here. The Madrid journals criticise the event, declaring that Spain was the proper arbitrator owing to the common language and the relations of the two countries with this nation, as well as Spain's possession of official archives relating to Spanish America.

Ship and Crew Lost

La Rochelle, France, July 28.—The Danish freight steamer Mikobar reports having run down and sunk a sailing vessel, name unknown, 15 miles off shore. All of the crew of the sunken ship went down with her.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The hay sheds of W. G. Snyder in the freight yard of the Boston and Maine railroad, as well as a freight car, were destroyed by fire at North Adams, Mass.

Daniel W. Taft, a former woolen manufacturer of Uxbridge, Mass., died of Bright's disease. He was born in Uxbridge in 1833 and served in the lower branch of the legislature.

At a meeting of the Illinois Central directors an understanding was reached between President Fish and E. H. Harriman whereby there will be no contest for proxies at the coming election in October.

Preliminary arrangements for the establishment of a national steamship company to carry on a service between Fiume, Hungary, and New York have been made at Budapest.

Effective Baseball Tricks

Dalrymple, Old Chicago Player, Once Won a Game by Clever Ruse. How Johnnie Evers and Tinker Fooled a Base Runner.

Tricks, worked with such exceeding speed as to deceive the umpire, the opposing team and often practically every one on the ground, have been pulled off again and again by clever ball players, and many of them have won games.

It is strange that the stories of such tricks are confined to so few men. Whether that is because only a few turned were attributed to them, just as all the funny stories are attributed to notorious story tellers, no one knows. But the greatest of the tricks are attributed to Mike Kelly, Jimmie McAleer, Pat Tebeau, Billy Hamilton, Comiskey, Tip O'Neill and Tommy McCarthy.

Tricks are pulled off almost every day—little ones, often unsportsmanlike—but they win ball games, and that, especially in professional games, is all that counts. It is boldness and quick thinking and acting that make them possible, and, however one may feel about the sportsmanship of the player who turns the trick, he cannot but admire the cerebral celerity of the player.

Dalrymple, the old Chicago star, once won a game by one of the cleverest tricks ever pulled off. It was in a game against Philadelphia, when the pennant fortunes of the teams seemed wavering. The game was close and went into extra innings, with the score 5 to 5 and both teams fighting for every inch of ground. The eleventh inning began with darkness descending over the field, with the score still a tie.

Chicago scored one run, and the Philadelphia crowd, which had the last bats, was howling at the umpire to call the game on account of darkness, but he refused, and the Quakers were sent to bat. Two men were retired, and then a single and a double suddenly changed the aspect of things. With men on second and third and a big hitter up, Chicago's chances grew dim, and they began delaying and fighting for darkness. Still the umpire was obdurate, and the ball was pitched. The batter swung. There was a crack and the sphere went flying out to left center. It was lost from sight in an instant. The crowd did not know whether it was a home run or a line fly.

Two players went tearing toward the plate. In that instant Dalrymple stood still, shoved both hands above his head, waited an instant, jerked them down, stuck something into his pocket and, turning, ran to the clubhouse, while the crowd roared over Chicago's victory.

But in the clubhouse Dal confessed that he hadn't seen the ball at all, hadn't the slightest idea where it had fallen and that his entire play of catching it was pantomime, which fooled everybody except a few in the left field bleachers, who saw the ball cross the left end fence of the grounds and fall into the street.

Johnny Evers of the Chicago Nationals worked a clever trick a couple of seasons ago that resulted in a putout. He was playing second, and there was a runner on first when the batter cracked a hot bounder straight at him. In some way the ball shot straight between his legs and rolled on out to center field. Without blinking an eyelash Evers went through the pantomime of throwing the ball to second to force out a runner. Tinker, covering the base, pretended to catch the ball, and the base runner, completely fooled, stopped and started to walk to the bench. Before the yells of his teammates aroused the base runner Slagle had recovered the ball and thrown the runner out at second.

Son of Chimes Is a Star.

The Landgrave, 2:17½, by Chimes, dam by Mambrino King, that took his present mark at Baltimore recently, is considered a star performer by horsemen who have seen him race. He will be raced on the half mile tracks until later in the season, when he will be turned loose on the "big ring."

ENGINEER KILLED

Passenger Car Missed Switch and Threw Locomotive Over

Concord, Mass., July 28.—The front car of a local train, on which there were but two passengers, jumped the track near the Concord Junction station last evening, and on leaving the rails the car threw the engine on its side, fatally injuring the engineer, George Clark, and shaking up the rest of the trainhands and one passenger. The other passenger escaped without injury.

About 200 yards east of the Concord Junction station a switch connects the outward with the inward track. When the train reached the switch the engine crossed it safely. The front trucks of the leading car, however, struck the point of the switch and immediately jumped the rail and ran off the side of the track. The coupling with the engine held as the car went off the rails, which caused the big machine to slew around and topple over on its side.

Engineer Clark was thrown beneath the boiler and probably rendered unconscious at once, for he showed no signs of life while efforts were being made to extricate him. He was alive, however, when finally taken out, but died within a few minutes. Fireman Ronan clung to his post and escaped with only a severe shaking up and a few bruises.

$40,000 Fire In Maine Town

Bangor, Me., July 28.—Fire in Brewer destroyed an icehouse containing 12,000 tons of ice, together with its machinery, a dwelling house, two frame warehouses, several small boats and $4000 worth of lumber. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a match or cigar stump thrown into dry grass in Rollins park. The Congregational church took fire several times, but was saved, together with the city hall. The total loss is estimated at about $40,000.

Admiral on Submarine Trip

Newport, R. I., July 28.—The blue flag of a rear admiral flew for several hours from the little pole mast of the submarine boat Shark, in which Rear Admiral Swinbourne made an inspection tour about Narragansett bay. The Shark made several plunges beneath the waves of the bay during the run, and at one time was submerged for half an hour.

Fortune For Brothers and Sisters

Boston, July 28.—The will of the late Rev. Patrick J. Daly, pastor of St. Francis de Sales church, Roxbury, leaves $60,000 to Roman Catholic charitable institutions of Boston. The remainder of the estate, which has been appraised at $392,000, is divided among his seven brothers and sisters.

Jackies Get Shore Leave

Rockport, Mass., July 28.—A thousand sailors were given shore leave from the warship fleet here yesterday and Rockport and Gloucester were filled with bluejackets. Admiral Evans will sail for Bar Harbor, Me., today.

Japanese Naval Officers Quarreled

Tokio, July 28.—While the cruiser Itsukushima was returning from an Australian cruise Chief Engineer Kawai attacked Captain Ishikawa with a sword, inflicting over 20 wounds. The captain is in a serious condition. Kawai had two fingers of his right hand cut off. He attempted to cut his throat, but failed. His condition is serious. The cause of the quarel between the two officers is not known.

Exceeded Contract Requirements

Santa, Barbara, Cal., July 28.—The protected cruiser Milwaukee fulfilled all requirements of the government in a four-hour straightaway run of 100 miles at sea. The speed for the four hours was 22.216 knots an hour average. Twenty-two knots were required. The turning, backing and helm tests were all satisfactory to the inspectors and builders.

Not the Gentry Murderer

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 28.—Fritz Constantino, who was arrested at Tivoli, charged with the murder of Mrs. Arthur W. Gentry of Chicago, was discharged from the Dutchess county jail today. Constantino is not the man wanted by the Chicago authorities, although he bears a remarkable close resemblance to the alleged murderer.

Sultan's Army Routs Rebels

London, July 28.—A dispatch from Tangier, Morocco, says that a serious all day long engagement occurred near Muluya and that the pretender's forces were completely routed, with heavy loss, by the sultan's troops, who afterwards paraded the district with rebels' heads stuck on their bayonets, as trophies of the victory.

Four New Consuls

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 28.—President Roosevelt announced the following appointments: W. R. Lowery of Illinois, consul at Weimar, Germany; G. B. Wardman of Pennsylvania, consul at Aguascalientes, Mex.; T. H. Norton of Ohio, consul at Chemnitz, Saxony; E. L. Harris of Illinois, consul at Smyrna, Turkey.

Bernhardt Won't Get Legion Cross

Paris, July 28.—The chancellorie of the Legion of Honor has again rejected the nomination of Sarah Bernhardt for the cross of the legion, despite the formal insistence of M. Briana, minister of public instruction and worship.

Agree to End Grain Rate War

Chicago, July 28.—The war on grain rates from Missouri river points to Chicago will come to an end Aug. 10. This decision was reached at a conference at which every road running west of Chicago was represented.

The Latest Local Brevities

Harold Penniman has returned from Meridith, N. H.

No civil cases will be tried at the district court during the month of August.

Quincy boats are participating in the open race at Hull today.

The present indications are that it will be long after Sept. 1, before the High school is ready for occupancy.

Morris Litchfield of Wollaston, has recently accepted a position as night engineer on the Floating Hospital.

The Bigelows and Makaria team will meet on the Ward Two playground this afternoon.

James F. Burke has sold for Mrs. L. W. Grant, her house at 65 Warren avenue to Mrs. P. Ferguson.

Wallace S. Rice of South Central avenue has been ill with pneumonia for two weeks.

The Assessors promise the tax rate early next week. Will it be higher or lower than last year?

Chief Engineer Litchfield has now got the fire department on a civil service basis, all of the members are therefore under its protection.

Quincy Yacht club cruise to Marblehead tomorrow, to participate in midsummer races.

Supt. Gammons of the Quincy division of the Old Colony street railway has a new automobile.

Mr. Harry Besarick and family of Dorchester have just moved into the Dix house on Elm avenue, which they have recently purchased.

Eighteen of the business houses, aside from the grocers, have signed a paper to close their stores next Wednesday, which is Grocers' day. In the list are the clothing and shoe stores.

Capt. Benjamin King enjoyed on Thursday the annual outing of the Boston Veteran Firemen's Association at Nantasket Point, and is looking forward to the league muster at Providence August 15.

The Whitman Times this week contains a picture of the proposed new $100,000 town hall to be erected in that town. It is a handsome red brick building with granite base and terra cotta trimmings. Aaron H. Gould of Wollaston is the architect.

Rich Relations.

"He's rich, isn't he?"

"No; only relatively so. It's his people who have the money."

ODD KIND OF MACARONI.

Straws For Mixed Drinks Served at Dinner by New Cook.

A young housewife on the upper west side of New York, who has been married long enough, however, to know that the breakfast rabbit should be skinned and not plucked, told her cook the other day to have macaroni for dinner, says the New York Times.

"Phwere is ut?" asked the guardian of the gas stove, who is new on the job.

"You'll find it on the second shelf of the cupboard," replied the young wife, disappearing from the kitchen.

Two hours later her lord came in after a hard day's work at managing a large body of unruly toilers and sat down expectantly to a welcome feast.

"We have macaroni for dinner today," said the wife smilingly.

"Good!" he replied. "Macaroni is my long suit. Watch me."

She did watch him as he enthusiastically dipped the ladle into the inviting mass of noodles and after applying the proper proportion of cheese started it on its way. But there was a painful expression on his face as his teeth met the food, and he stopped to investigate, He called the cook.

"What's this?" he demanded.

"Macarooni, sorr," she replied.

"Is that so?" sarcastically. "Where do you buy your macaroni—in a glue factory or a pulp works? Get the box."

She produced the package. It bore the inscription:

> Choice Papier Mache Straws
> For Mixed Drinks.

"I thought so," spluttered the husband—"ostrich food! Take 'em back to the straw stack." But he is good natured, and the cook still lives to tell the tale.

BEAUTIES' NEW FAD.

Tennis Play In Bathing Suits the Latest at Atlantic City.

Playing tennis in bathing suits is the latest example at Atlantic City, N. J., of the freedom of the shore, says a special dispatch to the New York Globe. It has been evolved on that beautiful open beach down below the Chelsea cottage colony. The girls down that way have a tennis court carefully marked out up high on the beach, where the sand lies damp and well packed, and there they combine the pleasures of the surf with the exercise of the fascinating inland game.

It is conceded that at no other resort does woman develop such extreme and curious fads as she does at Atlantic City, and no one can tell how these fancies originate. Just now the board walk fad is for the ugliest, huge, amber colored knobs obtainable to be worn as hatpins; some are as large as tennis balls. These appear in all kinds of head covering, from baby hats to yachting caps. When the girl at the shore does a fad she does it to death.

SEASHELLS IN COLORADO.

Huge Ones, Millions In Number, Are Found In Irrigation Tunnel.

Seashells more than three feet in diameter and weighing in many instances fully 100 pounds are delaying the construction of an irrigating tunnel by the government near Gunnison, Colo., says a Washington correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The tunnel is being forced through millions of shells, which, geological and biological sharps declare, were once the homes of mollusks, each of a size large enough to feed a dozen men of present day size. The shells, according to the views of the geologists who have charge of the work, are millions of years old and were deposited there at the time when the ocean covered that part of Colorado, but which receding left only the great salt lake of Utah and the shells as a reminder of the fact that the arid and semiarid lands of the southwest were once the bed of the ocean.

New Definition of War.

The Japanese Admiral Shimamura gave out a fresh definition of war when recently visiting Australia, says the Springfield Republican. "Peace maneuvers plus the killing" does very well.

Progress of Woman.

Miss Carrie, daughter of V. G. Moyer of Macungie, Pa., is winning fame, says the Philadelphia Record, as an effective baseball pitcher.

The Douma's Grim Humor.

There has come a startling rumor that the douma's in a humor
To make trouble for the poor distracted czar;
That it doesn't mean to knuckle down or truckle if the buckle
That is round it is drawn up a hole too far.
Some one's apt to get a sudden sort of jar.
It's awfully disgusting; it's ungrateful as can be,
But it seems to show a shocking disposition to be free.

After all the condescension and attention
the convention
With the loving Little Father and his suite,
After granting their petition on condition that submission
To the autocratic will should be complete—
To presume to have opinions when they meet!
That it's horribly ungrateful anybody will agree,
But the wretches show a shocking disposition to be free.

They will soon want reformation, liberation, education—
They're already asking something of that kind—
And with language lacking polish will abolish and demolish
All the safeguards for autocracy designed.
They will raise the very dickens, you will find.
You may say I'm pessimistic, but I think that you will see
What will happen if the douma should unhappily be free.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Harry Davenport, an actor too well known to the theatre going public to need any special introduction, will be the leading entertainer of a capital variety program at Keith's the week of July 30. His contribution to the entertainment will be a series of vocal specialties which he calls "English Types," the best known number being "Our Bazaar," made famous in England by the noted Albert Chevalier and which is one of the most artistic bits of entertainment in the varieties. The show is an "all-variety" one, be sort that appeals so effectively to summer amusement seekers and contains several European attractions never before seen in this city.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Once more, and for the fourth time during this summer season, there is to be a Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera at the Castle Square. So popular have been the revivals of the "Mikado," "Pinafore" and "Iolanthe" that the management has wisely selected "The Pirates of Penzance" for next week's offering. This opera is one of the liveliest and most melodious of all Gilbert and Sullivan's many works, and its merry tale of the pirate crew that has its haunt on the shores of Cornwall is set to the most delightful of Sir Arthur Sullivan's music. The story is taken by Mr. Gilbert from one of his deliciously comic "Bab Ballads" and it is full of the characteristic touches of humor that have made his reputation.

Wonderland's Greatness.

The secret of the extraordinary and ever increasing popularity of Wonderland is revealed in the magnitude and multiplicity, the novelty and the merit of its attractions. This fact becomes more and more apparent from week to week, and the mouth-to-mouth endorsement given by the thousands of visitors to the new million-dollar electric city-by-the-sea, is, after all, its best advertisement. Its attractions are such as to bring all classes within its gates, either on "shank's mare" or the equally democratic electric cars and Narrow Guage trains, and society's "Four Hundred" in their automobiles. And the patronage is by no means confined to Boston's population or that of Greater Boston, for, with the close of the schools and the beginning of the long summer vacation, there has been a steady influx of excursionists from all parts of New England and points beyond. This tide of excursion travel to Wonderland is mounting higher from day to day, and, thanks to the very generous policy of the management in offering special inducements as to "gate" and concession, it bids fair to attain enormous volume.

Highland Park.

Experience the past season has shown that while musical comedy and comic opera has its devotees that first class vaudeville is more generally popular as an attraction at the parks. For this reason there will be another week of vaudeville next week at Highland Park, when a combination of acts has been secured that are the best ever seen at any park in the country. They are billed as the Premier Vaudeville Co.

Story of a Submarine

[Original.]

A party of Japanese were sitting in a tent on one of the burned blocks of San Francisco after the recent earthquake swapping yarns.

"Ishiro," said one, "tell us about the battle of the Sea of Japan. I have heard that your arm of the service—the submarines—accomplished nothing, so you must have had a fine chance to see the fight."

"H'm," grunted Ishiro Ishimura, "that comes of orders for secrecy. However, I don't mind telling you fellows an experience of twelve of us that was more terrible than any other in that terrible fight. At any rate it was unique.

"We were ordered to torpedo the Russian flagship. Well, you know the secrecy of our government. It was not desired that any success of our submarines should be known. So we were all sworn to secrecy. As soon as we sighted the fleet and located the flagship we skimmed the surface behind and, concealed by one of our own vessels till we got in position, then filled the tanks, closed the conning tower and settled down. A submarine has a vertical and a horizontal rudder, and as soon as we reached the proper depth to move forward under water the horizontal rudder was turned to keep her from going down farther. At the same time the propeller was started.

"Perhaps if one of you landlubbers had been aboard you wouldn't have had sense enough to be frightened at noticing that the boat didn't obey her rudder. Instead of moving straight ahead she kept going lower. There is a tank in a submarine to be used only in an emergency. It holds five tons of water and can be emptied in a jiffy. Our lieutenant in command ordered this tank emptied.

"We all expected to see our boat rise like a cork. She didn't do any such thing. She started to rise, but soon began sinking again. The screw should have been stopped, for since our nose was pointed down we only sank the quicker. Down, down we went till there was a shock, and we knew she had struck bottom. It was at least comforting to know that we couldn't go any lower—that is, if there is any comfort in being at the bottom of the sea without much hope of getting to the surface. The officers were cool, but any one could see that they expected almost certain death. I glanced at the depth register and was horrified to see that we were 170 feet beneath the surface.

"Three alternatives threatened us. First, there were many tons of water holding down the conning tower, our only means of getting out; second, the terrible pressure without was forcing the water in through leaks that were starting and threatened to drown us, and, third, we would at last be suffocated by poisonous gases.

"And yet you say the men in the submarines had nothing to do but look at the fight. All we could see of it was through the periscope, but we weren't looking at the fight. We were making a fight for our lives.

"We must rise to the surface at once or never. The lieutenant ordered the rotary pump started to expel the water ballast from the tanks. What was our horror to find that the pressure of water from the outside was greater than the force of the pump. But one hope remained—the hand pump. On this we must put a greater force than on the mechanical pump. Would it stand so great a strain?

"There was not a man put to work on that pump but expended more power than he had ever expended before or ever would again. All pumped, knowing that if the attempt was a failure there was nothing more to be done.

"The pump proved strong enough for the work, and the men proved strong enough to expel the water against the enormous pressure from without.

"The happiest moment of my life was feeling the boat leave the bottom. The question now was whether we could get out of the depths before a collapse. It was like the last moments of a race when a spasmodic effort is needed to win. Under such an effort we rose slowly till we reached the surface. Then we gasped in relief."

"So you failed to torpedo the flagship?"

Ishimura cast a look of scorn at the speaker. "Not so fast, if you please. Our commander gave us ten minutes to rest, while the sweat poured out of us in streams. Then we dived again."

"Dived again!" exclaimed every one at once.

"Yes, the lieutenant had no fancy for harakiri, which would have been necessary for him had he failed to make a second attempt, so we filled tanks, and down we went. This time she obeyed her rudder, and we moved along about ten feet below the surface. We could feel a tremor at every explosion of cannon. The lieutenant watched the Russian through the periscope, and it was difficult, I can tell you, to keep the thing just above the surface, and when we got into position I was ordered to let a little water out of the forward trimming tank. This brought the boat to slant upward, and the lieutenant gave the order to fire."

"And you blew her up?"

"The result I am sworn not to tell. I regard my oath, and I do not care to incur the enmity of the navy department of Japan."

"But the lieutenant—he did not have to commit harakiri?"

"The lieutenant! Oh, he is now an admiral in the Japanese navy!"

Ladies Day

Delightful Sail Enjoyed By Guests of Wollaston Club

"Had I a yacht like Miller,
That skimmer of the seas,
A wheel rigged for a tiller,
And a fresh gunnel breeze,
A crew of friends well chosen,
And all a-tanto, I
Would sail for regions frozen,
I'd rather freeze than fry."

It is not necessary to sail for regions frozen to escape the sultry weather, for there is keen enjoyment in picturesque Quincy bay, always cool and comfortable. The guests of the Wollaston yacht club on Saturday can attest to this, after their delightful sail.

Seventeen or more yachts and launches were in commission, and the bay presented a pretty scene. The yachts got away from the clubhouse about 3 o'clock and passed in review of Commodore Chase who was aboard of the yawl Brant with Mrs. Chase and guests. As the yachts dipped their colors, they were answered by a gun from the flagship.

For two hours a sail was enjoyed in the bay, some of the larger boats going nearly to Fort Warren. The Squantum promontory was particularly beautiful because of the rainy season, also Moon head and the islands in the harbor. The yachts participating in the open race at Hull made a pretty sight. The inland view is also a charming one, with "Big Blue" hill as a background; one might travel far to find its equal.

The yachts returned to the clubhouse soon after 5 P. M. Lemonade was freely served on the balconies.

In the evening there was a dancing party which was enjoyed by a large number. Cuff's orchestra furnished the music, which is always satisfactory.

The yachts and guests in the afternoon were:

Flagship Brant, Capt. J. A. Fenno—Commodore and Mrs. W. M. Chase, Miss Lillian Hendrickson, Miss Helen Hendrickson, Miss Esther Wells, Miss Victoria Hendrickson, Miss Florence Carr.

Yacht Stranger, Vice Commodore Dawes—Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hallett, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Cruikshank, Mrs. G. R. Heustis, Mrs. R. C. Bank Alarm Put to Test

There was excitement in City Square at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, caused by the ringing of the big burglar alarm gong on the outside of the National Granite bank. It was generally known that the bank was closed, and the sounding of the gong led many to believe that someone was trying to get into the vault.

Mr. Claflin the cashier happened to be in the vicinity and quickly entered the bank to investigate. In the meantime some one called up the police station, and notified them and the wagon was sent down on the run.

By this time Mr. Claflin had discovered the trouble to have been by a disarrangement of the outer wooden door of the vault. One of the rods had become displaced in closing the door, and it could not be opened to get at the wires to shut the bell off. With some difficulty the door was opened and the ringing stopped.

Quincy Challenger

First in a Large Class Of Sonder Boats In Hull Race

After her performance on Saturday, the Quincy Yacht club are confident that their challenger for the Quincy cup, the Auk, will make a good showing in the cup races and also the trial races for the German match. There were eight flyers in the Sonder class on Saturday in the race off Hull by the Boston Yacht club.

It was the best race which has been sailed by these yachts and Sally VIII got a surprise. Ex-Commodore C. F. Adams, 2d, pushed the Auk to the fore at the start and led at the Strawberry Hill mark by 20 seconds. At Quincy Great Hill and at Peddocks she was a few seconds behind the Bonidrei and Hayseed, but had a good lead at Strawberry hill and Sheep island and finished 38 seconds ahead of the Sally VIII, with the Windrin Kid third and the Hayseed and Bonidrei two and three minutes behind.

The Arawak walked away from the other Quincy cats which were closely bunched, the Iris taking second prize, and the Marvel third.

Boston Man Drowned at Reservoir

Frank F. Macomber of South Boston recently bought about twelve acres of land in Braintree on West street, bordering on the southerly end of the Quincy reservoir, a tract of land that was formerly used by the Braintree Golf club, and was having a $20,000 residence built by George H. Holbrook. He spent Saturday afternoon looking over his new house and about five o'clock went to the reservoir for a swim.

He was accompanied by George Bryant of Hollis avenue, Braintree, who is employed by T. A. Foster & Co. of which Mr. Macomber was one of the firm. It is reported that Mr. Macomber was unable to swim, so kept near the shore and accidently stepped into a hole and sank. When he came up Mr. Bryant reached him and while endeavoring to save the drowning man was pulled under.

Bryant succeeded in freeing himself and when Mr. Macomber came up again he managed to get him ashore by the aid of a young man in boat.

Drs. H. L. Deering and C. H. Gould were called and they did all in their power to revive Mr. Macomber, but after an hour's hard work gave up. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner Frazer, and removed to Fay's undertaking rooms at Quincy.

Mr. Macomber was born in North Middleboro in 1873. He leaves a widow and two children.

Sudden Death On Electric Car

Matthew J. Toner, aged 40 years, of 25 Ward street, Neponset, died in City square shortly before 8 o'clock Sunday night.

Mr. Toner had been sailing all day with Edward Fitzpatrick of Houghs Neck and was apparently in good health. He complained of feeling faint after boarding an electric car, but soon recovered and was apparently all right.

Just as the car turned into City Square he again complained of feeling ill and fell over in the seat. The car was stopped and Officer Goodhue and some of the passengers took the man from the car and laid him on the lawn in front of the residence of Henry M. Faxon.

Dr. C. W. Garey, Dr. H. C. Hallowell and Dr. R. F. Burke responded and worked over him for some time, and then pronounced him dead. Medical Examiner Jones viewed the remains, and gave the cause of death as acute dilation of the heart.

The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Hall. Mr. Toner leaves a widow and five children.

Quincy Party Fortunate To Escape From the Duet

Herbert McCloskey of the Wollaston Yacht club, and his party had a narrow escape Sunday when his gasoline launch Duet, took fire. All fortunately escaped with a little singeing. In the party with Mr. McClosky were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Smith, Mrs. Alexander Dickey and Guy Sass.

None of the men in the party were smoking and the cause of the gasolene exploding is a mystery. They were sailing along easily off the government building on Peddocks island when suddenly there was a blinding flash, and in a second the boat was on fire. The men jumped overboard and swam to the tender. At that time there was not a boat in sight.

The explosion was seen by G. W. States who sent a relief boat out for the party. J. Frank Merrill of the Assessors office, who was out cruising in his launch, also saw the burning boat and went to the rescue.

The women were transferred from the blazing launch which filled with water until she sank. She was towed however to Hull and beached.

Mr. Merrill took the party aboard his launch and brought them to Quincy. Mr. McCloskey and Mr. Sass were burned somewhat, and the women had their hair singed. The Duet was badly damaged.

South Shore Council.

A meeting of the delegates of the Union Tradesmen of Quincy was held at Cahill's hall, Friday evening, July 27, and organized the South Shore Building Trades' Council. General Organizer Cowper gave them instructions and installed the officers as follows: Frank Hibbett, president; John Lynch, vice president; W. A. Johnson, recording secretary; A. M. Mischler, financial secretary and treasurer; Jas. Mullen, sergeant-at-arms; executive board. P. E. C. Bower, John Lynch, H. Shaw, J. Hibbett, P. McNaw and Jas. McFadden.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The vacancy caused by the death of County Commissioner James Hewins of Medfield, is looked upon as good political game by several lively aspirants for the honor, and they are out gunning for the position. The most prominent and conspicuous is ex-Representative and Selectman "Uncle" Silas Stone of Sharon, and in view of the fact that he has been a special commissioner for three years, it goes without saying that he is thoroughly well-qualified for the position.—Hyde Park Gazette.

Locals and City Brevities

Saturday and Sunday were pleasant.

There was another smart shower early this morning.

Mrs. E. S. Beckford and Miss Helen Damon have been guests of friends at Plymouth.

The frequent rains this summer have kept the street watering car from being overworked. The lawn mowers however are busy.

The little building occupied by Archie Thayer on Saville street is now at Post Island where it will be put to other uses.

Miss Mary B. Keating and sister, Elizabeth G. have returned from a two weeks' vacation spent in Southport, Maine.

The enormous crowds of people that are landed in City Square by the street car lines, especially on Sundays, have never been better handled than this year. Although at times hundreds are congregated they are transferred without confusion to other lines and there has been no disturbance of any kind.

James H. Cunningham assumes the office of County Treasurer today. It is said that Mr. Cunningham desired to hold the office of Tax Collector until after the convention in the fall. As there is some opposition on the part of the general public he will probably resign.

Today Capt. Ford directed his yacht Kitty about northeast for a two weeks cruise along the coast of Maine. The cruise is intended to take in all of the well known watering places on the coast and no effort has been spared to make the trip a very enjoyable one. Capt. Ford is accompanied by C. W. Lang, Joe Guy, C. Duncan and M. Nicolls. Mr. Lang will serve as chief cook, steward and quarter master, and also furnish vocal and instrumental music as required for such an occassion.

BOATS CAPSIZED

Pleasure Seekers Were Overtaken by Bad Weather

EIGHT LIVES ARE LOST

Would Have Been More Victims but For Prompt and Efficient Aid Rendered by Government Lifesaving Crew

Anglesa, N. J., July 30.—Two yachts coming in from the fishing banks capsized on Hereford inlet bar off here and eight persons lost their lives. There were 32 persons on one yacht, of whom seven were lost, and 12 on the other, all except one being saved.

That not more fell victims to the rough sea was due to the heroism of Captain Ludlam of the Hereford Inlet lifesaving station and a crew of five.

Anglesea is one of the favorite fishing places along the southern New Jersey coast and has never had a busier Sunday than yesterday. The weather in the morning was ideal and the boats took out large crowds to the fishing banks. After noon, however, a brisk breeze came up and the captains of the small craft hoisted sail and started for home.

The two that got into trouble were the sloop yacht Nora, which had on board Captain Shivers, his mate and 30 passengers, and the sloop Alvin B., with a party of 12.

The Nora had gone to Five Fathom bank, about 10 miles out to sea. When the wind began to freshen Shivers decided it was time to make port, and with the assistance of a small gasolene engine and a good spread of canvas he made good time toward Anglesea.

As the sloop ran for shelter the wind got stiffer and the sea rougher. Shivers knew how treacherous is the Hereford bar and approached it with caution. Just as he was about to go over it a heavy squall struck the Nora, she heeled over and was hit by a huge wave. The wind and a wave coming together was more than the yacht could stand, and it turned completely over, throwing the 32 occupants into the sea.

As the boat capsized the mast snapped like a reed. There was an agonizing cry as the yacht turned turtle, which was quickly silenced when nearly all the victims disappeared beneath the water.

The heavy sea, however, probably was responsible for the saving of most of the survivors, as the waves were so rough that the upturned yacht was tossed about, thus uncovering the struggling victims who were underneath.

As many as could tried to reach the keel, but it was a difficult matter, as there was an indescribable tangle of fishing nets, lines, baskets and sail. After hanging to the yacht for nearly an hour and hope of rescue had almost been abandoned, a government lifeboat commanded by Captain Ludlam hove in sight. As he came near he shouted encouragement to the survivors, and after some maneuvering managed to get close to the capsized vessel. He was not a moment too soon, for, as he came within a boat's length of the Nora, four men, weakened from exhaustion, let go their hold and began floating away.

Captain Ludlam threw his boat around and the four were drawn out of the water. Then, at the risk of their lives, the rescuers went after the other men and pulled them into their boat. The rescue was most perilous, as the rough sea was constantly pounding the lifeboat against the yacht.

Shortly after the survivors of the Nora were brought ashore another yacht, the Alvin B., was seen to capsize about a mile above the place where the Nora went over. There were several boats in the vicinity at the time, and all but one person was saved.

Deaths Due to Violence

South Framingham, Mass., July 30.—The report of Medical Examiner Palmer into the collapse of the Amsden block here last Monday finds that the deaths upon which the inquest will be held occurred by violence, due to the collapse of the building. The report urges that a rigid investigation shall be held to place the responsibility for the accident.

Papermakers Won't Strike

Schenectady, N. Y., July 30.—The threatened strike of the United Brotherhood of Papermakers has been averted. The International Paper company, whose 32 mills are running day and night, will inaugurate a system of three shifts in the 24 hours instead of two, as in operation at present, the employes to receive practically the same pay per day as under the two-shift plan. About 15,000 employes are affected.

Dredge Sinks For Second Time

Portsmouth, N. H., July 30.—A steam dredge which sank off Henderson's point a few days ago and was afterward raised, went down again last evening in such a position as to block all traffic in the Piscataqua river through the drawbridge. The dredge went down in 36 feet of water.

Many Prostrated by Lightning

Toronto, July 30.—Two persons were fatally injured and a score more suffered minor injuries from lightning in a severe storm which swept central Ontario. Gull lighthouse was struck and 16 men who had taken refuge from the storm were prostrated by the shock.

Umpire and Player Punished

Boston, July 30.—President Murnane of the New England Baseball league has announced his findings in the case of Player Coveney of the New Bedford team, who became involved in a dispute with Umpire O'Brien at Lowell. For his assault on Coveney O'Brien is fined $25 and suspended for three days, and Coveney, in addition to the fine imposed by the umpire, has been suspended for three days.

Lost Life When Help Was Near

New York, July 30.—In an unsuccessful attempt to save a drowning boy, Policeman William Hedderman lost his life in Cromwell creek. Weighted down by his clothes, Hedderman struggled desperately to keep his head above the surface, but he was soon exhausted and sank. A brother policeman, who jumped into the creek in a vain endeavor to save his comrade, was nearly drowned, his uniform dragging him under the water, but he managed to reach the shore. The boy who was drowned had been in swimming.

Woman Perhaps Murdered

Chicago, July 30.—The body of Mrs. Ernestine Voss, 43 years old, was found burned to a crisp in the ruins of her home. The circumstances led the police to arrest her husband, who will be held pending the result of a coroner's inquest. A postmortem examination revealed 15 pellets of metal in the body near the backbone. The body was found in a summer kitchen, which was the last part of the house to take fire.

Found Wife and Children Dead

Canonsburg, Pa., July 30.—When Samuel Pearse returned to his home from a drive last night he found his wife and two children dead and a third child dying from bullet wounds. Who fired the shots has not yet been learned. Indications point to robbery as the motive. An attempt had also been made to set fire to the house, but Pearse arrived in time to extinguish a blaze that had been started in a bedroom.

Double Murder as Result of Quarrel

Tocco, Ga., July 30.—William Smith, 60 years old, was shot and instantly killed, and his brother-in-law, William Bowden, aged 35, fatally wounded, as the result of a quarrel with Elbert Loden. Loden went to Smith's home and became involved in a dispute with Bowden. Smith interfered and Loden shot him through the heart and then shot Bowden. Loden is still at large.

Triple Drowning Accident

New York, July 30.—Three of a party of six persons who were boating on Lake Hopatcong, N. J., were drowned when their craft capsized through the apparent inexperience of the men who had undertaken to handle the boat. The dead are George Latt, Miss May Klemmer and Miss Bertha Smith, all of Brooklyn.

Cruiser Pulled Off Mudbank

Kingston, Jam., July 30.—The Italian cruiser Umbria, which ran aground while coming up the harbor here, was pulled off the mudbank by the Dutch warship Kortenaer and the steamer Georgia. The Umbria was not injured.

Greeks Dispersed by Turks

Saloniki, July 30.—Three hundred Turkish troops attacked and dispersed a Greek band at Rakova. Five of the band were killed.

POOR PATRONAGE

Street Cars In New Bedford Are In Full Operation

STRIKERS HOLDING OUT

Accident Which May Result Fatally Causes Arrest of a Strike-Breaker--Cases of Violence Occur After Nightfall

New Bedford, Mass., July 30.—With all lines running with a full complement of cars, and only one line, that on Purchase street, guarded by policemen, New Bedford did not present the appearance of a strike center Sunday, and there was little indication that a street railway strike was in progress except that the number of people patronizing the cars was much smaller than on the previous Sunday. The only line that had anything like the normal Sunday traffic was the Fall River line, and even this route was not crowded.

There was not the least semblance of a disturbance throughout the day in any section of the city. The striking trolley men held a meeting yesterday afternoon and it was declared afterward that the men were gratified that the patronage of the cars was not larger.

The strikers say that they have no information that any of their number have gone back to work, and that all have attended union meetings regularly, but according to company officials at least eight have applied for reinstatement.

Mayor Thompson says that he has done all in his power to bring about an agreement, but without success, and he indicates that he has no idea what more can be done in that direction. The mayor says he has not received a visit from a committee of the Merchants' club, though it has been reported that such a committee was to be sent to interview him, their purpose being to see whether the fast running of cars by strike-breakers could not be prevented.

The first serious accident in connection with the operation of cars by strike-breaking motormen happened late last night when Henry Hart was run over and probably fatally injured by a car on Acushnet avenue. The motorman, who gave his name as James A. Parker of New York, was arrested by the police guard on the car and locked up. The charge to be preferred against the motorman will depend upon the outcome of the victim's injuries. The injured man was taken to a hospital, where an examination disclosed that he had received a fracture at the base of the skull.

The motorman claimed that he gave the victim sufficient warning, but that the latter, who was crossing the street in front of the car, apparently lost his wits and had started to retrace his steps when the car struck him. Quite a crowd gathered in the vicinity and there was some demonstration against the motorman. It was stated at the hospital that the man's injuries would probably terminate fatally.

A car bound in from Padanaram late last night was passing a picnic wagon filled with men and the car was bombarded with empty beer bottles. No one was injured and as the car was of the open variety no windows were smashed. At the corner of Acushnet avenue and the Nach road, on the outskirts of the city, one of the cars was greeted with a volley of stones. No one was hurt, however.

Throughout the entire day and evening the cars ran on schedule time and the barges, which have been in operation since the strike began, were withdrawn.

Wreck of New Steamer

Liverpool, N. S., July 30.—Driven eight miles out of her course by a strong westerly current, the Norwegian steamer Bors, from Louisburg for Yarmouth, with 800 tons of coal, ran ashore on Port Mouton island, near this place, and will probably be a total loss. It is believed that if a tug had been near the scene the Bors could have been saved soon after she struck. The Bors was a new craft, having been launched in Norway nine months ago.

Woman Has Disappeared

New York, July 30.—A general alarm has been sent out from police headquarters in this city for information concerning Mrs. Mary M. Howard, aged 38, of Brooklyn, who is believed to be wandering in Connecticut after having quitted a retreat in Westchester county, where she was a voluntary patient suffering from melancholia. Mrs. Howard disappeared last Thursday and has not since been seen or heard from.

Shot and Killed Cousin

New York, July 30.—Joseph Adams, 20 years old, shot and killed his cousin, Henry Schmitzler, in front of the latter's home in Richmond Hill. He surrendered to the police and set up a plea of self-defense. Both young men had been married within the last six weeks. Adams claims that Schmitzler had been defaming Mrs. Adams' character.

Death In Electric Fluid

Conneaut Lake, Pa., July 30.—Lightning struck the tent of a camping party during an electric storm here, killed Edward Kinsey and severely shocked two members of an outing club. The men were holding the tentpole to prevent the tent being blown away, when it was shattered in their hands.

CRIME OF YEGGMEN

Policeman Crippled For Life and Coal Merchant Wounded

Boston, July 30.—Patrolman Herman Shiel is a cripple for life and Thomas Hickey, a coal merchant, is seriously wounded, the victims of a trio of robbers, or "yeggmen," as they are known to the Massachusetts police, who held up, robbed and shot Hickey in his office at Charlestown and then engaged in a street battle with the police in which Shiel was maimed by bullets fired by the desperadoes.

So bold a crime has not occurred in Boston for many years and the police directed every effort to the capture of the third of the criminals, two of them having been arrested as the climax of the struggle with the authorities. Hickey was robbed of $200 and valuable papers, and money which is believed to be a part of this was found upon the two men taken into custody, who are George W. Everson, 27 years of age, and Fred Saeckett, 30 years of age. The police have a good description of the missing robber.

At the hospital both Hickey and Shiel identified Everson and Saeckett as two of their assailants. Shiel was found to have received a bad compound fracture of the leg which necessitated the removal of several inches of bone.

The robbery was the culmination of a carefully planned crime, as several people state that they had seen the arrested men watching the property of the coal company.

Tried Carving and Drowning

Milford, Conn., July 30.—By cutting his throat and gashing his wrist with a razor and then jumping down a well, out of which he later scrambled unaided, Julius Engler, a farmer, aged 47, while temporarily insane, attempted the fulfilment of a threat made repeatedly, while suffering from similar attacks, to take his life. Following his emerging from the well he was taken in hand by friends and removed to the Bridgeport hospital, where he is in a serious condition.

Celebrities to Aid Churchill

Cornish, N. H., July 30.—Winston Churchill, novelist, and candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of New Hampshire, was happy yesterday, when, as recruits to his board of strategy, there came to his headquarters Richard Harding Davis and Melville E. Stone, Jr., to aid in the preparation of campaign literature. Incidentally, Mrs. Davis and Ethel Barrymore are to help, as "accessories," as Davis put it.

A Mischievous Boy's Doings

Boston, July 30.—Started by some unknown boy, a Stanley steam runabout ran wild in Charlestown about 7:30 last night and finally ended its mad career by crashing into an undertaker's wagon and a trolley car. The passengers aboard the car were thrown into a panic and the machine was completely demolished. Nobody was injured, however. The auto was owned by Frank H. Williams of Everett.

Award of Automobile Trophy

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 30.—C. W. Kelsey of Tarrytown, N. Y., was awarded the Deming trophy for the automobile tour of 1400 miles, which ended here Saturday night. A. A. Post of New York, who finished at the same time as Kelsey and who also had a clean score, resigned in favor of Kelsey. The chief trophy of the tour, that offered by Charles J. Glidden, has not yet been awarded.

Labor to Consider Politics

Boston, July 30.—The Massachusetts state branch of the American Federation of Labor, representing about 800 labor unions of the state, has issued a call for a mass meeting in this city Aug. 14 of representatives of labor unions to arrange for independent political action, in accordance with the recent instructions from the national American Federation of Labor.

Auto Causes Man's Death

Salem, Mass., July 30.—An automobile ran over and killed William Richards, aged 56, and Frank Richardson, who was operating the machine, was arrested for causing Richards' death. He was released on bail. The property of Joseph Shortell, and his wife and child were riding in the car when the accident occurred.

Mind Was Unbalanced

Rumford Falls, Me., July 30.—Frank Rich, 51 years old, a farmer of Dixfield, went to a neighbor's house, carrying a rifle. After a brief conversation with the neighbor, Rich stepped behind a tree, placed the muzzle of the rifle under his chin and pulled the trigger. Death was instantaneous. Rich's mind was unbalanced.

Alleged Passer of Bad Checks

Boston, July 30.—Dr. Fred F. Moore, aged 57, an assistant in the Pittsfield general and emergency hospital at Pittsfield, Mass., was arrested here on a charge of passing several worthless checks in Pittsfield. Moore was arrested here before on similar charges and was punished by two years' imprisonment.

Locomotive Struck Carriage

Middlebury, Vt., July 30.—A carriage containing Raymond Mumbley and Miss Florence Cota, young people of this town, was struck by a locomotive at Fisher's crossing last night and the young woman was probably fatally injured. Mumbley was also badly hurt.

Human Body Ground to Pulp

Lincoln, Me., July 30.—John Keenan, an employe of the Katahdin Pulp and Paper company of this town, fell into a chip-hopper, a machine for grinding wood into small pieces, and was literally ground to pulp.

A SERIOUS REVOLT

Soldiers Seize Guns and Make Attack on Prison

SHOT BY LOYAL TROOPS

Trouble at Poltava Declared by Revolutionists to Be Far From Over--Situation In the Caucasus Is Decidedly Tense

Poltava, July 30.—A grave outbreak occurred yesterday in the Sevski regiment, following the arrest of a private of the first battalion who was discovered with some other soldiers in a shed, where the revolutionists are in the habit of holding meetings. After the arrest the entire first battalion, accompanied by a large crowd, paraded the streets in defiance of the military authorities.

The soldiers proceeded to the artillery barracks, where they seized several guns and marched with them to the prison where political prisoners are confined. At this stage all the remainder of the Poltava garrison was called out. The loyal troops fired on the mutineers with machine guns as they were engaged in breaking down the gate of the prison. Several men were killed or wounded. The outbreak was not suppressed until 2 o'clock in the morning.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—No news of the formidable revolt at Poltava, which was first predicted in revolutionary manifestos in Southern Russia, will reach the Russian public through the press today. Dispatches of the occurrence have been suppressed here, and only scanty details are obtainable by the foreign press correspondents through the regular telegraphic channls. The revolutionists here, however, who are almost as promptly and fully informed as the government, declare the trouble to be far from over. An official dispatch gives credit to the statement that machine gun detachments and Cossacks are being used to suppress the mutinous battalion.

There is the same paucity of details regarding the outbreak at Shusha, in the Caucasus. This outbreak, however, is not due to revolutionary causes, but to the immemorial hatred that exists between Armenians and Tartars.

The situation at Shusha had become so tense that the governor divided the quarters inhabitated by the two races by a "dead line," which neither faction was permitted to cross. The Tartars violated the order not to cross and commenced a battle. The garrison interfered, when the combat became general and bombarded without partiality both camps with 21 guns. The town is said to have been, to a large extent, destroyed. The "lasting peace" which the two races are said to be drawing up, if judged by past similar agreements, will be only a hollow truce which neither race has any intention of observing.

The situation at Tiflis also is exceedingly strained. The viceroy has prohibited demonstrations or meetings or even the promenading of groups of persons in the principal thoroughfares of the city. It is announced that armed force will be used to disperse any such gatherings without further preliminary warning.

A plenary meeting of the St. Petersburg council of workmen's deputies, representing 130,000 workmen, was held yesterday at Terioki, a little town across the Finnish border, which is now the mecca of all opponents of the government. The members agreed that a general strike, though it must be declared later, at the present moment would be untimely. The afternoon was spent in discussing other measures and in an expression of views as to the attitude to be taken by the workmen on the dissolution of parliament. Many of the delegates favored a gigantic one-day strike, but no decision on this point was reached.

There is much jubilation among the revolutionists over the escape from prison at Sebastopol of Samenkoff, who is believed to have been an accomplice in the attempt last May on the life of General Neplueff. This escape sets at liberty one of the most dangerous revolutionary organizers in Russia. Samenkoff is a leading member of the central committee of the social revolutionists. His friends have steadfastly maintained that he had no connection with the plot against Neplueff, and say that the authorities used his presence in Sebastopol the day of the attempted assassination as a pretext to arrest and railroad him to the scaffold.

In addition to putting the screws on the Russian press to prevent the publication of unfavorable news from the interior and throwing in the waste-basket of practically all the foreign press comment on the dissolution of parliament, the government has shown itself to be extremely sensitive to public opinion abroad and has imposed a strict censorship on telegrams sent throgh the official agency, in order to prevent as far as possible harsh criticism.

Mutineers Sentenced

Sebastopol, July 30.—A naval court martial yesterday passed sentences upon the seamen who were arrested for complicity in the mutiny of the Black sea fleet in 1905. Four men were condemned to death, one to life servitude, 32 to varying terms of penal servitude and 50 to life imprisonment. Six were acquitted.

FOUR COACHES WRECKED

Engineer Killed and Fireman and Passengers Badly Hurt

Fishkill Landing, N. Y., July 30.—A Pacific express train from New York was wrecked shortly before midnight at tower 53, 11 miles below Poughkeepsie, by running into a landslide which had been swept down from a high embankment by a terrific rainstorm.

The engine of the flyer was thrown from the rails and plunged into the river. Fireman Mills was killed outright and Engineer Wells was fatally injured. Fifteen passengers were seriously injured and a score of others received minor hurts.

The wrecked train was made up of four Pullman cars, six day coaches, one baggage car, one mail car and one combination baggage and mail car, Four of the day coaches were wrecked.

Superintendent McCoy of the Harlem division was in charge of a relief train that came from New York. On the train were 50 trained nurses and a number of physicians. The injured were transferred to the Highland hospital.

A Bad Opinion of Gorky

Buffalo, July 30.—The fifth annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies opened here with a mass meeting at Convention hall. Bishop McFaul spoke against the evils of socialism and divorce. "Look at Maxim Gorky, the Russian socialist," he said. "Coming to America to ask us to turn upon Russia. See him living with a woman who cannot be recognized as his wife. That villain and scoundrel and polluter of womanhood would preach to us the gospel of human liberty."

Manifesto Printed by Force

St. Petersburg, July 30.—A party of men armed with revolvers forced their way into the Boussel printing establishment here. They made the foreman a prisoner and prevented the compositors from leaving the building. They then had printed 150,000 copies of the Viborg manifesto of the outlawed lower house of parliament. Strangers calling at the establishment while this work was being done were detained to prevent their giving the alarm.

San Francisco Strike Spreads

San Francisco, July 30.—To add to the complication of the labor situation in San Francisco and following close upon the heels of the strike of linemen and electricians on the United railroad, all the laborers, pavers and other workmen engaged in construction work on the street railway system will be called out. It is alleged by the union that the United railroads started the trouble by discharging workmen because of their affiliation with the union.

Railroad Brigands' Fat Pickings

Warsaw, July 30.—A postal car robbed on the Warsaw-Vienna railroad near this city contained a package of $60,000 in cash from abroad and at least $50,000 additional funds. The officers and the entire crew of the Volga steamer Kurjer have been arrested on suspicion of placing the steamer at the disposition of a band that held up a train on the Volga railway.

Trolley Smashups In Brooklyn

New York, July 30.—Two collisions on the lines of the Brooklyn rapid transit system in Brooklyn resulted in the injury of more than a score of passengers, several of whom were so badly hurt that they were taken to a hospital. The two motormen, several of the train guards and one of the company's flagmen were arrested on charges of criminal negligence.

Rockefeller Had Splendid Time

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 30.—John D. Rockefeller, accompanied by his wife and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., attended church here yesterday, as is the custom when staying at the Pocantico Hills estate. Rockefeller told several members of the congregation that he was glad to be home again, although he had a splendid time while in Europe.

Secretary Root's Travels

Rio De Janeiro, July 30.—Secretary Root and Senor Nabuco, the Brazilian ambassador to the United States, accompanied by their families, left here yesterday for Petropolis, where the visitors were greeted by a large gathering of prominent persons. Root spent Sunday at the summer palace of President Penna, on the Rio Negro.

Rain Sorely Needed

Bokhara, Central Asia, July 30.—On account of the long continued drought the water supply in this district is practically exhausted. The people are drinking from the stagnant pools. The cotton plantations are scorched by the heat, and unless rain falls within a week the oasis will be swallowed up by the surrounding desert.

Demonstration Against Greeks

Philiopolis, Bulgaria, July 30.—The Bulgarian population of this place yesterday took possession by force of three of the Greek churches. Two persons were killed and several were wounded in the fighting. The streets are in the hands of a mob. Consternation prevails in the Greek quarter.

Rumored Killing of Trepoff

St. Petersburg, July 30.—A rumor has gained currency that General Trepoff has been killed. It cannot be confirmed, but probably is a revival of the false rumor current last week.

The Valhalla's Sea Serpent

HEAD OF DAEDALUS SEA SERPENT.

To summer sojourners on the sad sea's shore come the grateful tidings that their old friend the sea serpent, whom they mourned as dead and gone, is disporting himself in southern waters with all his old time playfulness. At the last meeting of the Royal British Zoological society two eminent naturalists, E. B. Meade and M. J. Nicoll, told how, when and where they saw him. 'Twas off the blue Brazilian coast that the good steam yacht Valhalla spoke his serene snakeship. The Valhalla belongs to the Earl of Crawford, who sails the seven seas in search of strange and startling sights, and he took the two scientists along to make observations and affidavits for him.

At four bells of the morning watch on the 7th of December last Mr. Meade and Mr. Nicoll were on the Valhalla's deck, scanning the horizon, when they spied in the offing a sail-like object some four feet long by two feet wide, waving from side to side. No sooner had they trained their glasses on this queer object than a huge eel-like neck appeared, as thick as a man's thigh and six feet long, and at the upper end of this neck was a turtle-like head, with large eyes, "rubbering" high above the level of the ocean, which was now quite calm. The apparition was dark colored above and silvery beneath. After a few minutes neck and head were slowly lowered and when level with the water were lashed violently from side to side, churning the sea into suds. Then the serpent vanished into the vasty deep.

Adverse winds kept the Valhalla within the area of the serpent's appearance through the day. That night one of the officers saw a strange commotion in the water. At first he thought it was a big rock, with waves breaking over it, but on careful examination he found that it was a beast of some kind, traveling faster than the ship, which was then making only about eight and a half knots. He "hailed the deck" and the lookout man, and thus got witnesses to the phenomenon. The sea was calm and the moonlight bright, but the animal so obscured itself by the foam it thrashed up that its character could not be accurately determined. In its movements it resembled a submarine traveling just below the surface.

THE VALHALLA'S SEA SERPENT.
THE DAEDALUS SEA SERPENT.
THE VALHALLA AND DAEDALUS SEA SERPENTS.

If the word of two such reputable men as Mr. Meade and Mr. Nicoll is not sufficient to convince the skeptics that the sea serpent is not a myth, corroboration of their story may be found in the naval records of Great Britain. In 1848 Captain McQuhae of H. M. S. Daedalus saw off the African coast a marine ophidian which, from his recorded description, must have looked enough like the Meade-Nicoll serpent to be its father: Sixty feet long, Captain McQuhae said it was, with head and neck four feet out of the water. It had no fins, but something like seaweed washed about its back. It passed under the stern of the Daedalus, so close that a man's features could have been distinguished at the same distance. Captain McQuhae's report created a great sensation in England and was derisively discredited by the late Professor Sir Richard Owen. But professors are not infallible, and avenging time seems to have established the truthfulness of the doughty captain of the Daedalus. McQuhae had a drawing made of his serpent immediately after it was seen. The diameter of the snake was about fifteen inches at the head. Its color was dark brown, yellowish white at the throat.

Other fortunate mortals to whom the shy sea serpent has shown himself are the officers and crew of the British ship Imogene and the complement of H. M. S. Plumper. The Imogene sighted it between Algoa bay and London in 1856. Dec. 31, 1848, a naval officer on the Plumper saw it near Oporto and drew its picture. It is also said to have been seen on many occasions between Cape Cod and Penobscot bay, as well as on the New Jersey coast.

Recently it was reported from Cochin China that a French man had seen a sea serpent with a curled mustache and imperial, but this report has not been well authenticated.

A SUBMARINE FOREST.

Wonders of the Offshore Sierras, a Coast Range of California.

Along the great blue current of Japan that sweeps down the California coast is strung a chain of islands. They are the summits of offshore sierras, a coast range of California that has been partly overwhelmed by the sea. All have a peculiar beard, or protecting growth of weed, that constitutes a perfect forest about them, a giant seaweed growing in water sixty or more feet in depth and forming a natural wave break and a home for countless marine animals. The vines are sometimes 100 feet in length, vast cables, with broad, crimpled leaves of a dark olive hue, which assume graceful shapes in the tide.

When the visitor peers down into the turquoise water the scene is often a revelation. A new world is opened up and the real beauties of oceanic or submarine scenery are appreciated. The great leaves are carried by the fitful currents that sweep these islands in every direction. Sometimes they are extended at full length and appear like a horde of green snakes. Again they lie down upon the surface, listless and drooping, taking myriads of shapes and forming nooks and corners of great beauty.

So attractive are these forests that what is known as the water glass has been elaborated into a glass bottomed boat, which has several large plate glass windows through which the passengers may look down into the kelp forests and view a panorama of the sea. These boats range in size from rowboats to sidewheel steamers, so arranged that they can float over the forest and view its wonders up and down the coast.—Chicago News.

PUMICE STONE.

The Product of Monte Chirica, on the Island of Lipari.

Pumice, as is well known, is of volcanic origin, being a trachytic lava which has been rendered light by the escape of gases when in a molten state. It is found on most of the shores of the Tyrhenian sea and elsewhere, but is at present almost exclusively obtained from the little island of Lipari. Most of the volcanoes of Lipari have ejected pumaceous rocks, but the best stone is all the product of one mountain, Monte Chirica, nearly 2,000 feet in height, with its two accessory craters. The district in which the pumice is excavated covers an area of three square miles. It has been calculated that about 1,000 hands are engaged in this industry, 600 of whom are employed in extricating the mineral.

Pumice is brought to the surface in large blocks or in baskets and is carried thus either to the neighboring village or to the seashore to be taken there in boats. The supply is said to be practically inexhaustible. Pumice is used not merely for scouring and cleansing purposes, but also for polishing in numerous trades; hence the fact that the powdered pumice exported exceeds in weight the block pumice. Between twenty and thirty merchants are engaged in the pumice trade on the island.—London News.

Ragamuffins.

Mr. Birrell's story about the little ragamuffin in a church school stirred a clerical correspondent to write a letter wherein he spoke of ragamuffins as "boys who have more rags than muffins." No doubt that was not meant to be taken seriously from the etymological point of view. The muffin of the word has puzzled many. "Ragamuffin," says Dr. Johnson, "is from 'rag,' and I know not what else." According to Dr. Brewer the word means a ragged "muff" or "muffin" (a spiritless fellow). But the original Ragamoffyn seems to have been a demon in certain old mystery plays, whose name was probably just high sounding nonsense. It is curious, however, that "the ragman" is an old name for the devil.—London Chronicle.

Contradictions.

"The more the merrier." Not so. One hand is enough in a purse. "Nothing hurts the stomach more than surfeiting." Yes, lack of meat. "Nothing but what has an end." Not so. A ring has none, for it is round. "Money is a great comfort." Not when it brings a thief to the gallows. "The world is a long journey." Not so. The sun goes over it every day. "It is a great way to the bottom of the sea." Not so. It is but a stone's cast. "A friend is best found in adversity." Not so. For then there is none to be found. "The pride of the rich makes the labor of the poor." Not so. The labor of the poor makes the pride of the rich.

Cold Blooded Opinion.

"When a man loses his money," remarked the cynic, "he finds out who his friends are."

"Yes," answered Mr. Dustin Stax, "it is a wise compensation. When a man loses his fortune he saves the time he used to spend shaking hands and listening to hard luck stories and gets a chance to make another."—Washington Star.

Little Pitchers.

Willie—Uncle Jack, did you choke on that cake batter ma made yesterday? Rich Old Uncle—Good heavens, no, child! What put such an extraordinary idea into your head? Willie—Why, I heard pa tell ma he made you cough up the dough.—Baltimore American.

This Was Where They Grow.

Mrs. Newly Rich (shopping in Paris)—Show us some wraps—imported, of course. French Saleswoman—Imported, madame? From where, s'il vous plait?

The most insignificant people are the most apt to sneer at others.—Hazlitt.

Less than $100 Each For Two Houses

The old house on the addition to the Coddington school lot, and the old Hose house at Houghs Neck, were sold at auction on Saturday by the city.

There were but few present at the Coddington house sale, and but three bidders. The house was knocked down by Auctioneer Johnson to Henry M. Faxon for $50. Mr. Faxon will probably move the building to land near by.

There was a large crowd present at the Hose house sale, as the building can be readily moved and converted into a cottage. Bidding was quite lively, and the price was run up to $87.50 at which figure it was sold to James F. Merriam.

Excursionist Aground

The fifty or more people who left Nantasket Point at 10 o'clock Sunday night in the steamer Madeline for Houghs Neck had a hard time reaching their destination.

Shortly after leaving Nantasket, the boat grounded and all efforts to move her were unavailing, although a small launch tried to pull her off. The tide was on the ebb and it became a case of wait for the tide to rise.

Sleep was out of the question but the passengers were made as comfortable as possible. Then it began to rain and although the curtains were lowered they did not keep the party from getting wet. It was 4 A. M. when the party was landed at Houghs Neck.

Sudden Death.

Peter W. French, a prominent resident of East Weymouth, dropped dead in Boston on Saturday, aged 68 years. He was the eastern agent of the Youngstown Tube Works Co. of Ohio; a member of Orphans Hope lodge of Masons and South Shore Commandery, and leaves a daughter.

Fred L. Wheeler, one of the most accomplished musicians and organist, after two years faithful service, severed his connections with Christ church on Sunday much to regret of the members. He will be greatly missed by the many friends and acquaintances made while in this city, but all wish him success in his new field of labor and what is our loss is their gain.

Miss Edith Crane of New Jersey is the guest of Mrs. Friend Crane of Bent place for a few days.

Closely Identified With Local History

On Saturday moring at the Faulkner hospital in Jamaica Plain there passed away one of Boston's best known women, Elizabeth Porter Gould. As lecturer, authoress and writer she was widely known. For over ten years she has been closely identified with Quincy in patriotic and historical meetings. Soon after Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution was formed, she lectured for them in First church chapel, taking as her subject "John Adams." When the Abigail Adams cairn on Penns hill was erected she read an original poem, After the restoration of the birth place of President John Adams by the chapter she was present at the exercises of the hanging of the crane in the big old fireplace and read most beautifully Longfellow's poem.

Many will recall the delightful evening at the Dorothy Q. house a few years ago when Miss Gould gave her lecture on "John Hancock," in the quaint old parlor, papered with the paper put on for the wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy. The house was lighted with candles, and the ushers wore old time costumes.

Miss Gould's last visit was in January when Adams chapter observed its tenth anniversary by a reunion and dinner at the John Adams house. The tables were lighted by candles and fires in the big fireplaces, and set with blue and white china. The dinner was old fashioned with baked beans, cold meats, Indian pudding, pies, etc. Miss Gould was accompanied by her sister and occupied a seat on the right of the Regent of the chapter. She made one of her characteristic speeches and read a poem; also at the close, after the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" she left a parting word, "Peace," She hoped the day would come when there would be no more wars but peace.

On this occasion Miss Gould was not in good health and many feared it was her last visit to the chapter. Since then she has grown worse until a few weeks ago she went to Faulkner hospital where she grew rapidly worse, although hopeful and cheerful to the last.

Funeral services were held from her late home, 18 Sutherland road, Boston, this afternoon at half past two, after which the body was taken to Mt. Auburn for cremation.

The following poem is quite characteristic of Miss Gould and she had it printed on little slips and gave it freely to all her friends:

DON'T WORRY.

"Why shadow the beauty of sea or of land
With a doubt or a fear?
God holds all the swift-rolling worlds in His hand,
And sees what no man can as yet understand,
That out of life here,
With its smile and its tear,
Comes forth into light, from Eternity planned,
The soul of good cheer.
Don't worry—
The end shall appear."
—Elizabeth Porter Gould.

TO REPUBLICANS:

We are anxious to have every Republican in close touch, and working in harmony with the Republican National Congressional Committee in favor of the election of a Republican Congress.

The Congressional campaign must be based on the administrative and legislative record of the party, and, that being so, Theodore Roosevelt's personality must be a central figure and his achievements a central thought in the campaign.

We desire to maintain the work of this campaign with popular subscriptions of One Dollar each from Republicans. To each subscriber we will send the Republican National Campaign Text Book and all documents issued by the Committee.

Help us achieve a great victory.

Cups for the Mellwood and Carita

It was a light breeze that greeted the Quincy Yacht club on Sunday for its annual club run to Marblehead. The preparatory signals was given at 9.15 and fifteen minutes later the start was made. There were fifteen boats in the fleet that passed in review of the flagship Iris and headed toward Hull.

Commodore Crane offered cups and flags for the boats making the best corrected time on the run. The wind was light and not as good time as expected was made. The Iris led the fleet for more than half the way when she was passed by the Mellwood, Arawak and Moondyne, the boats finishing in that order. The summary:

CAPE BOATS.

☞ Scores of base ball games played Saturday should reach the Daily Ledger office before 8 A. M. Monday.

One Sided Game.

Makaria lost to the Bigelows on Saturday in a poorly played game, to the tune of 13 to 2. Makaria was crippled by several of its players being away, but even at that they made a poor show of playing ball, whereas the Bigelows played a steady game throughout, making one error to Makarias 11. One section of the team played a perfect game, namely the out field,—they had no chances.

In the Ninth.

The Merrymounts were defeated in the ninth inning at South Weymouth on Saturday, by the Norfolks. The visitors scored one run in the first inning and succeeded in blanking the home team until the ninth, when the Norfolks made two and won. Crowley struck out 12 and gave two bases on balls while Kolson struck out 5 and gave one pass.

South Quincy Lost.

In a very closely contested game at Braintree on Saturday the South Quincys were defeated by the Braintrees 2 to 1. The home team scored their two runs in the first innings, and South Quincy took their run in the eighth.

At Atlantic.

The Sacred Heart team succeeded in administering a coat of whitewash to the Boylston A. A. team at Atlantic on Saturday, scoring two runs each in the first and second and one in the seventh, a total of 5.

Other Games.

The Ramblers defeated the Cranch A. A. on Saturday 8 to 0. Billington for the Ramblers pitched a fine game striking out 20 men and allowing but six hits. The Ramblers challenge all teams averaging 17—18 years.

At Quincy Point on Saturday, the Quincy Point team defeated the Crescents of, Roxbury 11 to 2. Smith and Brown were the battery of the home team.

Church 300 Years Old.

The Unitarian church at Plymouth will on Wednesday observe its 300th anniversary, with services at 10.30 A. M. Addresses will be delivered by Gov. Curtis Guild, Ex-Gov. John D. Long of Hingham, Rev. Edward Everett Hale of Boston and Prof. E. C. Moore, D. D., of Harvard university.

Meters and Meetings

[Copyright, 1906, by M. M. Cunningham.]

"I want to see the regular clerk," said Caverly, peering through the complaint window and wondering how it was that such an entirely charming young woman could work for so heartless a corporation as the gas company.

"I am the regular clerk," was the smiling response as she reached for the slip Caverly had half thrust through the window and glanced at the name.

"I want the one who gets the mail complaints," he stammered. The girl laughed musically.

"I am that top sided, frozen hearted person who would not answer your letter," she insisted. "You see, in your heat you forgot to give any address."

Caverly thought of some of the other and more personal allusions he had made and groaned. Until then he had rather prided himself upon his ability at invective.

"I didn't know that you were—that is, that the complaint clerk was a woman," he stammered.

"I didn't think you do," she laughed. "But I'm used to that sort of thing. I had a man over at your place yesterday."

"Did he have an ax?" asked Caverly. "It's the only way to get the best of that meter."

"The gas was turned on in the oven of the stove," she said smilingly. "It must have been flowing for weeks."

"But I don't use the oven," he protested. "I'm a bachelor, and I just get my breakfasts there."

"Perhaps when you were cooking the modest egg," she laughed, "you brushed against the lower cocks."

Caverly blushed. He had been proud of that line. "When I poach the modest egg or fry the humble rasher, the meter straightway charges me enough gas to prepare a dinner for a family of six, which, thank heaven, I do not possess." Now he thought it sounded very silly.

"I must have smelled it, if it was," he argued. The girl shook her head.

"There is a pipe connection with the chimney," she reminded. "It never got into the room."

"Then I guess it's up to me," he said slowly.

"Yes," she assented, "$7.20 for last month; $8.40 this month. Pay at the last window."

"I'm sorry to have given you all this trouble," he said awkwardly, "and said—er—those things, you know."

"That is right; I understand," she said. "I hope you will have no more trouble."

"I hope I do," he announced, ambiguously, as he raised his hat and went in search of the cashier's window, "but I won't write letters."

After that Caverly's meter seemed suddenly to have become the most troublesome in town. Two and three times a week he called with some complaint that somehow never seemed to need more than a word of advice.

Meantime he had discovered the name of the young woman and was searching everywhere for some one who knew her, so that he might seek an introduction. It was several weeks before he discovered that his mother out in Chicago was an intimate friend of Grace Winston's aunt, and through this medium he was able to meet the girl conventionally. He lost no time in asking her to accept an invitation to a little dinner which in some way might make up for the trouble he had caused her.

"You should go to boarding," she advised one evening as they lingered over the demitasse. They had repeated the dinner. "You would have no more trouble with the meter then."

"I've had very little since I met you," he declared, "and I hate boarding houses."

"Why not get married?" she smiled. "That would solve the problem."

"I know it," he agreed. "I've got the very girl in mind too. I haven't asked her yet, but I mean to soon."

"It is a very good idea," she said coldly. "With a wife you would be more settled down and not have to depend upon restaurants."

"Oh, I don't know about that," he demurred. "I should want to have our little dinner occasionally even after I am married."

"I think you have a rather poor opinion of me," she said.

"By 'our little dinners' I meant my wife's and mine," he said explicitly.

The girl flushed. "I beg your pardon," she said.

Caverly veiled his amusement and satisfaction. "You see," he added, "I shall have plenty of time then. I shan't have to watch the gas meter so carefully."

"No?"

"No; there won't be so attractive a complaint clerk at the gas company's office—then," he said pointedly.

* * * * * * *

A month afterward the same two sat at opposite sides of the same table.

"You see, we are having our little dinners, after all," Caverly teased.

"Yes; and the gas bills are only half as big; but I am careful to do the complaining myself, if there is any to be done. It's a dangerous thing to let a man do." HARRY WINTHROP.

Overseer Green

Interviewed Relative to Alleged Case of Destitution

The anxiety of a landlord to get his rent is the most conspicuous thing about an alleged case of destitution reported at length in Boston papers, but it appears that Edward Enquist of 175 Quincy avenue owes Patrick Brennan but five weeks' rent. Mr. Brennan wanted the city to pay the rent, but this Overseer Green refused to do. The Overseer will, however, see that the family does not want for food.

Mr. Enquist has been an iron worker at the shipyard, but a few days ago went out of town in search of other work. Mrs. Enquist and seven children are in destitute circumstances.

The following statement was given out this morning for publication:

"As several of the Boston papers have seen fit to mislead the public in the case of the family of Edward Engquist I deem it only right that the true facts should now be given. On Wednesday morning Patrick Brenuan, owner of the house in which the family lives, called and informed me that he desired the city to pay the rent. He stated that the man was here long enough to become a citizen and entitled him to this aid.

"Upon questioning Mr. Brennan, I found out that the man was not a proper charge for the city, but belonged to the care of the state. He told me he should put them out, but before going, said he would not do it because his neighbors would talk about it.

"Mr. Brennan in sisted that the city did pay rents, and upon informing him that this method of rendering aid had been given up about five years ago, and no new cases were being taken on, he left saying he would find out whether the city would not pay the rent, as this income was the only means he had of supporting himself.

"When we offered to give other aid, he said he did not care or did not know anything about that. He wanted the family out of the house. The man had been sick, and when a tenant got behind in his rent he seldom made it up.

Knowing that Mr. Brennan lived nearby and ought to be familiar with the conditions of the family I requested him to inform them that if aid, other than rent was wanted, that if they would inform me I would furnish it.

"The first information that I had that the family needed food was from a reporter who stated that Mr. Brenuan was in the district court room telling a most pitiful tale and had been advised to inform Mayor Thompson, which he was then doing.

"I immediately investigated the case and rendered temporary aid, and to make sure that I had taken the proper course in the case, I called up the office of the State authorities, and found my previous and present action was correct.

"I visited the house and found that Mr. Enquist had left home last Tuesday morning to secure work, and that his wife was expecting a letter from him by every mail. Friday night a friend had called and finding them in want had given temporary aid and that another friend had given them a dollar on Saturday.

"We were shown a letter which Mrs. Engquist states that Mr. Brennan had delivered by opening the front door and throwing it on the floor. The letter ordered them to vacate the premises. A receipt showed the rent to have been paid to June 23.

"When asked if Mr. Brennan had given any money, Mrs. Engquist answered most emphatically in the negative, and further said that he never came into the house but he wanted her to give him money. That in the morning he had told her to get her furniture together and he would put it out in the barn and that she and her children must get out of the house.

"This was the only thing that seemed to trouble her. There is no sickness in the family and everyone of them look the picture of health and shows no signs of lack of food."

"If Mr. Brennan had desired to give them food he knew where to send them for it, but the fact that he did not report the case and allowed them, as his published statement in the Boston Globe says: "The family had been without food since he left them on Thursday" shows that his interest in the case was more from a financial than a charitable standpoint."

Since becoming overseer of the poor I have at all times been ready to render aid where it was right so to do and I feel that in this case, as in all others, I have conscientiously performed my duties.

Very respectfully,
Frederick F. Green,
Overseer of Poor.

Quincy, July 31, 1906.

Weathered the Storm.

Some anxiety was felt Monday for Harry Drake and Frank Patch, who left Marblehead Sunday evening in the yacht Maisie for Quincy, and had not been heard from. The young men turned up all right Monday afternoon. They were caught in the heavy rain Sunday night and sought shelter, reaching Hull early Monday morning. It was quite an experience as neither knew much about sailing a boat.

Shore Dinner

Twenty-eight members of Pequot Tribe, I. O. R. M., of Brockton were at Pawsey's Rock Island farm on Sunday, on the annual outing. The feature of the day was the shore dinner served on the farm and out of doors. Bathing and boating were enjoyed. The committee in charge included Charles F. Rines, James Morgan, James McPherson, William D. Eggers, R. B. Dunbar, W. D. Straffin.

Grand Reception

By Ramblers and Sunshine Club To Benedict A. W. Bisson

A. W. Bisson who was married last week was given a reception Monday evening by the Sunshine club, of which he has long been a member. The reception was to have been held at Cahill's hall, but finding that hall would not be large enough, the affair was held at Malnati hall.

The Ramblers were also invited, and they started in a body for Cahill's hall, not having been informed of the change in the program. After floundering about for a time, they hit the right trail and eventually reached the proper hall.

The evening proved to be one of enjoyment to all. There was an impromptu musical program which added greatly to the pleasures of the evening. John Grady, formerly with G. Swain Buckley, rendered some of the old time plantation melodies, in a manner that showed he had not forgotten how the famous G. Swain used to do it.

James Dady sang that touching ballad, "When the Harvest days are over, Mollie dear." John Bates in the absence of the only Bowditch, sang, "The Star Spangled Banner," and William L. Grant gave a buck and wing dance.

Asa Pope sang the Ramblers' famous hymn, a very touching refrain when rendered as only Asa knows how.

A supper closed the festivities.

Found With Relatives.

Councilman George Hunter who is passing the summer at May cottage, Houghs Neck, spent a few anxious hours Monday evening when he was trying to locate his 8-year old daughter.

The little girl was sent up town in the morning, on an errand, and was to visit a relative. She was expected home in the afternoon, but as evening drew on and she did not appear her parents became anxious for her.

A search for her was made but it was not until 11 o'clock that she was located with her aunt. It appears that she had visited her aunt who persuaded her to remain over night.

No Reduction at Malden.

Malden with its wealth of $32,988,750 and reduction in water assessment was not able to reduce its tax value this year, it being $17.20, the same as last year. The total value of real estate is $25,793,100, and the personal value $7,091,400. The bank stock is $104,250. The amount to be raised by taxation is $567,404.50. The increase of polls for the year is 224; increase in real estate valuation, $664,900. The personal estate decreased to the amount of $950. The total increase is $663,950. The city has 10,759 polls. Nearly one-fourth of the taxable property of Malden is personal estate.

High Admiral.

The Boston Post prints a London dispatch which says: Although not quite 3 years old, the son of the lovely Marchioness of Donegal, formerly Miss Violet Gertrude Twining of the Quincy Mansion school at Wollaston, is now lord high admiral of Loch Neagh and Governor of Carrickfergus Castle, receiving the title from his 82-year-old father, who died recently.

Iris First

In Monday's Race At Marblehead Good Showing by The Manchester

Ex-Commodore Adams did not enter the Auk in the Sonder Klasse at Marblehead on Monday. There were ten starters, however, the largest number in any race, including the Manchester, which will defend the Quincy cup. The Manchester pushed the Sally VIII hard for first place, finishing, however 1 m., 12 seconds behind, with the Windrom Kid third. The summary follows:

SONDER KLASSE.

Yacht and owner.	Actual Time. h. m. s.
Sally VIII, L. F. Percival	1 58 47
Manchester, J. L. Bremer	1 59 59
Windrom Kid, F. G. Macomber.	2 00 16
Lorelei, C. D. Lanning	2 01 47
Hayseed III, A. C. Bowden	2 08 40
Sumatra, Francis Skinner	2 04 06
Skiddoo, H. M. Sears	2 05 55
Caramba, C. H. W. Foster	2 07 52
Ellen, C. B. Curtis, Jr.	2 11 23
Cod, Morton Prince	disabled

Class D was made up of Quincy cats and they put up a good race as usual. The Arawak finished first, but the Iris won on time allowance.

CLASS D.

Boat and owner.	Actual time h. m. s.	Corrected time h. m. s
Iris, F. F. Crane,	2 12 10	2 07 57
Arawak, H. C. Nickerson	2 11 05	2 08 30

Moondyne, Shaw brothers, 2	22 51	2 22 23

In Class E the order was Tyro, Marie L. and Nutmeg. In Class I, Gertrude, Mirage, Fritter and Cheroot. In First Rating, Chewink, Pontiac and Zara. In Second Rating, Carina, Sintram, Gungo, Fly, Fancy and Gosling.

There will be open races at Marblehead every day this week.

August Magazines.

Three boys in a sailboat in a spanking breeze look out from the cover page of the August American Boy. The names of Stratemeyer, Tomlinson, Alger, and Harbour stand out in the text in four stirring serials now running. Every boy knows that where these names appear there is something of interest to him. The titles of the stories by these well-known writers are additional evidence of their stirring character—"In Defence of His Flag," "The Camp-fire of Mad Anthony," "The Young Book Agent," and "Four Boys in Camp."

Sociable at Houghs Neck.

There will be a free sociable at Houghs Neck chapel, Friday evening, August 3. The young ladies of the society have arranged a pleasing program, and invite all friends of the union enterprise to be present. They hope Quincy also will be represented.

TORTURED DAY AND NIGHT

Rheumatism Crazes the Mind.

An Internal Blood Treatment Called Uric-O is Widely Recommended to Cure it.

Every sufferer from Rheumatism who wants to be rid of the sleepless nights, the nerve binding, muscle twisting hours of pain, should get at once a bottle of Uric-O, the marvelous specific for the cure of Rheumatism. It matters little how long one has suffered from the trouble nor how intense the suffering. Uric-O will cure it. It cures by its direct action upon the blood, muscles and kidneys; it neutralizes the rheumatic acid poison and drives it from the system. Druggists and Physicians everywhere are recommending Uric-O because they know that at last there has been a remedy prepared which actually cures the trouble and cures it to stay cured. It has stood all kinds of tests and never been found wanting. Uric-O is a cure for Rheumatism and for Rheumatism only. Mr. E. J. Murphy is the agent for Uric-O in Quincy, and he would be glad to meet all sufferers from the disease and explain the action of Uric-O on all forms of Rheumatism. The Smith Drug Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., are the makers of Uric-O, and will be glad to send any rheumatic a sample of this marvelous specific on request. They sometimes send a full sized bottle to people sending for samples.

Quincy and vicinity certainly contributed its full share of causualities on Saturday and Sunday with a drowning and other sudden deaths, a burning launch in the harbor, burglar alarm at bank, excursionists aground, a case of destitution, and other happenings. No one can say Monday's Ledger was not newsy.

The frequency of drownings and mishaps suggests the thought that it is unsafe to go in swimming or sailing, but really the percentage is very small compared with the thousands of chances. Hundreds enjoyed a sail on ladies' days of the Quincy Yacht club and the Wollaston Yacht club and no accidents marred the pleasure, and hundreds bath daily at the City bathhouse.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ We are all deeply interested in the New Bedford car trouble because we came so near to having one of a similar kind in this city. We take the same interest that a fellow who has passed through severe twinges of rheumatism feels in watching the outcome of the case of another citizen who is passing through the severest moments of the disease at its height. We are sorry for the other fellow, yet happy in a way to think that he isn't us.—Brockton Enterprize.

☞ Experience is an expensive teacher. An amazing lack of foresight in the municipal affairs of South Framingham is brought to public notice by the shocking calamity attending the collapse of the Amsden building. That a town of that size and importance should have no building law, and therefore no inspector of buildings, amounts to hardly less than criminal negligence and this fact has been brought home to to its citizens at fearful cost.—Brookline Chronicle.

BACK TO NORMAL

Cars at New Bedford Running on the Old Schedule

PARKER HELD BY COURT

Railroad President Furnishes Bonds For Strike Breaker Whose Car Ran Down and Fatally Injured a Man.

New Bedford, Mass., July 31.—Cars are running on all the lines of the New Bedford trolley system on practically the same schedule as was in force before the strike began a week ago. There is no disturbance of any consequence and the general conditions present no indications that a strike is in progress. The patronage of the cars, however, is not up to the normal figures, fear of possible disturbances and other considerations, including sympathy with the strikers, serving to keep many regular patrons away.

In court the case of Motorman James A. Parker, whose car ran down and fatally injured Henry Jolicoeur Sunday night, was continued until Aug. 13, under bonds of $2000, which were furnished by President Crapo of the New Bedford Trolley companies. Jolicoeur, who suffered a fracture of the skull, died yesterday of his injuries. Parker, the motorman, is one of the strike-breakers who was brought to the city from New York.

Several other cases growing out of the strike came up in the local court yesterday afternoon. A number of people arrested on Saturday night on charges of disturbing the peace, were found guilty and fined.

The striking motormen and conductors held their usual gatherings at headquarters and declared themselves hopeful of ultimate victory, notwithstanding the success of the company in operating the various lines with the aid of men brought from other cities. The union men continue their denial of the statement from company officials that some of their number have deserted and gone back to the company. Company officials say that eight of the strikers have applied for work and had been given positions on the roll of employes.

The union barges are run as usual for the convenience of those who do not care to ride on the trolley cars.

Peter Miller of Hartford, a strike-breaking conductor, was arrested last night, charged with carrying concealed weapons. Miller was accused of having placed a revolver threateningly in the faces of two boys after sand and pebbles had been thrown at his car. Policemen Crapo and Grant, who made the arrest, said they had been witnesses of the incident.

There was another stone-throwing incident on Purchase street, when a car on which Deputy Sheriff Wing was riding was attacked. Wing pursued the stone throwers, but was unable to catch any of them.

Organizer Fitzgerald of the Carmen's union said last night that the control of the strike situation, as far as the union is concerned, would soon pass into the hands of W. D. Mahone, international president of the Amalgamated Carmen's association. Mahone is expected to reach New Bedford tomorrow and take charge of the carmen's interests.

Alleged Forgery and Conspiracy

Philadelphia, July 31.—John De Rivera, Fred Kloeckner and Samuel Reed, charged with forgery and conspiracy in issuing counterfeit stamps of the Crown Trading Stamp company, were held in $5000 bail each for court. The testimony tended to show that the stamps were counterfeited in a New York printing establishment and brought to this city, where they were sold to trading stamp brokers and merchants.

Holy Ghosters' Acquisition

Bucksport, Me., July 31.—Negotiations have been completed for the purchase by the Holy Ghost and Us society of Shiloh of the barkentine Rebecca Crowell of Boston, and it is understood that the vessel will become the flagship of the fleet of Rev. F. W. Sandford, the leader of the colony at Shiloh, who is soon to embark with followers for the Holy Land. The Rebecca Crowell is now in port at Rockland.

Pushing Work on Polar Balloon

Spitzbergen, via Tromso, July 31.—Forty men are working day and night to get the airship of the Wellman-Chicago Record-Herald expedition started toward the North Pole this summer. The monster airship may be able to start for the north the latter part of August. Everything depends on the weather, which so far has been good.

Collision With Troops Feared

Kharkoff, July 31.—The lockout of workmen employed in the iron industries in Kramatarovka has produced a critical state of affairs. Kramatarovka is a smelting center. The workmen yesterday indulged in a great demonstration. Troops occupied the railroad to prevent them marching on Slavanski. A collision is feared.

Court Clerk Stuffed Payrolls

Chicago, July 31.—John A. Cooke, former clerk of the Cook county circuit court, charged with stuffing payrolls, was found guilty last night by a jury. His punishment was fixed at imprisonment in the penitentiary and a fine of $2000. The judge will determine the length of the penitentiary sentence.

Veto on Sunday Baseball

New York, July 31.—Justice Blanchard of the supreme court delivered an opinion which, it is believed, will put an end to any further attempts at Sunday ball playing in Brooklyn between professional or semi-professional teams. Blanchard holds that the fact that no charge was made for admission, but that voluntary contribution boxes were placed at the gate, does not take the case out of the jurisdiction of the penal code.

Pugilistic Players Punished

New York, July 31.—President Pulliam of the National Baseball league last night announced his finding in the case of Players Pietz of Pittsburg and McGinnity of New York, who recently engaged in a fight at the Pittsburg ball park. McGinnity is fined $100 and suspended until Aug. 6. Peitz is fined $50, but his suspension is lifted. Pulliam also unexpectedly fined Umpire O'Day $50 for not preventing "the disgraceful affair."

Heaton's Generous Offer

London, July 31.—John H. Heaton, Conservative member of parliament, and father of the "imperial penny postage" idea, has offered to provide an acceptable bank guarantee to cover the loss in revenue, for the first three years, which might follow the adoption of penny postage between Great Britain and America, if the government will appoint a committee to investigate and report on such probable loss. Postmaster General Buxton says that the government cannot see its way to accept private donations for such a purpose.

Slain by Divorced Wife

Shreveport, La., July 31.—Charles Attaway was shot and instantly killed near this city by his divorced wife, Mrs. Kent. Attaway, who was insane, went to Kent's home and demanded his children. Kent appeared on the scene and while he was wrestling with Attaway Mrs. Kent secured a rifle and shot her former husband through the heart.

Failed to Swim Channel

Dover, July 31.—Jabez Wolffe, the amateur swimmer, made another unsuccessful attempt to swim the English channel. He started late last night, but abandoned his effort early this morning on account of an injured leg.

REPUBLICANS SPLIT

Indications of a Bitter Struggle In Iowa Convention

CUMMINS MAKES A KICK

Denies Authority of State Committee to Take Up Contests--"Progressives" and "Stand-Patters" In a Serious Muddle

Des Moines, July 31.—The Republican state committee of Iowa decided, by a vote of 6 to 3, to sustain the action of Chairman Spence of the committee, in informing Governor Cummins that the seats of a number of delegates to the Republican state convention were contested. By the same vote, the action of Spence in calling the present meeting of the state central committee was ratified. In both cases the chairman acted on his own responsibility.

Chairman Spence received a petition from adherents of George D. Perkins, a candidate for governor, giving notice that the seats of a large number of Cummins delegates were contested on the ground that there were irregularities in many of the county conventions. Spence thereupon sent notice of this fact to Governor Cummins, who seeks nomination for re-election. The governor denied the authority of the state central committee to take up contests, asserting that it had no jurisdiction.

The vote of the committee is regarded as an indication that the committee intends to assume jurisdiction of the contests and to hear the contestants and the Cummins delegates in case the latter enter an appearance.

There are 1640 delegates entitled to seats in the convention from the 99 counties of Iowa. An entire state ticket will be named, including 13 candidates. There are 20 aspirants for nomination, including four for governor. The main contest is between Cummins and Perkins.

Such a situation as that now existing is new to the Republicans of Iowa. The party is apparently divided into two factions—one known as the "progressive," represented by the friends of Cummins, and the other called the "stand-patters," who are adherents of Perkins. The feeling on both sides is bitter and it is not unlikely that there may be two Republican tickets in the field in Iowa.

Although the state central committee has as yet taken no action looking to the making up of a temporary roll, Cummins' followers say that if the contesting Perkins delegates are authorized to participate in the temporary organization of the convention, the action of the state central committee will be ignored.

Roosevelt Will Keep His Word

Peoria, Ills., July 31.—Another positive announcement from President Roosevelt that he will not be a candidate for re-election is made in a letter received by Mrs. L. A. Kinney of Peoria from Secretary Loeb, writing for President Roosevelt. The letter, dated July 26, concludes: "I would say that the president has nothing to add to the statement issued on the night of the election in 1904. His decision as announced at that time is irrevocable."

Confession of Triple Murder

Washington, Pa., July 31.—No attempt has been made to take from jail Elmer Dempster, the negro who is charged with the murder of Mrs. Samuel Pearce and her two children at Canonsburg, and all danger of a demonstration is apparently over. Dempster made a clean breast of the Canonsburg tragedy, admitting that he killed Mrs. Pearce and the children. In a supplementary confession he cleared up another murder mystery which has led to the arrest of two other negroes.

Full-Fledged Strike at 'Frisco

San Francisco, July 31.—In order to enforce their demands for a short workday and an increased wage scale, 600 track workers employed by the United railroads have gone on strike. The men are employed on the repair and construction work of the lines that were thrown out of use by the earthquake and fire. They have been working 10 hours for $2 a day, and demand an increase of 50 cents for an eight-hour day.

Good Place to Keep Away From

Colon, July 31.—The month of July has witnessed a series of heavy rains on the isthmus which have hampered the work of the Americans for sanitation in Colon and made the streets of the town impassable quagmires. The conditions are worse than ever before. Two more cases of smallpox were found here yesterday.

Dogs Attack Letter Carrier

Auburndale, Mass., July 31.—Thomas E. Jones, a letter carrier, was attacked last night by two terriers belonging to a man on Oakland avenue. The dogs jumped upon him without warning, he says, and lacerated his legs, but the attending physicians say that no permanent ill results are likely to follow.

Warsaw Liquor Shops Suffer

Warsaw, July 31.—During the last three days 30 of the state liquor shops here have been plundered. Most of the liquor shops still doing business have been closed by order of the excise authorities.

FIVE PERCENT ADVANCE

Higher Wages For Forty Thousand Mill Operatives

Boston, July 31.—Forty thousand cotton mill operatives in northern New England are affected by an increase of 5 percent in wages, which went into effect yesterday. These operatives are employed in mills in Lowell, Mass., Manchester, Dover and Nashua, N. H., and in Waterville, Lewiston and Biddeford, Me. In none of these places, except Lowell, has there been a question at any time about the acceptance of the raise, the operatives welcoming the increase as voluntary by the several mill managements.

At Lowell, on the contrary, the offer of an increase averaging 5 percent was preceded by a demand or request from the operatives for an advance of 10 percent. The offer of the Lowell manufacturers has not yet been formally accepted by the Lowell Textile Council, which presented the demand, the claim being that the 5 percent offer was surrounded with conditions too vague to be understood.

Yeggmen Under Heavy Bonds

Boston, July 31.—George W. Everson, one of the Charlestown alleged yeggmen accused of robbing a coal office and shooting two policemen, was identified in the Charlestown court as George W. Wilson, who, on April 26, 1896, stole 133 rings and $400 in cash from the store of James Carr in Charlestown. He entered the army immediately after serving a two years' sentence in the house of correction. When arraigned yesterday he pleaded not guilty to all three charges. Judge Bragg held the prisoner for the grand jury in $30,000 bonds. Fred Sacceketti, the other man alleged to have been concerned in the robbery, was held in $5000 bonds.

Missing Boy Was In Hospital

New Haven, July 31.—Wino Sarkilo, 18, of Fitchburg, Mass., who has been missing from his home since June 22 and who it was thought had met foul play, was located last night at Springside home, where he has been since June 26. He was sent there from the New Haven hospital June 23. Sarkilo gave the name of William Johnson and was identified only through a description furnished the New Haven authorities by the Fitchburg chief of police. Sarkilo had his toes crushed by a train and was sent to the New Haven hospital for treatment. He will be taken back to Fitchburg.

Mormon Must Give Child Up

Boston, July 31.—Susan Heney, 11 years old, one of a party of Mormon converts brought to this country, was ordered deported to England by Immigration Commissioner Billings. Emuel Bachmann, a Mormon missionary, appeared as the girl's guardian, but the papers which he declared made him the girl's legal guardian were declared irregular, according to English laws, by the British consul in this city. The child testified to beatings which she said were administered to her by Bachmann on the voyage across.

Pipe Was Charged With Electricity

Malden, Mass., July 31.—While working in the basement of the old high school building Charles A. Frederickksson, 20 years of age, was electrocuted. The young man had been employed as a steam fitter's helper by a contractor, who was removing a boiler from the building. He took hold with both hands of a pipe which was charged with electricity. Near the spot was an electric meter, with a notice to the effect that it was dangerous.

The South Framingham Disaster

South Framingham, Mass., July 31.—Judge Kingsbury will probably begin the official investigation of the collapse of the Amsden block on Concord street, by which a dozen persons lost their lives and several were severely injured, some day during the present week. A member of the state police force has been at work gathering evidence to determine the cause of the disaster, and will report to the district attorney.

Killed by Fall From Car

Cambridge, Mass., July 31.—Cheng Shuen Pan, one of the several Chinamen recently sent here by the emperor to attend Harvard summer school, died last night. Early in the evening he fell from an electric car and his skull was fractured. According to his fellow-students, the young man was of high standing in the Chinese courts. He was 25 years old and lived in Pekin

Investigating Railroad Wreck

Boston, July 31.—Boston and Maine railroad officials have begun an investigation of the train wreck at Concord Junction last Friday, in which Engineer Clark was killed and other persons badly injured. The accident was caused by an open switch, and the railroad officials have a strong suspicion that the switch was left open either carelessly or maliciously.

Tuning Up For Cup Race

Marblehead, Mass., July 31.—The tuning up of the American yacht aspirants as defenders of the Roosevelt cup began in earnest when 10 of the 19 boats which have entered for the trial races next month met in the open race of the Boston Yacht club. The Sally VIII, owned by L. C. Percival, won in a stiff and squally wind.

Icemen Going Before Grand Jury

Boston, July 31.—A number of persons were served with summonses by District Attorney Moran last night to appear before the grand jury as witnesses in the investigation of an alleged illegal combination on the part of dealers to increase the price of ice in this vicinity. The jury will take up the ice investigation at once.

A NEW MANIFESTO

Russian People Urged to Remove All Local Authority

SEIZE LIBERTY AND LAND

Calls For Elections on Basis of Universal Suffrage--Fighting at Shusha Spreads to Surrounding Country--Signers of Viborg Manifesto to Be Prosecuted

St. Petersburg, July 31.—A manifesto to the peasants of Russia has been issued in the joint names of all the various labor, socialist and revolutionary organizations, including the representatives of the organizations in the defunct house.

This manifesto declares that the hopes reposed in the lower house of parliament have been blasted by the diabolical designs of the crowd of grand dukes, courtiers and wealthy landed proprietors assembled around the czar, whose only purpose is the maintenance of their power over the people. By dispersing the elected representatives of the people and arresting and imprisoning them the government has declared war on the nation, and a struggle is beginning in which rivers of blood will flow, and for which the criminal government is responsible. The people must not spare the government.

This manifesto further accuses the government of betraying the fatherland by invoking the aid of German and Austrian troops. The people are therefore urged to remove the local authority everywhere, to replace it with men elected by themselves, and to confiscate all state funds. The troops also must conform to the orders of those elected by the people. The workmen in the towns, the peasantry and all toilers must, in conjunction with the troops, seize the liberty and take the land which the government has denied them. The land thus possessed must be handed over to the popularly elected local authorities, pending the elaboration of a new land law.

The manifesto calls for elections on the basis of universal suffrage, and concludes with the words: "Down with the government and the emperor! Long live the dear and free Russian people!"

Situation In the Caucasus

St. Petersburg, July 31.—As anticipated in these dispatches, the triangular truce in the Caucasus between Armenians, Tartars and the Russian troops before Shusha will be of the briefest nature. The display of white flags and the naming of representatives of the warring factions to arrange a lasting peace are but a prelude to the hostilities which were resumed yesterday upon a larger and bloodier scale.

The fighting is not only in full progress at Shusha itself, a town of 30,000 people (180 miles to the southeast of Tiflis), the Tartar quarter of which apparently is in flames, but it has spread to the surrounding country. There the Tartar population has risen and is striving to overwhelm the Armenians and the Russian troops. General Zoloschakov, in command of the Russian forces, has appealed urgently for reinforcements. A battalion of riflemen at Yelisavetpol, the nearest point where there are soldiers, already has been dispatched to the scene.

Convictions Mean Sentence to Mines

St. Petersburg, July 31.—The public prosecutor has started proceedings against the members of the lower house of parliament who signed the Viborg manifesto. The charge under which the signers of the manifesto will be brought to trial is violation of an article of the criminal code, which provides for "attempts to overthrow the existing government." This is virtually high treason, the maximum penalty for which is hard labor in the mines. No arrests have yet been reported. It is understood that arrested members will be admitted to bail, pending trial.

Socialists and radical members of the late house may have to cool their heels in cells for a long time and thus be prevented from continuing the full-fledged revolutionary agitation upon which they are now embarked. Many of these ex-members are now living under cover in the houses of friends in St. Petersburg, or have gone into hiding in the provinces.

Soldier Creates a Sensation

Odessa, July 31.—A thanksgiving service for the dissolution of the lower house of parliament was being held in the cathedral here and it was attended by all the local authorities. The archbishop declared from the pulpit that the members of the opposition were anarchists and enemies of the state. When he had finished a common soldier arose and said it was not the opposition, but men like the archbishop who were the real enemies of the state. A scene of great confusion ensued, amid which the soldier was arrested and taken to prison.

Railroad Battalion In Mutiny

Krasnovodsk, July 31.—A company of the railroad battalion stationed here mutinied and, accompanied by a mob of workmen, marched to the jail and endeavored to set at liberty the participants in the recent disorders at Lashkert, who have been in prison here. The battalion guarding the jail remained loyal and dispersed the mutineers.

CARGOES WORTH $40,000

Boston Mackerel Fleet Breaks a Record of Twenty Years

Boston, July 31.—Yesterday the fish pier presented the busiest scene in years and, according to some of the oldest dealers, the biggest fleet of mackerel seiners to arrive in one day since 20 years ago, came in.

Two new arrivals were added to the large fleet of mackerel seiners that came in Sunday, the Nellie Dixon, Captain Ellis, with a trip of 18,000 mediums, and the Monitor, Captain Lyle, with 5000 large fresh mackerel, which brought up the total of fresh mackerel, mediums and large, that were landed at the pier yesterday from the fleet, to 315,000 fresh and 163 barrels of salted.

There was great rejoicing among the fishermen because of their big hauls, and it is approximately estimated that they will share between the 19 vessels over $40,000.

About one-half of the mackerel were large, but on account of the great quantity the prices dropped from 35 and 26 cents to 15 cents for large fresh and 8 cents for mediums.

"Loans" Appear to Be "Graft"

Berlin, July 31.—In the investigation into the case of Major Fischer, who was attached to the headquarters staff in German Southwest Africa and who has been arrested on the charge of receiving bribes from firms selling war supplies, it appears that Fischer had been receiving money for years from a firm which has the monopoly of supplying the colonial forces in German Southwest Africa. This money was given nominally as loans, and finally reached $25,000. Fischer's salary was $2000 a year. There was no prospect whatever of his ever returning the loans.

Stringent Meat Inspection Law

Berlin, July 31.—The revised regulations for the application of the meat inspection law provide that when the important organs have been removed from a carcass inspection can be made only by a veterinary expert, and that the meat of such carcasses can only be pronounced fit for food under certain specific conditions. The lymphatic glands from all parts of the carcass must be subjected to inspection by microscope. The glands, as well as other organs, must remain attached to fresh and prepared meats so far as is necessary for trustworthy inspection.

Divorce For Steel Magnate's Wife

Reno, Nev., July 31.—Mrs. William E. Corey, wife of the president of the United States Steel corporation, was awarded a divorce here. She was given the custody of her 16-year-old son, Allan Corey. No evidence was submitted by the defense and there was no argument. The question of alimony was not introduced, but Mrs. Corey admitted that in May, 1906, she negotiated through her attorneys a financial settlement with her husband.

Posse After Negro Youth

Macon, Ga., July 31.—Joseph Morris, a negro youth, attempted to take the lives of the family of George E. Bloodworth at their home near Macon. While the family were at supper Morris stole up to the house and fired with a shotgun. Over 60 shots struck Bloodworth's face and nearly as many struck his wife. The negro escaped, but is being pursued by citizens.

Havana Government Resigns

Havana, July 31.—The mayor of Havana and all the aldermen resigned last evening in anticipation of a request for their resignations by President Palma. The government has long contemplated replacing the entire city government with new men. The dissatisfaction was partly on partisan grounds and partly on account of alleged incompetency and graft.

Loan For Laborers' Cottages

London, July 31.—The Irish laborers' cottages bill passed the committee stage in the house of lords this morning after several amendments against the government had been carried. The bill authorizes a loan of $22,500,000 to provide laborers' cottages in Ireland at an estimated cost of $850 each.

Official and Policeman Killed

Warsaw, July 31.—M. Burago, the leading official of the Sochatchev district, and a policeman who was escorting him, were shot dead by revolutionists near here in revenge for the part they had taken in the reprssion of the agrarian strike movement.

Thinks Strike Improbable

Washington, July 31.—Ambassador Meyer, at St. Petersburg, sent a dispatch to the state department in which he reviews the situation in Russia and says there seems to be no probability of a general strike of laborers at this time.

Arms Shipped From Denmark

Berlin, July 31.—A dispatch to The Vossische Zeitung from Luebeck says the Danish police have discovered that 707 cases of arms and ammunition were shipped from there to Finland during July upon false clearing papers.

Eighteen Thousand on Strike

Moscow, July 31.—A strike has broken out here among the bakers. The total number of men now on strike in Moscow is 18,000, in addition to which the Voskressensky factory yesterday locked out 2000 employes.

BOSTON LETTER.

Massachusetts Has Done Much For Labor This Year.

GOV. GUILD MARSHALS FACTS.

Republicans Pleased With State Convention Plans.

Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., has pointed out in a speech recently made the great advance in labor legislation passed this year. No state in the Union has acted more liberally toward the wage earner than Massachusetts, although one might not think so if he were to take on trust the word of the labor leaders who make a living by working for Democratic candidates for political office. All fair-minded labor men know that the states which show the least deference to labor are the Democratic states, while those in which labor is best protected are the Republican commonwealths.

It needs only a visit to Democratic states like the Carolinas, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, to ascertain how the laboring man fares in municipalities and states governed by the Democratic party. There the long days are not limited to 10 hours, but to 11 and sometimes more, and children of tender years toil there when they should be in school, or at play.

Here in Massachusetts, as the governor pointed out, truant officers are empowered to go to the mills and shops and take children under the school age from the bench to the school. Under present law it is a crime punishable by imprisonment to forge an age certificate in order to set a child at work in the mills. The educational requirements of minors before they shall be qualified to work in the mills has been raised to an ultimate standard such as is required for admission to the fourth grade of the best public schools. The law also has been strengthened as to penalties for parents who restrain children from attending school.

Another step taken this year in advance was the establishment of free employment offices under the supervision of the chief of the bureau of labor, the first of which is to be opened this fall. Under the supervision of the state board of education free employment offices have been established for securing positions for school teachers. The eight-hour day has been established in city and state, as well as county.

State Convention Plans Satisfy.

There is general satisfaction with the action of the Republican state committee in making up the organization of the state convention to be held Oct. 5 in Tremont Temple. Attorney General William H. Moody of Haverhill is just the man to draft the platform, and former Governor Bates as chairman of the convention will make a rattling speech that will be pleasing to every Republican.

It will unquestionably be a convention that will arouse the latent enthusiasm of the Republican masses of the commonwealth and show up the weakness and the sham of the Democratic position. One of the greatest speeches ever made in a Republican convention was delivered by Attorney General Moody in Tremont Temple at the Republican state convention three or four years ago. Even the Democratic leaders admitted at the time that it was a tremendous bombardment of their position and that it exposed and held up to the gaze of the people all the weak spots in their platform and candidates. Mr. Moody can be trusted to discover instinctively the weak points in the Democratic armor and to send his shafts direct to those weak positions. He is master of logic and of sarcasm and there is no man in the commonwealth in any of the parties who is his match in that direction.

Foss Is Against Draper.

There is to be a contest on the Republican side for the nomination for lieutenant governor. Eugene N. Foss of Boston has announced that he will be a candidate for this nomination against Lieutenant Governor Eben S. Draper of Hopedale, who is serving his first term in that position.

Mr. Foss says that he is making this campaign to advance the cause of reciprocity with Canada. There seems to be a doubt whether Mr. Foss, if unsuccessful, will be an independent candidate at the polls. Political judges do not see how he can have any possible show of securing the nomination. Mr. Draper secured the regular nomination last fall and was elected by a narrow margin. It has been an invariable rule to renominate a man in all cases where he had performed the duties of the office to the satisfaction of the public. There is no claim that Mr. Draper has not done all this. He will have the support of all the party leaders, so far as known.

Mr. Foss, however, has gone so far as to deny the story published in Boston that he was to be the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor on a ticket with John B. Moran.

Moran Movement Going Slower.

The Moran movement in the state has attained quite a strong position, if any credence can be placed in the reports which come to the district attorney. Quite a number of the city committees of the larger centers have taken steps to align themselves with the Moran boom. In other centers, however, there is a distinctly anti-Moran sentiment, so that it is today a matter of much doubt as to just how strong with the Democratic masses the district attorney will be found to be.

A good many of the Democratic leaders who do not take kindly to Moran's candidacy are of the opinion that he can be beaten if the proper man can be drafted to oppose him. There are several gentlemen who have been mentioned, among whom are Congressman John A. Sullivan of Boston, Henry M. Whitney of Brookline, and former Governor William L. Douglas of Brockton. It is said of Mr. Whitney that he is the strongest fighter in the Democratic ranks. Many, however, regard him as a vulnerable target for the assaults of the Moran campaigners, owing to his long connection with street railway legislation at the state house and the memorable investigation of his methods in 1890 by a committee of the legislature. A good many Democrats believe this is not a year in which prominent corporation men would be strong with the masses. Such Democrats believe that Sullivan, although he is extremely vulnerable, would be a better man to unite the Boston Democrats in opposition to the aspirations of the district attorney.

Is Sullivan Strongest Man?

Mr. Sullivan is a very able speaker in many ways and in a rough and tumble debate is extremely quick and resourceful. There are unfortunate incidents, however, connected with his career which the Moran campaigners would not hesitate to bring to the attention of the public in case he should run. Notwithstanding all these things, there is a general belief that he might be able to pull the Boston Democrats more strongly together against Moran than any other candidate.

Former Governor Douglas, during the latter part of his term of office at least, was in extremely bad favor with the Boston Democracy and quite a number of the leaders feel that while he would be a strong man at the polls he would not in the caucuses marshal the anti-Moran forces so effectively as some other person.

There is no question, however, that the conservative Democrats who do not believe in Socialism or the bombastic methods of District Attorney Moran have definitely decided to bring out a candidate against him and make a tremendous fight to retain the organization and the party control.

There are evidences galore that the Prohibitionists are extremely dissatisfied with what their state convention did in nominating Moran for governor on a Prohibition platform. The rank and file of the people have become aware of the fact that their party leaders were carried off their feet by the Moran wave and that if the convention were to be held at the present time it is extremely doubtful if any such action would be repeated. Mr. Moran believes in local option and not in prohibition and for the first time in the history of the party its followers are called upon to vote for a candidate for governor whose views regarding the liquor questions are diametrically opposed to the principles of that party. Mr. Moran will not be able to secure the Prohibition vote in full nor anything like it, notwithstanding the fact that it has been an extremely small vote in recent years.

CARE OF JEWELS.

How to Keep Them In Good Condition and Safety.

Many American women possess the value of a king's ransom locked within their jewel cases. The possession of such priceless articles is a constant source of worry unless the proper precautions are taken to insure their safe keeping, says the New York Journal. To enjoy any peace the owner of valuable jewelry must:

First.—Send it to the jeweler every six months.

Second.—Keep the most valuable things in the bank.

Third.—Have a routine for removing and putting away jewels.

Fourth.—Have a distinct receptacle for each ornament, so that an empty space tells at once it is missing.

Fifth.—Insure all valuables against theft.

Sixth.—If a loss is discovered and an advertisement printed offer a sufficient reward.

It is not only thieves one has to guard against for the protection of his jewels, but the valuables themselves require constant attention. Large and heavy stones must be looked at frequently by a jeweler or the setting becomes loosened and the stone falls out and is lost.

Turquoise must never be allowed to touch soap or grease, though orientals sometimes say it improves them to lie for an hour or so in clear, clean, cold water. Pearls need wearing, and to improve the condition of their skin nothing is better than to place them in a tumbler of sea water and put the tumbler in the sun. People suffering from certain diseases must never wear pearls. They have been known when set in a ring to perish down to their settings. Those taking certain drugs must lay their pearls aside for the time or they will discolor.

When arriving at a hotel the best thing to do is to give all jewels, money and valuables at once into the keeping of the manager. If jewels are properly cared for they should be thoroughly examined by an expert every six months to make sure that the setting, the pins and the fastenings are in good order.

It is a dangerous place to pack valuables in a small hand bag unless that bag is fastened to the wrist or waist, for nothing is easier than to forget a little bag when hurrying to catch a train.

When removing a wrap it is advisable to take notice that brooches are not unclasped. Valuable jewels are often unfastened by the contact of an outer garment.

CAPTAIN CAMERON WINSLOW

Commander of the Charleston and Son of the Kearsarge's Hero.

Captain Cameron McRae Winslow, commander of the cruiser Charleston, on which Secretary of State Root sailed on July 4 to attend the pan-American congress in Rio de Janeiro, is a son of that Captain Winslow who commanded the corvet Kearsarge, which sank the Confederate cruiser Alabama off Cherbourg in 1864. It was Cameron Winslow, then a lieutenant in command of the gunboat Nashville, who went into Cienfuegos harbor in 1898 and cut the Spanish cable. Winslow was in the Nashville's steam cutter, accompanied by launches from the Nashville and Marblehead.

"After many attempts," he said in telling of the fight, "we grappled the cable, the cutter being not over fifty feet from shore. We were working desperately to bring the cable to the surface when suddenly the enemy opened fire. Bullets splashed all around us. The Nashville and Marblehead saw the spray cast up by the Spanish shot and began shelling the beach. We worked on until we got the cable to the top. Getting a rope under the cable, I stood up in the boat to make a rapid survey of the situation, when I saw a marine in the Marblehead's launch fall, shot in the head.

"As I faced the shore to look at the trenches a sailor in the stern of my own boat dropped, with a six inch wound in his head, two holes in his body and another in his shoulder. We were within easy pistol range of the trenches, and I began firing with my revolver. As I reached for a rifle one of the men had loaded for me a bullet struck me in the left hand, going through the joint of one finger and scoring two others. I tied a handkerchief around my hand and continued firing." The cable in the meantime was successfully cut, and the boats drew off.

Lieutenant Winslow was commended by Secretary Long for his feat at Cienfuegos, but a greater reward was the love of Miss Dora Havemeyer, daughter of Theodore Havemeyer, the sugar king. The department is thinking of recognizing Winslow's services by giving him the new Kearsarge, namesake of his father's ship.

MISS NORMA MUNRO.

Playwright, Musician, Horsewoman, Lawyer, Actress and Publisher.

Miss Norma Munro, to whom David Leslie Carter, son of Mrs. Leslie Carter, the actress, recently announced his engagement and who promptly denied the soft impeachment, is a daughter of the late Norman L. Munro, the publisher. She was named after her father, as nearly as possible, and inherited the bulk of his great wealth.

MISS NORMA MUNRO.

She succeeded to the control of her father's publishing interests and, besides her inherited work, has been admitted to the bar, written a play and financed a theater. Miss Munro is an accomplished musician, and amateur actress and an expert horsewoman. Taught by Maurice Hewlett, the famous whip, she tools four-in-hands about New York city and has been for some years a notable figure at various horse shows. When but twenty Miss Munro wanted to start a magazine. Not being of age and in control of her fortune, her lawyer asked her where the funds were coming from. "Out of my income, of course," answered the girl. "Fewer gowns and a little economy, I think, will supply the funds." The result of this economy was the Impressionist, which lived a year and made much talk.

TO REPUBLICANS:

We are anxious to have every Republican in close touch, and working in harmony with the Republican National Congressional Committee in favor of the election of a Republican Congress.

The Congressional campaign must be based on the administrative and legislative record of the party, and, that being so, Theodore Roosevelt's personality must be a central figure and his achievements a central thought in the campaign.

We desire to maintain the work of this campaign with popular subscriptions of One Dollar each from Republicans. To each subscriber we will send the Republican National Campaign Text Book and all documents issued by the Committee.

Help us achieve a great victory.

The Prying Bureau

[Original.]

The methods of the Emperor Napoleon III. were not above reproach. In the postoffice was organized the cabinet noir, which should be translated the prying bureau, for it was composed of a number of persons who were employed to open the letters of prominent people, read them and send them on to the persons to whom they were addressed without exciting suspicion that they had been tampered with. But there is no game at which one can play that may not be played by two.

One morning a man whom we shall call Victor Garnier sat in his library at his home in Paris. He was, or was supposed to be, in high favor with the emperor, but in those days of chicanery it was impossible for any one to feel certain of his position. A servant came in and announced that a visitor had called who would not give any name. He wished to see M. Garnier at once. The gentleman gave orders that he was to be admitted, and a young man with a hangdog appearance came into the room.

"Well," said M. Garnier, "have you got anything?"

The man thrust his hand into an inner pocket and drew forth a letter and handed it to M. Garnier. It was unsealed, and M. Garnier took it from its envelope and read it. His face darkened. He sat in deep thought for some time, then examined minutely the envelope he held in his hand.

"I see," he said, "that you have mutilated the envelope. Was that necessary?"

"Yes, m'sieu. Every precaution was taken by the writer to provide against the letter being opened. I have had a number of the duke's letters to open, and he takes the same precaution with all. I first tried, in this case, to roll under the pasted flap a smooth pen handle, but, though I have become very expert at this, I failed. Then I tried steaming the gum, but the duke uses a gum that will not be softened by steaming. Of course, since the gum wouldn't soften there was no use tampering with the seal, though I am proud to say that no one can remove a seal more expertly than I. I tried the process of removing the stamp and cutting two diagonal lines where it had been, but when I put in my steel hook and endeavored to wind the paper about it to draw the letter through I failed. The paper is very thick and stiff, as you see. I was consequently reduced to the necessity of making a slit at the end of the envelope."

"But how are you going to close this slit?"

"I will draw one edge over the other deftly and paste it with colorless paste. I assure your excellency it will not be noticed."

"Very well, take it away and send it through the mail to its address. By the bye, Jules, I don't know how I am to come out of this, and it looks as if any one appointed to the postoffice at my request must soon be discharged. You had better take this."

He handed the man notes for 1,000 francs.

"Your excellency is generous," said Jules.

"H'p'h! The service is invaluable to me! I may form a plan to prevent the duke from arresting me. Keep a sharp lookout on the mail, and beware that the members of the cabinet noir don't get on to your track."

The same evening another hangdog looking man called on M. Garnier and informed him that the Duke de M. was at the palace of the Tuileries engaged at a game of cards. Ten minutes later M. Garnier entered the card room, was effusively received by the duke and took a hand. He had played some time when suddenly he rose and threw the cards in the duke's face.

"Cheat!" he cried. "These cards are marked!"

Others examined the cards, which were found to be marked, though there was no evidence who had marked them. But this was of minor importance. The duke must defend his honor and at once challenged his accuser to fight. But he turned pale. He had intended to get rid of his rival, with the emperor's permission, on the morrow and inferred that Garnier had got wind of his move. He must submit to weapons chosen by his challenger, and he knew that Garnier was one of the most expert swordsmen in Paris. Usually in France no one is killed and few are injured in duels. But in this case both knew it was one of life and death, and the duke knew that his antagonist was a better swordsman than he.

The next morning the papers were full of an account of a duel that had taken place at 2 o'clock in the morning between the Duke de M. and M. Garnier, the former having been killed. The prominence of the two men, the fact that they were political rivals and aspirants for the chief place in the government, caused a great sensation. But sensations, especially in France, all have an end, and gradually it was noticed that M. Garnier was rapidly gaining favor with the emperor. In a month's time it was announced that he was to receive the portfolio vacated by the Duke de M.

On the day the portfolio was to be transferred M. Garnier drove to the palace of the Tuileries and was received by the emperor.

"There is one condition, your majesty, attached to my acceptance of this portfolio."

"And that is?" asked the emperor.

"I must have the direction of the cabinet noir."

The emperor knit his brows. He spent an hour trying to change the condition, but, finding it impossible, at last yielded.
